My old servants were around me, and, like a fairy who had worked a wonderful transformation, sweet Eve Guion was the dominant angel of the scene.

My affairs had been settled with my creditors very much more to my benefit than I imagined could be possible. My ancestral home and a modest competence were still left to me.

This, too, was the work of Eve Guion, whose love and faith in me had never faltered in all my wretchedness and exile and whose strong will had drawn comfort and happiness for me out of the depths of sorrow.

If Mr. Guion objected to the turn affairs were taking, he had the sense to offer no fruitless opposition to his daughter's inclination; and I will do him the justice to say that he performed his part at our wedding with a very good grace.

WISE WORDS.

Garner up pleasant thoughts in your mind, for pleasant thoughts make pleasant lives.

No falsehood can endure touch of celestian temper but returns of force to its own likeness.

Calumny and detraction are but sparks which, if you do not blow them will go out themselves.

Ideas are the warriors of the world, and a war that has no ideas behind it is simply brutality.

Many a youth has ruined himself by forgetting his identity and trying to be somebody else.

Remember for what purpose you were born, and, through the whole of your life, look to its end.

When things are said merely to please us, we ought to be careful how we open our ears to them.

Fortune detests cowardice; and the man who will not be conquered by trifles is her prime favorite.

Wish not ill to others, for that very disposition renders us the more liable to receive it ourselves.

When animals please or benefit us, we ought the more act the same to them, being possessed of reason.

The philosopher should be a man willing to hear every suggestion, but determine to judge for himself.

Poverty is often called the mother of rest and perhaps when truly compared with riches it is found so.

There is no rock so hard but that a little wave may beat admission in the course of a thousand years.

A patient and humble temple gathers blessings that are married by the peevish and overlooked by the aspiring.

In all things there are two ways. When one does not know which to take, it may be best to attempt neither.

The incapacity of men to understand each other is one of the principal causes of their ill temper towards each other.

How long we may live is an important consideration; how we live, be our life long or short, is a more important one.

There should always be some foundation of fact for the most fairy fabric, and pure invention is but the talent of a deceiver.

Occasion may be the bugle call that summons an army to battle, but the blast of the bugle can never make soldiers win victories.

The primal duties shine aloft, like stars; the charities that soothe and heal and bless are scattered at the feet of man like flowers.

It is as much the duty of all good men to protect and defend the reputation of worthy public servants as to detect public servants.

Throughout the whole web of national existence we trace the golden thread of human progress toward the higher and better estate.

A happy life is like neither a roaring torrent nor a stagnant pool, but a placid and crystal stream that flows gently and smoothly along.

A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act uncivilly—no more right to say a rude thing to another than to knock him down.

Error tolerates; truth condemns.

Dare to be true; nothing can need a lie.

Men should be tried before they are trusted.

To indulge a consciousness of goodness is the way to lose it.

STOPPING HIS PAPER.

Nowadays when a subscriber gets so mad because the editor differs with him on some trivial question that he discontinues his subscription and "stops his paper," we remind him of a good anecdote of the late Horace Greeley, the well known editor of the New York Tribune. Passing down Newspaper Row, in New York City, one morning he met one of his readers, who very excitedly exclaimed:

"Mr. Greeley, after the article you published this morning I intend to stop your paper!"

"Oh, no," said Mr. Greely, "don't do that."

"Yes, my mind is made up; I shall stop the paper."

But the angry subscriber was not to be appeased, and they separated. Late in the afternoon the two met again, when Greely remarked:

"Mr. Thompson, I am very glad you did not carry out your threat this morning."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, you said you were going to stop my paper."

"And so I did; I went to the office and had the paper stopped."

"You are surely mistaken. I have just come from there, and the press was running and business was booming."

"Sir," said Thompson, very pompously, "I mean I intended to stop my subscription to your paper."

"Oh! thunder!" rejoined Greely, "I thought you were going to stop the running of the paper, and knock me out of a living. My friend, let me tell you something, one man is just a drop of water in the ocean—you didn't set the machinery of this world in motion, and you can't stop it—and when you are underneath the ground those upon the ground will wag on just the same as ever."

A GOOD LITTLE BOY STORY.

A little boy wanted a drum. His mother wishing to give him an impressive lesson, suggested that if he should pray for it he might receive one. So at night, when ready for bed, he knelt down and prayed:

"Now I lay me down to sleep
 (I want a drum.)
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
 (I want a drum.)
If I should die before I wake.
 (I want a drum.)
I pray the Lord my soul to take.
 (I want a drum.)

His father, who had been let into the secret, had meanwhile quietly placed a drum in the bed. As the youngster rose and his *eyes fell on the drum he exclaim*ed in an emphatic manner that banished all serious thoughts from the minds of his listeners: "Where the devil did the drum come from?"

THE SAME STORY.

For years past defalcations on the part of men holding positions of financial trust and enjoying favorable repute in the community have been shockingly numerous. At frequent intervals, like the crash of a sturdy oak in the forest, has been heard the mournful sound of a supposed substantial moral character toppling into ruin.

It is a sad reality, demanding serious thought and comment.

There is no shipwreck that equals in disaster the loss of personal integrity. That gone all is gone, and yet the shores of human life are strewn with havoc of the kind, apparently without the effect of deterring others from steering the same fatal course.

Why do such men steal? Why are they not content to live within honest means? Why is it, that rejecting ample warning, they will yield to temptation, consign themselves to infamy, plunge innocent families into living misery, and, too often, cause skeptics to point the finger of reproach at religious profession?

To us, the reason why is obvious.

The good old-fashioned plan of getting rich slowly and living modestly is spurned as fogyism, a relic of vulgarity, and instead thereof, large and quickly grasped wealth, with its attendant ostentation and power, esteemed the desirable and proper thing to do in these depraved days of shoddy, show and shame.

For that object men turn defaulters, or, correctly speaking, thieves.

Does it pay?

No! Never!

Nine-tenths of all defaulters do not realize a dollar of peculiary advantage from the criminal appropriation of property not their own. It is totally swallowed up in the whirlpool of gambling effort to become rich. They rob and lose, rob more vainly hoping to recover, lose everything—character, money and happiness, roam the earth disgraced exiles, or within prison walls wear a felon's uniform.

That is the same story.

Would it were the last of the kind.

REAL AND BOGUS.

The real prosperity of a people does not consist in colossal private fortunes, acquired through gambling speculation or advantages unscrupulously taken, but rather in many moderate fortunes, the fruit of legitimate business, industry and labor, permanently based and justly rewarded. That makes a country reliably and honorably rich, and profitable would it be for the American people were they to discard every other supposed avenue to wealth.

A score or two years ago one hundred thousand dollars was considered a handsome competency and possessors of sums below that well-to-do citizens. Then enterprise was practical and business pursuits steady, small capitalists then enjoyed an opportunity of gain proportionate to those of greater means, and moderation in living created general contentment and happiness. Then prosperity was a solid fact, not a gaudy show.

Now fortunes of one, two, five, ten, twenty and even thirty million dollars, largely invested in untaxed securities, are of frequent mention, wanton extravagance flaunts its pernicious example on every hand, and men not only neglect honest avocations, but commit criminal acts, in their absurd anxiety to become suddenly and immensely rich without toil.

Some call that progress.

It may be and swift, but not towards safety.

We are fully aware that the present age of steam and electricity is fast, but we possess equal knowledge of the truth that correct principles are changeless. A locomotive may rush along at the speed of sixty miles an hour, but it cannot crush the worth of business honesty; an electric light may convert midnight gloom into noonday brightness, yet fail to outshine integrity of character; and railroad kings, mining emperors, stock-jobbing moguls, and bloated lords of monopoly may sit proudly on their million propped thrones, and still be minus the priceless pearl of just dealing and regard for the rights of others.

It is a fast age, recklessly so, and, we fear, rapidly tending to the establishment of two undesirable classes—the very rich and the very poor.

No country ever enjoyed lasting welfare under such governing rule.

There is neither public good nor stability in that condition of society. Moderate wealth, legitimately earned and widely disseminated among the people, and laws framed to guarantee to every man security against soulless combinations, and a fair reward for his own enterprise, industry and labor, no matter how small the sphere, is what the country needs to-day.

Wealth honestly accumulated and wisely handled is national strength and individual blessing.

Monopolists and gamblers are enemies to both.

MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL.

The Hospital recently opened in this city for the reception of patients is eliciting favorable remarks from every quarter. The National Democrat of Rahway last week made public the following friendly communication:

"Doubtless few persons in our city are aware that Plainfield has a hospital, and one which a much larger city might well be proud to own. Muhlenburg Hospital is finely located at the southern extremity of the city, on an open and extensive space. The building is new, prettily constructed, and surrounded with tastefully arranged grounds. Upon entering and taking a seat in the parlor, a person would suppose he were in some private dwelling, and would be particularly struck with the order and cleanliness which pervades every part of the building. On the lower floor there are two large and commodious wards, with cots arranged in rows, on the sides. One of these wards is set apart for the men and the other for the women. There are also three other rooms on this floor, the parlor, dining and operating rooms, with a large hall leading from the main entrance. The upper floor is divided into a number of [illegible] rooms, [illegible] furnished. These rooms are [illegible] those patients who prefer and [illegible] the wards but remain private. They are rented at $12 per week, while the wards are but $5.

The hospital [illegible] marked success, which [illegible] institution [illegible]

[illegible] capable [illegible] office, [illegible] Hospital has been most fortunate in that respect in securing Mrs. Clark a young lady of education, and more than ordinary intelligence, combining all those qualities, which commend her to the esteem of her friends and the regard of patients, and make her fully competent to perform all the duties which are incident to such a responsible position. She is assisted by experienced nurses and courteous and willing servants, who are always at hand to perform whatever is required. Mrs. Clark ministers to all the wants of her patients in such a kind and gracious manner as to win their lasting friendship.

Food of the best quality is provided and in abundance, which is not always the case in places where people are boarded.

On Tuesday and Friday of each week, visitors are received and shown through the building. It is needless to say, that a great many avail themselves of this privilege.

A person having occasion, through sickness or other causes, to go to a hospital for a time and wishing to receive the best treatment and kindest attention, could not be more fortunate than to select Muhlenberg Hospital of Plainfield." PRO BONO PUBLICO.

President Arthur on Monday last sent to the Senate the name of Judge Blatchford for the vacancy in the Supreme Court.

LOCAL ANNEX.

A New Jail Warden.

At the regular meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders held on Thursday, Mr. Sylvester Cahill of Rahway was elected after 16 ballots, to succeed the present Jail Warden, Marsh.

A New Road House.

One of those fine residences on Park avenue directly opposite the trotting track of the U. & M. C. M. A. Asso., has just been leased by Mrs. John Crawford, widow of the late popular New York caterer, and will shortly be opened by her as a first-class road house. Possessing large and complete sets of table furniture in fine crockery, glass and silver, and the experience necessary, the proprietoress of the Fairview House (as it is to be called) will be capable of providing, arranging and serving the finest of collations. A place where parties of wealth and fashion can be thus accommodated, has long been needed in this vicinity.

Grand Vocal and Instrumental Concert.

It is believed, and everything in prospective seems to prove that the Concert at Van Deventer Hall on Thursday evening the 30th inst., for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, will be on a grander scale than anything of the like sort ever attempted in this city. Besides the very acceptable chorus singing of the Plainfield Saengerbund—which Society is managing the affair—the Teutonia Singing Society of Elizabeth will assist, and a grand male chorus of forty voices with a full orchestra will render some most enjoyable selections. The following soloists will also appear: Miss Jansen, Soprano; H. Brandeis, Tenor; Herman Trost, Basso, and D. B. Dana, Cornetist. They are all artists of well known ability.

Lawyer Dunn.

In accordance with an order of the Supreme Court, Hon. John T. Dunn has been admitted to the examination which is necessary for admission to the Bar. Last Monday he went through the necessary written examination, and on Tuesday was examined orally, successfully passing both ordeals. In the House on Tuesday Assemblyman Robertson, of Essex, presented the following bearing upon the subject, which was received with applause by the members, and adopted:

WHEREAS, The Supreme Court of this State has this day discovered in our able and amiable Speaker, the Hon. John T. Dunn, a new luminary in the legal firmament; therefore

Resolved, That the members of the New Jersey House of Assembly do most heartily congratulate the Supreme Court on its new discovery, and do also congratulate our friend and associate, Speaker Dunn, on his well won legal standing;

Resolved, That it is the earnest wish and desire of this House that he shall live long and win additional honors in his new field of labor.

We congratulate Speaker Dunn upon his final triumph in the matter.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Wm. W. Onderdonk has been appointed Lay Judge of Somerset County in place of Mr. A. V. D. B. Vosseller.

Mr. Rufus Jennings has just leased the blacksmith shop of P. Wooden on Emily street adjoining the Somerset House stables, where he will hereafter be found ready and able to do first-class horse shoeing and other work in that line.

Among contemplated changes by our merchants, Mr. J. N. R[illegible] intends to open a [illegible] manufactory and repair shop adjoining the Somerset House; Mr. Springman the barber being about to locate in the Marsh building next to Warren E[illegible] house.

Mr. Levi Case Tyler, of Harmony and Somerset streets, [illegible] peace-breaker. A too inordinate indulgence in "Jersey lightning" and "rat" on Saturday aggravated Mr. T's inner organs into such a state of colicky chaos that death seemed to offer charms to soothe his savage breast. He swallowed "cold pison" with suicidal intent, but an active and efficient physician succeeded in overcoming the effects of the dose. And Lewis is himself again—which may or may not be saying much in his favor.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department met in adjourned meeting on Wednesday evening. Present President Van Winkle and Messrs Morris, Jones, Gillies, Depew and Flaig. Minutes of the previous meeting, read and approved. Mr. Jones reported all the Wells as being in good condition. Mr. Flaig stated he had seen the agent of the Alert Hose House and he had offered to rent that building at $275 per annum. Mr. Flaig moved that a three years lease at that price be taken—amended by Mr. Gillies that it be rented for one year with the privilege of three. Carried. A number of bills were referred to the Com. on Repairs and Supplies for examination. Mr. Morris presented the following:

Resolved, That the Treasurer of this Board be, and hereby is instructed to forthwith pay Bonds of the Department that are past due, to the amount of fifteen hundred dollars. Carried.

Mr. Jones moved that the bonds paid under the resolution be the three first issued in their regular order. Mr. Morris presented a communication from Alert Hose Co., applying for a certificate of exemption for Mr. Karl T. Polak, which was referred to the Secretary for examination. The Secretary was instructed to write to the Secretary of State for certified copy of Assembly Bill No. 182. Mr. Jones moved that a Committee be appointed to meet on the 29th inst to examine the Treasurer's books. Carried. Mr. Morris moved that it consist of the President, Secretary and Mr. Jones. Carried. Mr. John W. Jackson was unanimously confirmed as a member of Zephyr H. & L. Co., and Mr. Wm. Wheelock as a member of Alert Hose Co. On motion the Board adjourned to meet at Alert Hose House on the 22th inst, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

The new truck for Zephyr Co., is ready for inspection before painting, and a Committee of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department will visit the works to-day and pass judgment upon the apparatus. It is to be painted according to the suggestion of the maker, which colors were specified in a recent issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

Both Zephyr H. & L. Co., and No. 2 E[illegible] Co., have reinstated Messrs Van Winkle and Jones for re-election as members of the Board of Managers of Fire Department.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

There was a large attendance of sportsmen and others at the return pigeon shooting match near Alton, (Dog Tavern) last Friday, between Messrs. Wm. Van Sicklen of Metuchen, and Nevius Apgar, of Plainfield. The day was very unfavorable for shooting, a high wind prevailing, and the air chilly and cutting. The birds were a good lot, strong flyers, and capable of carrying away plenty of shot. The shooting commenced about 2 o'clock. Mr. Lowe, of Bound Brook, acting as referee. The terms of the match were 20 birds each at 21 yards rise, Long Island rules, (single barrel). Both contestants were in good trim to shoot. When the sixteenth bird had been shot at by both, Mr. Van Sicklen was so far ahead as to preclude his opponent catching up with him. The match was therefore declared ended, with the former named the victor, he having killed twelve to his opponent's seven birds out of sixteen. Below is the score.

Van Sicklen—1111101011111—12.
Apgar—0111000110001110—7.

Mr. Van Sycklen had seven right quarterers, four left quarterers and five drivers for his share, while Mr. Apgar had eight drivers, one incomer, three left quarterers and four right quarterers.

Each party handled and trapped for each other and it was evident to all that Mr. Van Sicklen, from long experience at the trap, was the best "handler" of the two. "Uncle Bell" Connett, did everything in his power to make things agreeable to the visitors.

Obituary.

The many friends of John P. Bonnell, formerly of Elizabeth, will learn with sorrow of that gentleman's death, which occurred at the residence of his father-in-law, Silas R. Lindsley, Green Village, Morris county, N. J., on Thursday evening, March 9th, after a brief illness from typhoid pneumonia. For several years Mr. Bonnell resided at Elizabeth, N. J., where for a time he held the position of Harbor Master. He was the inventor of a steam ditching machine, on which he made improvements from time to time, until at last he had so far perfected the machine as to warrant its sale making him a man of means. Ex-Gov. Randolph was one of his warmest friends, and took a great interest in the success of Mr. Bonnell's ditcher, which he traveled with to various parts of the South, experimenting on different soils. The fast paper train, by which the leading dailies were conveyed to points West hours in advance of the old method, was another idea originating with him. A number of years ago Mr. Bonnell was appointed by the Democratic State Committee as State Organizer, and it was through his indefatigable efforts that a plan of organization was established in certain Democratic localities, where for want of action and energy, the party dominant were not in power, which resulted beneficially at ensuing elections. He was a staunch Democrat of the Jeffersonian stripe. The avowed principles of that party he maintained to the hour of his death. He never sought political honors, seeming satisfied rather to advocate the principles of his party than to enjoy any of its emoluments. During the sessions of the Legislature Mr. Bonnell was always to be seen at the State Capitol, where his counsel on many matters, before that body was often sought after. In his private life Mr. Bonnell was a kind and indulgent husband, loving father, and genial and true friend. In church and social circles he was a great favorite, being a singer of more than ordinary ability. He oftentimes also sang at public entertainments for charitable and other purposes, without recompense. At one time he conducted the music at Grace Episcopal Church, Elizabeth. He leaves a wife, two daughters and two sons, to mourn his untimely death. Assemblyman Oscar Lindsley, of Morris county, is his brother-in-law. His eldest son, Eugene, is organist of the South street Presbyterian Church at Morristown. The funeral of deceased, on Sunday last, was largely attended. Peace to his ashes. He was an honest and true-hearted man.

AN ORDINANCE

To provide for the Licensing and Regulation of Peddlers, Hawkers, Cartmen, Hack, Omnibus, Stage and Truck Drivers and Drivers.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That license may be granted by the Common Council to such and so many persons of good moral character and otherwise qualified according to the provisions of this ordinance as the Common Council shall from time to time think proper, to carry on, wholly or in part, within the limits of the city, the business of peddler, hawker or cartman, to drive or keep for use for hire a hack, omnibus, stage, truck or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise, according to the provisions of this ordinance; and the city clerk shall keep a detailed record of all licenses so granted.

SEC. 2. That every application for any such license shall be in writing, signed by the applicant, stating his place of residence and the purpose for which such license is asked.

SEC. 3. That no person shall, pursue, or in any manner carry on, as owner or as agent for another, within the limits of said city, the business of peddler or hawker without having first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance; provided that no such license contained shall prevent farmers and gardeners from vending the products of the farms owned or occupied by them, or milkmen and butchers from carrying on their business in said city without a license.

SEC. 4. That no person shall drive, keep or use for hire or wages, or cause to be driven, kept or used for hire or wages, any cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, or other vehicle, for the transportation of passengers, baggage, or merchandise of any kind, wholly or in part within the limits of said city, without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance (provided that none of the requirements contained in this section shall apply to owners or drivers of any livery stable vehicles, other than those vehicles kept by them for use of passengers solicited at the railway station or elsewhere within the city limits). One license and only one shall be required for each cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle; and no person shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this section for driving a cart, truck, omnibus, stage, or other vehicle, for or in respect of which a license has been obtained by its owner.

SEC. 5. That each license granted under the provisions of this ordinance shall expire on the first day of March next following the granting of the same, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person licensed, the number of the license, and the date of its expiration, and shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk.

SEC. 6. That every person so licensed shall, at the time of receiving such license, pay thereto to the City Clerk to be by him paid to the City Treasurer for the use of said city, the sum of five dollars for each license for one year, or unexpired portion thereof, and in addition thereto the clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing such license (provided, however, that in cases where licenses were granted in good under the ordinance in force in that year, after that ordinance was abrogated by the repeal of the law upon which the same was founded, the City Clerk may issue a license without exacting any fee therefor under this ordinance to any person who paid a license fee to the City Clerk under the said former ordinance, said license or licenses so issued to be for one year, or the unexpired portion thereof after the passage of this ordinance.)

SEC. 7. That no person licensed under this ordinance, and no driver or other person in the employ of any such person shall stand upon any sidewalk, or in any street or other public place in said city, for the purpose of soliciting custom, or for any other purpose, in a way to obstruct travel or cause damage or annoyance to the owners or occupants of premises fronting on the public thoroughfares, or to any other person or persons; and any person believing himself aggrieved by a violation of this section may make complaint thereof before the City Judge, and the offender shall, upon conviction of such violation, be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

SEC. 8. That every person so licensed shall, as soon as licensed, cause the number of his license to be permanently and conspicuously placed or painted upon the outside of both sides of each vehicle for which such license shall have been granted, and every person so licensed, and the driver of every such vehicle, shall wear in a conspicuous place upon his person while engaged in the business for which he is licensed, so as to be easily seen, a badge with the corresponding number thereon, and shall keep posted in a conspicuous place in the inside of his hack, stage, omnibus or other vehicle in such position that the same may be easily read, a card with the rates of fare or charge specified in the tenth section of this ordinance, written or printed thereon, and every person who shall violate this section of the ordinance shall on conviction thereof be punished by fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

SEC. 9. That every license granted under this ordinance may be suspended or revoked by the Mayor or City Judge for satisfactory cause, other than offences elsewhere specially provided for in this ordinance, and every person who shall, during the suspension or revocation of his license, carry on his particular line of business, shall on conviction thereof be punished by fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

SEC. 10. That any person licensed under this ordinance to use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus stage or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers, may charge therefor the following rates, but no more, that is to say: For the carriage of any passenger or passengers from any point within to any point within that part of the city included within the following boundaries, that is to say, beginning at a point where Farragut avenue intersects Grant avenue, thence following the line of Farragut avenue to Front street; thence, in the same course, in a direct line, to Richmond avenue; thence, through Hillside avenue to Prospect avenue; thence, in a direct line, to the point of intersection of Park avenue by the Randolph road; thence, through Randolph road to Plainfield avenue; thence, in a straight line, to the intersection of Spencer avenue and Eighth street; thence, through Eighth street, to Grant avenue; thence, through Grant avenue, to the northwestern city line; thence, following the northwestern city line, to Farragut avenue, the place of beginning, twenty-five cents for one passenger carried and fifteen cents for each additional passenger carried from the same point to the same point at the same time, and for the carriage of any passenger from any point within to any point without the aforesaid boundaries, fifty cents for one passenger and twenty-five cents for each additional passenger, provided, however that after eleven o'clock at night and before five o'clock in the morning the charges may be double the rates aforesaid where any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle shall be engaged by the hour the person licensed to use for hire or wages such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle may charge one dollar for the first hour and seventy-five cents for each additional hour.

SEC. 11. That the first applicant to any licensed hackman shall be entitled to conveyance to any point that the said applicant may desire to reach within the city limits; and any refusal on the part of the owner or driver of such licensed vehicle to comply with the request shall render liable said owner or driver to a fine of two dollars for the first offence, and five dollars for a second offence, and the revoking of the license for a third offence.

SEC. 12. That every person licensed as aforesaid and the driver of every hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers who shall demand for any service mentioned in section ten more than the rates fixed therein shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by fine not exceeding five dollars for the first offence and by a fine not exceeding five dollars and by a revocation of the license under which any such fare has been asked for any offence subsequent to the first.

SEC. 13. That the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to license and regulate street venders of meat, fish, fruit, vegetables, patent medicines or other articles," approved June 17, 1879, and the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to license carmen, expressmen and hackmen," approved July 21, 1879, and the amendment thereto, approved December 30, 1879, be and the same are hereby repealed.

SEC. 14. All ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

Adopted March 13, 1882.
Approved March 14, 1882.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

THE Park avenue Baptist church celebrated its sixth anniversary on Wednesday evening.

THE first shad of the season caught in the Raritan river, was taken on Saturday last by Isaac Bartow.

THE sale of the Dunham property has been adjourned to Friday the 24th inst at 3 o'clock p. m., on the premises.

RUSH along that prospective Opera House! Have it finished by next Fall and you'll begin at once to reap the benefit.

THE name of the Rahway Advocate and Times is to be changed to "The Rahway Advocate" and will hereafter be issued semi-weekly.

STREET COMMISSIONER Mosher is a vigorous new broom that is cleaning our paved streets most effectively. The best of the matter is, the city pays nothing for it.

THE Plainfield Saengerbund, at its late annual election, showed its admiration and appreciation of the past year's officers by unanimously re-electing them to serve another twelve months.

WE are authorized in stating that "something is going to be done" with that eye-sore of a triangular lot in front of the Crescent avenue church and at the head of Broadway.

THERE has been no additional games played in the "Chess Tournament" since our score of last week. It is intended, however, to play the remaining games and close the contest during the next few days.

SPARKS from a passing locomotive, it is supposed, set fire to the barn and stables adjoining L. Fisher's Hotel, at Bound Brook, on Tuesday afternoon last, and the buildings were entirely destroyed.

ONE year ago last Saturday was the date of the attempted murder of Mr. George C. Owens, of Liberty Corners, by John Henry Peterson. About the same time the small-pox scare in this city was at its height.

THERE will be sold at auction to-morrow (Saturday) at one o'clock p. m., at No. 34 West Front street, a full line of carpets, household furniture, kitchen utensils, &c., the property of the late Silas C. Herring Esq.

SOME person unknown picked up and carried away a fine Maltese cat belonging to Mr. E. P. Thorn, of the Mansion House. "Ed" suggests that the party should call for the cat's mate, when he will be properly "interviewed."

TWO members of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department are to be elected on Monday, April 10th, to take the places of President Van Winkle and "Commissioner" Jones. They deserve and should receive, a re-election.

AT Laing's Hall, to-day (Friday) at one o'clock p. m., there will be disposed of at auction, an assortment of first class household furniture. The articles offered are the property of Mrs. Henry Redfield and include many desirable bargains.

THE next "descriptive talk" of the Y. M. C. A., course of free lectures, will be given on Tuesday evening the 28th inst., by the Rev. Wm. Manchee. The subject is "A Summer Ramble in Switzerland," and the place where delivered will be announced later.

MESSRS. Boehm & Bro., are putting a burglar alarm in their Front street store and basement, with connections to the floors above which they use as a dwelling. Consequently their establishment will never be added to the list of places mysteriously robbed.

THE late proprietor of the Park House, Mr. Geo. B. De Revere, having leased the Rye Beach Hotel on Long Island Sound, he will on Thursday of next week at 10 a. m., offer the public at auction the entire furniture, carpets and other articles contained in the Park House.

IT is rumored that the "Celebrated McGibeny Family," whose appearance at the Seventh Day church on the evening of Feb. 24th, was an occasion of such enjoyment to the audience, is to be brought out at the Park avenue church by that organization at an early day.

THE Elizabeth Journal says—"The small-pox scare in Plainfield has about died out." This is the first intimation our citizens have had of the existence of this dread disease among us. There has fortunately not been a single case of small-pox in this city in nearly a year.

AN unusual opportunity to rent a first class residence in one of our best neighborhood, is offered in our advertising columns to-day. The house has every improvement and convenience desirable, steam pump, burglar alarm &c., and a fine stable and elegant grounds in connection.

WHY doesn't some generous philanthropist build an Opera House in this city? If erected and furnished upon plans that aim at comfort and convenience rather than to save money, and managed with an eye to the high standard of its entertainments regardless of the outlay, a big profit would be returned.

THE owner of the Park House, Mr. Evan Jones, will take the management of it into his hands during the coming summer. He expects to be open for early guests about April 1st, but the new carpets, &c., with which he intends to re-furnish the interior, will not be laid throughout and everything in final order until a few weeks later. Mr. Jones' management of the Park House some time ago, was during its greatest success.

AMONG the advertising signs that attract so much attention on the meadows near the Singer Works at Newark Bay, has just been erected one 15x25 feet by those enterprising wall paper dealers and interior decorators, Messrs. G. P. & C. E. Brown & Co. One of the specialties of this firm (the senior of which is a well-known North Plainfield citizen) is heavy and lace curtains, of which a fine assortment may be selected from. Drop a line to P. O. Box 1664, and samples and estimates may be obtained of anything you may desire of the kind.

MRS. H. S. Barnes has just received a handsome assortment of Easter cards, which she is offering the public at No. 6 West Front street.

IN the rear of the Post Office and the floor above, there will be sold at auction on Monday morning next at 10 o'clock, the entire household furniture &c. of ex-Postmaster Vail. Also two horses, an express wagon and many miscellaneous articles.

AS Summer approaches the corner of Park avenue and Front street will begin to be crowded with the profane, tobacco chewing and rum breathing assemblage that is wont to be congregated at that point. In view of such prospect we would call the attention of the authorities to "An Ordinance to prevent swine from running loose in the public streets."

Postponement.

Greatly to the annoyance of the St. Mary's T. A. B. Society of this city, the Eighth Annual Ball that was to be given by it this evening, had to be postponed until Thursday evening, April 13th. No objection has ever before arisen to the giving of this Society's Ball during Lent, but a new Bishop has lately been placed in command over St. Mary's parish. He being a Swede with no patriotic feelings of sympathy with the rejoicings of St. Patrick's Day in the evening, has seen fit to issue his order that the Ball shall not take place until after Easter Sunday. Consequently the postponement and inconvenience.

North Plainfield Public School.

On Tuesday evening of next week the regular annual meeting of School Dist. No. 38, will be held at the North Plainfield Public School House at 7:30 o'clock. Besides the reading of the Annual Report of the Board, a new Trustee will be elected to fill the place of Mr. James K. Arnold, whose term of office will expire. The past services of that gentleman, however, undoubtedly recommend him as his own successor. In view of the nature of the meeting and the probability of a large attendance of those interested in the advancement of education and the improvement of its facilities, we would suggest a important subject for consideration. North Plainfield needs a new school building, and every year its erection is postponed is detrimental to the growth and advancement of the Township. Let, therefore, some action in the matter be taken at the meeting of Tuesday evening, and, at the least, a committee appointed to procure plans, specifications and bids to be submitted and acted upon finally and favorably at an early date.

The Pews vs The Pulpit.

Plainfield is rapidly proving its right to the title of "City of Sensations." No sooner does one extraordinary event shoot up like a rocket, than we hear the hissing of the fuse that is about to explode another. The latest is, so far, a case of "you did" and "I didn't." A number of the members of St. Mary's R. C. Church on Saturday last presented to the Bishop of the diocese written charges against their pastor, the Rev. J. P. Morris, reflecting upon his reputation for sobriety, honesty, veracity and integrity. The Bishop upon the receipt of such notified Father Morris, and the latter at once, on Monday afternoon last, made a general denial before the Bishop of all the accusations. An investigation will of course be had immediately, as required by the laws of the church; and the impeached assured of his own innocence, defies his accusers to prove what they claim their entire ability to substantiate. The final settlement of the matter as to who is right and who is wrong, will be awaited by us and the public with more or less interest.

The Cornwell Embezzlement.

Our community was greatly shocked on Friday morning of last week, to learn of the embezzlement of about $75,000 from the Fourth National Bank of New York, by its loan clerk Mr. R. H. Cornwell of this city. That gentleman being a very prominent member of the M. E. church was well known in Plainfield, as were also the other members of his family, and the distressing news called forth universal expressions of regret at the sad fall of one who had been respected and admired in both social and religious circles. Mr. Cornwell was lying seriously ill at his residence when the embezzlement was made public by the officers of the bank and it was impossible to get at that time or since anything like a full statement or confession from his lips. Dr. South who is the attendant physician, insists that perfect quiet and freedom from excitement and worry shall be kept up, or the result may be fatal. The discovery of the crime and the facts relating to a rumored written confession, are about as follows: Mr. Cornwell first became ill and was compelled to stay at home from business in the latter part of February. On the 27th of that month his condition was so serious that a physician was called. A day or two later there came a dispatch from the bank officers asking what had become of certain securities of which he had charge. Mr. Cornwell, then upon his sick bed, wrote a letter making a clean breast of the whole affair. His family knew of the dispatch and its being answered, but had no idea of the contents of the letter.

Word was sent as required by the laws governing the existence of National banks, to the Controller of the Currency at Washington. That officer on Saturday last sent his orders to the United States District Attorney at New York, to arrest the accused, and steps in that direction were at once taken. The Bank officials being unable to give any data or specific amount to insert in an affidavit on which to obtain a warrant, a general form had to be drawn up charging Cornwell with abstracting and wilfully misapplying certain moneys and funds of the bank, consisting of bonds, currency, "call loans," and other securities, amounting in value to $75,000, "a more complete and accurate description of which being to deponent unknown." Upon this affidavit, United States Commissioner Shields granted a warrant for Cornwell's arrest, and United States Marshal McHugh of Jersey City served the same on Mr. Cornwall, at his place of residence on Broadway, at a late hour of Saturday evening. The Marshal at first insisted on removing the accused at once, but Mr. Cornwell's sons protested against such action and Dr. South was sent for. Upon his arrival he declared that the removal of the sick man would in all probability cost him his life. McHugh insisted that he had no discretion in the matter, but must obey positive instructions to take Cornwell to Jersey City that night, alive or dead. Finally he admitted that he could appoint a deputy, and went with Mr. Geo. Cornwell to secure a suitable person for the position. Captain Dodd was found on Park avenue with a CONSTITUTIONALIST reporter watching a suspicious looking character who might have been a safe burglar. To the demands of the Marshal that he must have a responsible man at once to place in charge over Mr. Cornwall, Capt. Dodd replied that so late in the evening he knew not where to find one. McHugh then returned to the house and appointed one of Mr. Cornwell's sons as a Deputy, and leaving the prisoner in his charge left for New York.

Mr. Cornwell's bodily health is steadily improving, and it is expected that he will be able to leave his bed in a few days. His mental sickness is said, however, to be very distressing. Broken down under the shame of his guilt and conscience stricken with a repentance that has come too late, his condition is far from enviable. Meanwhile a bail bond is being drawn up under which the accused will remain at liberty until an investigation is commenced by the Court.

The Rutgers Glee Club.

We are glad to announce the reappearance in this city of that most enjoyable company of young vocalists from Rutgers College. It will be remembered that upon the same evening of a recent concert given by this club in Plainfield, another attraction had the effect of reducing the audience, and the coming appearance is at the request of the many who heard and the many who desire to hear this very talented organization. The programme will include college songs, choruses, solos, duets, glees, &c., all of the most popular and pleasing variety and completely within the power of the vocal abilities of the Club. The entertainment will be given in Van Deventer Hall on Tuesday evening next; reserved seats for which can be secured at the pharmacy of Dunham & Miller.

A Wedding Anniversary Sociable.

Last Wednesday night Mr. Chas. Sturtevant of this city, celebrated the second anniversary of his married life by holding a "grand sociable" at his spacious residence, corner of Front and Washington streets. A large number of invitations had been sent out, and as a consequence, Charley had the pleasure of gazing into the faces and taking by the hand about one hundred of his most intimate friends, who had evidently made up their minds to have a "good time." The services of "Sam" Fraze and a harpist were called into requisition; the floors were bared, the furniture was stowed away out of sight, and some forty couples formed into "setts" for dancing, while a "baker's dozen" or so contented themselves by attempting to talk each other dumb in adjacent rooms. The business was kept up until it was intimated that there were some tables in the dining hall that needed attention, in order to prevent the same from actually breaking down, on account of the enormous pressure of the most appetizing viands under which they seemed to groan and beg for deliverance. A "line of march" was taken for the scene of conflict; the "enemy was surrounded" and the good things disappeared with the most astonishing rapidity. On breaking up, many "good nights" or rather "good mornings" were said, and Charley and his estimable wife were wished many happy returns of the very enjoyable occasion.

Safe (?) Breakers.

"Some person or persons unknown" that have of late along the line of the C. R. R. of N. J., been promiscuously blowing open safes and impartially appropriating their contents, paid a visit to this city on Friday night of last week and were rewarded by their trouble for their pains. They selected as a place of operation the office of Mr. L. B. Boice in his feed warehouse on Somerset street, and inserted a dynamite cartridge into the interior of his Wilder Safe through a hole drilled in the top. Large bags of screenings and heavy horse-blankets were then piled upon and around the safe to break the force of the concussion and deaden the sound, after which the charge was fired with the intended result. The safe door was blown entirely off—the bolts bending like wire—and the back almost torn from the sides. The office partition was forced out of line and many of the glass windows broken by the explosion. The operators then took out the inner safe, burst that open in the same way, and after emptying it of its contents proceeded to make a thorough examination of the checks, notes, deeds and books, that were spread before them. Nothing of value was found, however, and everything was left excepting a few pennies and some old currency that would amount to less than $2.00.

The burglars entered through a back window opening into the office and only secured by a hook. They stole from the carpenter shop of Mr. L. E. Barkalew, a brace which was used in drilling the safe and afterwards left behind. With a cold chisel from Mr. Boice's barn they pried the shutter open and left by the same way. Some time ago when Mr. Boice was closing this same shutter for the night, a stone was thrown with great force against it, that narrowly missed that gentleman's head. Since then he has never left anything of value in the office over night, and to such warning is due his slight loss of Friday night. Mr. Boice lived opposite but heard no report of the explosion, and so far as ascertained no one in the vicinity heard any unusual noise.

The same night the safe in the office of Mr. Chas. A. Smith, the coal and lumber dealer of Fanwood, was blown open by, it is supposed, the same gang of operators.

The Case of Nelson W. Gardner.

Since our issue of last week announcing the sudden death of Mr. Nelson Gardner of North Plainfield, certain sensational papers with no regard for the dead nor his family and less regard for truth and veracity, have spread throughout the country most infamous accounts of the deceased's honesty. Possessing the same information regarding the circumstances of the death, its manner and the aspect of affairs at the time, as was afterwards so shamelessly misconstrued by the penny-a-liners of irresponsible journals, we abstained from giving reference to the base rumors, and waited patiently for the vindication that—knowing the deceased's personal integrity—we were sure would follow. Since, we have many times been accused of a lack of enterprise and told that an ability to gather local news and serve it up to the public in a bold and dashing style was wanting in our reportorial department. If to fill our columns with the surmises of town gossips and the baseless accusations of backbiters, be enterprise; if to harrow the suffering hearts of those who have just lost a loved one, with disgraceful fabrications regarding the dishonesty of he who is just laid at rest, be a "bold and dashing" style of journalism, then we plead guilty to the charge. But we claim, and our past will bear witness, that in the way of accurate, reliable news, we have never been forestalled by any of our contemporaries.

It is now apparent that on account of business troubles an unknown burden of some sort rested upon the mind of the deceased, and caused an anxiety and torment under which he could no longer sustain himself. On Monday of last week this affliction of mind and conscience culminated in suicide, and he carried out an intention that he had before expressed a belief he would be driven to. Returning from New York early in the afternoon he paid a small butcher's bill that he was owing, purchased some cigars at the drug store of E. M. Steile and after eating his supper, hurriedly undressed himself and laying down on his bed expired. Before this last act he told his wife that he had taken poison, and following him to the room, she was with him when he died. The deceased left a letter dated February 22d, which was taken charge of and is still retained by the widow's brothers. Except that in it he confesses to the committing of some act he deeply regrets, the contents are properly withheld from the knowledge of the morbidly curious public whom it most certainly does not concern.

The trustees of the First Baptist Church of which Mr. Gardner was the late treasurer, made a partial examination of his accounts on last Friday evening. So far as is ascertained, none of the church money is missing. His accounts as executor of his father's estate have also been examined and found to be straight. The great wrong to which he referred in his letter is believed to have been an unfortunate real estate investment which he made, sinking in it, it is said, some of his wife's money.

Oh, for an Opera House!

The Spring Election.

The Township Election in North Plainfield on Tuesday last resulted as usual in the election of Republican officials. The Democrats made no ticket, but at a Citizens' meeting held after the Republicans had made their ticket, another was put in the field, headed "Citizen's Ticket," composed of Republicans and Democrats. The regular Republican ticket, however, was elected entire. Below we give names and figures with majorities for those elected:

In Fanwood Township the Democrats made a gallant fight and elected their entire ticket with the exception of Assessor, Mr. John Robinson, the Republican candidate receiving three majority. Despite the most strenuous efforts made by the opposition, Mr. C. W. L. Martine was re-elected Chosen Freeholder by the handsome majority of 44. Mr. James A. Baker, was re-elected Town Clerk by 28 majority. There was 240 votes polled. There was found in the box 28 Greenback Tickets when the polls closed. We didn't know Scotch Plains contained that number of deluded citizens. Below is the names of officials elected:

For Town Clerk—James A Baker
For Chosen Freeholder—C W L Martine
For Assessor—John Robinson
For Collector—William Hetfield
For Town Committee—William C Stanbery, Joseph A Patterson, Daniel S Scudder
For Justice of the Peace—to fill vacancy—Charles A Smith
For Commissioners of Appeal—Andrew J Ryno, Aaron Hetfield, Anthony Fatter
For Surveyors of Highways—James Lambert, Thomas Lee
For Overseer of Poor—Jacob V Coles
For Pound Keepers—Jacob Hoffman, Benjamin Connett, Jacob V Coles, John Hoffman
For Constables—Henry T Miller—for 3 years
For Judge of Election—George E Nichols
For Inspector of Election—Charles H French

In Westfield quite an excitement had been created about the election owing to the action of the Health Board the past year. Outside of the election of Freeholder the contest was on Town Committee, which compose the Health Board. Only one of the old Committee was a candidate for re election, Mr. Robert R. Sinclair. He was re-elected to that position, having secured the highest vote of any candidate on either ticket, of which there were eight in the field. The following is a list of the successful candidates and their majorities. Total number of ballots cast 497, rejected 2.

Town Clerk—L M Whitaker, R, 1[illegible] maj

The contest centered on the election of Chosen Freeholder, the Republicans nominating the very best man in their party, James T. Pierson, Esq., as their candidate for that office, and worked hard for his election. Both parties were on hand from the opening until the closing of the polls, working for the candidates of their choice. The Republicans called in outside aid from one of the neighboring cities, to aid them in being successful. As it has turned out he done them more hurt than good. It would have been better if he had attended to his railroad interests and not interfered with Township elections.

The Union County Board of Freeholders remains Democratic.

The Board of Freeholders of Somerset County is Democratic, as follows:

Bridgewater—Oscar Dow, D
Bedminster—Isaac Voorhees, D
Bernards—Henry Baird, D
Branchburgh—Hugh Gaston, R
Hillsborough—J H Van Nuys, R
Franklin—Cornelius N Staats, D
Montgomery—J V H Whitlock, R
North Plainfield—Martin N Schenck, R
Warren—George C Owen, D

In Bridgewater Township the whole Democratic ticket is elected except the Collector. Wm S. Potter, for Assessor, has 105 majority; Oscar Dow, for Freeholder, 125 maj.

The whole Democratic ticket was successful in Bedminster.

It is claimed that a majority of the Democratic ticket in Franklin Township is elected.

The Last of the Y. M. C. A. Course.

We thought we had heard all the different degrees of bell music that Poe wrote about and more besides, but it was not until last Thursday's exhibition of the talents of the Royal English Hand Ringers and the peculiar tones of their carillion, that we were able to completely understand the amount of most exquisitely intense melody that can be effected by that means. Aside from the bells themselves—tuned, as they were, to the softest of tones and the perfection of utterance—their manipulation by the "players" was unequalled in time, harmony and expression. A criticism of one selection, no matter how flattering, would cover in justness all the compositions rendered, and a general verdict of approval is due the entire entertainment—excepting, possibly, the vocal efforts of the glee singers.

The successful Course of 1881-82 thus fitly closed with its most successful entertainment. In spite of rather unpleasant weather the M. E. church was literally crowded, and "standing room" in some parts, was occupied by those too far back to see from their seats. Let us hope that before the opening of the Sixteenth Annual Course, our "Opera House" will have been completed, and a suitable place for such entertainments at last available.

Let us also trust that the selection of the Course will be in the same able hands and that it be managed by the same efficient head, as arranged and carried to success the one just closed.

Common Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EVENING, March 13, 1882.

The Council met in regular meeting at 8 o'clock.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs. Newhall, Ginna, R. Simpson, J. Simpson, Livingston, Lindsley, Kaufman, Thompson and Gardner.

Absent—Mr. Depew.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Mr. Livingston presented a petition from Mrs. Mary L. Force for permission to erect an addition to her dwelling at the North-east corner of Peace and Second streets. Ref'd to Lamps Com., with power.

By Mr. Thompson, a petition from Mr. L. M. Rocap to erect an awning over the sidewalk of his premises at Park avenue and Second street. The petition was the same as the one previously presented, excepting that the last provided for a corrugated iron roof. Same reference.

By Mr. R. Simpson, a petition from Mr. Hugo Weigmann for permission to make an extension to the shed at the back of his premises at No. 30 East Front street. Same reference.

The President presented the following from the Board of Freeholders, certified as a true copy by its Clerk:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—

At the last meeting of your Board a resolution was passed authorizing the postponement of the argument on motion for a mandamus against the city of Plainfield until the June term, upon certain conditions. We are now able to report that the conditions have been complied with and the case is now off until the June term, and it is the hope and desire of each side, that at that time there may be nothing left to litigate over, the balance now due is $8,700 and interest on the present tax levy.

We would add in commendation of the present Council of the city, that they manifest a desire to fulfill all the obligation resting upon them, and accept the various decisions of our Courts as their guide in this matter, and take their stand side by side with the prompt tax-paying municipalities of the county willing to assume the responsibilities as well as the benefits that are derived from a State, school and county tax.

In conclusion we ask the adoption of a resolution that will be offered for your action at this meeting.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
C W. L. MARTINE Director.
P. H. GILHOOLY, Co. Att'y.
P. SHERIDAN, Collector.
J. F. HUBBARD,
Committee.

On motion received and ordered spread upon the minutes:

RESOLUTIONS.

By Committee to settle with Plainfield:

Whereas the present Council and Treasurer of the City of Plainfield have more than fulfilled the agreement set forth in the resolution adopted at our last meeting by the payment with interest of all taxes in arrears up to the year 1881, and a per cent. on the balance due for the year 1881, therefore as the matter is closed for the present or until June next, excepting the receipt of such moneys as may be paid from time to time, be it

Resolved, That the actions of the committee to whom the subject was referred are hereby approved, and they be discharged from its further consideration, and that a copy of this preamble and resolution together with the report of the committee accompanying the same be forwarded to the President of the Council of the City of Plainfield.

Freeholder Runkle moved the resolution be adopted.

Which was carried.

On motion of Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. Lindsley, the communication was received and ordered spread upon the minutes.

Mr. J. Simpson from the Aud. Com., reported as correct the following claims: Ridgway & Leonard, $82.15; R. Randolph, 23.59 and W. Dodd, 58.34. Warrants ordered drawn.

Mr. Ginna from the Laws Com., reported favorably upon the claims of Messrs. Cross, Bergen & Noe. He stated that the same were for judgments against the city that had been held in abeyance during the late financial difficulties, and the Committee, would recommend that they now be paid from the judgment fund.

A resolution of Mr. Lindsley's, seconded by Mr. Ginna, that the Treasurer be directed to pay the same from the judgment fund (amounting to $152.87) was carried.

The same Committee reported as correct the claim of Justice Nodyne, $125.06. Warrant ordered drawn.

Mr. Lindsley from the Sals. Com., reported correct claims of H. H. Lowrie, $16.70; J. A. Hubbard, (1881) 453.05; J. S. Cutter, 77.11 and Chas. W. Kimball, 90.78. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. R. Simpson for the Streets Com., reported favorably on the petition of the New Jersey Telephone & Telegraph Co., and presented a communication from the same agreeing that each pole shall be located as directed by the Street Commissioner or other official.

Mr. Kaufman suggested that the Street Com. should require the company to connect free with the Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mr. Ginna thought that it should be a condition of the privilege granted, that the poles should be first-class in appearance and other respects. He thought the Street Com. should see a sample of the poles before they were erected. In his opinion iron poles should be the kind used.

Mr. Lindsley expressed his belief in the judgment and wisdom of the Street Com., and its ability to direct the erection in the right way.

Mr. Thompson stated that one of the officers of the company had told him they would connect with the Hospital, and that only the best of dressed poles would be used. If the Council desired they would paint the poles, but it was not necessary to do so as the weather more effectually colored them in time. As to iron poles, Mr. Thompson understood that such were not practicable for telephone purposes.

On motion permission was granted the company to erect a line of poles through the streets of the city, under the direction of the Street Committee as to style, location &c.

The same Committee returned the petition in its hands, to close Albert avenue, without report except to recommend its reference to the Laws Com. On motion so referred.

Mr. Kaufman submitted a resolution fixing the salaries of the following city officers as therein stated:

Street Commissioner,	$200.	per annum
Overseer of the Poor,	200	"
City Physician,	250	"
Corporation Counsel,
City Treasurer,	300	"
Regular Police,	500	"

and $10 for each extra meeting.

Special Police, 25 cents per hour when on duty.

Janitor, $2 for each meeting.

Seconded by Mr. Lindsley and referred to the Sals. Com.

Mr. Ginna offered a resolution to the effect that the resolution passed Jan. 16th, directing the Finance Com. to have examined the Collector's books, be rescinded. Carried.

By the same that a special committee of three be appointed with power to employ experts to examine the records and books of the late Township and the accounts of the late Collector. Carried.

The President appointed as such committee, Messrs. Ginna, Newhall and Lindsley.

By Mr. Lindsley a resolution that all moneys received by any officer of the City Government, be paid to the Treasurer. Carried.

By the same that all moneys paid out by the Treasurer, be by order of the Common Council. Carried.

By the same that the late Collector, Mr. L. E. Clark, be requested to pay at once to the City Treasurer all moneys received by him due the city and yet unpaid. Carried.

Mr. Lindsley being asked if he knew upon what plea the late Collector was still holding some $400 or $500 of the city's moneys, replied that he believed that the officer was holding such upon precedent and because he considered that the amount was due the Assessor.

Mr. Livingston introduced a resolution to specify the number of regular and special policemen to be appointed in conformity with the ordinance governing such.

Mr. Lindsley thought that if the city would not have regular police on duty through the night, it did not need any at all.

Mr. Ginna was in favor of appointing three regular policemen, two of which number were to do night duty.

Mr. Thompson failed to see how two policemen would be any protection to a city three miles long and one mile wide. The state of the city's finances would not permit, in his opinion, any addition to the force.

On motion of Mr. Kaufman, the resolution was referred to the Com. on Police.

On motion of the same, the Streets Com. was given the power necessary to enable it to proceed to lay the cross-walk already granted across Liberty St. at Seventh.

Mr. Depew (who had just come in) in reply to Mr. Ginna, stated that Deputy Moore was collecting delinquent taxes under the power given him by the past Council.

Mr. Ginna was in favor of that officer, as he was performing his duties most satisfactorily, but thought he should be placed under bonds the same as others.

On motion the rules were suspended to allow Mr. J. Simpson from the Aud. Com., to report as correct the bills of J. A. Hubbard, $453.05; C. W. Kimball, 90.78 and H. H. Lowrie, 16.70. Warrants ordered drawn.

Mr. Kaufman presented a resolution that Geo. W. Moore be continued as special Tax Collector; that he give a bond for $1,000 and that his pay for such service be the same as heretofore, except that he shall be allowed no fee on moneys paid out by him. Carried.

Mr. Ginna called up for final passage "An Ordinance to provide for the Licensing and Regulating of Pedlers, Hawkers, Cartmen, Hacks, Omnibus, Stage and Truck owners and drivers." Read by the Clerk for the third time and passed.

Mr. Kaufman presented a resolution to prevent the doubling up of fees for the collection of taxes. Ref'd to the Sal's. Com., with instruction to report thereon at the next meeting.

Mr. Depew stated that the Mayor had sent in for the consideration of the Council a communication nominating Mr. Wm. M. Stillman for the office of Corporation Counsel, but having in a subsequent communication withdrawn such nomination at Mr. Stillman's request, he (Mr. Depew) would only present the latter. The same was read by the Clerk and on motion placed on file.

March 13, 1882 -9 P. M.

MR. DEPEW: In view of your suggestion touching the matter of the corporation counsel, and of a request for withdrawal or delay made at a late hour by Mr. Stillman, on whose nomination I had decided, I am quite willing that the matter should remain in suspense until the next meeting of the Council—the only difficulty being that I shall have to continue to trouble Mr. Kimball against his [illegible] in relation to questions and duties arising from day to day.

Yours, &c.,
L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

Mr. Ginna moved that when the Council adjourns it be for one week, in order that the confirmation of a Corporation Counsel be settled.

Mr. Depew thought there was no necessity of rushing the matter. Nothing would be lost by waiting, and he could assure the Council that a nomination for the office would be made satisfactorily to all concerned. He felt that there should be an endeavor made to promote more harmony of feeling and action between the Council and the city's chief executive officer. He regretted that he was unable to be present at a recent meeting of the Council and was sorry to learn that Mr. Kimball was not then confirmed. "It was understood," he continued, "by the Council that it would confirm Mr. Kimball, otherwise his name would not have been sent in."

Mr. Ginna's motion was then carried—Messrs. Depew, Kaufman and Thompson voting in the negative.

The rules were suspended and Mr. Thompson from the Lamps Com., reported favorably on the petition of Mr. L. M. Rocap. Accepted and permission granted.

The Council then adjourned.

Personals.

Mr. Percy C. Ohl has been appointed Manager of the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone and Telegraph Co., for Plainfield. The "central" office will be located on the third floor of Steile's building, corner of Front street and Park avenue.

We take this means of expressing our heart-felt sympathy with Councilman and Mrs. Wm. E. Gardner, who have just sustained a sad loss by the death of their youngest child.

The Rev. A. H. Lewis, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church of this city, has had conferred upon him the degree of "D. D.," by Alfred University, recently.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The Annual Election for officers of the Westfield Hook & Ladder Co., occurred on Monday evening, March 13th inst. Wm. Gale, the foreman of last year, declined a re-election in a neat speech, and John R. Barcalow was elected in his stead, with Matthias Clark, 1st Ass't Foreman; Gustave H. Kouter, 2d Ass't; Geo. W. Tice, Treasurer, and John Hodges, Secretary.

The interior of the Turf Exchange, corner of Elm Street and North Avenue, has had a great change made in its internal appearance, it having been papered and painted throughout. The work was done by one of Plainfield's artists, Mr. Winfield S. Chase, who certainly understands the business thoroughly. The Turf Exchange is now one of the best saloons in any country town in the State. The proprietor, Mr. John L. Roulston gives his personal attention to the comfort of his customers.

On Monday night a party of young men amused themselves by going about our town, and removing the gates from in front of the residences of our citizens, removing some to places where the owners have been unable as yet to discover them. Some of the guilty parties are known and their names probably ought to be published.

MISCELLANY.

More to Follow.

The great success which has hitherto attended the special efforts of the enterprising firm of Edsall & Price to encourage home trade, seems to have inspired them with new zeal and enthusiasm, and they announce in our columns this week, their Spring opening bargain sale. It will interest everybody, as the immense variety of goods handled by this firm, embraces almost all needs. In addition to their usual large and attractive stock, they have added many special selections; some of which have been manufactured for this purpose and others have been secured from large importing houses, and will be sold at astonishing low prices. This sale will begin next Monday, 20th inst., and continue for one week only. Doubtless they will be well rewarded for their enterprise as they deserve. May there be more to follow.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

ASHBURNHAM, Mass., Jan. 14, 1880.

I have been very sick over two years. They all gave me up as past cure. I tried the most skillful physicians, but they did not reach the worst part. The lungs and heart would fill up every night and distress me, and my throat was very bad. I told my children I never should die in peace until I had tried Hop Bitters. I have taken two bottles. They have helped me very much indeed. I am now well. There was a lot of sick folks here who have seen how they helped me, and they used them and are cured, and feel as thankful as I do that there is so valuable a medicine made.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued three calls for continued sixes to the amount of $15,000,000.

EARLY PROOFS.—It is easily proven that malarial fevers, constipation, torpidity of the liver and kidneys, general debility, nervousness and neuralgic ailments yield readily to this great disease conqueror, Hop Bitters. It repairs the ravages of disease by converting the food into rich blood, and it gives new life and vigor to the aged and infirm always.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

A Perfect Corset Secured at Last!
It is a well-known fact that a large proportion of the ills of female life are directly attributed to the unyielding pressure of the Corset about the waist of the wearer. This evil has been entirely overcome in this corset, by the introduction of ELASTIC SECTIONS, composed of A SERIES OF FINE COILED WIRE SPRINGS.
These springs are warranted to retain their perfect elasticity until the corset is worn out; and, unlike rubber, will not heat the person or decay with age. This corset yields readily to every respiration, and is equally comfortable in any position assumed by the wearer.—Will fit, perfectly, a greater variety of forms than any other.

A German astronomer has discovered a new planet. Anybody who misses any of his planets should make a note of this.

It is now believed that the fixed stars were placed so far away in order that the patent medicine man couldn't get there to paint the rocks.

Postal savings banks have gone into operation in France. All the post offices in the country are open to receive deposits up to $400 at three per cent. interest.

It does break up the landlord of a hotel to have a guest say: "Landlord, I think it would be an improvement if this shoe brush had another hair in it."

"Pa, why do they call 'em high schools?" "It's because we pay so much for 'em, my son. You'll understand these things better when you get to be a taxpayer."

"Father, did you ever have another wife besides mother?" "No, my boy; what possessed you to ask such a question?" "Because I saw in the old family Bible where you married Anno Domini, in 1835, and that isn't mother."

"Gentlemen of the jury," said a blundering counsel, in a suit about a lot of hogs, "there were just thirty-six in the drove. Please remember the fact—thirty-six hogs; just three times as many as in that jury box, gentlemen." That counsel didn't gain his case.

Precedence and age—There is a story of Solomon not contained in the "Book of Kings." Two of his court damsels had a row as to precedence. Solomon looked kindly, and said: "Let the oldest go first," and the damsels embraced and went in together with entwined arms.

"You told me, sir, that the horse was entirely without fault, and yet he is blind." The dealer looked blandly into the irritated countenance of the loser by the transaction and said with charming innocence: "I do not regard blindness as a fault, sir; it is a misfortune."

A girl went into a general furnishing store, and stepping up to a pale, intellectual-looking young man behind the nearest counter, asked him if he would be kind enough to fit her with a pair of gloves. The high-browed Athenian glanced at her hands and then calling to a cash boy who was compounding spit-balls at the opposite counter, said: "Here, Pete, show this young lady to the pillow-case department."

"Oh, papa," said little Tommy, the other day, "didn't you say there was nothing new under the sun?" "Yes, my boy, the philosophers say so." "Well, look under me," went on the young hopeful, getting up on the old gentleman's bran new silk hat, "that is something new under the sun, ain't it?" The next thing the boy knew there was something old under the son, and it was his father's boot, with a foot in it.

"There, there, don't cry any more," said the kind-hearted stranger to a little girl who was leaning against the railing in front of a public school-house, weeping as if her heart would break. "Tell us what's the matter." The child turned two highly inflamed orbs up at the old Samaritan, and then stammered between her sobs: "All the girls in my class were vaccinated last week, and mines the only one that hasn't took."

A moment after the explosion at the Jewell Mills some time since, a terrified bootblack darted behind a portly market woman for protection, and, clutching her skirts, re-assuringly cried, 'Don't stir, missus; the wust is over.'

A Buffalo paper recently told of a lover who began to propose to his girl just as his horses started to run with the sleigh. Being determined to have it over with, he got the question out at the moment the sleigh struck a mile post. The girl was thrown high into the air, but as she came down uttered a firm "Yes, Charlie," and then fainted.

FASHION NOTES.

Cloth shoes are fashionable for ladies.

Black lace evening dresses are fashionable.

Parasols must match the dresses this summer.

Dancing-slippers are of the same color as the dress.

Lace ribbons appear in the Spring importations.

Guipure lace is being revived by French milliners.

Pansy patterns are the novelty in point Aurillac lace.

Good grades of carpeting are composed largely of jute.

Greek and medieval costumes are appearing at receptions.

Embroidered black-net fichus are exhibited with new neck-wear.

Scarlet worn in large masses, it is said, tends to hide wrinkles.

Turbans composed of beetles' wings are among novelties in millinery.

Fanciful evening wraps are furnished with perfumed powder inside the lining.

The newest paper lamp-shades are hexagonal and are made up on a frame.

Popular stones in jewelry are the cat's-eye, olive tourmalines and white opals.

A favorite corsage with young ladies is the Marguerite, with round, half low neck.

Three-piece suits are talked about for gingham and cambric dresses this summer.

Serving green tea clear, with lump sugar and slices of lemon, has become fashionable.

Bridal veils are of Spanish lace or Duchess lace in many instances, instead of illusion.

Among new patterns appear waists pointed in front, round at the back and long on the hips.

The most decorative stone, as well as the most fashionable at the present time, is the ruby.

Neckerchiefs of grey or cream-colored washing silk, embroidered all over in tiny silk polka dots, and finished with a five-inch ruffle of Oriental lace, are novel and dainty.

Short velvet skirts, with bodice and panniers of some soft, self-colored English woolen textile, with pelerine and deep cuffs of velvet, will be a fashionable Spring walking costume.

"Looking-glass" beads are seen upon some of Worth's latest creations, both in fringes and embroideries, especially on white toilets, lending that touch of color, or contrast rather, that purely white dresses are apt to lack.

Indian, Paisley and other handsome shawls are made into Portia and Mother Hubbard cloaks and visites for Spring wear. They are lined inside with colored satin or surah silk, and finished with a bordering of chenille fringe in deep oriental colors.

He who thinks his place below him will certainly be below his place.

It is more honorable to acknowledge our faults than to boast of our merits.

The world would be a dreadfully silent place if people talked as little as they thought.

A failure establishes only this, that our determination to succeed was not strong enough.

It would improve some people very much if they would be as careful of their daily lives as they are of their orthodoxy.

Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has many; not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some.

It is a habit which gives men the real possession of the wisdom which they have acquired, and gives enduring strength in it.

By holding a very little misery quite close to our eyes, we entirely lose sight of a great deal of comfort beyond which might be taken.

It is wonderful how silent a man can be when he knows his cause is just, and how boisterous he becomes when he knows he is in the wrong.

There is nothing so certain, we take it, as that those who are the most alert in discovering the faults of a work of genius are the least touched with its beauties.

There is nothing keeps longer than a middling fortune, and nothing melts away sooner than a great one. Poverty treads upon the heels of great and unexpected riches.

The wise one says that nothing is so hard to bear as prosperity; but most men would like to engage in some hard work of that description, just to have a practical illustration of the adage.

The best receipt for going through life in an exquisite way, with beautiful manners, is to feel that everybody, no matter how rich or how poor, needs all the kindness they can get from others in this world.

HE DIDN'T TAKE IT.

He said he was looking for a suitable present for his girl, and after the stationer's clerk had shown him boxes of writing paper, gilt colored volumes of poetry, scrap books, fancy ink bottles, and various other things, he finally led him up to a pile of albums and announced:

"Now, then, here is the very thing you want. An album is a gift to be appreciated at all times, and the girls are always crazy about them."

"They put photographs in 'em, don't they?"

"That's what they are for. Your betrothed will place your photo here in the first page."

"Yes."

"On the next page will be the photograph of her noble father. Then comes the fond mother, followed by aunts who died of quinsy and uncles who got killed while coon hunting. Then strings along two or three bald-headed babies sucking sticks of candy, and the whole winds up with a picture of the old friend of the family who used to trot your girl on his knee when she hadn't a tooth in her head."

"Not by a darned sight!" answered the young man, as he dropped the album he had been holding. "He's a hyena in the bush, he is! After he knew we had been engaged over a year he slipped over there one afternoon and offered to deed her ten acres of land in winter wheat if she'd give me the shake and foller him to Indianapolis. You bet I'm laying for him, and if ever I run across him in the woods he's got to climb faster'n a red squirrel or he's a goner! I guess I'll look around a little further. I'm kinder agitated and reckless now and I can't exactly tell what I do want."

The sun is the oldest setter in all the West.

The Arabic for cat is 'gitt.' That ought to be the English of it, too.

As gold is purified in the furnace; so is character by suffering.

Resist the first temptation, and the second will have no chance.

Do not judge how quickly a thing is done but how well it is done.

The quality of timeliness is a valuable one, and we should look to it in all we do.

HOW TO TELL THAT EGGS ARE EGGS.

A good egg will sink in water.

Stale eggs are glossy and smooth of shell.

A fresh egg has a lime-like surface to its shell.

The boiled eggs which adhere to the shell are fresh laid.

Eggs packed in bran for a long time, smell and taste musty.

After an egg has laid a day or more, the shell comes off easily when boiled.

Thin shells are caused by a lack of gravel, etc., among the hens laying the eggs.

A boiled egg which is done, will dry quickly on the shell when taken from the kettle.

Eggs which have been packed in lime look stained and show the action of the lime on the surface.

If the egg is clear and of golden appearance when held to the light, it is good; if dark or spotted, it is bad.

The badness of an egg can sometimes be told by shaking it near the holder's ear, but the test is a dangerous one.

Many devices have been tested to keep eggs fresh, but the less time an egg is kept, the better for the egg and the one who eats it.

With the aid of the hands or a piece of paper rolled in funnel shape and held toward the light, the human eye can look through an egg, shell and all.

Wed no woman in whom you can find no flaw.

It isn't rose alone, but the tooth, too, that helps out the fox.

Hope softens sorrow, brightens plain surroundings and eases a hard lot.

Make no decisions while the memory of an injury is still fresh in the mind.

One needs a deal of wit to afford to be witty not at the expense of the heart.

The result always proves that in contention it is better to listen than to speak.

Some enter so thoroughly into the hope of good that they do themselves harm.

The sweetest thing on earth is a little child when it has learned to know and love.

To have healthy opinions, you should treat them as you do your sleeping rooms—air them.

When a man in conversation abruptly says "Beg pardon!" he means that he wishes to do all the talking himself.

A Philadelphia debating society has decided that on frosty mornings buckwheat cakes are superior to liver pads.

No woman should essay to borrow the husband of another, for is it not written that it is not good for man to be alone.

The happiness of the human race in this world does not consist in our being devoid of passions, but in our learning to command them.

"It is never too late to mend," which is why the cobbler never has your boot done at the time promised.

Woman was made after man, but the men have been after the women ever since, though.

It is reported that Sergeant Mason, who shot at Guiteau, is to be tried again on new charges.

Seven new Cardinals are to be created, among them Archbishop McCabe of Dublin, who has taken an active part against the Land League.

During Col. Freese's confinement in the State Prison he has, besides doing his work as book-keeper for a contractor, read 77,300 pages of books and written over 5,000 pages of manuscript.

The total number of newspapers and periodicals published all over the world in 1880 was according to the "Newspaper Directory," 34,274, and the circulation amounted to 10,402,000,000, or six copies to each individual living.

Among the recent property transfers in Monmouth county is the following: Ulysses S. Grant and wife to William A. Purrington, lands at Long Branch, $40,000; Wm. A. Purrington to Julia D. Grant, lands at Long Branch, $40,000.

The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey is laying out a new route, which will open for travel a section of the State hitherto but little known. It runs from the Long Branch Division at Middletown, through Chapel Hill, to the Atlantic Highlands and down the west side of the Shrewsbury river to Long Branch. It passes directly behind the Navesink Highlands.

A NOTE dated on Sunday is legal under the laws of the States of New York and New Jersey. It may be stated that a note made and delivered on Sunday for a purpose rendered illegal by statute on that day is voidable by the maker. If made on Sunday and delivered on a secular day it is as valid as if made on the day of delivery. If simply dated on Sunday, as such obligations frequently are to represent the average date of account, made or delivered on a secular day, the note is as valid as if it bore a different date. This will apply to all the different States.

THE following curious puzzle beats the celebrated "13 12 14," and is well worth investigation. Take a strip of paper or card-board thirteen inches long and five inches wide, thus giving a surface of sixty-five inches. Now cut this strip diagonally, as true as you can, giving two pieces in the shape of a triangle. Now measure exactly five inches from the large end of each strip and cut in two pieces. Take the slips and put them into the shape of an exact square, and it will appear to be eight inches each way, or sixty-four square inches—a loss of one square inch of superficial measurement, with no diminuation of surface. The question is, what becomes of that inch?

The Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society met at Trenton on Tuesday of last week, and elected the following officers: President Amos Clark, Jr., Elizabeth; Vice Presidents, Phineas Jones, Newark; E. G. Brown, Elizabeth; N. S. Rue, Cream Ridge, John S. Irick, Vincentown; Cor. Secretary, P. T. Quinn, Newark; Rec. Secretary, William M. Force, Newark; Treasurer, Samuel Manning, Plainfield; Executive Committee, E. G. Brown, Elizabeth; E. A. Williamson, Newark; Benjamin Haines, Elizabeth; Joseph Colyer, Newark; E. H. Allen, Chatham. It was decided to hold the next annual exhibition on Monday, Sep. 18th, and continue five days.

POETRY.

For "The Constitutionalist."

VERA.

A. R. N.

Thou wert fair, my Vera, very fair,
Thy brow was white as lilies are,
And soft as silk, thy sunny hair.

Thine eyes had caught the hue of Heaven,
The deeper tint by twilight given,
And brightness of the stars at even.

And on thy cheek, the sea shells blush
Deepened to the rosier flush
Of sunset clouds at evening's hush.

Thy teeth, like pearls, nestled between
Thy rosy lips, half hid, half seen;
Thy breath was sweet as eglantine.

And perfect was thy baby form,
The rosy flesh, so soft and warm,
And round and white thy dimpled arm.

Like rippling stream in forest dell
Thy baby laugh; how can I tell
How sweet the laugh I loved so well?

Sweeter thy voice than song of bird,
Or murm'ring pines by south winds stirred,
Or evening bells from distance heard.

And thy quaint speech and childish plays,
Thy wilful, winsome baby ways,
Making so bright those happy days.

Too bright to last; no Vera now
Into my willing ear to dove-like coo,
"Mama! mama! I love you so."

Thou dearest birdling in the nest,
Why are thy hands upon thy breast,
Forever folded into rest?

The dress she loved the best to wear,
The cap that hid the flaxen hair,
Save straying curls, some here, some there.

The shoe that hid the rosy foot,
The stockings and the tiny boot,
The dainty gloves and broidered coat.

I kiss and kiss and wet with tears,
Tho' two long weary, changeful years
Have brought me other joys and cares.

And now I know my babe's at rest,
Her shining head is on His breast,
Who doeth all things for the best.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

ROMANCE OF A RAILROAD.

The following chapter is from Mrs. Burnett's story "Through One Administration," published in the Century for March. The story is prettily told:—

"Just think of those Westoria lands, and what they will be worth if the road is carried through them—and as to romance, what could be more romantic than the story attached to them?" said Richard.

"But I don't know the story," said Bertha. "What is it?"

"It is a very effective story," he replied, "and it was the story which first called my attention to the subject. There was a poor, visionary fellow whose name was Westor, to whom a large tract of this land came suddenly as an inheritance from a distant relative. He was not practical enough to make much use of it, and he lived in the house upon it in a desolate, shiftless way for several years, when he had the ill-fortune to discover coal on the place. I say it was ill-fortune, because the discovery drove him wild. He worked, and starved, and planned, and scraped together all the money he could to buy him land, keeping his secret closely for some time. When he could do no more he came to Washington, and began to work for a railroad which would make his wealth available. His energy was a kind of frenzy, they say. He neither ate, slept, nor rested, and really managed to get the matter into active movement. He managed to awaken a kind of enthusiasm, and, for a short time, was a good deal talked of and noticed. He was a big, raw-boned young Westerner, and created a sensation by his very uncouthness in his connection with the wildly fabulous stories told about his wealth. He had among his acquaintances a man of immense influence, and at the man's house he met the inevitable young woman. She amused herself, and he fell madly in love, and became more frenzied than ever. It was said that she intended to marry him if he was successful, and that she made his poor, helpless life such an anguish to him that he lost his balance entirely. There came a time when he was entirely penniless, and his prospects were so unpromising, and his despair so great that he went to his boarding-house one day with the intention of killing himself, and just as he finished loading his pistol a letter was handed in to him, and when he opened it he found it contained the information that another distant relative, affected by the rumors concerning him, had left him twenty thousand dollars. He laid his pistol in a drawer, and left the house and began again. He had an interview with his lady-love, and one with his man of influence, and at the end of a few weeks had bought more land, and parted in some mysterious way with the rest of his money, and was on the very eve of success. Poor fellow!"

"Poor fellow!" said Bertha. "Oh! don't say that anything went wrong!"

"It would not be half so dramatic a story if everything had gone right," said Richard, with fine artistic appreciation. "You could never guess what happened. Everything he did seemed to work to a miracle; every train was laid and every match applied. On the day that was to decide his fate he did not go near the Capitol, but wandered out and took his place in one of the seats in the park which faced the house at which the young woman was visiting, and sat there, a lank, unshorn, haggard figure, either staring at her window or leaning forward with his head upon his hands. People actually heard of his being there and went to look at him, and came away without having dared to address him. The young woman looked out from behind the blind and was furious, and even sent word to him to go away. But he would not go, and only glared at the man who was sent to him with the message. He sat there until night, and then staggered across and rang the bell, and inquired for the man of influence, and was told—what do you suppose he was told?"

"Oh!" cried Bertha, desperately, "I don't know."

"He was told that he was occupied."

"Occupied!" echoed Bertha.

Richard clasped his hands gracefully and comfortably behind his head.

"That's the climax of the story," he said. "He was occupied—in being married to the young woman, of whom he had been greatly enamored for some time, and who had discreetly decided to marry him because he had proved to her that the other man's bill could not possibly pass. It could not pass because he had the energy and influence to prevent its doing so, and he prevented its passing because he knew he would lose the young woman otherwise. At least that is the story, and I like the version."

"I don't like it!" said Bertha. "It makes me feel desperate."

"What it made the poor fellow feel," Richard went on, "nobody ever found out, as he said nothing at all about. On hearing the truth he sat down on the steps for a few minutes, and then got up and went away. He went to his boarding-house and had an interview with his landlady, who was a kind-hearted creature, and when she saw him began to cry because his bill did not pass. But when she spoke of it she found he knew nothing of it—he had never asked about it, and he said to her, 'Oh! that doesn't matter; it isn't any consequence particularly; I'm only troubled about your bill. I haven't money enough to pay it. I've only enough to take me home, and you'll have to let me give you the things I have in my room for pay. I only want one thing out of there—if you'll let me go and get it, I won't take anything else'. So she let him go, and stood outside his door and cried, while he went in and took something out of a drawer."

"Richard!" cried Bertha.

"Yes," said Richard. "He actually found a use for it after all, but not in Washington. He went as far as he could by rail, and then he tramped the rest of the way to Westoria. They say it must have taken him several days, and that his shoes were worn to shreds, and his feet cut and bruised by the walk. When he reached the house, it had been shut up so long that the honeysuckle which climbed about it had grown across the door, and he could not have got in without breaking or pushing it aside. People fancied that at first he thought of going in, but that when he saw the vine it stopped him—slight barrier as it was. They thought he had intended to go in because he had evidently gone to the door, and before he turned away had broken off a spray of flowers, which was just beginning to bloom—he held it crushed in his hand when they found him, two or three days later. He had carried it back to the edge of the porch, and had sat down—and finished everything—with the one thing he had brought back from Washington—the pistol. How does that strike you as the romance of a railroad?"

Bertha clenched her hand, and struck her knee a fierce little blow.

"Richard," she said, "if that had happened in my day, I should have turned lobbyist, and every thought and power and gift I had would have been brought to bear to secure the passage of that bill."

A CALIFORNIA TRIAL.

Persons familiar with the early history of this country are well aware of the potent influence of eloquence on the uncultivated masses, and how they were moved by the fervent oratory of Patrick Henry and Clay, and Corwin, and Crittenden and Marshall and those old time men of the primitive bar, which had never been excelled in the annals of human pleading.

An episode of a similar nature occurred in the early days of California mining, of which the writer was a spectator. The circumstances were as follows:

A miner had been caught stealing gold dust. That kind of business could not be permitted in the mines; forcible examples had to be made of all such offenders. Murder regulated itself; there was a rough code of honor recognized and based upon public sentiment. If the man who had killed another had justifiable provocation, he went unmolested; but if he had killed his man without sufficient cause, he probably paid the penalty with his own life the first time a relative or friend of the murdered man "got the drop on him." The only other public offence was theft; that was so contemptibly mean and so vitally affected the interests of the miners and their sense of safety, that they rarely ever failed to string up the offender even after rough courts were established and their trial by jury granted.

On this special occasion a bag of gold dust had been taken from under a miner's bunk by one of his working companions and he had been captured with it on his way to San Francisco and brought back for quick and effectual trial.

"Have you any counsel?" asked the judge.

"No, I ain't got no friends nor anybody to talk for me, so you might as well cut the chinnin' short and pull me up."

"If you will allow me to act as counsel for the prisoner, I'll say a few words for him," replied a tall ungainly miner, who was a stranger at that particular "diggings."

"All right; there's the jury. Bring up your client and let him plead to the charge."

The prisoner stood up and admitted the theft, and at the request of the stranger stated the circumstances which had tempted him to take the dust. He had just gotten a letter from his wife in the States, in which she wrote that her mother and one of his children had died, and she begged him if he loved her to come home, even if he had to borrow the money of some of his friends, and she would help him to work and pay it back. He also stated that as he had been unable to borrow the money, he had taken the dust with the intention of paying it back when he returned home.

The letter was produced in court to substantiate the truth of his statement, and it evidently weakened some of the jury, but there were stern, unmoved men in the crowd, all belted round with knives and pistols, who knew that any letting up on theft would render gold unsafe; besides they spoke up right and left, saying that they had got just such letters from home as well; that the same kind of sorrow in their own domestic life came up every day or week to them, and the very mutual condition of deprivation and toil should establish a code of honesty above everything else. Of course, said they, the fellow can have his counsel to chin for him, but we must graft him to a hub all the same.

It happened, however, that this tall, ungainly old miner who had undertaken the defence was an old Methodist campmeeting revival preacher, and although he began very quietly, and cautiously treading on the dangerous ground of talking in the prisoner's defence, the first thing that judge, jury and spectators knew, he had got warmed up to his old work, and although he had the singsong style of delivery of those old revivalists, his words rang out with all the thrilling eloquence of Clay and the fervid devotional oratory of a Wesley or a Bascom. One by one the human icicles began to melt around him; one by one they began to turn back on their early lives, to their old homes, their father, mother, brothers and sisters, the old church and Sunday school, and all such tender influences. Many a one of them was carried back by that peculiar voice and style to his old campmeeting days. It was no longer a miner's camp; it was no longer a court *room, no longer a trial; it was a camp*meeting, and the old preacher was leading them by still waters; he was reaching down and lifting them out of the mire and clay; and when he closed and solemnly said: "Let us pray for the soul of the man whom we that are innocent are going to slay," there was not a dry eye in the court room, the writer's included. And that prayer! who can repeat and describe its fervent words for the soul going to its maker, for the wife and little children waiting in their distant home with love and hope and tremulous expectation for him who would never return, listening to every footstep, responding to every sound.

Never before or since have been such a trial and such a defence in the mines of California. The judge, jury and audience rose to a man and cleared the prisoner. They did more; they made up a purse and sent the poor fellow home to his wife and children, and he did just what he intended to do—returned the money to them in six months after his arrival at home.

SPOON FASHION.

Nearly a dozen years ago, I was on my return to the old homestead, in the good State of Connecticut, having just completed my studies as a student of medicine; in company with a goodly number of people, I stopped for the night at a country inn in the town of B—, not being able to resume my journey till a late hour the next day. Having always been an admirer of the country, I was not dissatisfied with the arrangement, and my pleasure was enhanced by finding at the well laid supper table two young ladies of surpassing loveliness, the younger of whom I thought the most bewitching little creature in existence.

The ladies were accompanied by a young gentleman about my own age, with whom I could not feel but considerably annoyed. He not only engrossed all their attention, but, lucky dog he was, seemed determined that no other person should participate in the amusement. An offer of some little delicacy by myself to the younger of the two ladies was declined by a nice sort of politeness on his part, that effectually chilled any further attempt of intimacy, and I soon left the table; but I could not drive the image of the lovely being I had just left from mind. Something whispered that we should become acquainted at some future time, but, in the interval I felt more than usually uneasy. I longed to be not an intimate acquaintance, but an accepted lover; and had I been possessed of all the wealth of Crœsus, I would unhesitatingly have poured it in her lap.

In the excitement under which I was then laboring, I thought a walk might do me good; but on opening the door for that purpose I found the night had set in as dark as Erebus, and being an entire stranger there was no knowing what mischief I might encounter, so I made up my mind to compromise the matter by taking up my candle and going to bed.

I retired; but for a long time I rolled and tossed about sadly; now one plan by which I might make the acquaintance of the young lady, would suggest itself and then another until at last I found myself in a state of dreamy languor, neither fairly asleep nor quite awake.

I fancied I had heard, for the last few moments, a sort of light bustle going on near my bed, but it gave me no uneasiness until some one jumped into bed, and clasped her arms about me, whispered:

"Ugh! how dreadful cold it is! I say, Julia, we shall have to lay spoon fashion, or else we shall freeze!"

Here was an incident. What to say, or how to act, was a question not easily solved. At last I mustered courage enough to ejaculate: "Dear madam, there is some mistake, I'll—"

The lady did not wait for me to say any more. With a sharp, quick scream she sprang from the bed and bolted from the apartment. I was wondering what it could all mean, when a servant brought a lamp into my room and picked up what ladies' apparel she could find about the premises, and left the appartment. You can believe, gentlemen, that my slumbers for that evening were far from quiet.

In the morning, I know not how it was, but I was vividly impressed with the idea that my nocturnal visitor was one of the two ladies who had supped with me the evening previous, but which I could not conjecture, I resolved to ascertain on the first favorable opportunity which might present itself, and satisfy myself beyond a doubt.

On taking my seat at the breakfast table the next morning, I placed myself opposite the ladies, and was revolving in my mind the incident of the previous evening, when the youngest of the two passed her plate and begged me to favor her with the preserves near me.

"Certainly, ma'am," said I, as the thought sprang into my mind that she might be the lady in question, I added—"Will you take them spoon fashion?"

Eureka! what an explosion! The lady's face instantly assumed the hue of the crimson dahlia, while her companion seemed as cold and passionless as I could desire. I was satisfied that she had kept her own counsel. I scraped her acquaintance, fell deeply in love, and when I reached home had the pleasure of presenting to the old folks my estimable lady, the present Mrs. Maddock.

PEARLS.

Jealousy is the homage that inferiority pays to merit.

Vice stings us even in our pleasures, but virtue consoles us even in our pains.

It is with life as with coffee, he who would drink it pure must drain it to the dregs.

If you would not have affliction visit you twice, listen at once to what it teaches.

No books are so legible as the lives of men; no characters so plain as their moral conduct.

It is a solemn thought with the middle-aged that life's past business is begun in earnest.

Dark clouds roll up and obscure the sun, but we know that there is light above the clouds.

To the generous mind the heaviest debt is that of gratitude, when it is not in our power to repay it.

The best of all prayers is to act with a pure intention, and with a continual reference to the will of God.

The generality of men expend the early part of their lives in contributing to render the latter part miserable.

We pass our lives in regretting the past, complaining of the present and indulging in false hopes of the future.

There is nothing lower than hypocrisy. To profess friendship and act enmity is a sure proof of total depravity.

Who is wise? He that is teachable. Who is mighty? He that conquers himself. Who is rich? He that is contented. Who is honored? He that honoreth others.

"My daughter," exclaimed a fashionable mother, "is innocence itself. You can't say a word in her presence that will make her blush."

"There is nothing like settling down," said the retired merchant confidentially to his neighbor. "When I gave up business I settled down and found I had a comfortable fortune. If I had settled up I should not have had a cent."

FASHION NOTES.

Slate blue appears among new colors.

New neck lingerie is very elaborate and voluminous.

Poufs in the backs of dresses grow smaller and less bouffant.

Evening dresses are trimmed with embroidered ruffles and tabliers.

Feather hats and bonnets are moribund: Paris has condemned them.

Galloons and braids will trim many spring costumes and spring jackets.

Cloth and cheviot costumes are rarely made of two materials combined.

Moresque and Oriental laces rival in popularity the Spanish, Barcelona and Burano.

Ribbed velvet and corderoy velveteen jackets are the fancy at the passing moment.

Cooper tint is a favorite tint in new goods of all kinds, including the new upholstering stuffs.

For full evening dress there are bands of gold and silver or strings of pearls worn in the hair.

Morning dresses for unceremonious visits are made of black cachemier des Cevennes.

Spanish and Oriental laces will both be used for trimming nun's veiling when worn in the evening.

Nun's veiling is equally becoming to old and to young women. It is the very stuff for children's dress suits.

Basques are shorter in the skirt and are frequently pointed in front and drawn up in the back, to form the pouf.

Butterfly wing puffs in the back, formed by the scarf employed for the tablier and hip draperies, are much worn.

Among new pongees, the plain white goods, striped horizontally with hair lines in lace effects, are unique and novel.

The Princess of Wales' favorite bonnet is the capote. According to Lucy Hooper, in the Harper's Bazar, she actually invented it.

Some authorities in matters of dress say that kilt skirts are going out of vogue; others announce that they will be more worn than ever.

Costumes for street wear should be wooled material, one kind only, with which a felt hat or bonnet simply trim*ed, and a stitch jacket, may be worn.*

In Paris skirts are frequently seen of which the only drapery is a broad sash tied around the bottom of the waist and looped back on the tournure to form the pouf.

One of the prettiest lace pins in diamond jewelry is a reap hook set in graduated stones, with a serpent also in diamonds turned around the blade, its eyes being small rubies.

In spite of the high looping of back and side draperies the costume of the season defines the human form divine as much as ever. The effect is still of a princess robe or fourreau, whether the dress is short or trained.

The hair is worn low on the brow, either in a curly fringe or waved. Behind, it droops in the nape of the neck in a coil, in loops or braids. Flowers are sometimes worn in the hair in the evening in small quantities—just one large flower or a spray near the left ear.

Friction matches may be described as those made without the consent of the old folks.

If a man talks of his misfortunes there is something in them that is not disagreeable to him.

A wretch's thrust: "Everything is as regular as clockwork about my house," said Brown, who was showing the splendors of his new residence to some of his friends. "Yes," said Fogg, "it is tick, tick all the time, I suppose."

"Father," said an inquisitive boy, "what is meant by close relations?" "Close relations, my son," replied the father, "are relations who never give you a cent." The boy said his father, then, was the "closest" relation he'd got.

"My Brown is not very young but Clara says he is pure gold," remarked Matilda, speaking of Clara's matrimonial choice. "Yes," said Sarah, "I know that old gold is quite fashionable, but I prefer to take my gold while it is young."

"A Philadelphia firm, a few days ago, drew their check for $6,767,766.75." It is supposed the parties publish a newspaper, and wished to pay their editors two weeks back salary. They must have cut down their force since last pay day.

A sign of talent: "What are you going to make out of your boy, Billy" asked one Austin parent of another. "I think Bill will be a great sculptor," was the reply. "Has he any talent that way?" "I should say so. He chisels all the other boys out of their marbles."

Musical definitions: A diminished chord—the cord of wood as sold by the unscrupulous coal dealer. A cross relation—the average mother-in-law. A deceptive cadence—when the cats keep quiet after you have thrown the boot jack, only to resume again after you have closed the window. Oblique movement—home from the dance.

On the wall of the room in which the Wisconsin Dairymen's Association recently met was the inscription, "Talk to your cow as you would to a lady." Thus, instead of the usual form of request, we should have, "Pardon me, madam, for suggesting that you would find your attitude less tiresome if you were to remove our foot from the pail."

The Boston Courier says: "A young lady of this city was recently noticed by her mother to be fondling and kissing a pet kitten. 'Why, Mary,' said the mother, 'you have kissed that kitten more in five minutes than you have me in five years.' 'Don't you know why I'd rather kiss the kitten than you, mother?' 'No, my child.' 'You haven't got whiskers!'"

A Norristown girl who was vaccinated with virus from the arm of a certain young man is acting very strangely indeed. When sitting on the sofa she is seized with an irresistible impulse to place the inoculated arm around her own neck. One of our leading physicians says it is the first case of the kind that has ever come under his observation.

DEMOCRATIC STRENGTH.

The principles upheld by the Democracy of to-day are precisely those Thomas Jefferson proclaimed as fundamental when the party was organized over eighty years ago.

Measures may necessarily vary to meet changing circumstances, but the principles of justice and freedom, like rock-ribbed mountains, are everlastingly established.

In that truth abides the strength of the Democratic party.

It came into existence for the purpose of making vital the Declaration of Independence and permanently supreme the Constitution of the United States, by defending representative equality and personal and political freedom, or, in other words, the rights of all the people, from the gloved hand of aristocratic and centralizing despotism.

It has fought that battle valiantly in many ways, and lives to combat anew any enemy of free government and the public welfare that may arise.

The strength and usefulness of the Democratic party consist in undisguised and fearless advocacy of the political principles of Jefferson.

Under that glorious banner it has and it will continue to conquer, regardless of every species of opposition.

It has been betrayed by malicious traitors within its own fold, but it never betrayed the people.

It has been vilified and abused without stint or common decency, yet not for a moment has it deviated from the pathway of Constitutional loyalty.

It has seen organized foes fall into ruin, and welcomed thousands of their converted followers into its own ranks.

It has survived the corrupting power of mercenary wealth, the malice of disappointed personal ambition, the enmity of false friends, the grasping spirit of avarice, the designs of innovation, and the hatred of aristocratic exclusiveness.

Democracy lives for the good of the people, thoughtless of birth, creed, condition or color, but vigilantly mindful of the just privileges and prosperity of all.

Democrats! Do your duty!

DEMOCRATS OF UNION!

There will occur next November an election for Congressman from this District.

It is a strange fact that the County of Union never had a Democratic candidate for Congress.

Failure to harmonize upon a candidate has heretofore been the cause.

We hope the future will show a different result. There is no harm in commencing now to discuss the merits of individuals for that position. Let Democrats survey the field carefully and impartially, and when the Convention comes together let the united voice of Union be for one man. It will be heard and respected.

Union is certainly entitled to the nomination, and Union has good material to select from.

Pick out the best man and then support him with unity and zeal.

"LITTLE MAC" ASKS NOTHING.

The Washington Critic (Star Route) says a Democratic Congressman is preparing a bill to retire General George B. McClellan on $12,000 a year, a la Grant. If any Democratic Congressman is so big a fool, he will have his trouble for his pains. Gen. McClellan never asked anything of the Government and never will.

It is stated that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's new passenger depot in Philadelphia has rugs in the ladies' waiting room which cost one thousand dollars apiece. We question not the financial ability of the Company to throw money away in that absurd style, but denounce it as pernicious and unwarranted extravagance. Substantial comfort, not gaudy show, is the thing most needed. A contrary example is doing vast evil in this country.

The Congressional Committee charged with the consideration of claims made for services incident to the illness and death of President Garfield had rather a stormy time over the monster demands made, especially by the physicians. One member is reported as saying—"If the people of this country could see the bills brought in for allowance, general disgust would be the result."

During the past ten years the Government has expended, exclusive of soldiers pay and incidental expenses, over five million dollars in chasing and fighting Indians. Had the humane and honest policy of William Penn been imitated, that vast outlay of money, to say nothing of lives, would not now stand a sullied national record.

The Democratic party cordially welcomes to its ranks those who sincerely believe in a government of the people for the benefit of all classes of people, a government honestly, justly and economically administered, but it has neither fellowship nor room for masked traitors and corrupt traders.

On the 13th of present month ex-Governor English, of Connecticut, held a reception in honor of his seventieth birthday. An able, out-spoken and life-long Democrat, he is one of those illustrious men whose personal worth commands the respect of political opponents.

Beyond the smoke of partisan controversy shines clear and steady the great and all important fact, that the statesman policy of Thomas Jefferson remains to be the only sure basis for both national and individual prosperity.

The Democratic party has grown stronger because of the wise determination to thrust outside and away those miserable plotters who have used and dishonored its name for the attainment of base personal ends.

General Butler, who has been in Washington for several days, said that he had no intention of entering the Guiteau case and arguing for a new trial on the bill of exceptions filed by Mr. Scoville.

A Confederate half dollar of 1861 sold at auction in New York the other day for $870. It would pay Jeff Davis to have a few extra specimens secretly manufactured and put on the market.

The Democratic party achieved for this country the priceless blessings of civil and religious liberty, which can only be perpetuated through the same agency.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

Senate bill No. 139 was called up for second reading in the House Tuesday afternoon. This is the act which steals about 17 miles of water-front to which no claim even has been heretofore set up by the railroads. Mr. McAdoo succeeded in getting an amendment tacked to it, which makes the bill comparatively valueless, before the railroad members knew what it meant. It provides that the act shall not affect lands not actually in use and reclaimed by the railroad. The Senate Tuesday reconsidered the vote by which the bill fixing a ten-dollar license fee for every horse-car was defeated the night before and passed the act. The Senate confirmed all of the nominations of the Governor except that of Morrow, for Law Judge, of Warren county. In the House, Mr. Flynn's water bill was amended to death and then passed. Mr. Cator introduced a joint resolution directing the Ways and Means Committee to report a bill imposing a one-mill State tax.

During the afternoon, in the House, occurred the presentation to the State, of the silver trophy won by the New Jersey troops at Yorktown. The Senate and the Governor attended. Gen. E. Burd Grubb made the presentation speech, and Speaker Dunn accepted the gift on behalf of the State. Gov. Ludlow made a brief and pointed address. In the evening the Governor gave a largely attended reception to the State officers and Militia.

Letters, petitions and applications of all sorts bearing upon the case of Sergeant Mason come to the President in every mail and from all parts of the country. A larger number than usual arrived on Monday last. They were properly arranged and referred to the Secretary of War.

The Hoboken Common Council passed resolutions last Tuesday evening requesting the Governor to veto bill No. 167, which was passed by the Legislature last week. It was proposed to appoint a committee of citizens to take possession of the city's water-front. A public meeting will be held on Saturday evening.

Jersey City's Water Front.

Jersey City felt cheerful Wednesday over the veto of Senate bill No. 167, and the announcement that the bill had been returned to the Legislature without the Governor's approval was received everywhere with demonstrations of joy. In the evening a salute of 21 guns was fired, and a meeting of citizens was held in the City Hall of Jersey City. Ex-Mayor Garret D. Van Reipen presided, and Alderman Fuster officiated as Secretary. It was a glorification meeting over the success of the fight against the corporations so far as the struggle has progressed. Counselor M. T. Newbold suggested that the first business of the meeting was the passage of a resolution thanking the Governor for his veto. Ex-Speaker Carscallen offered the resolution. It was as follows:

Resolved, That the thanks of citizens and tax-payers in mass-meeting here assembled are tendered to Gov. George C. Ludlow for his masterly portrayal of the rights of the people of Jersey City as stated in his veto, and

Resolved, That we will ever remember with gratitude this noble act of our Governor, who has so fearlessly exercised the right of his high office in behalf of justice and on the side of the people against grasping and designing corporations.

The flags are to be displayed from the public buildings for three days. It was agreed that a committee shall be appointed to go to Trenton to oppose the passage of the bill. It was assumed that the Senate will act on the bill Thursday and that the Senate will pass it over the veto, and a question arose as to when a committee will be required to go to Trenton to oppose the second passage of the bill in the House. The point on which the decision of the question turned was as to when the bill can be reached constitutionally in the House. Corporation Counsel Abbett settled the matter finally by holding that, under the Constitution, it will have to lie over in the House till Friday at least. It was thought that a committee cannot be got together in time to wait upon the Senate Thursday, but it was decided to send a committee of 250 down as soon as possible to oppose the second passage of the bill.

By Author of "Helen's Babies."

Mrs. Mayburn's Twins, by John Habberton, author of "Helen's Babies," is just published by T. B. Peterson & Bros., Philadelphia. It is a charming bit of work, filled to the brim with fun, frolic and reality, and the author will have the thanks of every one that reads it, for there is in it a sweet under current of pathos that lends a special charm to the whole story, from first to last. All who like to read about children, their mothers and the home circle, should get and read this truly absorbing and fascinating story. It is a gem of the first water, in a setting that adds vastly to its attractiveness. Mothers and fathers especially will find it a treat of the rarest kind, for it is a worthy companion to the renowned "Helen's Babies," by the same author.

A $20.00 Bibical Reward.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer ten valuable rewards in their Monthly for April, among which is the following:

We will give $20.00 in gold to the person telling us which is the middle verse in the New Testament Scriptures by April 10th, 1882. Should two or more correct answers be received the reward will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner April 15th, 1882. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the May Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published. This may be worth $20.00 to you; cut it out. Address—RUTLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Easton, Penna.

New Made Laws.

Wednesday Governor Ludlow approved and signed the following bills and filed the same in the office of the Secretary of State, and they are now laws:

Assembly No. 120, an act to provide for the payment for certain badges ordered for the New Jersey Rifle Team ordered by the Inspector General. Appropriates $120 for the payment of 16 gold badges furnished by Jabez W. Hayes & Co., of Newark, to the military authorities of the State to commemorate the Creedmoor victory.

Assembly No. 141, supplement to Election act of 1874, providing for the compulsory attendance of witnesses.

Assembly No. 169, act to protect the navigable waters of Arthur Kill, Kill von Kull, Staten Island Sound, Newark and Raritan Bays, New York Bay and harbor and Hudson river, over which this State has jurisdiction. Prohibits the dumping of ashes, refuse, &c., therein under penalties.

Assembly No. 232, act to enable city boards having control of hospitals to provide for paying certain expenses over and above appropriations for taking care of smallpox patients.

Assembly No. 241, supplement to act for the erection of engine houses in cities. Gives authority to erect engine houses on land given or dedicated for that purpose.

Assembly No. 282, supplement to act to regulate elections. Providing that when a village is set off from a township, the annual election shall take place at the same time as the township; present officers to hold during terms for which they were elected, &c.

Assembly No. 293, supplement to act respecting the Court of Chancery. Provides that the stenographer in the Vice Chancellor's Court shall be paid the same as stenographers of the Circuit Court.

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 4, relative to the protection of the mining of iron ore interests. Requesting the Senators and members of Congress to support any measure to increase the duty upon foreign importations.

Senate No. 171, act to authorize the erection of school houses in cities. Authorizes the Board of Aldermen or Common Council in cities to pass ordinances to raise money by loan for the purchase of lands and the erection thereon of school houses; provided that the total amount of loans outstanding in any one case shall not exceed $50,000.

Senate No. 174, An act providing that all examinations to be made use of at the hearing of any case in the Orphan's Court in any county may be taken and reduced to writing before the Surrogate of such county.

Senate No. 205, Act providing that the Law or President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas shall receive an annual salary of $1,500 to be paid quarterly. This act applies only to such judges as shall be appointed hereafter or those whose term do not expire during the present year, if they file their assent in writing with the Clerk of the county.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 3, in reference to securing and preserving Temple Farm and the Moore Farm at Yorktown, Va., instructs the United States Senators and Representatives for the State to support a bill for their purchase at a cost not exceeding $25,000.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 4, making the Governor, Comptroller and State Geologist, guardians over the Geological collections and military relics; that they shall keep them in a room in the State House which shall be opened for inspection at such times as they shall determine.

Ten Reasons Why I Sell Cheap!

1st. I ATTEND TO MY BUSINESS,
and do not have to pay some one else to do it for me.
2d. I MANUFACTURE MY CLOTHING,
and save at least one profit.
3d. I BUY FROM FIRST HANDS,
and save from 10 to 25 per cent. by so doing.
4th. I DISCOUNT ALL MY BILLS,
which is a large item saved.
5th. I SELL FOR CASH ONLY,
No bad accounts to be added to my prices.
6th. I HAVE BUT ONE STORE,
therefore but one rent, and that very low.
7th. I HAVE THE LEAST EXPENSES,
under which my business can be properly conducted.
8th. I MANUFACTURE STRONG GOODS,
that give satisfaction, and are never returned.
9th. I UNDERSTAND THE BUSINESS,
having had 20 years' experience in the wholesale and retail clothing trade.
10th. I ASK ONLY A SMALL PROFIT, and mark all goods at the lowest price for which they can be sold.

Give me a Call, and you will be satisfied with Prices and Quality of Goods.

HAVE you moved yet?

PLAINFIELD wants an Opera House.

IT's it about time the peach buds were destroyed.

IT is hoped that this summer will witness the erection of an Opera House in Plainfield.

THE "first shad of the season" has been caught in twenty-seven places this spring, and there are several hopeful localities to hear from yet.

THE Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department meets on Wednesday evening next in the parlor of Alert Hose House.

ROOMS at the Park House can now be engaged for the coming season under the management of its owner, Mr. Evan Jones.

NOW comes the springtime of the housekeeper's discontent, and house-cleaning is the order (or rather disorder) of the day.

THE next "Descriptive Talk" of the Y. M. C. A., course will be given on the evening of Tuesday next, by the Rev. Wm. Manchee, on "A Summer Ramble in Switzerland."

FOR vegetable or flower seeds in great variety at the lowest prices, our readers would be wise in calling on Mr. H. N. Spencer at No. 62 Somerset street, North Plainfield.

THE sale of the estate of the late G. W. Dunham, on Grove street, was adjourned until to-day (Friday) at five o'clock, P. M., when the sale will positively take place.

PROCEEDINGS have been commenced against Mr. Aaron T. Butler, of Philadelphia, by Mrs. Percy G. Ohl, of this city, for the recovery of $6,500, claimed due her from investments.

LEDERER, at No. 9 West Front street, calls the attention of the public in this issue to a special line of bargains in Carpets, matting, oil-cloth and mats, and a complete assortment of other goods at unusually low prices.

LEDERER is offering bargains in carpets and other floor coverings, as may be seen by a reference to the low prices he advertises elsewhere. Also correspondingly low rates for gentlemen's furnishing goods and ladies' wear.

LILIENSTERN, the popular clothier, in our advertising columns to-day, gives the public ten good and sufficient reasons why he is able to sell goods at the lowest prices. We would advise all to read and be instructed to their good.

BOEHM's spring opening of carpets, oil-cloths and mattings, at No. 7 West Front street, displays one of the largest and finest stocks of these goods ever shown in Plainfield. The prices are low and are sure to prove satisfactory.

JUSTICE Wadsworth continues to dispense good substantial equity with neatness and dispatch. One of those æsthetic looking tramps that may have been noticed lately on our streets, was "sent down for 30 days" by the "Judge" yesterday.

WE give to-day Collector Brown's detailed reports of receipts for January and February, and shall each month hereafter publish the succeeding ones. He reports that the City's indebtedness to the County has been reduced to an amount less than $4,000.

MR. Thos. Paff of Scotch Plains, having built a new hotel, will sell at auction, on Tuesday of next week, all the household furniture &c. contained in his present establishment. The goods to be disposed of include also a cow, two horses, carriages and many other articles.

JUDGING from the crowds that visit the store of Messrs. Edsall & Price, their grand opening bargain sale this week is a great success. They inform us that it has surpassed their expectations, and are encouraged to offer still more attractive inducements in the future to their daily increasing patronage.

THE officials of one of the Long Branch churches have been investigating a strange coin which was recently found in one of the collection baskets. They were unable to fix its identity, and the pastor now carries it in his pocket, as a pocket-piece. A numismatist newspaper man has decided that it is a faro "chip."

WE gladly refer anyone in need of a first-class tin, sheet-iron or copper worker, to the advertisement of Mr. Chas. M. Raybert, which appears on our second page. He is also ready and able to put in electric bells, burglar alarms &c., having just fitted the store of Messrs Boehm & Bro., with the latter attachment in a very satisfactory manner.

MR. Thos. Pittis has been making some very desirable changes about his Central avenue property, under the direction of Mr. J. N. Jenkins. He has sold his barn to be moved onto an adjoining lot, and raised his water tank so as to give a "full head" on the third floor of his house. It is his intention to make such arrangements as will allow of the water being used in case of fire.

CONFIRMED cider drinkers should not read this. It is from the Ithaca Democrat. It tells of a human "cider barrel in Western Hector, N. Y., who has been drinking cider to excess during the past fifteen years, and is lying dangerously ill with what the doctors call vinegar fever. Upon examination he was found nearly filled inside with vinegar mother. All efforts to remove it with cathartics and a vigorous use of the stomach pump have thus far been unsuccessful. Cider drinkers please take warning."

OUR public school teachers should have sense enough to understand that, by sending scholars to the houses of absent pupils to "hunt them up," they are exposing their charges to such infectious diseases as scarlet-fever and diphtheria. Yesterday a scholar was sent to the house of another to learn the reason of the latter's absence, and found it to be an attack of scarlet fever. Parents send their children to school to exercise their minds in study, not their legs in running errands for the teachers.

MR. Paul Symons, of 74 E. Third St., this city, has been appointed an agent for the sale of Wilcox & White's celebrated cabinet organs—the only organ in the market having an extra pair of "Children's blow pedals," which can be used with perfect ease by a child five years of age. Mr. S wishes it distinctly understood that these organs do not contain 199 stops nor "10 full (?) sets of reeds"—but they do contain as many useful stops and sets of reeds as any in the market. An examination is requested.

ONE of the most striking evidences of the return of good times is the demand for practically educated young men. Young men who have been properly trained and are willing to work, readily find employment to suit their tastes and dispositions. We believe no institution in the country is doing so thorough work in training young men for immediate use and profitable employment as the Trenton Business College, under the management of Hon. A. J. Rider. Himself a live, practical man, he has devised and introduced methods of his own into every department, and their results will surprise any one who will spend half an hour visiting the institution. One of the best evidences of his success is, that for a long time past every available seat has been occupied. About 300 students are now in attendance on the day and evening sessions.—True American. See adv. of Spring opening.

THE equinoctial storm was on time the 21st day of March.

WHY has the month of March a severe "cold" in it's head?—Because it blows it snows—so much.

THE "Great Eastern," corner of Third & Richmond streets, is being painted and "fixed up" and will soon be ready for occupancy.

SAMUEL B. Haines, a minister, will attend a meeting of the Society of Friends, held at their house on Peace street, next Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock. All are invited to attend.

THOSE members of the Common Council that were in favor of or preferred Mr. Marsh as Corporation Counsel, but were "committed" to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances, are presented to the public in the very unmanly condition of being "led by the nose."

BY abolishing the office of Corporation Counsel, and "engaging a legal adviser," the Common Council will create an additional expense of hundreds of dollars, to say nothing of the violation of the Charter and the nullification of the penalties of innumerable ordinances.

THE Republicans of the Second ward organized on Saturday evening with Craig A. Marsh as President, J. B. Dumont, Vice President, R. Dillon, Jr., Secretary, H. A. Thord, Treasurer. The Executive Committee is E. C Mulford, G. H. Goddard, W. S. Graham and W. D. Miller.

THE Messrs. Sanford intend erecting at once two elegant residences on Washington avenue, North Plainfield, and Mr. Isaac Pangborn will shortly build near the property he recently sold to Mr. Benj Day. Thus, already, the prospect of a new school building "over the brook," is initiating future prosperity.

IN answer to a number of correspondents, we would state that Mason was sentenced by Court Martial to his severe punishment because he shot at Guiteau, and not because he missed him. We hope this explanation will set at rest the many befuddled minds that couldn't seem to understand the philosophy of the "findings" of the Court.

Personals.

Mr. James Finley Layton started Thursday on an extended trip to the West.

Mr. James Clark has returned from his past winter residence at St. Louis, and is once again a Plainfield citizen.

Baron Von Moltke, the German Consul for New York, has rented the furnished residence of Mrs. Case, for the season.

Our friend Charley Davis was particularly blessed on Tuesday evening last by the advent into his family of a little girl. The congratulations of ourselves and others are heartily extended to both the happy parents.

The latest addition to Plainfield's long list of medical practitioners, is Dr. Chauncey M. Field, formerly of Bound Brook, and one of the ablest surgeons in the State. Plainfield is to be envied the securing of so capable a member of the profession.

Mr. S. De V. Burr has recently been advanced to the position of Associate Editor of the New York Engineering News—an acknowledged authority among scientific periodicals—to the columns of which, during the past, Mr. Burr has contributed many of the ablest articles.

The marriage of Mr. John Bonner, of Philadelphia, and Miss Violet Marsh, daughter of our friend Mr. Randolph Marsh, took place on Thursday of last week at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. Robert Walker, No. 24 Center street Hartford, Conn. The Rev. A. J. Sage of the First Baptist church of that city, officiated.

So acceptable have proven the journalistic talents of Mr. George Wotherspoon to the editors of the New York Town, that he has been placed at the head of the dramatical and musical department of that successful society paper. We sincerely congratulate that young gentleman upon the honor gained by his judgment, taste, ability and cleverness.

The Glee Club Concert.

It is a shameful evidence of our public's lack of taste and appreciation, that so talented and pleasing a combination of male vocalists as the Rutgers College Glee Club, should receive such a lack of support in its efforts to favor our city with one of its enjoyable entertainments. On Tuesday evening this Club made a second appearance at Van Deventer Hall, in spite of the dampening effect that empty seats justly have upon the spirits of public artists, an extended programme of College songs, solos, choruses and glees was rendered in a most commendable manner. Unstinted praise is due those who despite the lack of patronage and other drawbacks, carried the diversion through in so creditable a manner to all personally interested.

Choir of Men and Boys.

A few men, having good voices and some skill in singing by note, will be received into the choir of the Church of the Holy Cross. For terms of admission apply to Mr. E. A. Embury, at the school room adjoining the church, on Mondays, between the hours of 8 and 9 p. m.

Also, a few boys between 8 and 12 years of age, children of good moral character and respectable parentage, will be received into the class about to be formed and trained for the choir of the Church of the Holy Cross, and taught to sing plain church music by note. The only musical requisites are a good voice and a quick ear. For terms of admission, which are very advantageous to the pupil, apply to Mr. Embury, at the school room adjoining the church, on Mondays, between the hours of 5 and 6 p. m.

A Grand Benefit Concert.

By reason of its assured excellence and the cause it is to benefit, the coming vocal and instrumental Concert at Van Deventer Hall on Thursday evening of next week, deserves to be largely attended and financially successful. The Plainfield Saengerbund is to be commended for its liberality in devoting talent, time and funds towards the assistance of the Muhlenberg Hospital, and the exertions put forth have resulted in securing a combination of artists that will furnish a grand entertainment. In our advertising columns will be found a list of the talent engaged, but an attendance is necessary to appreciate fully the pleasurable music that is to be rendered. Tickets may be procured at any of the drug stores of the city, or of members of the Saengerbund. Reserved seats may be selected at the pharmacy of Messrs. Dunham & Miller, under Van Deventer Hall.

Important to the Boys.

The popular clothing house of Messrs. R. Stoutenburgh & Co., having inaugurated the donation of "base-balls" to their juvenile patrons last season, are again in the field with a new supply, and design making the boys happy this season as well by presenting to every purchaser of a suit an elegant regulation base-ball. The immense stock of boys' and children's clothing now shown by the above firm is the most complete of any season heretofore manufactured, composed as it is of every desirable style and pattern, in connection with the best workmanship, and sold at the lowest prices consistent with business principles. In fact, the trade in this special branch has, by strict attention to the wants of an appreciating public, steadily increased until at the present time you can find goods to suit any purse, made in good style, and as perfect in fit as custom-made goods. R. Stoutenburgh & Co., Newark Clothiers, 803 & 805 Broad street, Newark, N. J.

AT a regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., of this city, held last Monday, it was resolved to hold a public anniversary of the institution of the order in the United States, on or about the 26th of April. A committee of arrangements was appointed to get up a suitable programme for the occasion, and no pains will be spared to make this entertainment one of profit, pleasure and instruction, as at all similar entertainments that have been given by this Lodge. The exercises will be devotional, historical, musical and literary. A very enjoyable time is anticipated.

A Possible and Creditable Appointment.

The reported intention of the Com. on Laws and Ordinances of the Common Council, to engage the services of Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., as its legal adviser, calls for the entire approval of the community interested. No lawyer in the city is better fitted for the office by reason of learning, ability and experience, than he whom rumor credits with the prospective engagement. Mr. Maxson has been long and favorably known to our public as one of the city's most capable and scholarly members of the legal profession, and by reason of an extended personal acquaintance we are impelled to endorse him as a gentleman of remarkable tact and discernment.

A Libel on Somerville.

"Lawyer ———, of Somerville, N. J., you're charged with intoxication," said Justice Patterson, in the Jefferson Market Police Court, addressing a middle-aged man of fine appearance, standing at the bar.

"Has the officer made the charge?" inquired the lawyer.

"He has," said the Judge.

"Your Honor will observe the nature of the charge. While I have appeared for many unfortunates under such trying circumstances, this is my first appearance in the role. I know Your Honor will deal lenient with me. If it had not been for the kindness of this gentleman, (addressing the officer) where would I or my property have been? I am a limb of the legal profession, and as such am worthy of some respect."

Court—"Where are you stopping?"

Lawyer—"At the St. Nicholas Hotel."

Court—"Well, under the circumstances, you are discharged."

Lawyer makes a polite courtesy to the Judge and hastily quits the Court room.—N. Y. Commercial of March 20th.

What's Wanted?

A majority of the members of the Common Council seems determined to confirm no nomination of the Mayor's for the office of Counsel to the Corporation. If this majority has any preference among the city's legal lights, it has merely to wait until such person's nomination is sent in, as would be done eventually under that section of an ordinance which says:

"If any nomination and appointment by the Mayor for any city officer shall, upon vote thereon of the Common Council, be not confirmed, or in case any vacancy in any city office shall occur at any time, it shall be the duty of the Mayor to nominate to the Common Council, and, subject to its approval, appoint at each succeeding regular or adjourned meeting a different person for such office, not before nominated for such office during the current year, until a nomination or appointment for such office shall be confirmed."

In this way a Counsel (whose services it is intended to secure by resolution after the salaried officer is abolished) could be engaged at a saving of some hundreds of dollars; but an economical management of the city's finances seems not to be at present, one of the duties of the average Councilman.

If the Council thought it had a reasonable objection to Mr. Chas. W. Kimball on account of mutual incompatibility in a certain line of action, the rejection of the gentleman's name was justifiable to that extent. But no reason for the non-confirmation of Mr. Marsh's nomination, or the withdrawal of Mr. Stillman's to obviate the same result, seems apparent.

What certain members of the Council want, is beyond the knoweledge of others be they never so acute. That they propose to have a Counsel to the Corporation is shown by the passage of a resolution at the meeting of Feb. 27th empowering the Committee on Laws and Ordinances to engage such. Yet they refuse to confirm any nomination for the office and at the meeting of Monday evening introduced an ordinance abolishing the office. Then again in spite of the fact that a resolution is already in force authorizing the employment of an officer whom they seemingly don't want and wont have in the regular way, an identical resolution is offered Monday evening and withdrawn before voted upon. They want what they will not have and they refuse what they have already taken steps to secure. "Inconsistency" seems to be the malady which has broken out among our Councilmen.

North Plainfield Public School.

The annual meeting of School District No. 38, was held in the North Plainfield Public School house on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A newly awakened interest in the District's educational affairs, was evidenced by the large attendance of the Township's best people, and throughout the meeting was shown a united desire to advance the interests of the school.

The meeting was called to order by the appointment to the chair of Mr. Charles Place, and the selection of Mr. Isaac Brokaw as Secretary. District Clerk James K. Arnold read the following report of receipts and expenditures for the past seven months:

RECEIPTS.

Bal. on hand, August, 1881,	$1,581 78
State Appropriation,	269 95
School Tax,	4,152 25
Surplus Revenue,	324 00
District Tax,	1,600 00
	$7,927 98

EXPENDITURES.

Teachers' Salaries,	$2,000 00
Janitor's "	150 00
Rest Mission School,	180 00
Repairs,	118 34
Stationery,	70 41
Coal and Wood,	130 00
Int. on Mortgage ($1,000)	60 00
Insurance Assess.,	2 81
Bal. on hand, March 21, 1882,	5,216 42
	$7,927 98

The election of a School Trustee to serve three years in the place of Mr. Jas. K. Arnold, whose term of office had expired, resulted in a total ballot of 148, of which Mr. Theodore F. French received 108 votes and Mr. James K. Arnold, 40.

The subject of a new school building commodious enough to accommodate the increasing number of scholars in the District, was then discussed at some length. All seemed to recognize both the necessity and desirability of additional room, and a Committee of three was appointed by the Chair to consider the matter in all its bearings and present a report at a meeting to be held at the same time and place on Tuesday evening, May 2d.

The Committee appointed was Messrs. James McGee, Henry K. Carroll and P. M. French, who held a meeting on the same evening and elected Mr. Carroll as Secretary. No better choice of men fitted in every way for the advancement of the project, could have been made. Mr. McGee was in former years a member of the Brooklyn Board of Education, Mr. P. M. French was one of the projectors of the present school building in North Plainfield, and Mr. Carroll is an associate editor of the New York Independent and thoroughly acquainted with the best systems of education. It is desired that all who have at their disposal building sites eligible for the purpose, by location and size (not less than 200x400), should address the Secretary in relation to the matter, at once.

The Pews vs The Pulpit.

Since our last issue nothing new has developed in the case of certain members of St. Mary's church against their pastor. The Bishop has received the books of the church from Father Morris, and promises an early investigation of all the charges. Until such is had, no estimate of the merits of the case can justly be measured.

Church Prosperity.

The Congregational church held a very successful "jug-breaking" and miscellaneous meeting on Saturday evening of last week. Additional financial assistance towards the completion of the chapel that is steadily progressing, was secured, and the decided interest displayed by the large gathering present, in the affairs of the Society, evidenced an enviable future of success.

Missionary Meeting.

Two missionaries, nieces of Dr. Talmadge, of Brooklyn, who have charge of a girl's seminary in China, and who are visiting America for a few months, and expect to return to their distant field of labor in the fall, are expected to address the Woman's Missionary Society of the Congregational Church, on Thursday afternoon at half-past three o'clock, in the lecture room of the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

Elizabeth Able to Pay 50 Cts. on a Dollar.

The City Council of Elizabeth on Tuesday evening accepted the proposition of taxpayers, and will pay off its bonded indebtedness of $6,400,000 in 4 per cent. bonds, bearing interest semi-annually, on the basis of 50 cents on a dollar, the bonds to be dated from July 1, 1882. The rescue from the confused and bewildering state of affairs is due to the determination and clear-headed judgment of Mayor Ryder, who assumed his office on January 1.

Chess Tournament.

The score in the tournament of the Plainfield Chess Club, stands as follows:

	won	lost
Thos. Lloyd,	14	0
Asa Collier,	11	5
Charles Opdyke,	9	3
Henry Boice,	9	6
Geo. P. Suydam,	6	2
John H. Jackson,	6	8
Alex. Gilbert,	2	0
Gen'l Long,	5	10
Geo S. Hunt,	4	14
Chas. Dewey,	4	12
Chas. R. Thiers,	3	15

State Nominations.

The Governor on Wednesday sent to the Senate the following nominations: Prosecutor of the Pleas, Somerset Co., James J. Bergen, re-appointed; Judge District Court, Elizabeth, Patrick H. Gilhooly, vice Joseph Alevard; Judge Inferior Court of Common Pleas, Gloucester county, Edward Jones, vice Benjamin P. Carter; Commissioners to select a site for the Morristown Asylum (to fill vacancies) Joseph Meeker, of Morris, vice Hon. F. S. Lathrop, deceased; Garret Ackerson, Jr., vice Samuel Lilly, deceased; and Augustus W. Cater, vice Francis S. Lathrop, deceased. In Executive session, all were referred to the committee as usual.

Carpentering by Steam.

A visit to the steam work-shop in North Plainfield, of Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown, the builders, reveals a scene of business activity seldom witnessed. In order to assist in the completion of the many large contracts that are placed in the hands of this efficient firm, it was found necessary to secure the powerful services of steam; and all day long the steady whirr of planer, saw and other wood-working machinery, can be heard as the demands of the business are effected. Besides turning out such work as is needed by the firm, orders for sawing, planing, &c., from other contractors at prices much lower than the same would cost if done by hand, are taken and completed with neatness and dispatch.

An Unfortunate Fall.

Mr. Thomas Jennings, residing at the corner of Madison avenue and Front St., had an unlucky fall on Monday evening that was peculiar and serious in cause and effect. Upon stepping on one of a number of boards laid from the gate to the stoop of his house, an end flew up in such a way as to trip his left foot. Mr. Jennings was thrown to the ground on his side with such force as to break his right leg between the knee and hip, and lying in that position was unable to draw the hand that was under him from his pocket to assist in raising himself. His calls for help brought others to the spot, and the unfortunate man was carried into the house where he now lies under the efficient care of Dr. T. H. Tomlinson.

This is not the first time that Mr. Jennings has suffered from the same affliction. In early life the hip of his right leg was broken and also at another time his left leg.

The Post Office.

Although three propositions of eligible premises for occupation as a post office, have been submitted for approval to the Government officials and inspected by them, no decision is as yet arrived at. The buildings under deliberation are those now occupied by Messrs. Voorhees the druggist, Cutter the grocer and Schorb the clothier, at No's. 21 and 25 West and No. 11 East Front street. Any of these are admirably adapted by location and size for the purpose, and the public will have every reason to feel satisfied whichever is designated. There seems, however, to be a substantial reason for supposing that the premises adjoining the First National Bank, known as the Schorb Building, will ultimately be selected. As railroad companies are under contract to deliver, at their expense, the U. S. Mail at post offices within a quarter-mile of the stations, and as the location mentioned above is the only one of the three that comes within such limit of distance, the saving to the Government of about $3,000 (during a ten year's lease) is an item that may justly effect the final decision.

The Plainfield office has recently been made an International Money Order Office, and after April 1st., orders on foreign post offices for remittances can be procured in this city.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Michael Koller has made an additional and desirable improvement to his property at No. 22 Emily street, by laying a substantial board side-walk along the front. Many others of our townsmen might follow his good example.

Messrs. Amos Vail, Elias Allen, George W. Kelsey, Jr., Stephen O. Horton and Lewis Barkalew are the petit jurors drawn from North Plainfield for the ensuing terms of the Somerset County Courts.

Mr. J. H. Waters, a former resident of Duer street, and well-known to many of us, was recently found dead in a room of his house in Brooklyn. Apoplexy was the cause.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Capt. Bogardus, the well-known pigeon shot, is testing the Ligowsky clay pigeon which is intended to take the place of the glass ball. He has made a match to take place on April 5th for $250 a side, in which he will undertake to break 500 clay pigeons in thirty minutes. Capt. Bogardus is of the opinion that in time sporting men will prefer the clay pigeon to live birds for all matches.

Common Council Proceedings.

A Brief Meeting—No New Counsel to Corporation—Mr. Craig A. Marsh, rejected—An Ordinance to Abolish the Office—A Communication from the Mayor.

MONDAY EVENING, March 20, 1882.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment at 8 o'clock.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs Newhall, Ginna, Kaufman, J. Simpson, R. Simpson, Gardner, Lindsley, Thompson, Livingston, Depew.

Absent—None.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Mr. Kaufman presented the bills of W. L. Force & Bro., for printing and advertising during Feb., and March, $114.65.

Ref'd to Com. on Printing.

By Mr. R. Simpson, the bill of Overseer of the Poor Vanderbeek, for one-quarter's salary, 50.

Ref'd to Com. on Salaries.

By the same the bill of Jas. M. Dunn for sundry items of provisions furnished the poor, $4.20.

Ref'd to Com. on Alms.

By Mr. Gardner, a bill which had been mislaid of the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gas light Co. for street lights during August, 1881, $40.

Ref'd to Com on Lamps.

By the same, the bill of Geo. W. Moore for costs of and commissions on collect*ing delinquent taxes*, $75 51.

Ref'd to Com. on Laws.

By Mr. Ginna, the statement of a judgment against the city, held by D. J. Marshall (Suydam & Jackson, Atty's) $109.36.

Ref'd to Com. on Laws.

Mr R. Simpson presented the following communication from His Honor the Mayor, which was read by the clerk:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., March 20, 1882.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—

At your last meeting, pursuant to my communication of the 6th inst., I sent in a second nomination for the office of Corporation Counsel. In the course of the evening one of your number called at my residence, exhibited the letter I had sent to the Council and suggested that the nomination should not be pressed, at the same time earnestly expressing the desire that such action should be taken on all sides as would be productive of harmony. I had already shown that my own wish was identical with this; though it seemed plain that the nominations made under the provisions of the Charter were entitled to confirmation unless there were good grounds for rejecting a name on the score of character or fitness. Being, however, most of all desirous to advance the public interest and facilitate business, I do not hesitate, for such ends, to yield mere personal views, or even (so far as I am justified in so doing) what law and custom indicate as courtesies and rights due to the Executive. With the earnest desire on my part to co-operate with the Common Council for the public good, I consented last Monday evening that the matter should temporarily remain in suspense; and in the same spirit I now present a third name for your consideration; at the same time withdrawing the name of the gentleman last nominated.

I respectfully nominate for the office of Counsel to the Corporation, Mr. Craig A. Marsh. His willingness to serve the City for the modest compensation which was last year accorded to the office; his special familiarity with the tax laws and with the history of tax litigation in this State, as well as his industry and energy, will I believe, insure not only economy but efficiency in this branch of the service, and I therefore commend his name to your cordial consideration. Very Respectfully,

L. V. F. RANDOLPH,
Mayor.

Mr. R. Simpson moved that the communication be received and that the nomination of Mr. Craig A. Marsh as Counsel to the Corporation be confirmed.

Seconded by Mr. Kaufman and lost by the following vote:

Affirmative—Messrs. Kaufman, Depew, Newhall, R. Simpson and Thompson—5.

Negative—President Rushmore and Messrs. Gardner, Ginna, Lindsley, Livingston and J. Simpson—6.

Mr. J. Simpson from the Auditing Com. reported as correct the claim of J. S. Cutter, $77.11.

A motion being made that a warrant be ordered drawn, Mr. Depew moved that the claim be laid on the table. He stated that some action should be taken towards the revocation of the ordinance making warrants interest-bearing, as such provision was no longer necessary; and until such was revoked he thought no additional warrants should be drawn.

Mr. Depew's motion was seconded by Mr. J. Simpson, and carried.

Mr. Thompson moved the adoption of a resolution to the effect that the monthly reports of the City Collector be printed in detail in the published proceedings of the Council, including the past reports of Jan. and Feb. He thought the public was interested in knowing the amount of taxes collected from each source, and the totals received.

Motion seconded by Mr. Depew, and carried; all aye.

Mr. Kaufman presented a resolution intended to cover certain provisions that had come into effect by the passage of Senate Bill No. 48. The resolution directed the Collector to make a return of all delinquent taxes now and heretofore due, to the City Judge, and that the latter be requested to issue his warrant for the collection of the same with interests and costs, by a levy and sale of the personal property of the delinquent.

Seconded by Mr. Livingston.

Mr. J. Simpson thought that before the passage of such a resolution the Council should first fully understand the provisions of the Bill as amended. It should be learned how many years back they could go in proceedings to collect.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. J. Simpson, the resolution was referred to the Com. on Laws.

Mr. Ginna stated his regret at being compelled to present for the approval of the Council an ordinance that he had hoped there would be no necessity of adopting. He was disappointed that the Mayor had not handed to the Council the nomination for the office of Counsel to the Corporation that the Council had every reason to believe would be presented.

He then handed to the Clerk an Ordinance repealing certain ordinances providing for the office of a Counsel to the Corporation and prescribing the duties of such an officer.

Read for the first time by the Clerk and on motion of Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. Livingston, read the second time.

Mr. Livingston moved that the ordinance be engrossed preparatory to its third reading. Seconded by Mr. J. Simpson.

Carried by the following vote:

Affirmative—President Rushmore and Messrs. Gardner, Ginna, Livingston, Lindsley, J. Simpson and Newhall—7.

Negative—Messrs. Depew, Kaufman, R. Simpson and Thompson—4.

Mr. Ginna moved the adoption of a resolution that the Com. on Laws and Ordinances be empowered and requested to employ counsel for legal advice and to represent the city in all its suits.

Seconded by Mr. Livingston.

Mr. Depew thought that the resolution was an improper one in view of the fact that the city had a Counsel whom it was paying a salary for the very service specified. Until the ordinance creating the office was repealed, he thought any employment of outside legal advice was wrong.

In Mr. Livingston's opinion the Council could employ 40 Counsels if it should so desire.

Mr. Depew replied that the power of the Council to do as it chose, was not the question—it was upon the justice and economy of the provisions of the resolution.

Messrs. J. Simpson and Thompson sustained Mr. Depew's position, and on motion of Mr. Newhall, Mr. Ginna was allowed to withdraw the resolution.

The Council then adjourned.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The newly elected Town Committee met on Friday evening, March 17th inst., and organized by the election of Robert R. Sinclair, Chairman and Evert M. Pierson, Treasurer. Luther M. Whitaker, Town Clerk elect, presented his oath of office which was ordered filed. The following oaths of township officers were read and on motion ordered filed: J. M. C. Marsh, Assessor; S. E. Young, Overseer of Poor; E. Embree, Joel Moffett and D. G. Fink, Commissioners of Appeal, and John N. Wilcox and George Todd, Surveyors.

On motion the amount of bond of Collector was fixed at $13 000; Treasurer, $1,500; Overseer of Poor, $500; Constables, each $500.

On motion it was resolved that Frank Bergen Esq., of Elizabeth, be engaged as Township Counsel for the ensuing year.

Adjourned subject to call of Chairman.

The new Board of Health met at Town rooms on Friday evening, March 17th inst. Present—R. R. Sinclair, Evert M. Pierson, Oliver M. Pierson and John M. C. Marsh. They organized by the election of Robert R. Sinclair, Chairman and John M. C. Marsh, Secretary.

Adjourned subject to call of Chairman.

John Darsh, has commenced making, which when completed will be, a decided improvement to one of his store fronts on Broad street, the building adjoining his bakery. He intends to build a store front out to the line of his other buildings, putting in a plate glass front and making two stores on first floor instead as it is now with only one.

Jerome McNeil has removed from our town to the city of New York, where he intends again to carry on the business of painting. He will be missed by a great many, as he understood his business thoroughly not only as a house painter but as a fresco painter.

A special Parish meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church Lecture room on Monday evening, 20th inst. The Rev. Mr. Riggs, of Cranford, acted as Moderator and Hiram Fink, Secretary. It was voted to extend a unanimous call to the Rev. Charles J. Young, of Long Branch, to become the pastor of the church. Mr. Young preached in the church on Sunday, March 5th inst, both morning and evening.

There was quite an exciting time over the election of an Overseer of the Road for Dist. No. 8, which composes the larger part of our town. The election was held on Thursday evening, the 16th inst. There were two candidates in the field, Mr. Owen Pierson, the present Overseer and Mr. Joseph Moffett. The voters as could be seen before the meeting was organized, had decided to have a change. The meeting elected a chairman and secretary and voted by ballot for Overseer. 89 ballots were cast. Jos. Moffett was elected by 23 majority. $300 extra money was raised for sidewalks.

Welch Bros. have rented their house on Westfield avenue, through the agency of John D. Jaques, to Mrs. M. Cleary of New York, who expects to occupy it about April 1st. Mr. Wm. Boyden, who occupied it, has moved to New York State.

Our hotel keeper, A. W. Moffett, has advertised to sell out at public sale, his livery stable stock and household furniture on Thursday next, sale positive and without reserve. Mr. Moffett intends giving up both hotel and the livery business.

The regular communication of Atlas Lodge, No. 125, F. & A. M., was held in their lodge room on Monday evening last. Their handsome new organ was presided over by Mr. Henry Woodland of Jerusalem Lodge, Plainfield. Members of the order were present from Plainfield, Bound Brook and Elizabeth.

Vincent Linden killed a large raccoon on Sunday, along the Rahway road, while on his way from his father's house to Westfield.

The annual election of school trustees occurred on Tuesday evening, March 21, Mr. S. S. Mapes' term of office having expired. Very little interest was taken in the election until Monday last, most everybody supposing, as a matter of course, that Mr. Mapes would be re-elected without opposition, when it was discovered that some parties not friendly to Mr. Mapes, was trying to drag the question of school trustee into the dirty pool of politics, and had tickets printed and circulated them in favor of another person, using the argument in its favor that Mr. Mapes was a Democrat. At the meeting on Tuesday evening there was a large turn-out, nearly two hundred voters being present, composing the best men of both political parties, who had come together prepared to snow under any person or number of persons who wished to connect politics with the election of school trustees. The meeting organized by the election of Charles E. Leveridge, as Chairman, and Robert R. Sinclair, as Secretary.

The Annual Report was read by the District Clerk, Mr. Sinclair, which showed our school on a good and solid financial basis. It was received and unanimously approved.

The Chair announced that the next thing in order was the election of School Trustee. Mr. S. S. Mapes was nominated. The other side failed to come to time with their twenty-five votes which was promised them and thinking discretion the better part of valor did not make any nominations, whereupon Mr. Mapes was unanimously elected.

The sum of $1300 was voted, as extra money, it being $600 less than was raised last year. A resolution was unanimously passed thanking the present Board of Trustees for the faithful discharge of its duties the past year.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

A Perfect Corset Secured at Last!
It is a well-known fact that a large proportion of the ills of female life are directly attributed to the unyielding pressure of the Corset about the waist of the wearer. This evil has been entirely overcome in this corset, by the introduction of ELASTIC SECTIONS, composed of A SERIES OF FINE COILED WIRE SPRINGS.
These springs are warranted to retain their perfect elasticity until the corset is worn out; and, unlike rubber, will not heat the person or decay with age. This corset yields readily to every respiration, and is equally comfortable in any position assumed by the wearer.—Will fit, perfectly, a greater variety of forms than any other.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 24, 1882.

The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union met at the Court House, on Thursday, March 23, 1882, at 2 o'clock P. M. Regular meeting.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Clark, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isenmann, Melick, Newbury, Mapes, Runkle, Oliver, Thompson—14.

Absent—Freeholders Randolph, Sullivan, Smith—3.

The minutes of the last meeting were read (omitting list of bills ordered paid) and, on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following from the County Attorney was read:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—At the last term of the Supreme Court, I was directed by you to appear on behalf of the county in two applications for mandamus made by David J. Boice vs The City of Plainfield, in which the priority of the right of the county to be paid the State and county taxes was threatened. A decision was given this term establishing our claim, and declaring that judgments and warrants could not be paid until the State and county quotas were satisfied.

Yours Respectfully,
P. H. GILHOOLY,
County Attorney.

On motion of Freeholder Runkle, received and ordered on file.

The County Collector presented a statement of taxes due the county as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—The amounts due the county from the cities and townships of the county (not including interest), is as follows:

From Rahway on tax levy of 1879	$8,309 00
From Rahway on tax levy of 1880	17,230 09
From Rahway on tax levy of 1881	10,560 17
	$36,099 26
From Clark on tax levy of 1881	213 70
From Springfield on tax levy of 1881	7 61
From Plainfield on tax levy of 1881	8,700 00
From Elizabeth, interest on tax levy of 1881	585 29
From Summit, balance due on amount reported at meeting Feb. 24, 1879	5,000 00
	$50,605 86

All of which is respectfully submitted.
P. Sheridan,
County Collector.

On motion of Freeholder Hubbard, received and ordered on file.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

From the committee appointed to confer with a committee from Plainfield Common Council.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—At the last meeting of your Board a resolution was passed authorizing the postponement of the argument on motion for a mandamus against the city of Plainfield until the June term, upon certain conditions. We are now able to report that the conditions have been complied with and the case is now off until the June term, and it is the hope and desire of each side, that at that time there may be nothing left to litigate over, the balance now due is $8,700 and interest on the present tax levy.

We would add in commendation of the present Council of the city, that they manifest a desire to fulfill all the obligations resting upon them, and accept the various decisions of our Courts as their guide in this matter, and take their stand side by side with the prompt tax paying municipalities of the county willing to assume the responsibilities as well as the benefits that are derived from a State, school and county tax.

In conclusion we ask the adoption of a resolution that will be offered for your action at this meeting.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
C. W. L. MARTINE, Director,
P. H. GILHOOLY, Co. Att'y,
P. SHERIDAN, Collector,
J. F. HUBBARD,
Committee.

On motion received and ordered spread upon the minutes.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Melick:

Whereas, There is now due the city of Rahway the school order for the present year, the city having paid the State school tax, and as the county have under way proceedings to collect all money due from the said city; therefore the County Collector desires the Board in some way to express their knowledge of the payment of money to the city; therefore be it

Resolved, That as far as this Board is concerned the collector is authorized to comply with the law in regard to school money by the payment of said order.

Freeholder Newbury moved the resolution lie upon the table for the present, to enable the County Collector to make a statement.

Which was carried.

By Com. to settle with Plainfield:

Whereas, The present Council and Treasurer of the city of Plainfield have more than fulfilled the agreement set forth in the resolution adopted at our last meeting by the payment with interest of all taxes in arrears up to the year 1881, and over 30 per cent. on the balance due for the year 1881, therefore as the matter is closed for the present or until June next, excepting the receipt of such moneys as may be paid from time to time, be it

Resolved, That the actions of the committee to whom the subject was referred are hereby approved, and they be discharged from its further consideration, and that a copy of this preamble and resolution, together with the report of the committee accompanying the same, be forwarded to the President of the Council of the city of Plainfield.

Freeholder Runkle moved the resolution be adopted.

Which was carried.

By Freeholder Melick:

Resolved, That the Committee on Milton avenue drawbridge, Rahway, be empowered to renew the contract with Peter Van Pelt, draw tender for said bridge, at the same compensation he now receives; said contract having expired March 1st, 1882.

On motion of Freeholder Clark adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the Legislative committee be authorized to oppose the passage of a bill introduced into the Legislature respecting coroners, which provides for a revision in fact of the old system of holding inquests in all cases:

On motion of Freeholder Hubbard, adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Doty, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isenmann, Melick, Mapes, Oliver, Runkle—10.

Negative—Freeholders Clark, Eller, Newbury, Thompson—4.

Absent—Freeholders Randolph, Sullivan, Smith—3.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That when this Board adjourns it be to meet Thursday, March 9th, 1882, at 10 a. m.

On motion adopted.

Freeholder Melick's resolution in reference to payment of Rahway school money, was taken up.

The county collector made a statement to the Board of the amount of taxes paid by the city of Rahway to the county in the year 1881 up to the present date to wit: Amount paid, $7,900; school order, $5,405 41; amount in excess of school order, $1,494.59.

The County Attorney being called upon stated the law governing school moneys.

On motion of Freeholder Mapes the resolution was laid upon the table with the understanding that the county collector is to pay the money to the city of Rahway.

PAYMENT OF BILLS.

The following bills audited and approved were read and ordered paid:

[illegible]

Freeholder Clark moved to adjourn.

Which was carried.

The Board adjourned to Thursday, March 9th, 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m.

JOHN L. CROWELL,
Clerk.

Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., Mch. 9th, 1882.

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union met at the Court House, on Thursday, March 9th, 1882, at 10 A. M.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Clark, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isenmann, Melick, Mapes, Newbury, Oliver, Smith, Sullivan, Thompson—15.

Absent—Freeholders Randolph, Runkle—2.

The minutes of the last meeting were read (omitting list of bills ordered paid.)

Freeholder Hubbard moved that the words "with the understanding that the County Collector is to pay the money to the city of Rahway" be stricken from the minutes.

Which was carried.

On motion the minutes as amended, were approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

An application from Thomas Gibb, Esq., for a license to build a dock upon his premises lying on the Staten Island Sound in Linden township, together with the proper affidavits, were read.

Freeholder Hubbard moved the application be received and placed on file.

Which was carried.

Freeholder Newbury moved that a committee of five be appointed to view the premises and report at the next meeting of the Board.

WANT OF DEMOCRATIC HARMONY.

A friend well posted in the politics of Union county, as well as the State and Nation generally, in a private letter to the editor, states the following truths, commencing by reference to the campaign of last Fall in this county. After some personal allusions he says:

"It was a shameful sacrifice. If the same stupid management is continued, the same results will follow—and, ought to follow. The defection, demoralization and lack of effective organization, in county and State, is largely attributable to the jealousies, bickerings and inaction of the leaders of the party, local as well as State. No tree can bring forth good fruit with an imperfect trunk. No county in the State can boast of a larger number among its active spirits in politics, of intelligent men, than the Democracy of Union. Scan the list in cities and townships and you will verify my assertion. Yet, like the more conspicuous State leaders, doubtless getting the inspiration from that source, they divide—fail to harmonize, and reap as the result of their foolishness, defeat and humiliation.

There is another pernicious cause of Democratic disaster, and it seems to grow with each succeeding year. I refer to the lavish and corrupt use of money. Whilst the State has, apparently, stringent laws to suppress the evil, they are practically a dead letter. Both parties tolerate its use, and not principle, but the longest purse, is generally the victor. The question in the selection of a candidate, now-a-days, is not—"Is he honest—is he capable—is he faithful?" but "What is the extent of his exchequer?" And, if a man possessing the Jeffersonian pre-requisites happens to have the misfortune to be selected, without a well-filled pocket and the disposition to empty it, his chances for success are like visions hoped for but never realized.

Until a new era is inaugurated—until the recognized party chiefs can be induced to harmonize among themselves and co-operate—until dignity, merit and ability are made the standard for official position—until party ceases to be a junk-shop for barter and trade, and corruption is frowned down and not winked at—those who desire to preserve manhood and self-respect, had better follow any calling than politics."—Rahway Democrat.

Gifts to our Hospital.

The following donations to the Muhlenberg Hospital were received last month, showing the kind thoughtfulness of many. It is to be hoped that others will follow the example set. An ornamental but useful present from some one would be an assortment of flowering plants and shrubs for the Hospital grounds, and such would be a lasting token of the giver's generosity. Who will be the first to beautify the exterior?

One rocking chair, prunes, sugar and one bottle of mixed pickles, from Miss Cock; four jars of crab-apple jelly, one jar of grape jelly, one box of Albert biscuits, one box of farina, one box of boned turkey, two boxes hominy, three cans of corn, one pound of tapioca, three cans of peas, four boxes of gelatine, one box of maizena, from Mrs. J. Hallock Drake; four cans of preserved fruit, from Mrs. Geo. W. Rockfellow; two warming cans, from Mrs. Raybert; one bracket, from Master Willie Raybert; Coffee, from Mrs. Thompson; one ton of coal, from Mr. Morgan Bird; Apple jelly and undergarments, from Mrs. Gilford Mayer; old muslin, from Mrs. James Wadsworth; file of the Churchman, Miss I. Brewster; one dressing coat, Mrs. F. Chamberlain.

PUNISHED FOR A RIGHTEOUS INTENTION.

The finding of the court-martial in the case of Sergeant Mason, who shot at Guiteau last September, was made public recently by an order issued by General Hancock, from the Headquarters of the Department of the East, at Governor's Island. The court-martial finds him guilty of the charge, and pronounces sentence as follows: "To be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States, with the loss of all pay and allowances now due or to become due to him, and then to be confined at hard labor in such penitentiary as the proper authorities may direct for eight years." The order issued states that the findings have been approved and that sentence will be duly executed. The penitentiary at Albany is designated as the place of Mason's confinement. He is now in Washington and will be held there until further orders.

LOOK OUT FOR THE LOCOMOTIVE.

A bill has passed the Iowa House requiring railroad companies to stop all trains and engines at railroad crossings.

An earthquake is reported at Panama, which destroyed four Costa Rican towns, and killed thousands of people.

Executions for amounts that aggregate $284,483 were put in the hands of the Sheriff of Essex county, N. J., on the 13th inst., against the property of C. Nugent & Co.

The rule to show cause why an injunction should not be issued in the case of Edward C. Knight against the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey and others, restraining the company, and Frederick A. Potts, George G. Haven, Sidney Dillon, Jay Gould, John S. Barnes, Benjamin Williamson, John Kean and Frederick T. Frelinghuysen from issuing any additional stock by virtue of Senate bill 111, which rule was returnable the 13th inst., in the District Court at Trenton, was postponed until March 28 by consent of counsel. Ex-Chancellor Williamson appeared for the defendants. The temporary injunction granted on Feb. 24 was continued.

POETRY.

THE TRINALI—A GYPSY SONG.

From the Century Magazine.

Now thou art my darling girl,
 And I love thee dearly;
Oh, beloved, and my fair,
 Lov'st thou me sincerely?

As my good old trusty horse
 Draws his load or bears it;
As a gallant cavalier
 Cocks his hat and wears it;

As a sheep devours the grass
 When the day is sunny;
As a thief who has the chance
 Takes away our money;

As strong ale we take in
 Makes the strongest gypsy;
As a fire within a tent
 Warms a shivering gypsy;

As a gypsy grandmother
 Tells a fortune neatly;
As the Gentile trusts in her
 And is done completely;

So you draw me there and here,
 Where you like to take me;
Or you sport me like a hat—
 What you will you make me.

So you steal and gnaw my heart,
 For to that I'm fated!
And by you, my gypsy Kate,
 I'm intoxicated.

And I own you are a witch,
 I am beaten hollow;
Where thou goest in this world
 I am bound to follow—

Follow thee where'er it be,
 Over land and water:
Trinali, my gypsy queen!
 Witch and witch's daughter!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE GIRL WITH THE RED RIBBONS.

You ask me for a story, and here it is. I have just returned from a visit to Madison, where I found an old friend, Thos. Golden, whom I had not seen for more than fifteen years. Tom and I had been classmates at the college, and were intimate friends. He was always of a highly jovial and social nature, that is, when he was in the society of his own sex; but bring him into the presence of a woman and he was immediately thrown into the most embarrassing diffidence. But he was a kind-hearted fellow, with an exterior that was equally prepossessing. Of course, I was as glad to meet him as he was to see me; especially so when he told me he was married and happy.

"And who do you think I married?" he asked.

I answered that I could not guess.

"Why, Anna Goldthorpe?"

"What!" said I, "that beautiful old flame of yours—the girl with the red ribbons?"

"The same," he said; "but had you not forgotten her?"

"Forgotten her? No, indeed, I never can forget with what deep devotion that girl loved you. I often envied you. Her charming blue eyes and the perfect symmetry and loveliness of her face are now as distinct in my memory as then. And you seemed so indifferent to her attractions that I almost thought you cold-hearted."

In justice to my friend, I ought to say that I did not really mean what I said. He was never cold-hearted—a man of more generous impulses never lived; but his diffidence arose from an unfamiliarity with the world. I was just about to recall my last remark when Tom interrupted me with—

"No, William, I was not cold-hearted, but I was simply a fool, and my folly caused me yeas of suffering. As an old friend, shall I tell you my history?"

"Yes, Tom," I answered, "it would interest me very much."

"Well," began my friend, "when I first met Anna Goldthorpe I thought her the handsomest woman I had ever seen. It was at Mrs. Deson's house I first saw her—in the parlor. For weeks I had seen her each day, and each time she appeared the same—so affable, so graceful and so like an angel of the household. To tell the truth, I was not merely in love but completely smitten—as much so as any boy at nineteen, who had never been in love, could possibly be. When she spoke it seemed to me the sweetest of music. The English language was never spoken so perfectly and purely as she spoke it."

"That is true," I interrupted; "her words flowed with such precision and elegance, and yet without the least affectation, that I often wondered how it was possible for one born abroad, as she was, to so thoroughly master her language and employ it in conversation with so much effect."

"I think it was all owing to her perfect modesty and angelic, graceful bearing. But she shone only in private parlors. In society of a few, her culture, her rare accomplishment, reflected a charm that was irresistable. Like myself she had avoided great gatherings. She was more accustomed to move in the fashionable parts of the country than I was. And as I had never known that there was a difference between a woman of the home circle and the woman of society, I judged Anna only from the domestic love's stand-point. But to proceed with my story.

"When that fatal ball at Y——'s Hall took place, after you and I had just graduated from the dancing seminary you remember, I was the escort of Miss Goldthrope. All the boys knew that I was bashful, as you know, and quite sensitive, and when I conducted Anna to the brilliantly lighted hall, I began to feel actually uncomfortable; as if guilty of something, I knew not what. As we proceeded through the long hall, I thought everybody was looking at me and my companion. I felt the hot blood rush to my face, a timid nervousness overcame me and my steps became irregular; all of which the splendid music that just then struck up had no tendency to remove.

"At last we were seated, and still it appeared to me as if the whole party were scrutinizing us, and I felt uneasy, not knowing where to look to avoid their glances. An occasional stolen glance at my partner revealed to me a blush on her cheek, which indicated at least a slight embarrassment on her part, and which I at once attributed to some awkward motion of mine, the direct result of my unconquerable bashfulness. If I could have sat there the entire evening without moving, it would have been a greater pleasure than to get up among all the people of the city and expose myself in the blundering dance. You see, while I was exceedingly bashful, I had no confidence in myself. In the dancing school I could beat all the boys, but to get up right there for the first time in my life at a grand soiree, with a partner of my own, was too momentous for an unsophisticated young man, as I was; but I did. A waltz was announced, and I led Anna upon the floor, and, before the music began, we promenaded as the other dancers did. This familiarized me with the floor and the gaiety of the surroundings. I noticed the georgeous trails, the elaborate coiffures, and, in fact, the general fashionable appearance of the promenaders before me, and I thought that Anna, who, when I called for her, looked to me beautifully attired, was now quite plain compared with the other ladies. Her dress seemed to set well upon her, her hair was done up neatly, but yet how much more elegant were the rest of the ladies. This augmented my diffidence, and to still more heighten my embarrassment during the dance which followed, and through which I worried the best I could, Harry Black stepped up to me, and whispered in my ear—

"Tom, take care of those red ribbons."

I looked at Anna and saw for the first time, that she had about her neck a red ribbon. I had not noticed it before, and if I had, it would have seemed all right; but Harry's remark, which I thought was tinctured with a little sarcasm, confused my better judgment, and the red ribbon became to me the most remarkable part of Anna's toilet. It did not look uncomely in my eyes; yet, if Harry had noticed it and found occasion to make sport of it, it must look out of place to others. I looked about the room and could not see another red ribbon among all the lady dancers. It must look awfully out of taste. What induced Anna to adorn herself so unfashionably? I thought. But I never stopped to think that it might have been the custom in the country from whence she came. At any rate, the discovery, in addition to my former embarrassment, made me still more miserable. I danced only twice after that, for the red ribbon of my partner constantly flaunted before me, and as she was a stranger in the city, no one else offered to dance with her. An early hour, therefore, saw me taking leave of her at the door-step of her residence.

"'Would I call again?' In my stupid embarrassment I answered a mechanical 'yes,' which I really did not mean. As much as I even then felt that I loved her, the unfortunate termination of our ball attendance, with those red ribbons, so completely abashed me that I dared not call. I was a foolish boy, unworthy her affections. I knew and felt that. The next day my comrades had much to say about the party and about the red ribbons, and that but added more fuel to my embarrassment, and, as this jesting continued from day to day, the boys perceiving that it annoyed me, I determined to leave Madison.

"The last Sunday I was there I attended the Episcopal church. Before the services began Anna came in also. A pang shot through me as if I were the greatest living culprit, and she was to be my executioner; and I feared that I was anything but a devout listener that evening. After service I was one of the first out of the church, and making my way leisurely homeward through the Capitol grounds. It was a beautiful summer moonlight evening, just cool and pleasant enough for a stroll through the park; and while I was mentally resolving that I would walk fast to escape meeting Anna, something seemed to retard my steps, and I think I did not walk so fast after all, for I had but just entered the gate when she was just behind me, and her sweet, musical voice greeting me with 'Good evening.'

"I was caught, willing or unwilling, as you may take it. She accepted my arm and we wandered long in the broad paths under the grand old native oak trees; and talked of much—first with no little hesitancy; but, finally, under the inspiration of the charming spot, we became more fluent and more agreeable, until our conversation reached its former warmth and familiarity. But the subject of the soiree was kept in abeyance, until we reached the house, where upon entering the parlor, what should I see upon her person but those identical red ribbons. If a ghost had appeared to me then I could not have been more startled. My conversation became incoherent. My old embarrassment had returned, and I soon felt the necessity of terminating an interview which must be painful to us both, but more especially to myself. I retired in the best way that I could without offending her, for I still felt that I loved her—only the ribbons!

"It was the last time that I saw her for ten years. If I thought of Anna once I thought of her every day. I went to California and traveled a good deal through the mountain regions of the Pacific slope; but go where I would Anna's sweet face was constantly before me. Contact with the world could not blot out her memory; on the contrary, it tended to show up my error of the past. I began to realize my utter want of judgment, or, rather, my moral cowardice. I had loved the girl with the utmost fervency before I had seen her abroad, before the dazzling lights of the ball-room, where milliner and the artist, in the latest styling, had created a sham brilliancy. She who shone like the brightest diamond in the home circle, became, in my foolish, inexperienced eyes, a paler light. I had estimated her by the scale of fashion instead of by her heart and her goodness. The best of women are not always adapted to the great assemblies of the fashionable world. Their very modesty excludes them from the more frivolous, gossiping world, which grasps at any pretext, like the red ribbon, to humiliate modesty and virtue. All this I began to understand and I was on the point of returning home to see Anna, acknowledge my unfeigned love, and seek her hand. But five years had passed, and I fell in with a person from Madison, at Placerville, who informed me that Miss Goldthorpe was married.

"This was a terrible blow to my newly founded hopes. But I could not reproach Anna. What evidence had I given her that I reciprocated her love?

"Five years more I worked and wandered in the mines of the Sierra Nevadas, and then returned to the States. Arriving at Prairie du Chien, and stepping into the car which was to take me to Madison, I met Frand Hood, who recognized me at once, and, being glad to see me, took a seat by my side. I had many questions to ask, and finally, too, questions about Anna.

"She has pined for you these ten years," said Frank.

"But isn't she married?" I quickly asked.

"No;" he answered, "her sister, who came to Madison after you left, was married about six years ago. Anna is still single, and, everybody believes, is waiting for you. But she hasn't seen a well day since you left."

"Where does she live now?" I again inquired.

"At Madison. You must go and see her. Don't think that her long sickness has robbed her of all her former beauty."

"This last he said to me with a significant look. As we thundered over the track towards Madison, and Frank kept talking to me about everything that would have been of interest to me on any other occasion, my thoughts were constantly upon Anna and I heard but little that he said. My resolution was at once formed: I would see Anna and if she still loved me, no cruel jibes of boys, or red ribbons, should wrest from me a prize which I had lost for so many years.

"I called at her house the very afternoon of my arrival. A girl admitted me, and, without announcing my name I asked to see Anna. In a short time the door opened and she entered. A look of recognition, and a startled cry escaped her lips.

"Well, I need not relate to you the balance. You can supply the rest with your imagination. Suffice it to say that Anna became my wife. She has regained her former health, and I am the happy possessor of the best, the handsomest, and the most devoted wife—the girl with the red ribbons."

CONVERSATIONS OVERHEARD.

AN AMUSING INCIDENT AT A SOCIAL GATHERING.

There was a social gathering at Rockland the other evening, and among the guests present was a musical genius from Boston. A number of local celebrities had favored the company with selections, both vocal and instrumental, and then the musical genius from Boston was with great difficulty prevailed upon to play a piece on the piano. He seated himself amid much applause and fell to pawing the ivory with a vigor that left no doubt of the sincerity of his emotions. The audience contemplated the scene for a brief moment and then fell into a pleasant and comfortable conversation, intermixed with light and joyous bursts of laughter, as is customary among good society when a person is performing on the piano. An idea flew into the mind of the musical genius as he proudly listened to the storm of laughter and conversation which his talent called forth. He suddenly stopped in the middle of a bar, or a rest, or some musical term, and the awful silence of the piano was filled by the following fragmentary ends of current remarks:

"Was awfully cold," said the thin woman in the blue dress and green ribbons.

"Of the best pork," said the bald-headed man with the mottled face.

"So we chipped another ten all round," said the young man in the phenomenally short coat.

"Puts on airs like all Boston musicians," said the sad-eyed party, who had been watching the musical genius's back with jealous eyes.

"Soaked fat dreadfully," said the little woman in the corkscrew curls.

"Always flirts in a company like this," said the maiden lady whose eyes were fastened on a handsome girl at the opposite side of the room.

"Think family albums are just heavenly," said the gushing young thing in pink who was talking to the weak-eyed young man in glasses.

"Don't like these mixed times," said the prim woman in gray hair and a jet black switch.

"I eat sours on my stomach," said the dyspeptic looking man in the long black coat.

"Cut them off with father's razor," said the girl in tight boots.

"New girl every night in the week," said the smart young man in the loud ring.

"Why, sort," said the dashing girl with the foreign crimps trailing vacantly down over her forehead.

"Sewed a patch on the seat of his old ones," said the fat woman in the baby-blue sack.

And then an italic silence fell athwart the gay assemblage, and the thermometer on the mantel dropped to twenty degrees below zero.—Rockland Gazette.

BRIBING THE PRESS.

HOW A MAN SOUGHT A PUFF IN A NEWSPAPER.

"I came in to give you the item of my arrival in town," said a hairy man yesterterday, who wandered into the Boomerang office, wearing an old fashioned Seymour coat, split down the back, and a pair of low necked pants draped about him, and daintily secured in front with a tenpenny nail.

"I passed through your town last May, and you noticed in your paper that I was a West-bound passenger on the overland train. I have called to tell you that I am on my way back."

"Had a pleasant trip?"

"Well, only partially so. I enjoyed the journey out to San Francisco very much. Went out in Section No. 11 of Pullman to take a position as cashier of a 'Frisco bank, but when I got there I found an old man holding the job who had given good satisfaction for nine years. I hadn't the heart to take the place from him, and the President seemed to feel the same about it."

"So you didn't get the job?"

"No, not very much. I couldn't get confirmed by the Senate. The President told me that perhaps I could get a position as sergeant at arms of a hen ranch up the gulch, but I embezzled four dozen of eggs to take me into the circus, and while I was looking at the black-and-tan boa constrictor, a sheriff or something of that kind, came along and called me down. I am now returning to my native town on my own recognizance, or on leg bail as the vulgar herd would call it."

"Are you going by special car?"

"Not exactly. I got a chance to walk part of the way and from here to Omaha I shall take the position of steer inspec*tor extraordinary on a stock train.* It is quite a change to go West in a Pullman and then work your passage home by punching cattle at the station. However, I wanted you to say simply that I passed through on my way East to-day and I will send the paper home. Make it as full of glittering pomp and oriental scollops as possible and I will pay you for it. You see I'll get pretty near home and I'll take a bath and fix up a little and come into town in pretty good shape, and now all I want is the aid and encouragement of the press. Do you seem to grasp my meaning?"

"Yes, sir; we tumble."

"All right. Just say that Mr. Wellington Kerwikes passed East yesterday in his special car Boise City, having been on a visit to the Pacific Coast with a view to purchasing the State of California as a country seat. That is a decomposed lie, of course; but you just say how much the strain on your conscience will be, and I'll go down in my overalls and make it all right."

ENGAGING FEMALE HELP.

"I seen a notice in the Derrick that you wanted to hire a girl?"

The speaker was a well-dressed and well powdered female who had called on an Oil City woman, in answer to an advertisement.

"Yes," replied the lady. "Do you want a situation?"

"Oh, I don't know; that depends. I've got more'n fifty good chances."

"Why don't you accept some of them?"

"Well, you see, I'm a high-toned girl and a little particular about whom I work for."

"Do you require recommendations from your employers?"

"No, I'm not so particular as that."

"What are your terms?"

"Well in the first place I've got two children."

"Yes."

"I don't allow my employers to refer to them, nor to inquire about their father."

"Of course not."

"And I want it understood that I am to have one day each week to visit them."

"Yes."

"And I must have three afternoons each week to do my own sewing."

"Certainly; anything else?"

"I never allow the lady of the house to come in the kitchen."

"No."

"And I always enter the house through the front door."

"Of course."

"And I demand the privilege of two half days each week for taking my music lesson."

"Yes."

"And I of course use the piano."

"Certainly; is that all?"

"No, it must be understood that when I have company I entertain them in the parlor, and when I am occupying that room no other person must enter."

"Of course not. And what salary do you demand?"

"My regular rate is five dollars per week."

"Well," replied the lady, looking at her meekly, "I'll speak to my husband, and if I can arrange with him to sit in the parlor and entertain you, perhaps you can make a bargain. But in the meantime you take a walk, and you needn't call again till I send for you. Go."

The poor laboring girl departed.—Oil City Derrick.

A NEWSPAPER DUEL ON PAPER.

The editor of an Italian newspaper, having given offence to one of his fellow citizens and political antagonists, lately received a letter from him, couched in these provocatory terms:

"Sir, I cannot send my seconds to such a scoundrel as yourself. Hereby, therefore, I smite you. That is the sole object of this letter. It conveys to you, on my behalf, a sound slap on either cheek. Be thankful for my moderation, which has spared you a postal consign*ment of hearty thwacks* with my favorite walking stick. I remain etc."

This epistolary assault appeared in the next morning's issue of his victim's journal, as well as the following truculent reprisal, also perpetrated in pen and ink:

"Inimitable adversary, in compliance with your request, I hasten to thank you for having sent me only a couple of cuffs, instead of a severe thrashing. You have struck me in writing. Similarly, I hereby discharge all the six barrels of my revolver at your head, and kill you by letter. As soon as you shall have perused this note, you may consider yourself a dead man. I salute your corpse with the highest consideration. Yours, etc."

In the pioneer days of Michigan a horse thief or murder stood as good a chance of being run up to a limb as one of those characters does now in the far West. One night, thirty years ago, a stranger, who had not only stolen a horse, but had shot one of his pursuers was overhauled near DeWitt, Clinton county, and taken to jail. In half an hour a mob was drummed up and proceeded to the jail to remove the prisoner and hang him. One of the foremost was a lawyer named Green, dead long since. In fact he led the mob and acted as spokesman. When the crowd reached the 'cooler' Green stepped forward alone to demand the prisoner of the jailer, and after a conference lasting five minutes he returned to the mob and said:

"Gentlemen, I at first believed the prisoner to be guilty, but now I have my doubts about it. In fact, I firmly believe in his innocence."

"How do you make that out?" yelled a dozen men.

"Why, gentlemen, I thought he was some poor coon without a dollar in his pocket; but I have learned that he has over $200 in cash, and it is my further duty to inform you that he has retained me as counsel. Gentlemen stand back! The first red-handed villain who raises a hand against my innocent client will pass the next ten years in State Prison."

PROTECTION

We hear of labor troubles throughout the land. From among the weavers and spinners of New England and the coal miners and iron workers of Pennsylvania and the West come harsh notes of discontent, because employers, munificently protected, seek to reduce the hard earned wages of those who toil early and late to produce wealth for others.

The prominent and plausible argument used by the advocates of an excessively high tariff is that it guarantees to home labor steady employment and liberal pay.

That sounds very pretty, but, we fear, like some other word promising things, it is more captivating than reliable.

Under our present war framed tariff, the duties levied on many manufactured articles and on iron and coal amount almost to prohibition.

Why then should such monopolized interests press wages down, down, to a rate barely sufficient to keep body and soul together?

The real creators of wealth in this country are they who develope by labor, the farmers, artisans, mechanics, miners and workingmen. They give life to capital, unlock hidden treasure, and they should be the especial objects of governmental care and encouragement.

We believe in protection, not in a craftily wrought scheme to enrich the favored few at the expense of the general public, but in honest protection, fashioned by justice to foster every legitimate enterprise, industry and business pursuit, to distribute equitably the burden of taxation, to regard the rights of labor as well as of capital, to blunt the knife of mercenary monopoly, and to afford each individual the sure opportunity of realizing and enjoying just pecuniary reward.

That is Democratic protection.

It is of the Constitution and for the people.

THE WHITE HOUSE.

Flaming reports have been published concerning a banquet recently given at the White House by President Arthur to ex-President Grant and a select party of friends.

It was a princely entertainment, vieing in splendor with that of a crowned potentate. The domicile of a Republican President on that occasion essayed to outshine in extravagant glory the palace of a King. The spacious apartments were laden with the perfume of flowers and festooned with rare exotic plants, artificial light shamed the brightness of the sun, professional French cooks exhausted their skill in preparing a feast worthy of Cæsar, and which required many courses of costly wine to wash it down.

Some may say—"What right have you to criticise a dinner at the White House? If the President saw proper to incur prodigal expense and display, whose business was it but his own?"

Halt a moment and reflect!

We maintain that it is not only our business, but the duty of every genuine American to both criticise and denounce the modern fashion of aping after regal and aristocratic foolery.

The White House is the property of the people, not of the President.

The President is an agent of the people, and being the foremost representative of the Republic, any deviation on his part from its plain and practical character reflects dishonor and deserves condemnation.

The President may give as many dinner parties as he sees fit, but decent respect for the people and their cherished institutions should counsel him to remember that, as Chief Magistrate, his acts are public, and that every one thereof ought to be rigidly consistent with a Government founded by wise and moderate forefathers for utility and to exemplify substantial simplicity.

The White House was built for dignified official and sensible living purposes, not as a place for carousal and ostentation. From it should proceed the influence of good example.

DUTY.

To be a law-making representative of the people involves great responsibility, and the vital importance of delegating such a trust to the very best citizen in each election district is, evidently, not valued as it should be.

What happy results would follow were nominations for Congressional and Legislative seats, by all political parties, conferred only upon men eminent for purity of life, honesty of purpose and practical ability? Then laws would be carefully enacted with a desire to promote the general good, and not for special plunder, and the honor and prosperity of country become and remain governing action.

It is time for the people, who are sovereign if they choose to be, to demand that nominations for offices shall be tendered to the deserving, and no longer sought after and clutched by the unworthy, that the corrupting rule of political bribery and intrigue shall cease, and the American Republic be, through every department, National and State, as its founders intended, not only freedom's protector, but a living example of popular integrity.

To secure that legitimate and beneficial attainment, the calling of citizens into the public service solely because they are known to be honest, capable and of good report, is incumbent duty.

It is satisfactory to learn that the City of Elizabeth has at last the prospect of arranging financial difficulties. Whatever offered settlement the public creditors are willing to accept we trust the future will see faithfully observed, and that freed from unbearable obligations, our sister Elizabeth will soon realize old-time peace and prosperity. We hope at an early date to make similar record about Rahway. Happily for Plainfield bonded indebtedness is to her an alien. May it forever so remain.

SENATE BILL 167.

The State House at Trenton was packed with visitors last Monday night, who expected that the now famous Senate bill, No. 167, or as it is otherwise known, the "Water Front Steal," would come before the House on its passage over the Governor's veto. The members, however, both for and against the bill, were evidently afraid of their strength, and the bill was not called up, for that or some other reason. On Tuesday the floor of the House was packed with citizens, the use of the chamber having been accorded them by the House, to hear arguments on the bill. At noon the chamber was crowded to overflowing. Garrett D. Van Reypen, the President of the Jersey City Board of Aldermen, presided. Ex-Assemblyman Allan McDermott, the Corporation Attorney of Jersey City, made the speech of the day, and, in fact, the most able, eloquent and powerful speech of the session against the bill. "If the Legislature of the State of New Jersey," he declared with impressive earnestness, "shall violate every sacred trust it has in its keeping by the passage of this act at the bidding of the corporations, then," he added with his face uplifted and hands pleadingly clasped aloft, "then may God damn this Legislature." It was not an oath. It was the effective climax of a speech of great power and eloquence. The throng that listened shook the walls with its applause. Ex-Assemblyman Herbert Potts, more enthusiastic than the others, leaped to his feet and shouted, "Yes, God d—n such a Legislature." Counselor James Fleming, N. T. Newbold and ex-Senator Rabe followed in brief addresses. An ineffectual attempt was made to bring up the bill for passage after the House met in the afternoon, and it was finally made the special order for Wednesday. On that day there was created a whirlwind of excitement by the announcement by Assemblyman Shinn, of Atlantic county, that he had been offered a bribe by the railroad lobby to vote for the bill. He backed his assertion by an affidavit, in which he stated he had been offered $1,000 for his vote, and had received $500 in advance, which was at the disposal of the House. The affidavit sets forth that other members received $500 for their vote. Mr. Shinn is a Democrat, and voted for the bill when it first passed the House, but intended voting against it this time. A special committee, consisting of Messrs. Cator, Fiedler, McAdoo, Barker, Gaston, Flynn and Parrot was appointed to investigate the charges. Another attempt was made to indefinitely postpone the bill, but failed.

A concurrent resolution was adopted by the House on Wednesday, to adjourn the Legislature, sine die, on Friday, March 31st. This resolution will probably be reconsidered and adjournment postponed until the Committee have investigated the Shinn bribery matter.

THE WATER FRONT BILL.

The following statement of the scope and effect of the celebrated Water Front bill, which passed both branches of the Legislature, was vetoed by Governor Ludlow, passed over his veto by the Senate, and created such a feeling throughout the State as to call forth the righteous condemnation of citizens against the Legislature, causing the House members to halt and re-consider their intention to follow the Senate's example, is made by the Corporation Attorney of Jersey City, and may prove of interest to our readers:

"If this bill goes into effect it vacates all dedication to public use of all lands on the shore front where streets have been laid out to the water, and says that the dedication heretofore made shall continue only at the option of the corporation or person that made such dedication. The effect would be to put it in the power of corporations claiming title to the foot of every street in Jersey City running down to the Hudson River to prevent the city from obtaining title.

In the year 1804 the Van Voorst estate, called "Paulus Hook," and comprising the site of the present commercial portion of Jersey City, was conveyed by the heirs of the Van Voorst estate to Nathan Dey, who in turn conveyed it to a corporation created by the State of New Jersey in 1804, entitled 'The Associates of the Jersey Company.' Prior to this last conveyance a map of the property had been made by Joseph H. Mangin, which showed the streets of Jersey City running down to the river front, east and west to the Hudson. The original map long since disappeared from the public records, but, fortunately, there were copies duly authenticated. In the year 1839 the Legislature of New Jersey authorized copies of the Mangin map to be made, because it was evidently the intent in making the map to show that the river front had been dedicated to the public. There are many deeds given by the "Associates" which refer to this map and which make their recognition of it complete. It is obvious that the value of the upland was enhanced by this recorded promise of access to the river. I have in my possession various deeds of building plots sold under those conditions. Some of these lots were on Sussex, Grand, York, and other streets that the "Associates" now claim.

It is claimed on behalf of the people of Jersey City that the foot of every street shown on Mangin's map belong to the city now, as much as it did when Mangin's map was made. This claim has been vigorously prosecuted by the city in various ways. The Associates still retain possession of the foot of York, Grand and Sussex streets, and have erected piers and wharves which they lease to foreign corporations. During the past forty years there have been numerous attempts to regain possession of the property on the part of the municipality. The city authorities have attempted to remove the obstructions and to throw open the piers to the public. The "Associates" have thus far resisted these attempts in the courts, which have decided that the title to land cannot be settled in that summary method, but must be settled by a suit against the party in possession for ejectment.

Accordingly, last year, I had the maps made of the property, and commenced a suit in ejectment against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, who are lessees under the "Associates." It is within the power of the corporations who now hold the water front of Jersey City to have had a prompt decision of a State court upon their claim. But they did not see fit to do that. They took advantage of the fact that they are a foreign corporation to have the case removed to the United States Court, where it will probably be reached at the September term. It was evident that this was done for delay. They were not so certain of their claim this as to be willing to test it in the courts. Their delay was evidently for the purpose of getting the Legislature to step in and save them by such a bill as this bill No. 167, which Governor Ludlow has vetoed.

They tried to get some members of the Senate or Assembly from this county to introduce the bill, but failed. Then they got Senator Applegate of Monmouth county, to introduce it, and it subsequently passed both Houses. It particularly says that, so far as the water front laws of this State are concerned, all dedication of lands to the public use by running streets to the water shall be wiped out. At present that proposition would only injuriously affect municipalities bordering on the Hudson. It is intended to prevent the efforts of both Jersey City and Hoboken to get public accommodation for their streets at the water front. But the bill would affect any city built on a water front in New Jersey, of which there are thirteen.

It is an attempt to anticipate by legislation a possible decision in favor of the people in the courts. It would vacate not only the dedication to public use of the water end of Jersey City and Hoboken streets, but of any other streets of any other city in the State. It says to the people of every county: 'You cannot go to the water front without permission of the corporation of the water front.' Not only that, but where access to the water front has been obtained, it gives the monopolist the right to close it up."

P. H. Gilhooly, Esq., present County Attorney of Union, has been appointed District Judge for Elizabeth to succeed Judge Alward, who has been an able official during his term of office. We congratulate Judge Gilhooly. He has the necessary requirements and ability to faithfully perform the functions of his new office.

Petitions have been sent to President Arthur asking him to instruct Minister Lowell to ask the English Government to grant Dr. Lamson a reprieve until evidence of his insanity, which has been prepared, can be forwarded.

The funeral of the poet Longfellow took place Sunday last from his late residence in Cambridge, Mass. It was private, but public memorial services took place in Appleton Chapel, at Harvard College.

A large majority of the newspapers in this State seem to agree that the teachers do not get paid well enough, and from what we can learn the teachers agree with the newspapers.

Of the members of the lower House of the present Congress there are but eight who were members prior to the late civil war, and all of them were Democrats.

The Brewers' Journal reports there were 746,211 barrels of beer made in this State during 1881, being an increase of 100,000 barrels over 1880.

No Whiskey!

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is guaranteed to be a non-intoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. RICE, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters:

> Cin., O., Nov. 16, 1881.
> Gents:—The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure, and vicious indulgence of our people, makes your preparation a necessity; and if applied, will save hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.

LENT is almost over.

NEXT Friday is Good Friday.

A WEEK from next Sunday is Easter Sunday.

GARDENING operations will shortly be in order.

AGRICULTURAL implements are being put in order.

THE "Plainfield Opera House" will be a paying financial investment.

THE customary vacation in our schools of one week during Lent, closes to-day.

A rose by another name would smell as sweet, except a sunflower, and that would smell æsthete.

THE Second Ward Republicans are called to meet at the Gas House, on Tuesday evening next, at eight o'clock.

WE are told that the directors of the Plainfield Public Library, are slowly but surely moving the project toward substantial completion.

A TEMPERANCE lecture, under the auspices of the Plainfield Union, will be delivered in the Crescent avenue church, on Tuesday evening next.

To anxious inquirers—No, the law does not prohibit fishing for trout in Green brook. Green brook trout commands a high price in the market at any time.

AT Laing's Hall this (Friday) afternoon at three o'clock, Mr. T. J. Gillies will sell by auction the furniture and other effects of the late Nelson W. Gardner.

As we go to press, Mr. Peter Balén a deacon of the First Baptist Church and one of our wealthiest citizens, lies dying at his residence on Central avenue.

WE are under obligations to Prof. Cook for a copy of the geological map of the northern portion of the State of New Jersey. Union county is included in the map.

On Saturday afternoon, at one o'clock, Mr. T. J. Gillies will sell by auction at Laing's Hall, a large line of household furniture and other articles, to close an estate.

THE interior of Mr. Martin L. Cooley's residence, is the latest that will owe the beauty of its decoration to the taste and efficient work of Messrs. G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co., of New York.

THE lighting of the streets of Plainfield by electricity, is being considered by a number of philanthropists who are very confident regarding its feasibility, benefit and profitableness.

THE property on Fourth street, near Plainfield avenue, formerly owned by the late Ann S. Barcley, was sold at auction, on Monday, by her executor, Mr. Robinson Pound, to Mr. Frank Burke.

THERE is advertised in this issue, the sale, by auction, on Monday, April 10th, of the well-known Zukschwert Farm. This chance offered the public of purchasing a first-class dairy, stock or home farm, is seldom equalled.

AT his New Brunswick Sale Stables, Mr. John W. Morris is offering one hundred head of horses and mules of all kinds and sizes for sale or exchange. The lot is unusually desirable, and many bargains may be secured.

THE produce business of Mr. David W. Rogers, at No. 37 West Front street, has been purchased by Messrs. Clifton & Coriell, who will in future conduct the business with the same enterprise as has characterized it in the past.

EX-Corporation Counsel, Judge George P. Suydam, is confined to the house by a severe attack of illness. A prodigious fish story which he related one day recently to the writer, was so terrible a strain on his constitution that his recovery is not speedily expected.

THE people of Somerset seem to like our friend Wm. S. Potter, judging from the handsome majority he received at the recent election as Assessor. "Billy" makes a good official, which may be partially accounted for from the fact of his being a sterling Democrat.

MESSRS. George Sheehan, whose place of residence is generally some lock-up, and John Gerrigan of Raritan, have been arrested in this city during the past week in intoxicated conditions. The former was sent to the County Jail for ten days, and the the latter was reprimanded and sent home.

MESSRS. E. P. Thorn and P. Day, with their counsel, Mr. Geo. P. Suydam, appeared before City Judge Runyon on Monday last and plead not guilty to a charge of selling liquor to a minor. The trial was set down for Monday next, at two o'clock p. m., in the Common Council Room.

MR. Floyd D. Fuller who has in the past been one of the city's most popular dairy merchants, has succeeded to the business of Mr. N. J. Randolph, at No. 13 Park avenue, and will continue to supply the public therefrom with all grades of butter, cheese, lard, eggs, &c.

AT the former store of Mr. Henry Gosiler, on the Somerset street bridge, there can now be found a new occupant, Mr. August Hartlau, who is ready and capable of doing all sorts of repair work to machinery &c., gun-smithing, key fitting, bell hanging, etc., in the best manner.

MR. George Angleman started Wednesday morning last, with a dozen or more teams, for New York city, where he will put them at work on grading in the upper part of the city, under orders of ex-Postmaster Wallace Vail, who has a contract for grading a certain territory there, which will consume some three years of time to complete.

MESSRS. Simpson & Co., are as usual the first in the field, and offer through our advertising columns to-day pure spring-water ice for family use and the wholesale trade. This firm are also prepared to do grading and contracting in all its branches and may be addressed at No. 100 West Front Street, or P. O. Box 841.

QUITE a number were present in the Y. M. C. A., Hall on Thursday evening of last week, to listen to Dr. J. B. Glenn's instructive lecture on "Some of the essentials of health." The next of the medical talks will be by Dr. John B. Probasco, on Tuesday evening, April 11th, the subject of which is to be announced.

MR. David Runyon, of No. 6 Peace street, whose sign writing and glass-lettering is so justly admired throughout the city, has been achieving great success in other branches of his profession. He has recently completed and sold some elaborately framed panel-pictures of crosses draped in flowers and graceful calla lilies, laid on in bright gold, mother-of-pearl and rich coloring. These productions are really gems of art, and worthy decoration for the walls of the handsomest parlors. Mr. Runyon is making for himself an enviable reputation as an artist on glass.

THE flitting season has already set in, and every day we see wagon load after wagon load of household goods passing along our streets seeking some new quarters. In a few days the season will be at its height, and a great deal of bustle and confusion will be the consequence all around us. It is an old adage that "three movings are as bad as a fire," and a good many people who are obliged to move about from year to year will realize its truth this spring. Looking glasses will be broken, crockery smashed, furniture damaged, bedding soiled, and every possible mishap and misfortune overtake the movers.

THE fishmonger's lamentation will soon be heard in our streets.

THE annual meeting of the State Board of Pharmacy will be held at Newark on Thursday, April 20.

IF Plainfield doesn't have a first class Opera House by next Winter, she should be ashamed of herself.

FIVE new members were admitted into the First Baptist church, by baptism, on Sunday morning last.

THE congregation of the Evona Mission Chapel was addressed by the Rev. Wm. Manghos, of this city, on Sunday afternoon last.

A RARE chance is offered to purchase a fine piece of property in Metuchin, N. J., April 5th next. Read the advertisement in another column.

THE many customers, of "Tommy" Timbo, the obliging news-boy, who have missed him from his usual haunts, will be glad to learn of his gradual recovery from an attack of malignant diptheria.

WE embrace this occasion to merely remark that "the first North river shad of the season" was caught a few days since. It weighed five and one-half lbs., and sold for one dollar a pound. We don't like to be personal, but can't help saying that it tasted good.

IN "cleaning house" this spring, nothing could more completely neutralize the agonies attending the same, or give more soul satisfaction in the midst of trouble, than by procuring one of Wilcox and White's "Improved Parlor Organs" of Mr. Paul Symons, 74 East Third street, this city. Cash or installments.

IT is said that butchers—as a class—are very illiterate, from the fact that in the prosecution of their business they make so many mis-stakes. This may be so, but it is an undeniable fact that they are shrewd enough to make both ends meat. N. B.—This item is not intended to go the "round" of our exchanges, as a copyright has been applied for.

"LAING'S HOTEL," under the management of Mr. Joseph B. Miller, continues to enjoy very enviable prosperity. It is well filled with guests, who are greatly pleased with the bountiful table and the comforts and conveniences of the house. Mr. Miller's large trade in fine liquors, ales and wines for family and medicinal use, evidences the purity of his goods.

CONSTABLE Amos Moffett paid an official visit to the inmates of the Great Eastern, cor. Richmond and Third Sts., on Tuesday last, giving all of them peremptory orders to "vamoose the ranch." This makes—according to a very close calculation—17 times that these people have been notified. In fact these notifications have become quite monotonous.

THE frequent intention, so often postponed, of instituting an examination of the books of the late Township Committee and ex-Collector, is at last being effected. The Committee empowered to carry out such purpose, has employed an expert and the work is going on. It will be a tedious and expensive undertaking, and only a thorough report that will finally set at rest all conjecture, will justify the cost.

THE celebrated "Hot Blast Oil Furnace" of which Mr. D. W. Littell of North avenue is the agent, has recently been improved with a number of desirable attachments—making it the most perfect thing of the kind at present in the market. Double ovens have been added, and dampers arranged by means of which the heat can be entirely turned wherever it is most needed. An examination will prove its efficiency.

THERE will be a grand Spring opening, to-morrow, at No. 42 West Front street, of a complete line of the new styles in millinery, mourning goods, round hats and novelties in evening bonnets. The proprietor is Mrs. L. Adams (formerly with Mlle. Doane of 949 Broadway N. Y.) and the stock displayed is entirely new, original and of the latest designs. The ladies of this city are respectfully urged to inspect the goods exhibited.

THE Rev. Geo. C. Mils has not changed his denominational jacket in—well, this makes seven days. George says that he does not say his prayers any more, but when he retires (i. e. goes to bed) he "communes with his best thoughts," thereby suggesting the old adage that "misery loves company." It is expected that his next move will be to join the Rev. "Bob" Ingersoll in his impossible task of destroying the Christian religion, while at the same time he fails to present to the benighted inhabitants of the earth any decent substitute.

THERE is a great demand for small houses this spring, in Plainfield, and property owners having such to let are taking advantage of the state of affairs by advancing the rent from 25 to 100 per cent—thus practically saying to applicants for their house, "You can't have it." There are property owners in Plainfield foolish enough to "bite off their own nose," by dispossessing a good paying tenant to make room for somebody else who promises to pay more. There seems to be a dogged persistency prevailing among a certain class of persons to "kill the goose that lays the golden egg."

MR. A. Lutkins, so long and favorably known to our public while a member of the firm of Bachman & Lutkins, has leased the premises at the corner of Park avenue and Second street and made extensive alterations therein. Having also withdrawn from the above partnership and joined with himself Mr. L. A. Hummer, the new firm of Lutkins & Hummer will at once open a first-class produce market, where butter, eggs, fruit, meat and all kinds of vegetables will be found in their season. The prices will be low and the goods delivered to any part of the city.

One Year Ago.

Councilman William Flanders died on the 27th inst. On the evening of the 31st., a citizens meeting was held in VanDeventer Hall to consult upon the steps to be taken to protect the City's moneys from County mandamuses.

Anthony-Moore.

On Thursday afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother, No. 34 Jackson avenue, the Rev. Dr. E.P. Ketcham united in marriage Miss Carrie C. Moore and Mr. Edward E. Anthony. The ceremony took place in the presence of a few chosen friends and acquaintances, after which the couple left for a two-week's trip to Philadelphia and Washington.

A Probable Reunion.

From private sources we learn that ex-Principal Barick has visited his family in Brooklyn, recently, and confessed the most unfeigned remorse over his actions of the past and expressed the sincerest repentance. It seems not only possible but probable that the family will be again united, and all who fully appreciate the unpleasant position of wife and children in the present state of affairs, will be glad of the prospective reunion.

A Victory for Green.

In the United States Circuit Court (March term) at Trenton the sixteen cases brought for the infringement of Green's Driven Well patent were decided Tuesday, on final hearing.

Judge Nixon stated that in five Circuits the validity of the patent had already been determined, and they would, in accordance with the usual custom, assume those decisions to be right. Only one matter remained for consideration—the alleged existence of a well in Warsaw, N. Y., prior to the patent. The Court held the proof of this anticipation to be insufficient, and directed a decree in favor of the complainants in all the cases.

Give us Notice.

Those of our subscribers who intend changing their place of residence on the coming first of April, will please give us notice in time so that the change may be made on our direction books. Give us the name of the post office where you now receive your paper as well as the one to which you wish it sent hereafter.

Easter.

Easter falls on April 9th this year, and it is said that it will not so occur again until 1944, then in 1950, 2023, 2034 and 2045. In 1886 it will fall on April 25th, the latest possible date. This will be the first time it has so occurred since the introduction of the new style in 1752. It will not occur on April 25th until after an interval of fifty-seven years, or in 1943, and then not again for one hundred and sixty-three years.

A Wet Year Expected.

If any truth may be attached to the following observation of a leading fisherman of Pennsylvania, and an old time weather prophet, we may look out for extremely wet weather throughout the present year: All years ending in 9, 0 or 1 are extremely dry; those ending in 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 are extremely wet; those ending in 7 and 8 are ordinarily well balanced; those ending in 6 have extremely cold winters; those ending in 2 have an early spring; those ending in 1 have a late spring; those ending in 3 and 4 are subject to great floods.

Wonders of New Jersey.

Paterson can boast of man of fifty, a farm hand, who eloped with the daughter of his employer, a girl of sixteen; Passaic of a boy who has been exuding pieces of glass from his arms and feet. The name of this latter prodigy is Lewis Ross. He swears seventy pieces of glass have cut their way out of his body. Two doctors of the town swear that he swears to a lie. Four years ago he cut his foot on a piece of glass, and since that time he asks the public to believe that the glass has been making a tour of discovery through his system.

N. J. S. S. A.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Twenty-Fourth Annual Report of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, containing an interesting and instructive account of the proceedings of the late convention held at Passaic, during Nov. 15th, 16th and 17th of last year. Besides the communicated reports of the Corresponding Secretaries of the several Counties, evidencing a past season of successful work and continued growth among the Sunday Schools, there are tabulated statistics showing the exact increase in scholarship and other directions, making the whole a valuable work of reference.

The officers elected for the present term from this city are the President of the Association, Rev. A. H. Lewis D. D.; President of the Union County Auxiliary Asso., James McGee Esq., with Mr. H. B. Newhall a member of the County Executive Committee, and Mr. C. W. McCutchen, Township Secretary.

An ex-Plainfielder Robbed.

Many of our readers remember with fond recollections Mr. Fred E. Busby, who was a resident of this city for many years and left it to grow up with the Western country. All will sympathize with that gentleman and his wife, when it is known that their present residence at No. 783 Curtis street, Denver, Colorado, was visited by the enterprising burglar on the 12th inst., and a quantity of clothing and valuables taken. Mr. Busby and wife left home for church about half-past 10 o'clock. When they returned about one, they found a rear window open and the house in a general state of confusion. Trunks and boxes were overturned, drawers were pulled from their places and their contents scattered about the floor. Upon examination Mr. Busby discovered that a pair of diamond earrings, breastpin, and a number of trinkets, keepsakes and jewelry of small value were taken. That which she regretted most to lose was her wedding ring. A small amount of money contained in her child's saving bank was also taken. This was supposed to be all the booty of the thief until the next morning, when Mr. Busby went to his wardrobe to dress in his business suit and discovered that he was minus all his extra clothing.

House-Cleaning.

This annual or semi-annual ordeal through which mankind—to say nothing of women-kind—are required to pass, is almost here. This ever-recurring agony is driven to various stages of perfection or confusion according to the diversified tastes of those who inflict the same upon us. Happy is the man who in the midst of domestic chaos can hie away to a boarding house, or go on a fishing or hunting expedition and come home to find everything "to rights." But there are others whose inevitable fate it is to stay at home and "face the music," and woe be unto him, if in the performance of his onerous duties, he follow not the instructions of his superior, in every particular. While the man's wife and the hired woman are industriously engaged in the laudable effort to throw the house out of doors, the dutiful and helping husband is—according to the preliminary task assigned him—engaged in "cleaning up the garden." Previous to this he borrows a wheel-barrow, a rake and a shovel from a neighbor. He then gathers up from all over the garden a most promiscuous assortment of discarded tin-ware, dilapidated boots and shoes, brick-bats, one-legged clothes pins, pail staves and hoops belonging thereto, broken crockery and a cart load or two of ashes. These, with probably one or two extras, "fills the bill"; but it is a most perplexing question what to do with the stuff. However, "where there is a will there is a way," and the man who "stands not upon the order of his going" will generally wheel his load over to the fence and pitch it into the next yard, or, where it is more convenient to do so, wheel it out into the street and dump it right in front of his next door neighbor, (as was the case up on East Third street one day this week.) He then, after purchasing a quart of lime and properly mixing it and borrowing a white-wash brush, (a borrowed one is just the kind for the purpose) proceeds to dash the fence and fruit trees with lime water. All the work thus far has been performed while the dutiful husband wore an air of solemnity, self-importance and an old pair of overalls, borrowed from a hod-carrier. By the time the meal hour arrives, the poor fellow is hungry enough to sit up and eat a good sized "quail on toast" or "clam fritters," or in fact almost anything, when perchance he is horrified by an invitation from his "better half" to devour a "hunk" of rye bread and gnaw a ham bone from the head of a flour barrel, left over (not the barrel) from the day before. The repast being concluded, he proceeds to inspect the "true inwardness" of the house, after complying with the imperative injunction to remove his "big clod-hoppers." He finds the carpets (that had been cleaned by Whitney & Co's process) looking bright, almost as good as new and turned upside down, the chairs set around differently, the tete-a-tete moved across the corner, the pictures changed; and in the bed rooms, of course, the beds are turned "the other end to," and everything changeable is changed. This is the order of things all through the house, and the poor man heaves a ten-horse power sigh of relief when he is kindly informed that "the house is cleaned," the ordeal is passed, and everything is lovely. "To be continued"—next Fall.

Woman's Mission.

The 9th Anniversary of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Mission Society, will be held to-day (Friday) in the First Baptist church. The afternoon meeting, at 2:30, will be addressed by Mrs. J. N. Cushing of Toungo, Burmah, and others. The evening meeting, at quarter before eight o'clock, will be addressed by S. M. Barchett M. D., from the Opium Hospital, Ningpo, China. The anniversary of the Young Ladies' Mission Band, will be held Saturday afternoon, at 2:30, and will be addressed by Mrs. Cushing. All are cordially invited.

MRS. B. J. SHREVE,
Rec Secretary.

Interior Decoration.

For the past three months the Messrs. Weaver Bros. of this city have had in hand the interior decoration of the Front street residence of William R. Clarkson, and at this date (although not entirely completed) the work undoubtedly surpasses in elegance, thoroughness, tasteful display and artistic finish anything of the kind in this vicinity. With high side-walls on which to hang the choicest of designs in embossed and gilt papers from the manufactory of Messrs. Warren, Fuller & Co., and ceilings so adequately ornamented with stucco as to allow of the completest displays of rich frescoing, the artists have been able to carry out elaborate treatments of color and accomplish most graceful effects.

"Just for Fun."

The many who some time since generously contributed towards purchasing an artificial leg for the Goodman lad (who had had his natural limb amputated to save his life) will regret to learn how little he cares for the property of others. Passing under the New street bridge during Sunday afternoon of last week, young Goodman noticed that the naptha lamp had "sprung a leak," and immediately saw a chance to start a conflagration. Lighting some cotton waste and putting it on the end of his crutch, the boy reached up and set the dripping oil afire. Sheets of flame instantly flashed up towards the bridge above, and had not a passer-by arrived in time to extinguish them, serious damage would have resulted. On Saturday Goodman was arrested and lodged in the City Jail upon the complaint of the agent of the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., who charged the boy with wilful destruction of the Company's property. The damage claimed of $2.75, was paid by Goodman, Sr., and the prisoner released.

An Elegant Wine-Room.

Mr. James Connely, formerly of Madison avenue, has just thrown open to the public at No. 22 Park avenue the handsomest wine room in the city of Plainfield and one of the most elegant in the State. Having recently purchased the entire property, Mr. Connely has fitted up the lower floor with much taste and richness in a manner reflecting great credit upon himself and calculated to attract the very best class of custom. At a cost of about $2,000, the room has been furnished with a magnificent bar in polished French walnut and massive plate-glass mirrors—built by Messrs. Smith & Greenough, of No.'s 52 & 54 West 13th street, New York—the walls hung with elaborate gilt paper and the wood-work tastefully tinted, by Mr. John Linbarger; the windows finished with rich cabinet work, ornamented with the monogram J. C. and graceful lettering in gold; burnished brass chandeliers swung from the ceiling, and other improvements in keeping with it all. Mr. Connely intends to carry a complete assortment of all the choicest brands of imported and domestic wines and liquors, and to uphold the character of his bar by dispensing only the best of everything.

Young Policemen.

In our issue of last week, after taking particular steps to assure the accuracy of our statements, we inserted the following:

Our public school teachers should have sense enough to understand that by sending scholars to the houses of absent pupils to "hunt them up," they are exposing their charges to such infectious diseases as scarlet-fever and diptheria. Yesterday a scholar was sent to the house of another to learn the reason of the latter's absence, and found it to be an attack of scarlet-fever. Parents send their children to school to exercise their minds in study, not their legs in running errands for the teachers.

The succeeding day we were visited by one of the School authorities and requested to publish the following reply. We willingly agreed to such demand, and both sides of the matter are herewith placed before the public, with such criticism upon the statement given below as we consider the interests of the scholars justify us in passing:

"It has been the practice for some time in the schools to send for absent pupils particularly in the primary classes. This is done for obvious reasons and under the direction of the Board of Education. Usually the pupil is sent for at recess and the one sent loses in no way. This was true in the case mentioned in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST of last week. In case of suspicion of infectious or contagious diseases, the pupil is not sent for. No one who knows of the care taken this year to avoid contagion or infection could ask for more careful and effectual measures than those employed. By a resolution of the Board, in all cases where pupils are affected by or exposed to contagious diseases, they are not re-admitted, unless a certificate of perfect health from the family physician, endorsed by the city physician, is first presented to the Principal."

It will be seen that the writer of the above not only makes no denial of our statements but acknowledges the truth of them all. "It has been the practice for some time . . . . to send for absent pupils . . . . for obvious reasons," is the first confession; what reasons there are, however, for making amateur policemen out of day scholars and taking them from their studies to send for absent pupils, seem to us neither clear nor visible.

"Usually" (mark the word) "the pupil is sent for at recess and the one sent loses in no way." Even if such was the universal practice, has a teacher any right or the ability to judge whether the pupil sent is strong enough to bear the fatigue of the journey imposed? There have been cases where the absent pupil sent for was living on the outskirts of the city, and one case has been mentioned to us of a scholar spending one hour and a half in this improper sort of police duty, during the school-hours of one particular day.

"In case of suspicion of infectious or contagious diseases, the pupil is not sent for." This may be so "in case of suspicion," but as the presence of such disease is not generally known until the pupil is sent for, the exposure comes first and the knowledge of the sickness last. Such is proven by the circumstance we mentioned last week. The scholar that was sent to learn the cause of the absence of the little Hurlburt lad, entered the house where the latter was lying ill with scarlet fever. Had any evil results followed the exposure, would the teacher who took upon herself the authority of making a policeman of the child of another, have been considered guiltless of causing such results? We think the public as well as its parents, would have agreed with us in placing the blame on the teacher's shoulders.

The latter part of the above communication we are not called upon to refer to except so far as to endorse most heartily the facts it mentions. No question is raised as to the precautions taken in the school rooms by the Board, in possible or past cases of contagion. But outside of the school building, we still claim, it is not right that scholars should be exposed to any probable risk, or even to be sent after healthy truants merely to boost the class attendance for the glorification of its respective teacher.

The Telephone.

The wires that are to connect this city with other places in its vicinity and New York, by telephonic communication, have already reached Lambert's Mills on the way from Rahway. In about a week the work of planting the poles in Plainfield will be commenced, and by the last of April it is expected that the service will be ready for use.

Personalia.

Mrs. Julian Scott of West Front street, sailed for Europe on Thursday.

Mr. Francis H. Gardner has been chosen Treasurer of the First Baptist Church.

Mr. Frank H. Morrison, of East Front Street, has rented the handsome property of Mr. P. C. Oderdonk on Seventh street.

Mr. Wm. H. Brower has recently purchased the Mulford property at No's. 6 and 8 Park avenue, of the Dime Savings Institution.

The late residence of Mrs. J. C. Vertue, at Crescent avenue and First Place, belonging to Mrs. C. A. Rutter, will be occupied by the latter lady and family during the coming Summer.

Mr. Gabriel Bachman, of West Second street, who was so severely bruised by an unfortunate fall down the cellar stairs of his residence on Thursday evening of last week, is rapidly recovering.

Mr. W. P. Webster, who during his past connection with the Y. M. C. A., as General Secretary has so greatly advanced its interests, leaves this city for Biddeford, Maine, where he will engage himself in the same commendable work.

Collector Brown has recently suffered the loss by death of an Uncle, Mr. Cornelius VanDyke, formerly of Somerville and well-known in Somerset County. The deceased was a veteran of the War of 1812, and 89 years of age at the time of his death.

"A tumbler of yellow roses" painted by Mrs. P. P. VanArsdale of North Plainfield, and now being displayed at the Annual Exhibition of the National Academy of Design, attracts great admiration and much favorable criticism from visitors and the press.

Mr. E. P. Thorn was the recipient of a handsome present from his friend, Van Rensselaer Schuyler, on Wednesday, in the shape of a hexagonal split bambo fishing rod, of elegant design and workmanship, weighing but nine ounces. Ed, who is the possessor of several other fine rods, is eagerly looking forward to "black bass time."

On Friday morning of last week Mr. John L. Laing, a life-long resident of this city and one of its oldest merchants, was stricken down by paralysis, and never thereafter speaking a word, died on Sunday. His funeral which took place on Wednesday, was attended by many of those who had long admired and respected the deceased for his innumerable good qualities.

Wright Robins, 56 years old, a prominent Democratic politician of Middlesex County, N. J., died at his home in Metuchen Wednesday. Mr. Robins was at one time Speaker of the New Jersey State Senate, and three years ago was defeated as State Senator. He has frequently held minor offices, and was liberally disposed and very popular. He was a brother of the late Amos Robins. He leaves a wife and several grown-up children.

Mr. Isaac P. Haulenbeck, engineer of Minnehaha steam fire engine, No. 1 of Newark, N. J., was "surprised" by the members and ex-members of his Company on Tuesday evening last, with a handsome gold badge of elegant design. Mr. Haulenbeck, or as he is more familiary known, "Uncle" Ike, has served faith*fully as a fireman of "Minny" for twenty*-one years. His many friends in this city will be pleased to learn of this just tribute to a true fireman.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

"Eh! Judge; why don't you qualify?"

The Township Committee met on Monday evening last and re-elected both Messrs. David R. Weaver as Chairman, and Francis H. Gardner as Treasurer.

The citizens over-the-brook are all living in the hope of Plainfield erecting an Opera House and their enjoyment of its amusements.

The entire community of North Plainfield should attend the citizen's meeting at the School House on Tuesday evening, May 2d, and vote for a new school building.

The Board of Trustees of School District No. 36, met on Tuesday evening, and organized for the coming year by the re-election of Mr. Wm. E. Jones as Chairman, and the election of Mr. Francis H. Gardner as District Clerk.

The Committee of Three on a new school building for North Plainfield, met with the School Trustees on Tuesday evening and discussed the project. The strong feeling throughout the Township in favor of the scheme and the interest taken by those in authority, are justly matters of congratulation.

During Saturday night of last week, two belligerent citizens, becoming engaged in a promiscuous fight, so disturbed the sweet slumbers of the inhabitants of Mud Lane, that Constable Weaver (we should say Judge Weaver—that is, if he qualifies) was sent for and the quarrelsome pair arrested. Upon being taken before Squire Austin at eleven o'clock p. m., the prisoners were admitted to bail.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Fishermen predict that the shad and herring catch in the Raritan this season will be something enormous.

The first shad taken this season from the Delaware, at the New Hope fishery, was caught one day last week by Mr. Martin Pidcock. It weighed four pounds and he received one dollar for it.

Non-residents are prohibited by law from shooting game or fishing in this State, without first complying with the By-laws of a Game and Fish Protective Society. The penalty for non-compliance with this law is $50 in each and every case.

Hundreds of woodcock are annually killed during their Spring flight by coming in contact with telegraph wires. Thus, oftentimes, parties who find the dead birds beneath the wires, are enabled to dine off of woodcock without fear of molestation by game protective officers.

It is alleged that a certain party residing back of Scotch Plains is in the habit of violating the game law by shooting woodcock out of season, and also song and insectivorous birds. Will not members of game protective societies be on the lookout for this violator of the law.

Messrs. Fred. Veickman, No. 2 Courtlandt street, N. Y., and J. F. A. Latour, corner of Chestnut and Seventh streets, Philadelphia, are authorized agents of "The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," to issue certificates of membership to non-residents who desire to shoot or fish in the State of New Jersey.

The Spring trotting meetings at Belmont and Suffolk Parks, Philadelphia, for 1882, are advertised as follows: Belmont Park, Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday, May 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th. Entries close April 24th, at 815 Chestnut street, Phila. Suffolk Park, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. Entries close April 24th, same place. The premiums to be awarded amount to $8,000.

THUNDER and lightning, with rain on Monday night last.

MR. Henry Strauss of West Second street, has recently purchased the Chapin property at No. 14 East Second street, and will remove thereto his soda and mineral water factory. Mr. Strauss is ready to furnish all kinds of waters in syphons, birch beer, porter, ale and other beverages for the trade or family use.

FIRE MATTERS.

President VanWinkle and Messrs. Gillies and Jones of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department, met in the parlors of Alert Hose house on Wednes*day evening with Treasurer Depew,* and audited the latter's account of receipts and disbursements for the past year. The report, which will be found elsewhere, was ordered published in the papers of the city and 500 copies printed for distribution.

The new Truck for Zephyr H. & L. Co., is almost ready for delivery, and may be expected in Plainfield about April 15th.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

The Rev. U. B. Guiscard, last Sunday morning, tendered his resignation as pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. The act was a surprise to the congregation, but at his request, it was accepted, by a small majority, to take effect hereafter. Mr. Guiscard has been Pastor of the church nearly three year and has been an earnest and faithful preacher and worker.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Mr. William Moffett having leased his late residence, has removed to our town and is living with his daughter on Elm street.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, is advertised to deliver the next lecture of the Congregational Course, on Tuesday evening, April 18th. Subject, "Moral use of Wealth, Luxury and Beauty."

John S. Irving has torn down the old lime house along side of the railroad track, at his lumber yard. It was one of the first buildings erected for the storage of coal, when the 'black diamonds' were first delivered at Westfield by the Central Railroad.

The ordinance of baptism, by immersion, was administered on last Sunday evening at the Baptist church. The candidates were Arthur Dobbler, Clarence Love, Anson Grant, Arthur Weeks, Phœbe Rodgers and Rowland Grant. The ceremonies were performed by Rev. Mr Bronson, pastor of the church.

The records of vital statistics of the Township of Westfield for the year ending April 1st, 1882, will compare favorably with any Township in the State, and are as follows: Total number of deaths during the year are fifty-four; resulting from the following causes: Accident one, apoplexy one, croup two, consumption eight, cancer two, convulsions two, congestive chills two, dysentery two, Diptheria four, erysipelas two, heart disease four, inflammation of bowels three, malarial fever two, old age one, peritonitis three, scarlet fever seven, scarletina two, typhoid fever two, pneumonia four. Total number of births, forty-eight and thirteen marriages.

Young Hall, aged 14 years, son of the late Wm. C. Hall, residing on Central avenue, met with quite a serious accident recently from the careless use of fire-arms. He had purchased a small revolver in New York with which to practice shooting at a mark. Upon arriving home in the evening, he was loading it when the cartridge exploded and the bullet entering through the chin and upper lip into the upper jaw, from the mouth, lodged near the nose. He immediately went to Gale's drug store and Dr. Aguirre, surgeon dentist, took charge of the case, finally succeeding in extracting the ball through an incision on the inside of the under lip, and thus making no cut or scar upon the outside of the face. Hall may be thankful for escaping so luckily, and the accident should be a lesson to our young men on the careless use of fire-arms.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND PEOPLE.

There are already booked for passage to this country in 1882, nearly a half million people, and it is estimated that 800,000 will emigrate from Europe and Canada to the West and Northwest. In consequence of this vast throng, the "Albert Lea Route," (CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R'Y) has been compelled to put upon its line an additional Fast Express Train, composed of most elegant day and night cars, leaving Chicago at 11 a. m., and reaching Minneapolis early the next morning in ample time to allow those going to Northern Minnesota, Dakota or Manitoba, to obtain their breakfast and make the connection for all points North or Northwest. This train is run especially to connect with the new express trains which the Northern Pacific, and St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railroads (the latter connecting with the Canadian Pacific at St. Vincent) have just put upon their lines. The regular evening express train from Chicago will be run as heretofore, and make the evening connections from Minneapolis for all points in the territory named above. It is important, and travelers should bear it in mind, that there are no carriage transfers by the "Albert Lea Route," passengers being landed in Union Depots at Minneapolis and St. Paul. This is the route to travel over for more connections, and is the pleasantest and most comfortable line to the Northwest. The trains of the "Albert Lea Route" leave Chicago from the depot of the Great Rock Island, the old favorite with travelers destined for Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and the Pacific Coast. HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects Indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

DR. ROGER'S VEGETABLE WORM SYRUP instantly destroys worms and removes the secretions which cause them.

It is said there will be more circuses on the road the coming Summer than for several years past.

A Perfect Corset Secured at Last!
It is a well-known fact that a large proportion of the ills of female life are directly attributed to the unyielding pressure of the Corset about the waist of the wearer. This evil has been entirely overcome in this corset, by the introduction of ELASTIC SECTIONS, composed of A SERIES OF FINE COILED WIRE SPRINGS.
These springs are warranted to retain their perfect elasticity until the corset is worn out; and, unlike rubber, will not heat the person or decay with age. This corset yields readily to every respiration, and is equally comfortable in every position assumed by the wearer. Will fit, perfectly, a greater variety of forms than any other.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 16, 1882.

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union met at the Court House, on Thursday, March 16, 1882, at 2 P. M.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Clark, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isemann, Melick, Newbury, Mapes, Runkle, Oliver, Thompson, Sullivan—15.

Absent—Freeholders Randolph and Smith—2.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, and on motion approved.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The committee to whom was referred the application of Thomas Gibb, Esq. for a license to build a dock on his premises, fronting on Staten Island Sound, in Linden township, reported as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—

Your committee would most respectfully report that they have inquired into and investigated the application of Thomas Gibb, and it appearing that due notice has been given of the making of the application, and the granting of the application will not be injurious to navigation; therefore, we would most respectfully report that the license to build a dock, wharf or pier, be granted to Thomas Gibb.

EDWARD S. E. NEWBURY,
W. R. MELICK,
OWEN SULLIVAN,
GEORGE W. DOTY,
Committee.

On motion the report was received and ordered placed on file.

The Committee on Milton avenue draw bridge presented the following report:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—

The committee on Milton avenue draw bridge, Rahway, beg leave to report that in accordance with a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Board, they have renewed the contract with Peter Van Pelt, as draw tender for said bridge, the compensation being $250, the same as last year.

W. R. MELICK,
WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
THOS. FORSYTH,
Committee.

March 16th, 1882.

On motion received and placed on file.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Committee on Dock Application:

Resolved, That when the survey and map in accordance with the application for a dock made March 2, 1882, by Thomas Gibb are filed with the Clerk of this Board, then license shall be granted for said dock, but not to extend beyond the lines as established by the Riparian Commissioners.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the County Physician be authorized to have printed in pamphlet form his report for the year 1881-2, at a cost not exceeding 8 dollars.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Runkle:

Resolved, That the salary of the Warden of the Jail for the ensuing term be fixed at fifteen hundred dollars per annum.

Freeholder Hubbard moved as an amendment that the salary of the Warden be fixed at one thousand dollars per annum.

Vote being taken upon the amendment it was declared lost by the following vote:

Affirmative—Freeholders Clark, Hubbard, Newbury, Thompson—4.

Negative—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Isemann, Melick, Mapes, Oliver, Runkle, Sullivan—11.

The resolution as offered by Freeholder Runkle was adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Isemann, Melick, Mapes, Oliver, Runkle, Sullivan—11.

Negative—Freeholders Clark, Hubbard, Newbury, Thompson—4.

By Freeholder Runkle:

Resolved, That the salary of the Matron of the Jail for the ensuing term be fixed at three hundred dollars per annum.

On motion adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Isemann, Melick, Mapes, Newbury, Oliver, Runkle, Sullivan, Thompson—13.

Negative—Freeholders Clark, Hubbard—2.

Freeholder Runkle moved that the Board proceed to elect a Warden and Matron of the Jail for the ensuing year. Carried.

Freeholder Runkle nominated as Warden, Sylvester Cahill, Jr., of Cranford; there being no other nominations the question was put upon the election of Mr. Cahill and he was declared elected Warden by a unanimous vote.

Freeholder Runkle nominated as Matron of the Jail for the ensuing term, Mrs. Elizabeth Cahill, wife of Sylvester Cahill, Jr.; there being no other nominations, and vote being taken, Mrs. Cahill was declared elected by a unanimous vote.

Freeholder Doty moved that the consideration of the bonds of the Warden be left to the Jail Committee.

Which was carried.

PAYMENT OF BILLS.

The following bills audited and approved were read and ordered paid:

M. W. Mulford, bridge, Elizabeth, $10.44; E. P. Edwards, do, 13; M. W. Mulford, do, Linden, 57.42; J. W. Hughes, court expenses, 9.48; Thos. W. SPOOPENDYKE AND THE OYSTER.

'My dear,' queried Mr. Spoopendyke, 'did you put those oysters on the cellar floor with the round shells down, as I told you to?'

'I did most of 'em,' replied Mrs. S. 'Some of 'em wouldn't stay that way. They turned right over.'

'Must have been extraordinary intelligent oysters,' muttered Mr. Spoopendyke, eyeing her with suspicion. 'Didn't any of 'em stand up and ask for a morning paper?'

'You know what I mean,' fluttered Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'They tipped over sideways, so I laid them on the flat shell.'

'That's right,' grunted Mr. Spoopendyke. 'You want to give an oyster his own way, or you'll hurt his feelings. Suppose you bring up some of those gifted oysters and an oyster knife, and we'll eat 'em.'

Mrs. Spoopendyke hurried away and pattered back with the feast duly set out on a tea waiter which she placed before Mr. Spoopendyke with a flourish.

'Now,' said she, drawing up her sewing chair, and resting her elbows on her knees and her chin on her hands, 'When you get all you want, you may open me some.'

Mr. Spoopendyke whirled the knife around his head and brought it down with a sharp crack. Then he slipped away at the end for a moment, and jabbed at what he supposed was the opening. The knife slipped, and plowed the bark off his thumb.

'Won't come open, won't ye?' he snorted, fetching it another lick, and jabbing away again. 'Haven't completed your census of who's out here working at ye, have ye?' and he brought it another whack. 'P'raps ye think I haven't fully made up my mind to inquire within, don't ye?' and he rammed the point of the knife at it, knocking the skin off his knuckle.

'That isn't the way to open an oyster,' suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'Look here,' roared Mr. Spoopendyke, turning fiercely on his wife. 'Have you got any private understanding with this oyster? Has the oyster confided in you the particular way in which he wants to be opened?'

'No-o!' stammered Mrs. Spoopendyke, 'only I thought—'

'This is no time for thought!' cried Mr. Spoopendyke, banging away at the edge of the shell. 'This is the moment for battle, and if I've happened to catch this oyster during office hours, he's going to enter into relations with the undersigned. Come out, will ye?' he yelled, as the knife flew up his sleeve. 'Maybe ye don't recognize the voice of Spoopendyke! Come out, ye dod gasted coward, before ye make an enemy of me for life!' and he belted away at the shell with the handle of the knife, and spattered mud like a dredging machine.

'Let me get you a hammer to crack him with,' recommended Mrs. Spoopendyke, hovering over her husband in great perturbation.

'Don't want any hammer!' howled Mr. Spoopendyke, slamming around with his knife. 'S'pose I'm going to use brute force on a dod gasted fish that I could swallow alive if I could only get him out of his house? Open your measly premises,' raved Mr. S., stabbing at the oyster vindictively, and slicing his shirt sleeve clear to the elbow. 'Come forth and enjoy the society of Spoopendyke,' and the worthy gentleman foamed at the mouth as he sank back in his chair and contemplated his stubborn foe with glaring eyes.

'I'll tell you what to do!' exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke, radiant with a profound idea. 'Crack him in the door.'

'That's the scheme,' grinned Spoopendyke, with horrible contortions of visage. 'Fetch me the door. Set that door right before me on a plate. This oyster is going to stay here. If you think this oyster is going to enjoy any change of climate until he strikes the tropics of Spoopendyke, you don't know the domestic habits of shell fish. Loose your hold!' squealed Mr. Spoopendyke, returning to the charge, and fetching the bivalve a prodigious whack. 'Come into the outer world where all is gay and beautiful. Come out and let me introduce you to my wife,' and Spoopendyke laid the oyster on the arm of his chair, and slugged him remorselessly.

'Wait!' squealed Mrs. Spoopendyke, 'here's one with his mouth open,' and she pointed cautiously at a gaping oyster who had evidently taken down the shutters to see what the row was about.

'Don't care a dod gasted nickel with a hole in it,' protested Spoopendyke, thoroughly impatient. 'Here's one that is going to open his mouth, or the resurrection will find him still wrestling with the ostensible head of this family. Ow!' and Spoopendyke, having rammed the knife into the palm of his hand, slammed the oyster against the chimney-piece, where it was shattered, and danced around the room wriggling with wrath and agony.

'Never mind the oysters, dear,' cried Mrs. Spoopendyke, following him and trying to disengage his wounded hand from his armpit.

'Who's minding 'em?' roared Spoopendyke, standing on one leg and bending up double. 'I tell ye that when I start to inflict discipline on a narrow-headed oyster that won't either accept an invitation or send regrets, he's going to mind me! Where is the oyster? Show me the oyster!'

'Upon my word, you have opened him,' giggled Mrs. Spoopendyke, placing the smashed bivalve between the tip of her thumb and fore-finger.

'Won't have him,' sniffed Spoopendyke, eyeing the broken shell and firing his defeated enemy into a grate. 'If I can't go into the front door of an oyster, I'm not going down the scuttle! That all comes of laying 'em on the flat shell,' he continued, suddenly recollecting that his wife was to blame for the whole business. 'Now you take the rest of 'em down and lay 'em as I told you to.'

'Yes, dear.'

'And another time you want oysters, you sit around in the cellar, and when they open their mouths, you put sticks in. You hear?'

'Yes dear.'

And Mrs. Spoopendyke took the bivalves back, resolving that the next time they were in demand they would crawl out of their shells and walk upstairs arm in arm, before she would have any hand in the mutilation of her poor dear suffering husband by bringing them up herself.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Three people can keep a secret when two of them are dead.

Ask a woman how old she is if you want to see her show her rage.

If you cannot inspire a woman with love of you, fill her above the brim with love of herself—all that runs over will be yours.

It is said that at learning to swim women are quicker than men. This is probably because the custom of wearing trails has learned them to kick out gracefully.

Stories first heard at a mother's knee are never forgotten. It is the same with some other things received at a mother's knee, which will readily occur to our readers.

There are undoubtedly a great many things which are better than riches; but riches are good enough for those of us who feel humble and wish to leave something for other people.

Whenever you see a woman talking straight at a man and beginning to nod her head and keep time to it with her upraised index finger, it is about time for somebody to climb a tree.

A scientist says: "Every person carries enough phosphorous in his body to make 4,000 ordinary matches." All that girls who desire to become first-class matches have to do is to chew wood.

A musical composer is engaged upon a work he calls "A Heavenly March." For a long time mankind has been waiting for that kind of a March. The third month has always been the reverse of "heavenly."

The natural supposition that a good deal of the Boston brown bread sold outside of Boston is made of powdered shoe pegs, turns out to be a mistake. It is made of something else; but we don't know what.

"How do I manage to rid myself of bores?" said a woman of the world. "Nothing is easier. When I want to send a man away, I talk to him about myself. When I want him to stay indefinitely, I talk about himself."

Tea, which costs in this country anywhere from fifty cents to one dollar a pound, can be bought in China for from three cents to ten cents a pound. This may seem like a pretty big profit, but just think how expensive the chromos are.

A Frenchman having heard the phrase, "I've got other fish to fry," very readily learned its application. One evening, after escorting a young lady home, and being invited to walk in, he thought of the above expression, and excused himself by saying, "I tank you—I must go cook some fish."

A man who was excessively addicted to tobacco was asked by his wife at the opera "what part of the performance he most resembled." Upon confessing his ignorance, she replied: "The over-chewer." And he felt relieved, because he was afraid she had caught him winking at a ballet girl.

The latest joke about King Kalakaua, of the Sandwich Islands, is that he cannot help being a good man. The reason assigned is that his ancestors ate so much missionary in their time, that it worked into their system and was transmitted to their descendants. Missionaries who are eaten are, after all, not wasted, it would appear.

'Brother Smith, what does this mean?'

'What does what mean?'

'Bringing a nigger to this church.'

'But he is intelligent and well educated.'

'Who cares for that? He is a nigger.'

'But he is a friend of mine.'

'What of that? Must you, therefore, insult the whole congregation?'

'But he is a christian and belongs to the same denomination.'

'What do I care for that? Let him go and worship with his fellow niggers.'

'But he is worth $5,000,000,' said the merchant.

'Worth what?'

'Five million dollars.'

'Worth $5,000,000! Brother Smith, introduce me.'

DON'T DO IT.

HOW TO KEEP WELL AND LIVE LONG BY NOT DOING THINGS.

Don't sleep in a draught.

Don't go to bed with cold feet.

Don't stand over hot-air registers.

Don't eat what you do not need just to save it.

Don't try to get cool quickly after exercising.

Don't sleep with insecure false teeth in your mouth.

Don't start the day's work without a good breakfast.

Don't sleep in a room without ventilation of some kind.

Don't stuff a cold lest you be next obliged to starve a fever.

Don't try to get along without flannel under-clothing in the winter.

Don't use your voice for loud speaking or singing when hoarse.

Don't try to get along with less than eight or nine hours' sleep.

Don't sleep in the same under-garment you wear during the day.

Don't toast your feet by the fire but try sunlight friction instead.

Don't neglect to have at least one movement of the bowels each day.

Don't try to keep up on alcohol and coffee when you ought to go to bed.

Don't drink ice water by the glass; take it in sips a swallow at a time.

Don't strain your eyes by reading or working with insufficient or flickering light.

Don't use the eyes for reading or fine work in the twilight of evening or early morn.

Don't try to lengthen your days by cutting short your night's rest; it is poor economy.

Don't wear close, heavy fur or rubber caps or hats if your hair is thin or falls out easily.

Don't eat anything between meals excepting fruits or a glass of hot milk if you feel faint.

Don't take some other person's medicine because you are troubled somewhat as they were.

A $20.00 Biblical Reward.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer ten valuable rewards in their Monthly for April, among which is the following:

We will give $20.00 in gold to the person telling us which is the middle verse in the New Testament Scriptures by April 10th, 1882. Should two or more correct answers be received the reward will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner April 15th, 1882. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the May Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published. This may be worth $20.00 to you; cut it out. Address—RUTLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Easton, Penna.

POETRY.

THE BABY'S EYES.

We buried the little baby
One sorrowful autumn day,
While the rain was falling softly
From skies all drear and gray;
And when night came with its darkness,
The fallen leaves had spread
A beautiful coverlet over
The little one's lowly bed.

Willie, three years among us,
Missed much the little face,
He had seen the earth heaped over
In the grassy churchyard place.
Often and often he asked us,
If baby was yet asleep?
If she woke would we hear her calling?
And why was the grave so deep?

Spring came, and we planted pansies
Over the little bed,
Blue as the skies of April,
When the last late snow had fled.
And we wondered if she was sleeping
Under the grassy sod,
Or had she woke from the slumber
That we call death with God?

We took our little Willie
One day to the churchyard place,
And showed him the beautiful flowers
Above the baby's face.
"Oh, mamma!" cried out in rapture
This little poet of ours,
"God took the eyes of the baby
And made them into flow'rs!"

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

CHRISTIE'S TELEGRAPHING.

I am very glad that telephones have been invented; and yet I am glad they were not sooner invented. I should like to tell you the reason. That will take some time for it is quite a story.

We live in the country, at Oakbrook, and my father is the treasurer and superintendent of the Oakbrook mills. Our house—a very pleasant country house it is—is situated on a beautifully wooded slope close to the river, and is a quarter of a mile from the mills. That is why a telegraphic wire was placed between the two.

I promised father when it was put up that I would learn to send messages over it. There was no one else in the family who could have learned. Both my brothers were at boarding-school and mother would as soon have thought of studying the Chinese language as telegraphy.

Father declared that I would never learn. Girls had but little patience for such things, he said. Nevertheless the wire was put up and connected with a battery in the library. And in just four months' time I had mastered the alphabet and technicalities of the instrument so that I could use it readily and was able to read the messages by the ear.

It was Harry Randall who taught me. He was one of the clerks at the office; and he learned to use the instrument, because it was necessary to have somebody to send messages by the wire that ran from the mills to the adjacent city of Palmer.

Having explained so much, I think I have said all that is necessary to enable you to understand what occurred on a certain February night, about which I am going to tell you.

We were through supper, and were sitting together—father, mother and I—around the table in the library, when Joseph, our coachman and man-of-all-work about the place, brought in the mail as usual.

Father eagerly took a letter that he seemed to have been expecting, from the other letters. I noticed a disturbed expression upon his face as he read it; and I was more anxious than surprised when he arose and went to the hall-door, and called to the girl who was in the dining-room.

"Mary," said he, "tell Joseph to harness Prince at once. I must get to the Junction in time for the 8 o'clock express. He'll have to finish his supper when he gets back."

Then he turned and said that the letter contained intelligence that made it necessary he should go on to New York that night. Of course, as the wife and daughter of a business man, we knew what that meant, and that there was not a word of remonstrance to be said. So mother went to make for him what preparation was needful; and I should have followed her a moment later, but that father called me back.

"Christie," said he, rather soberly, "I am going to tell you something that no one knows anything about save Harry Randall. I have quite a large sum of money—over two thousand dollars—in my coat pocket." He touched his breast with his finger. "I never keep large amounts of money by me, but in this case it was unavoidable, and I thought I should feel less anxious to have it with me than to allow it to remain at the office in the safe.

"I cannot, of course, take it to New York. So I want you to take charge of it and keep it until to-morrow morning, and then carry it to Randall for him to deposit in the bank. Don't say anything about it to your mother. She is so timid and nervous that she would not sleep a wink all night if she knew so large a sum was in the house. Do you understand?"

With no slight feeling of responsibility I took the leathern pocket-book which he handed me and placed it in the pocket of my dress.

Father went on: "Perhaps you'd better put it under your pillow. Of course, it is fire that I am most anxious about. There's no danger to the money in any other way. Not a soul knows about it."

Then he went into the hall, and came very unexpectedly upon Joseph, for I heard him speak somewhat sharply to him because he had not gone to the stable, and declaring that his business was of more consequence than his supper. I heard Joseph mutter something about taking time to finish his meal.

Ten minutes later as father was going down the steps to get into the carriage, he turned back to me, and holding his umbrella so that mother should not hear, he said:

"I've been thinking, Christie, that young Randall had better come and sleep at the house. I shall feel easier about you. You can telegraph him at the office. He is to be there at work to-night until very late."

Then he stepped into the buggy, and they drove away down the path into the darkness and the rain.

I did not send a message to Harry, however. Indeed, I laughed a little as I thought of father's anxiety. He was almost as timid as mother, after all.

I was of a rather easy, careless disposition, and really had not a partical of fear of having the money in my keeping. And as we two sat there in the library for a long while after this, mother dozing in the big chair and I intent upon some fancy-work which I was anxious to finish in time for a friend's birthday, I forgot altogether the package of money that lay at the bottom of my dress pocket.

Joseph did not get back until nearly 10 o'clock, although it was only three miles to the Junction, and he should have been long home before that hour. We thought little of that, however. He had been with us for several years, and I had great confidence in his faithfulness. It was not until afterward that mother and I learned that he had recently been led into bad company, and that father had several times had angry words with him about his habits.

Joseph slept in the house; and for that reason it had seemed to me quite unnecessary that Harry Randall should be there also.

When the clock struck 10, mother arose declaring it was time to go to bed. She went into all the lower rooms to see that the windows and doors were fastened, and then came back to the library for me.

But I did not feel sleepy, and wanted very much to get on with my work; so I begged her to go up stairs without me, promising to come up in the course of an hour.

The clock struck 11, almost before I knew the time had passed. I laid down my work and counted the strokes without looking at the clock itself.

I was sitting at the center-table, near the lamp. At my left, a little way off against the wall, was father's desk, with books and papers scattered upon it, and the battery at one end.

Opposite me were two long windows that opened upon the side piazza. Over these were thick curtains closely drawn, which did not shut out the sound of the pelting storm outside. Directly behind me was the hall door standing, as usual, wide open.

Just then I heard, or fancied I heard, a low sigh or breath out in the hall. I turned my head instantly, but did not see any person; and listening intently, heard no further sound. I felt a little uneasy and smiled to myself at my nervousness; then took up my work again. I had not quite finished what I had set myself to do.

I had not taken three stitches when I laid the work down again. There was no use denying it or laughing at myself. For some reason there had suddenly come over me a strong feeling of nervousness and dread. It seemed as if I had realized as I had not before that evening, the fact that I was sitting all alone down stairs in the house, at 11 o'clock at night, with a large sum of money in my pocket.

I glanced at the desk. Possibly Harry was still at work at the office. If he was, a single sentence over the wire would call him.

I was just getting up to go to the desk to signal and see if he was at the mill, when something occurred that seemed to turn me cold and motionless as stone in an instant.

Behind me, so close that I knew it must have come from the threshold of the hall door, a low, hoarse voice, that I knew, without seeing the speaker, must be that of a desperate and wicked man, broke the stillness and bade me "Good-evening!"

For a moment, as I say, I felt as though I had been turned to stone. Then the voice, speaking again, seemed at least to restore the life in me, and to set my heart to beating violently.

The language that the man used was not even as good English as, in attempting to reproduce it, I find myself writing.

"Don't be frightened, miss, I beg of ye not ter be frightened. All ye're got yer do is ter keep still, an' not a hair of yer pretty head shall be harmed."

Then I turned my head, half-wheeling my chair at the same time, and saw standing in the doorway, a large brutal-looking man, altogether as ugly and ill-conditioned and fearful looking a person as I had ever seen.

Naturally enough I opened my lips to utter a cry, but he stopped me by a single threatening motion of a club he carried in his hand.

"St!" he fiercely hissed. "If you raise a single scream I'll strike ye as senseless as yer mother is upstairs."

These last words changed for the moment the nature of my fear and gave me strength to speak.

"What have you done to my mother?" I demanded, excitedly. "Do you mean—have you killed her?"

He uttered sort of a low laugh.

"No, my dear; she was wakin' up, so we had ter use the chloroform. An' you must keep still or you'll be served the same way. Yer see, it's jest here—"

He drew a step nearer and seemed disposed to explain matters.

"What we want is some money that yer father brought down from Palmer yisterday. Maybe yer don't know about it; but we do, and we know he left it in ther house when he went off to-night. My friend is up stairs looking for it this minute. All we want is the money. We don't mean harm to nobody. Ye shan't be touched if ye behave yerself an' keep quiet."

Somewhat reassured by this, and having had time while he was speaking to collect myself, I was now able to assume an appearance at least of calmness.

I took up my embroidery and went on working—or pretending to work—at the pattern I was embroidering. I think the action helped me too; for I presently found myself really quite calm, and with a coolness and resolution that I can hardly believe in now, as I recall it, turning over in my mind what I ought to do.

What would these men do when they found, as they very soon would find, that the money was not upstairs? They would be disappointed and desperate—capable perhaps of deeds that they had not at first intended.

Perhaps I had better give up the money at once and so get rid of them. And yet, father had confided it to my care; and it did not belong to him but to the company. I ought not to let these men have it if I could help it. Oh, why could I not give an alarm somehow? What if I should open my mouth and cry out at any risk? Could I make Joseph hear, away out in the wing of the house as he was? Alas, I knew that I could not, even had not this man been sitting there by the door—he had taken a chair now—eyeing me fiercely, as though he read my very thoughts. Ah, if I had only done as father wished and telegraphed for Harry Randall to come up! And then with this last thought another thought came to me. Why could I not summon Harry even now, if perchance he was still at the office?

I arose from my chair, mechanically grasping my work in my hand. My guard got up also, evidently suspicious of my slightest movement.

"I'll have to ask yer to keep quiet, miss," said he, with a harsh, determined voice.

I turned upon him indignantly. "I suppose I may change my seat if I like," said I.

And without waiting for his permission I walked deliberately over to the desk and sat down in the revolving chair that stood before it. At the same time I threw my work down on the desk in such a way as to cover completely the battery, which instrument my company had probably not noticed at all. Perhaps he would not have known what it was if he had.

I sat there a moment, listlessly twisting the chair back and forth, and trying to make up my mind what was best to do.

Just then there was a slight noise on the hall stairs and the man becoming uneasy, stood up and looked at the library door, as if he was about to go toward it. Then he turned again to me, and with a threatening gesture, said:

"You just set there, while I step inter the hall a bit. And if ye stir or make a noise it will be the worse for ye. Do ye mind that!"

He went softly into the hall.

Feeling that now was my opportunity with a trembling hand I put my finger on the knob, and as silently as possible sent my signal out over the wire into the night, down to the mills and to Harry Randall.

"Harry, are you there?"

In another instant I was leaning back in my chair and moving an ink-stand on the table to make a noise. How my heart was beating, and my ear was strained to catch the sound that—if I might in God's goodness hope it—might presently come back to me!

Almost a minute—it seemed an age—I listened; and my heart sank as no answering signal was heard. Then—Click! Click! Click! came the sounds, sweeter to my ears than the sweetest music; and I knew that Harry was there. These sounds were to some extent covered by the drumming of my thimble, and were to me as plain as spoken words.

"Yes."

Instantly I sent back my answer. Two excited words, run all together:

"Robbers! Help!"

The total silence that followed assured me, after a minute's anxious waiting, that Harry had comprehended my message, and that doubtless he would at once come to the house. Fortune had favored me, for I had heard the man creeping up the hall stairs, and thus I had escaped the results of any suspicions he might have had, had he heard the clicking of the instrument.

I did not look at the clock, and cannot say exactly how long I sat there in silence. It seemed to me that it was hours.

Then there was the sound of whispering in the hall. The next moment there appeared in the doorway a second stranger, rougher and more desperate, if possible, in appearance than the first; and close behind him, to my great surprise and indignation, was our man Joseph. They both advanced into the room, the one looking angry and disappointed, and the other with a sheepish air as he caught my eye.

"We have found the key of the safe," growled the second stranger. "But all for nothing. The money wasn't in it, and we've looked high and low and can't find it. But Joe here sticks to it that it's somewhere in the house; and he thinks," looking fiercely at me, "you know where. It's no use, Miss—; we haven't any more time to spare and we won't stand no nonsense. I see it in your eye; you know where the money is. And you've got to tell."

He had advanced while he had been speaking and was now quite near. I arose from my chair fearing that he meant to lay hands upon me. And at that instant—my ears painfully alert to any noise—I was certain I caught the sound of a footfall outside the window, and I gained fresh courage.

"And why have I got to tell?" demanded I, purposely raising my voice so that it could be heard outside the house. "What right have you to break into this house in this way—"

The man suddenly caught me by the wrist, uttering at the same time a fearful oath.

"You make another sound above a whisper," he cried, in a voice hoarse with rage, "and I'll—"

He did not finish his sentence. There came a loud crash at both windows at once, and the next instant Harry Randall with two watchmen from the mills burst into the room.

The rescue was complete, so far as saving our lives and saving the money was concerned. The robbers attempted no resistance.

In an instant, before a word could be uttered or a blow struck, the man raised his hand and dashed the lamp from the table. In the darkness and confusion the burglars, Joseph among them, made their escape. And although every effort was made, both then and later, to secure their arrest they were never taken.

However, as I said, our lives and the money that had been confided to my keeping, were safe; and we were all thankful for that.

And I may say again that I am very glad that, at that time at least, the telegraph had not been superseded by the telephone.—Youths Companion.

WISE WORDS.

Success makes us soon forget the fight we made to attain it.

The road to home and happiness is over small stepping stones.

Knowledge of the world is dearly bought at the price of moral purity.

The waves of happiness, like those of light, are colorless when unbroken.

Genius at first is nothing more than a great capacity of receiving discipline.

If you wish to be really happy take a good deal of outdoor exercise, and never run in debt.

There is nothing more necessary than to know how to bear the tedious moments of life.

If you assume the garb of a fool, are you very sure that you have not a natural right to it?

We do not judge men by what they are in themselves, but by what they are relatively to us.

Nature never sends a great man into the world without confiding the secret to another soul.

Stillest streams of water, fairest meadows, and the bird that flutters least is longest on the wing.

The light of true friendship is like the light of phosphorus—seen plainest when all around is darkness.

Many persons entertain false views of real life, who yet have the justest perceptions of human nature.

As sad dreams betoken a glad future, so may it be with the so often tormenting dream of life when it is over.

Good breeding is benevolence in trifles, or the preference of others to ourselves in the little daily occurrences of life.

A writer who attempts to live on the manufacture of his imagination is continuously coquetting with starvation.

Knowledge is said to be sorrow. If this be true there are some men in the community who must be supremely happy.

It is a curious fact that no man in the world wants to be rich; he only asks for enough, and surely that is a reasonable request.

In the last article penned by Dr. Holland, he said he believed it to be demonstrably true that of all the advantages which come to any young man, that of poverty is the greatest.

It is hard to personate and act a part long, for where truth is not at the bottom nature will always be endeavoring to return, and will peep out and betray itself one time or another.

It has been well said that no man sank under the burden of the day. It is when to-morrow's burden is added to the burden of to-day that the weight is more than a man can bear.

The soul knows what justice is; and in those who approve, and in those who resist, truth creates conscience. Those who resist, are irritated; those who obey, grow strong within themselves.

FINDERNE.

A touching and very romantic tradition in regard to the name of Finderne has been preserved by the erudite Ulster King of Arms, Sir Bernard Burke, in his most entertaining work, entitled, "Vicissitudes of Families." The ancient Finderne family had their historic hall in Derbyshire. Sir Bernard being in search of their pedigree went to Derbyshire, but there was not a vestige of the old baronial walls visible nor in the village he had visited. He entered on his quest the quaint old church and the churchyard, near the site of the family seat of the Findernes, but not a single record relating to them upon tablet nor tomb could he trace. He returned and passed among the villagers—the villains of the soil as anciently called—in hope to glean, at least, one tradition of the honored house in days of old, but in vain; all replied, "We have no Findernes here."

Upon the village street, however, apart from the throng, he met one very old peasant, whose response to his inquiry was, "We have Finderne flowers."

At the request of Burke he offered to show them to him, and they walked into a field where faint traces of a terrace and foundation remained. "There," the aged man said, with pointed finger directed toward a bank of beautiful flowers, such as Sir Bernard had never seen, "there are Finderne flowers brought by Sir Geoffrey from the Holy Land, and do what we will they will never die."

From these words of the venerable rustic was gathered all that was known of Sir Geoffrey Finderne, one member of that great family who had gone, centuries ago, to Palestine with the Crusaders to vanquish the infidel Saracens, and to capture the Holy city and tomb at Jerusalem. Of his valorous deeds of knightly renown amid the tumult of war's havoc and carnage, the diligent traveler, Sir Bernard, intent upon the sacred love of forgotten ages, could secure but this fragment which the simple old rustic only knew. Whilst all else was blotted out from the memory of posterity, he remembered the old tradition transmitted to him from his ancestors, the rude forefathers of the hamlet, who slumber deep undisturbed in the long last sleep hard by the village Kirk: He only remembered that Sir Geoffrey had transplanted fragrant flowers from the sacred soil of Palestine, upon which Jesus trod, to the cold climate of the Western Isles, to Britain. Albeit, generations have mouldered away since Sir Geoffrey's day, the divine inspiration of his life may be breathed beside the silent flower bank in those Finderne flowers,

"Born to blush unseen,
And waste their sweetness on the desert air."

BRIBERY.

The recent bribery episode in the House of Assembly at Trenton is a stigma upon New Jersey.

Our State enjoys the distinguished credit of Judicial integrity, and formerly that of Legislative honesty was her good fortune.

There is an evil change come about, a change which every true-hearted Jerseyman must deplore and which he ought to battle without gloves.

A bribe of five hundred dollars given to an Assemblyman for his vote in favor of a certain measure, and the fact proven on investigation by a Committee.

That single case of bribery was shown to be a fact. How many other similar financial operations took place is of course conjecture.

We care not who received the bribe, who gave it, who furnished the corruption fund, or for what specific purpose it was given, the fact of its being a bribe is amply sufficient to stamp all persons connected therewith, directly or indirectly, whether as agents or principals, with a criminal assault upon the fair fame of New Jersey and the interests of her people.

We hope it will be made the last degrading act of the kind, and that future representatives at Trenton may be of such impregnable character that thieving corruptionists will as soon touch a rattlesnake as to even look them in the face.

LIFE OR DEATH.

The worst feature in the politics of this country is the corrupt use of money or other valuable considerations to secure the nomination and election of candidates for office, and to control their action after election for the attainment of mercenary ends.

That is the degradation of American politics, and it is doing more to injure free government than all other agencies combined.

It is certainly the truth, that a citizen, vested with the right of suffrage, who will barter that weapon of freedom for any pecuniary consideration, great or little, is unworthy to possess the privilege of a ballot and should be forever disfranchised; and truth further attests, that the miscreant who dares offer the temptation of a bribe to either a voter or a legislator is the greater criminal, and were justice done him, a long term of years in the State Prison would be his proper doom.

Political corruption in this country has assumed a bold and dangerous front, and it is time, high time, for honest men of all parties, as they value the dignity of representative institutions and their own safety, to arise in sovereign strength and trample the hideous thing into dust.

It is time for the people to teach venal political traders that their nefarious business is at an end, by resolving, and to resolution adding action, that no man shall be nominated or elected to Congress or the Legislature who is not proof positive against the blandishments of money or power, who is honest, capable, moral and sober, and who will discharge every duty to the best of his ability, for the public good and regardless of clique, combination or cormorant.

That the people can do, and when done, an improved class of law-makers will assemble both at Washington and Trenton, the honor of Union and State be preserved, and the piratical gang known as lobbyists find their disgraceful avocation gone.

Political virtue can alone keep the American Republic alive. Corruption breeds disease and death.

The imbecile and wavering policy of the State Department has evidently resulted in despoiling Peru, and transferring the rich resources and trade of Chili completely, into English hands. When will the Government at Washington learn common sense enough to seek for the opening and enlarging of foreign markets for the products of American industry? Echo answers—Not until the Democrats take the helm of national affairs.

The tariff discussion going on in Congress shows that the question is not strictly partisan, Mr. Dunnell, of Minnesota, Republican, and Mr. Hewett, of New York, Democrat, both made on the same day earnest speeches in favor of an early revision of existing duties. It is worth noting that Mr. Hewett is one of the largest iron workers in the country and understands the tariff matter practically.

Jesse James, the famous outlaw and train robber, was shot and instantly killed on Monday last, by one of two of his companions, named Robert and Charles Ford. They claimed to be detectives and in the confidence of Governor Crittenden of the State. They have been indicted for murder, but nothing will probably ever come of it.

In the matter of the contested will cases of William Brant, late of Union Township, and Patrick Welsh, late of Linden, the Orphans Court rendered decisions on Friday last, affirming the validity of both wills and admitting them to probate. Among the attorneys on behalf of that of Welsh was our fellow citizen Corporation Counsel Kimball.

Dorsey, indicted for complicity in Star Route frauds, and known as the prominent fiscal agent of the Republican party for the purchase of Indiana in the Presidential campaign of 1880, is defended by Ingersoll, the notorious defamer of religion. To the honor of Democracy both those men are its bitter foes.

If that sterling old Democratic statesman, William L. Marcy, was now Secretary of State, American naturalized citizens would not be held without just cause in English prisons. An energetic protest would long since have made John Bull's ears tingle.

Mr. Cornelius J. Vanderbilt was found in his bed in the Glenham Hotel about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon last, suffering from a pistol-shot wound in his head, supposed to have been fired by himself. He died later in the day.

The Judges of the Court of Common Pleas have re-appointed Geo. C. Ford, of Elizabeth, Daniel K. Ryno, of Rahway, David Leeson, of Plainfield, Morgue Keepers for the County of Union.

The Democrats achieved great victories and gains in nearly all the municipal elections held throughout the West on Monday last.

Judge Hyer took his seat in the Court of Common Pleas on Wednesday morning.

Nothing confers solid reputation upon a public man equal to manly independence, the intelligent and firm exercise of what he believes to be right. In that connection New Jersey's present Governor, George C. Ludlow, has earned popular approval.

Doings in Fanwood.

The Town Committee of Fanwood Township held a meeting on April 1st to swear in the Township officers, organize the Board of Health, grant licenses, pay any outstanding claims on the Township and examine the credentials and give certificates to the newly-elected Road Masters.

There were two claimants for the office of Road Master of Dist. No. 1. Claimant number one stated to the Board that he was elected by the voters at the Road meeting on the first ballot. Claimant number two presented to the Board a certificate that he was elected, signed by the Chairman and Secretary of the meeting.

The Town Committee sifted the matter pretty thoroughly. They found that the meeting was regular, and numerously attended. That there were three candidates nominated for the office. That claimant number one received two more votes than any other candidate on the first ballot. That the Chairman then ordered another vote taken, declaring that it required a majority of all the votes cast, to elect to office. Vote after vote was then taken, until claimant number two received a majority of all the votes cast. The Chairman then declared him elected and the secretary gave him a certificate. The Town Committee, however, decided that claimant number one was the regular elected Road Master, as he received a plurality of the votes cast on the first ballot. Of course claimant number two can't see how the Committee can go behind the returns.

The Town Committee of Fanwood Township—Messrs. Wm. C. Stanberry, Joseph A. Patterson and Daniel S. Scudder—met on Saturday last and organized them as a Health Board. Dr. Westcott was appointed as Township Physician and Secretary of the Board.

The Fanwood Township Committee met according to law, and organized by the election of Mr. Wm. C. Stanberry as Chairman and Mr. Jos. A. Patterson as Treasurer.

Appointments by the Governor.

On Saturday Governor Ludlow appointed, until the next session of the Legislature, the following persons as county officers: Gustavus N. Abeel as Prosecutor of the Pleas of Essex county; William H. Morrow, Law Judge of Warren county, and James J. Bergen, Prosecutor of the Pleas of Somerset county. These gentlemen were nominated by the Governor, but were not confirmed by the Senate, during the recent session of the Legislature.

Auction Sale
OF A VALUABLE FARM.
T. J. GILLIES, Auct'r, will sell on the premises APRIL 19TH, 1882, AT 2 O'CLOCK, P. M., the desirable farm, situated in Union village, Township of Warren, County of Somerset, bordering on the Passaic River, on the road leading from the village to the Passaic Valley road, within ten minutes drive of Gillette Station, Morris County, on the Delaware and Passaic Railroad, branch of the D. L. & W. R. R., known for about forty years as the Zuckschwerdt farm, containing 101 acres of cleared, improved land, well fenced and watered, a fine young apple orchard and plenty of other fruit trees, berries of all kinds, good house, with all the requisite out-buildings. No waste of land. This farm is known as the best farm in the locality, and is well worth the attention of any one seeking a dairy, stock or farm home, or for a good investment. Sold to close the estate of the late Christopher Zuckschwerdt.
MARY STEINER,
m24t4 Executrix.

ELECTION!

The legal voters of the Plainfield Fire Department are hereby noticed that the Annual Election for two members of the Board of Managers, to fill vacancies occasioned by the expiration of the terms of J. Van Winkle and Wm. S. Jones, also for one Assessor, will be held at Laing's Hall (Miller's Hotel) Monday, April 10, 1882, between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock, p. m.

The Board of Managers deem it expedient to raise the sum of seven thousand dollars to pay bonds coming due, interest and current expenses.

Also to authorize the Board of Managers to pay the Assessor his fees for the years 1879 and 1880, amounting to $[illegible], also for authority to pay said Assessor his fees for the present year.

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will thoroughly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it, and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not injurious.

Saved his Child.

17 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md.
Feb. 12, 1880.

Gents:—Upon the recommendation of a friend I tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required;" and when informed that the elder sister was taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."

ABRAHAM PHELPS.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS effectually cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Weakness, and renders the greatest relief and benefit to persons suffering from such wasting diseases as Consumption, Kidney Complaints, etc.

Ten Reasons
Why I Sell Cheap!
1st. I ATTEND TO MY BUSINESS,
and do not have to pay some one else to do it for me.
2d. I MANUFACTURE MY CLOTHING,
and save at least one profit.
3d. I BUY FROM FIRST HANDS,
and save from 10 to 25 per cent, by so doing.
4th. I DISCOUNT ALL MY BILLS,
which is a large item saved.
5th. I SELL FOR CASH ONLY,
No bad accounts to be added to my prices.
6th. I HAVE BUT ONE STORE,
—therefore but one rent, and that very low.
7th. I HAVE THE LEAST EXPENSES,
under which my business can be properly conducted.
8th. I MANUFACTURE STRONG GOODS,
that give satisfaction, and are never returned.
9th. I UNDERSTAND THE BUSINESS,
having had 20 years' experience in the wholesale and retail clothing trade.
10th. I ASK ONLY A SMALL PROFIT,
and mark all goods at the lowest price for which they can be sold.
Give me a Call, and you will be satisfied with Prices and Quality of Goods.

It is well worthy the attention of any one desiring good articles in that line.

MR. G. P. Smith has opened a Temperance Billiard and Pool Room, at No. 43 West Front street, nearly opposite Miller's Hotel, where lovers of the game will find tables of the most celebrated make. None but temperance drinks are sold in the place. Mr. Smith invites an inspection of his handsome rooms.

MR. A. A. Titsworth, Civil Engineer and Surveyor, No. 15 East Front street, will be absent from this city for a few months, engaged on the State Boundary Survey, between New York and New Jersey, acting as transitman in charge of the survey party. During his absence his office here will be in charge of N. Vars, Esq.

MR. Andrew Jennings, so long connected with the late business of Mr. E. A. Vermeule, has associated himself with Mr. C. M. Raybert, and the firm of Raybert & Jennings will always be found in readiness at No. 10 North avenue, to execute with promptness and ability all orders for tin, sheet-iron and copper work, plumbing, bell-hanging, &c.

THE Directors of the proposed Public Library have issued and sent to our citizens, a circular calling for the support of the community in the project. The former rooms of the Y. M. C. A., at the corner of Front street and Park ave., have been engaged; and if the co-operation of the public can be secured, the long needed free-reading room and library, will speedily be established on a firm footing.

ON Sunday last, a young colored lad, named William Vanostrand, in the employ of a farmer named Rapelyea, while fishing in the canal below the five-mile lock, at Bound Brook, fell into the water and was drowned. His body was recovered and buried on Tuesday on the Poor Farm by undertaker Bush. An inquest was held on Monday by order of Coroner Dr. Wagoner. Another warning to boys fishing on Sundays.

MR. L. L. Compton, the Front street Confectioner, will open this summer as an extension to his popular ice cream saloon, a garden handsomely laid out with shrubbery and flowers and furnished with comfortable tables and seats. This will be just the cool and pleasant resort that the young folks of Plainfield have long desired, where Compton's celebrated creams and ices can be enjoyed by starlight amid refreshing breezes.

THE Grand Spring Opening of Messrs. D. Boehm & Bro., for the past two days, at No. 7 Front street, has been one of the most successful ever held in this city. The display of bonnets and children's hats in all the latest shapes and styles of trimming, was most remarkable and excited much admiration from the large crowds that visited the establishment each day. Shaded plumes and tips and fine French flowers of all kinds, were shown in great variety at prices below the lowest.

THE New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company, which has established an office in this city, will give our business men and the general public a means of communication long needed, while in cases of sickness, accidents, fire or burglary, instant alarm can be given to neighbors, doctors, police quarters or fire companies. The telephone also affords great amusement by conversation with friends at a distance, music, &c. The Company have been to a great expense in carefully selecting the best material for the construction of the line, and for all purposes connected with the business, and looks for a generous support from our citizens. Percy C. Ohl is General Manager for Plainfield. See adv.

T. A. B. Ball.

The Eighth Annual Grand Ball of the St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, which was postponed by order of the Bishop of the Diocese, will take place in St. Mary's Hall, on Thursday evening of next week. A most enjoyable time is assured, and the following committee is making every preparation for a great success: Messrs. John Harding, John Welch, Peter Flynn, Alexander McGuigan and Patrick Lynch.

Y. M. C. A. Health Talk.

Dr. C. W. Endicott, M. D., will deliver on next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, the last Health Talk in the Course now being given under Y. M. C. A. auspices. Tickets may be had (free) at the Rooms of the Association.

Chess.

The members of the Plainfield Chess Club will play a series of single games with members of the Elizabeth Club, on Monday evening, at the latter city. The players will pair off, and each play one game with an opponent. The acknowledged superiority of our home representatives, seems to presage another victory.

Temperance.

A public meeting will be held in the room of Howell Division Sons of Temperance, third floor of White & Stelle's building, Front street and Park avenue, on Monday evening, April 10th, at 7:30 o'clock. An Address will be delivered by ex-City Judge Peter P. Good. Subject—"The Nation's Greatest Wrong—Intemperance." Citizens are respectfully invited.

Easter Service.

A special Easter service will be held in the Park avenue Baptist church, on Sunday evening next at eight o'clock. The programme will consist of a service of scripture and song for Easter Tide, prepared by the pastor and published by Messrs. Biglow & Main. The music is all the original composition of the Rev. Robert Lowry—the beauty of whose work in that line, we have before attested—and the entire order of service will prove most interesting and impressive.

Parade Supper and Hop.

The boys of Zephyr H. & L. Co., are making extensive preparations for a grand celebration and general good time on Wednesday next. The new Truck is to arrive on that day, and a parade, inspection, reception, collation and hop, are but a few of the ceremonies that are proposed. The Board of Managers of the Department, has appropriated $50 tow*ards the affair; and that with the gener*ous contributions of the members of the company, will most thoroughly "wet the Truck."

A Proposed New Church.

Bishop O'Farrell of the Trenton Diocese, has authorized Father Brady to take such steps at once as may the most surely and speedily result in the establishment of a parish and the erection of a Roman Catholic church in North Plainfield. Father Brady is the same who organized St. Joseph's church at High *Bridge, and is much admired as an elo*quent speaker and a gracious and dignified pastor. He held Mass in Warren Engine Co's House on Sunday last, which was the beginning of future services of the same character.

Personalia.

Miss Emma Woodward of Newark, has been visiting friends in North Plainfield.

Ex-Councilman Smith has returned to his Netherwood residence for the coming season.

Mr. Abram Baker of West Front street, has leased a cottage for the summer at Asbury Park.

Judge E. W. Runyon, the late purchaser of the Washington Rock property, has removed his residence thereto.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis has been engaged in conducting revival services in the extensive State of Rhode Island.

Mr. Alex. Mallison, in dread of the coming warm weather, has moved to Canada—that is, over-the-brook.

Ex-Judge Good has just gained an intricate suit in Pennsylvania, wherein he was one of the counsel in the prosecution of an editor.

Ancel St. John, Esq., of this city, died at the residence of his son, Mr. Edward St. John, on Saturday last, in the 83d year of his age.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Tyler will entertain a number of friends at a Berean Class reception, on Thursday evening of next week, at No. 63 East Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. B. Stillman having rented a house in Hoboken, will reside there in the future, and the Crescent ave. church choir will thereby lose an admired soprano.

Mr. Peter Balen, a deacon of the First Baptist Church, died at his residence on Central avenue in this city, on Friday morning of last week. His funeral, which took place on Monday at eleven o'clock a. m., was largely attended.

At the close of the session of the Legislature, Speaker Dunn was the recipient of a handsome gold watch, by the members of the House. His private Secretary, Barney Rodgers, was also presented with a handsome gold-headed cane.

Mr. Everitt Burr, a son of the former Superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday School, occupied the pulpit of that church on Sunday evening. Although yet in his Junior year at Brown's University, the young divine preached a sermon full of Bible teaching, well ex*pressed.*

Mr. Silas S. Williams, Superintendent of the Oil Cloth works, was formerly in charge of Peter's Manufacturing Company, of Newark, and represented his Ward as Alderman. So popular was he there at one election he carried the en*tire vote of the Ward excepting seven.*

A large number of friends and acquaintances gathered at the residence of Mr. Charles Matthews, on Grove street, North Plainfield, last Thursday evening, March 30th, to witness the marriage ceremony between Mr. John Morton, of *the firm of Simpson & Co., Ice Mer*chants, and Miss Mary McCeldon, a valued assistant of the family, the knot being securely tied by Rev. T. Logan Murphy. The bride was the recipient of a number of handsome presents, while the display of floral tokens in honor of the event, was fine. After enjoying Mr. Mathew's hospitality the happy pair proceeded to their well-furnished residence on Front street, opposite Washington avenue, settling down to housekeeping at once. We extend our congratulations and wish them a pleasant journey through life.

We Don't Wonder.

That THE CONSTITUTIONALIST has the largest circulation in the county.

That Plainfield is so popular as a place of residence.

That law breakers object to being brought before Justice Wadsworth.

That everybody is subscribing for telephonic communication.

That our advertisers are so prosperous.

That Plainfield girls are considered the prettiest in the State.

That the Zephyr boys are anxious for the arrival of their new Truck.

That we do the majority of the job printing done in the city.

That Fire Commissioners Van Winkle and Jones will be re-elected.

That Collector Brown is giving such general satisfaction in the performance of his duties.

That the Council thinks it had better consult the Mayor before further steps are taken in the Corporation Counsel matter.

That the jury in the "illegal liquor selling cases," could not be got together on Monday.

That the public is indignant because loafers are allowed to block the corner of Front street and Park avenue.

That all the young folks are going to attend the T. A. B. Ball on next Thursday evening.

Fortunate Flanagan.

The President, Secretary, Treasurer and all the members of the Plainfield Irish Republican Club, who was convicted about a year ago of selling liquor without a license, has never yet paid the fine imposed or suffered the imprisonment prescribed. On Monday afternoon in the city court room, Corporation Counsel Kimball moved that the commitment of Mr. P. J. Flanagan be issued.

Mr. Geo. P. Suydam, counsel for the latter, stated that his client was willing to pay the fine, but desired an extension of time. He thought that by such a course the object would be accomplished. The bond given was sufficient security, and at any future time the commitment could be issued and the accused incarcerated. The Supreme Court had ruled that his client was convicted on a fatally defective complaint, and now only by the merest technicality and the declaring that a part of the city's charter is defective, was the punishment insisted upon. "You have the halter around our neck," continued the Counsel, "and we can do nothing. But give us a little time wherein to raise the amount of fine."

Mr. Kimball replied that the evidence in the case overbalanced any technicalities. There was no shadow of doubt as to Mr. Flanagan's guilt, and he thought it would be a reproach to justice if now—after a trial and speedy conviction of over a year ago—any further delay in enforcing the penalty was permitted.

Judge Runyon promised to rule upon the motion on Thursday, at 10 o'clock a. m., at which time he stated that Flanagan must pay the fine at once, or the commitment would issue.

The Temperance Reform Scheme.

On Monday afternoon, before City Judge Runyon in the Council Chamber, the cases of the Treasurer of the City against Messrs. E. P. Thorn and P. Day, came up for trial. Corporation Counsel for the prosecution stated his readiness to proceed, and called first the case of Mr. Day. George P. Suydam, Esq., the defendants' counsel, expressed himself as prepared to go on if the jury he had demanded was present. The Court replied that it had issued a venire that morning, but having to attend a funeral neglected to hand it to the officer until afternoon. Mr. Kimball thought it would be impossible for a jury to be brought together at that time, and desired that the case should go on without one. Mr. Suydam agreed that a jury could not be summoned if the officer spent his time sitting in the back part of the Court room, but thought that if a little exertion was made twelve men might be got together and the case tried that afternoon. Officer Dodd stated that it would take at least three hours to make out the necessary summons and serve them. The court was then adjourned until Thursday morning, at ten o'clock.

At that time when the case of Day was called, his counsel presented a certificate from Dr. T. H. Tomlinson stating that owing to illness it would not be advisable for Mr. Day to leave his house for several days. A postponement was therefore asked, and was granted by the Court until Saturday at 9 o'clock a. m. The case of Mr. Thorn was then ordered to be tried at 2 o'clock, and as we go to press, the jury is out. Further particulars of the trial are reserved until next week.

We Wonder!

When the "Plainfield Opera House" will be completed.

Who will be the next Chief of the Fire Department.

Why the peach crop is not ruined.

When this city will be lit with electric lights.

Where the Post Office is to be.

Whether the Elizabethans imagine they can beat the Plainfielders at chess.

What location will be selected for North Plainfield's new and commodious school building.

Why the Saengerbunders sold more tickets for their concert than the Muhlenbergers did.

Who starts the false alarms of fire.

When the public library will be ready for public use.

Why the present Council thinks it has paid the State and County tax.

What has happened to the co-operative grocery scheme.

Which is correct Two and two is four, or two and two are four.

Who is to blame for the omission of penalties in the Hack Ordinance.

Who will be the next Corporation Counsel.

Whether the new Gas Co. will be suc*cessful.*

What treatment Mr. Flanagan would have received had he been a Democrat.

Whether total abstinence can be effected by means of "put up jobs."

Why Dodd had not time to get a jury on Monday.

Who neglected to pay the Assessor's bill as ordered by the Council.

Whether our "City Fathers" ever heard that consistency is a jewel.

When the State law will be complied with and the Council Proceedings officially published.

Why the Crescent avenue church did not fix up that vacant lot in front of it, as we suggested months ago.

When Special-Collector Moore is going to give bonds.

Why there is not a regular policeman on duty all night.

Whether the loafers are to occupy the corner of Front street and Park avenue, every pleasant evening, for the next six months.

FIRE MATTERS.

Between four and five o'clock of Saturday afternoon, volumes of dense smoke that rolled up towards the sky from the direction of Evona, and the vigorous ringing of the fire bell, made evident the fact of an extensive conflagration. All the apparatus of the Department turned out, but by reason of the heavy roadways on the outskirts of the city the steamers were some time in arriving at the scene. Engine No. 2, being so fortunate as to "get a hitch," reached the fire first and found burning a quantity of ties belonging to the C. R. R. of N. J., which were piled near the track and back of the residence of Mr. Halsey Compton. Water was only obtainable from the brook, over a quarter of a mile distant, and the entire hose of Alert, No. 2, and a part of Gazelle, was necessary to stretch the distance. *The fire, which probably origin*ated from a locomotive's spark, had rapidly spread along the pile of inflammable timber, and was raging furiously by the time No. 2's Engine commenced to play upon it through 34 lengths of hose—1,700 feet. The ties were of yellow pine and had been creosoted to prevent decay, thereby being in a condition that offered plentiful food for the flames. A gang of section men that were piling other ties near the spot, did the best they could to prevent a spread of the conflagration before the arrival of the Plainfield Department, but the flames flashed from one log to another with wonderful rapidity. Although a steady stream of water was continuously played, only the success of the railroad hands and members of Zephyr H. & L. Co., in removing the ties from one end of the fire, and thus making a break in the long pile, prevented the destruction of the entire lot. The members of No. 2 worked long and diligently, and the gang of section men assisted them in rescuing from danger such of the property as the flames had not reached. It was nearly midnight before the Steamer of No. 2 Co., was returned to its house, and by that time all further damage was impeded. General Section-Master Abbett, who was summoned to the scene, was loud in expressions of praise at the efficient efforts of the Department, and subsequently treated the "boys" right royally. The loss to the Railroad Com*pany is not fully estimated, but 976 ties* were destroyed which were valued at about 70 cents each.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, met in regular meeting in the Council room on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Present—President Van Winkle and Commissioners Depew, Jones, Gillies and Flaig. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. Mr. Jones from the Finance Com., reported its examination of the books of the Treasurer and found the same correct in accordance with the vouchers. Report received and committee discharged. Mr. Flaig reported that Mr. Pope would lease the Alert House for one year with the privilege of three at $275 per annum, each party to give three months notice. On motion the Treasurer was authorized to make a lease upon said *terms. The President presented a com*munication from Commissioner Morris stating that in accordance with the arrangements of Zephyr H. & L. Co., the new Truck would arrive in Plainfield at 1:55 o'clock p. m., on Wednesday the 12th inst. The Secretary reported the receipt from the Secretary of State of a certified copy of House Bill No. 182. The following bills were ordered paid: E. Marsh, $4; H. Hamilton, 6; Sec. of State, 1; J. Sutphen, 2.70; H. Goelier, Jr., 4.75, and C. S. Guion, 46.50. Mr. Gillies moved the adoption of a resolution appropriating $50 out of the funds of the Department towards defraying the expenses of receiving and testing the new Truck. Seconded by Mr. Flaig and unanimously carried. Mr. Jones moved that the Chief be directed to call out the entire Department on the 12th inst., to take part in the ceremonies. Not seconded. It was resolved that after May 1st, the Treasurer be instructed to keep the funds of the Department in either of the banks of Plainfield. A resolution was laid on the table, to the effect that hereafter there shall be furnished for the use of the Chief upon an alarm of fire, a horse and carriage to *expedite his arrival at the fire, at an ex*pense not to exceed 75 cents for each alarm. The Secretary presented a communication from the Zephyr H. & L. Co., inviting the Board to be present at its house on the 12th inst., and take part in the reception of the truck. On motion the invitation was unanimously accepted. Mr. Depew called the attention of the Board to the effect that the Legislature had passed a bill allowing the Board to issue bonds, and moved that the President and Treasurer be authorized to have a plate prepared for striking of such bonds, and the necessary bonds printed. Carried. The meeting then adjourned.

An adjourned meeting of the Trustees of the Firemen's Relief Association was held at the House of No. 2 Engine Co., on Monday evening, 3d inst., at which representatives from each company were present. Two amendments submitted at a former meeting were adopted; one being an amendment to article three, section third, requesting the various companies to elect one trustee annually to serve two years, instead of two trustees annually to serve two years. The other amendment was to amend article five, section first, making the regular meeting nights of the Association monthly, instead of quarterly. After which the Association adjourned to meet at the House of Warren Eng. Co., No. 3, on Thursday evening, 13th inst.

Mr. Thompson presented the following, which was read by the clerk:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., March 30th, 1882.

To the Honorable the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

We, the undersigned, respectfully ask of your Honorable body that you grant to us, to our associates and assigns the privilege to lay down mains and pipes in and through the streets, highways, lanes, alleys and public squares of the City of Plainfield, for the purpose of conveying and supplying gas to the said City and to the inhabitants thereof, upon the following conditions and stipulations:

1st. We and our associates will, on the passage of an ordinance granting the privilege asked for above, supply or cause to be furnished and supplied through a corporation to be formed for the purpose, or otherwise, a full and sufficient quantity of gas for the use of the City, and for the inhabitants of said City, for light, heat or any other purpose that gas can be used for, at prices not to exceed two 50-100 dollars per thousand cubic feet; said gas to be not less than twenty candle power (Photometric test.) The general supply of gas shall begin within eighteen months from the date of the passage of an ordinance granting the privilege hereby asked for; said gas shall be furnished at all times and in such quantities as shall be sufficient for any and all proper use, unless on account of accident, or in case of repairs it may be necessary to shut off the gas temporarily.

2d. The mains and pipes to be used by us shall extend to all portions of the City when it can be ascertained that a reasonable number of persons will be consumers of gas.

3d. All streets, lanes, alleys or public squares that shall have been disturbed and any and all pavements, sidewalks, crosswalks, curb-stones and gutters, or any portion thereof that shall have been misplaced in laying, altering or repairing such mains or pipes, shall be restored, replaced or repaired without expense to the City in a substantial, proper and sufficient manner without unnecessary delay to the satisfaction of the Common Council of said City.

4th. The City of Plainfield shall be fully protected, indemnified and saved harmless from all damages, losses and expenses, made, suffered or incurred by reason of excavating in any of the streets, alleys or places aforesaid.

5th. The said city shall pass such ordinances as shall in in all respects protect your petitioners, their successors and assigns in their rights, and for the proper punishment of any person who shall trespass upon or shall wilfully damage their property.

Respectfully &c.,
J. S. PIERSON,
H. M. PIERSON.

Ref'd to the Lamps Com.

By the same, claim of Magie & Cross for tax costs in the matter of the Park avenue assessment, $160.59.

Mr. Ginna said that there was no necessity for action on the claim, as the same had already been passed upon by the Council and ordered paid out of the Judgment Fund.

Mr. Depew stated that he was aware of such fact, and proposed to present a resolution rescinding the previous action and providing for a settlement of the claim as now presented.

On motion Ref'd to Laws Com.

Mr. Depew presented a communication from His Honor the Mayor, nominating as regular policemen, Messrs., Robert Randolph and Patrick Lynch.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by R. Simpson, the nominations were unanimously confirmed.

By the same, the following:

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:

I have the satisfaction to report that the movement inaugurated in November last, at a public meeting, whose object was to put upon a sound basis our system of taxation, has resulted in the passage of certain laws, as per copies herewith.

That known as Senate bill 48 provides for the control by the Common Council of the assessment and collection of state and county taxes. It proceeds on the on*ly sound basis, legal, logical or equitable,* that power and responsibility should go hand in hand. Hereafter, under this law, delinquents should be compelled to bear their share of the public burdens; and it will follow that the hardship to the municipality as such in being held responsible for county taxes (even in view of the charter limit for city tax) will be greatly mitigated. Indeed, for the present, if the Common Council take accurate, prompt and vigorous steps under these enactments, and there is a speedy issue of the city judge's warrant in respect to overdue taxes, as provided, it may reasonably be expected that the city treasury will be in a better condition this year than it has been in many years. The balance due on interest warrants should be paid and a margin furnished for needed improvements. It should also be rendered im*possible for any deficiency-burden to be* imposed by the County Board. There is now a provision for enforcing the taxes due, and to become due, of the various kinds, including county, city, school, etc. Bill 48 also provides that each municipal office shall be continuous so far as relates to the enforcement of taxes; thus again relieving us from a serious dilemma arising from one of the decisions of the Supreme Court.

Another of these laws (Senate bill No. 60) in effect makes taxes a prior and paramount lien on real estate in Plainfield for three years, instead of leaving the real estate without tax lien.

A third bill (Senate bill No. 131) which passed both houses, provides a process for selling real estate for delinquent taxes, and a plan for keeping proper record of all such sales. This bill is now in the hands of the Governor, and should, if signed by him, complete our absolute requirements in respect to tax legislation. It is an important measure, and it is to be hoped that it will become a law. Even without it, however, it must be seen that with a tax lien on real estate established, *and a means provided to issue the war*rant against personal property, great progress has been made.

Our city having been originally organized within the limits of a township, (which continued for a time to operate a township-system of taxation) such powers as were usually conferred on cities, through their charters, in respect to taxation, were not conferred on the city of Plainfield. At a later date the constitution of the state was so altered as to prevent such special legislation as might otherwise have been obtained to supply de*ficiencies in our charter. The problem* we have had to deal with has been to obtain such general legislation as would supply these deficiencies without conflicting with the state constitution, or with the severe construction of that instrument which our present Governor has been disposed to put upon it, and also without interfering with the tax systems which other cities have under their respective charters.

The results obtained are the outcome of much patient thought and labor. For these results we are indebted to several members of the Council of last year (particularly to Messrs. Tracy and Tyler) to Corporation Counsel Kimball and to Mr. Craig A. Marsh, as well as (among others) to Messrs. Joseph W. Yates and Samuel Huntington. Judge Harper and City Judge Runyon also served on the committee. Our representatives in the Legislature have faithfully worked for the passage of the bill.

Action under this legislation will require (especially at the outset) the exercise of particular care, so as to conform thoroughly with its provisions. Returns of the taxes in arrears must be ordered by suitable resolutions, whilst the fixing of dates in regard to future levies, etc., will have to be done by ordinance. It seems wiser to have one assessment for all our taxes; and it would probably be more convenient for the taxpayers and better for the city to have all the taxes fall due at the same time.

In carrying these laws into successful operation, there must be a faithful and intelligent discharge of duty on the part of the servants of the public—more particularly by the Common Council, the City Judge and the Corporation Counsel.

Very respectfully,
L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Mayor.

On motion of Mr. Livingston, seconded by Mr. Thompson, received and placed on file.

By Mr. Depew the Quarterly Report of the City Treasurer, a summary of which was, on motion, read.

Moved by Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Ginna, that the same be printed in full in the three official papers of the city. Carried, all aye.

Also the monthly report of the City Collector, which was ordered to take the same course.

The Rules were suspended to allow Mr. Depew to present the claim of Collector John B. Brown, for sundry disbursements of office expenses, $48.82.

Ref'd to Finance Com.

The Clerk read the following report of the Overseer of the Poor:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:

In pursuance of the requirements of the ordinance for the relief and support of the City poor, I would respectfully report that necessary shelter has been provided at City expense for the past two months for the following persons, certified by the City Judge as properly entitled to relief from our Poor Fund.

Emma Southard, at Peter Langenbahn, rent, $3 per month.
Luke Dean and wife Mary Dean, at Charles Hyde, $3 per month.
Margaret Tenison, at Mrs. Mullener's, $3 per month.
F. Moorcraft and others, at T. J. Frazier's, $10 per month.
Mrs. Dane, at Hugh M'Aleer's, $3 per month.
Mrs. Tingey, at Liov & Vail's, $5 per month.
Isaac [illegible] and family, at C. Peterson's, $4 per month.
Mary J. Roll, at John Flynn's, $4 per month.

This statement is submitted for your investigation and official action thereon in conformity with the provisions of section 6 of the Poor Ordinance. Also please find the following named poor persons who have obtained a legal settlement in this City and are receiving entire relief, care and support, at the expense of the City Poor Fund:

Albert Pound, at D. Hand's P. H., $2.16 per week.
Rebecca Kerr, " " 2 38 "
Ann Freeman Acker " " 2.50 "
Sarah Smith, Ladies' Relief Ass'n 2 00 "
Geo. Randolph, Overseer of Poor, Elizabeth, $1.25 per week.

If the support of this class of the City poor in the manner provided and at the expense stated meets your approval it will afford me satisfaction to have your official confirmation of the same.

Your Obedient Servant,
A. VANDERBEEK, O. P.
Plainfield, N. J., March 31, 1882.

Ref'd to Alms Com.

Mr. Ginna, from Laws Com., reported on the claim of Mr. George W. Moore for services prior to March 20th. The Committee found the charges correct, but it could not recognize as proper the retention by the claimant of an item of interest. He thought that the officer should return all moneys collected and then present his bill for the services rendered.

Mr. Depew suggested that the report of the Committee be made in writing and sent Mr. Moore for his information. He might then understand wherein his claim was incorrect and how to remedy it.

The suggestion was complied with, and the bill, on motion, was ordered returned to Mr. Moore.

Mr. Ginna also reported the approval by the Laws Com., of the resolution ordering the payment of warrants 2,360, 2,369 and 2,374 held by Mr. D. J. Boice, and the judgments in his favor.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Livingston, the report was accepted, the recommendation adopted and the warrants and judgments ordered paid. All aye.

The same Committee, by Mr. Ginna, reported its approval of the judgment claim of Mr. D. J. Marshall, $109.38 with interest from Dec. 19th, 1881.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Ginna, the Treasurer was directed to pay the same from the Judgment Fund. All aye.

The same returned without the Committee's approval, the resolution directing the issuing of warrants, as it failed to cover the ground desired.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. R. Simpson, the report was accepted and the resolution laid on the table.

Mr. Gardner, from Police Com., reported as correct the claims of C. W. Dodd, $58.34; R. Randolph, 20.50, and M. Bird, 62.50.

Ref'd to Auditing Com.

Mr. R. Simpson, from Streets Com., reported as correct the claim of Mr. J. C. Meeker, $27.88.

Ref'd to Auditing Com.

The same moved the adoption of the following preamble and resolution:

WHEREAS, It is evident from certain communications received from His Honor, the Mayor, that he is under the impression that several members of this body have failed to act in good faith in connection with the matter of appointing a Corporation Counsel, and

WHEREAS, We fully agree with His Honor that everything possible should be done to promote harmonious feeling between the two branches of the City Government, and

WHEREAS, A majority of the members present at a certain meeting referred to in the Mayor's communication have made the statement that they did not consider their action at that meeting in any way binding,

Resolved, That a committee consisting of the President and three members be appointed to wait upon His Honor, the Mayor, explain to him fully the feeling of this body, consult with him and, if possible, agree with him upon some person thoroughly competent, and mutually acceptable, to fill the office of Corporation Counsel.

Seconded by Mr. Livingston, and carried. All aye.

*The President, in accordance, appoint*ed to act as a committee with himself—Messrs Newhall, R. Simpson and Ginna.

Mr. Livingston moved that when the Council adjourn it be to meet on the evening of Thursday, the 6th inst.

Mr. Depew thought that Monday, the 10th inst., would be more satisfactory to a majority of the Council; and such date of adjournment was adopted.

Mr. Ginna moved the adoption of the following:

Resolved, That the City Collector be and he hereby is requested and directed to make forthwith a true, full and complete return to the City Judge of the names of all delinquents in the payment of any local tax or taxes, (whether general city tax, poor tax, school tax, or fire tax), for the following years, to wit: 1876, 1877, 1878 and 1879, with the sums due from said delinquents respectively, pursuant to the provisions of section five of an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "A further act concerning cities," approved March 17, 1882.

Resolved, That said City Collector be and he hereby is requested and directed also to make forthwith a true, full and complete return to the City Judge of the names of all delinquents in the payment of any state, state school or county tax assessed or levied within the city of Plainfield for the following years, to wit: 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, 1876, 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880 and 1881, with the sums due from said delinquents respectively, pursuant to the provisions of the *fourth section of the afore*said act of the Legislature.

Resolved, That said Collector be and he hereby is requested and directed to report to this Council forthwith upon the making of each aforesaid returns, to the end that this Council may direct the issuing of warrants by said City Judge as required by said act of the Legislature.

Resolved, That the City Clerk be requested forth*with to furnish said City Collector with a copy of* these resolutions.

Mr. Depew was in favor of the resolution, but thought there should be included in it some provision for paying the Collector for the extra service.

After some expressed difference of opinion as to whether the Collector had access to the books of past years, the resolution was unanimously carried.

Mr. Depew presented for the approval of the Council, an ordinance to amend the "Hack Ordinance," providing for the imposing of fines, etc.

Read by the Clerk and, on motion, referred to the Laws Com., for its report at the next meeting of the Council, if convenient.

The rules were suspended to allow Mr. Thompson to report the approval of the Lamps Com., of the petition of Mr. Hugo Weigmann to extend the shed on his premises, at No. 30 East Front street.

Report received and petition granted.

Mr. Depew moved to rescind the resolutions of March 13th ordering warrants drawn for the claims of Assessor Hubbard, $453.86 and J. O. Nodyne, 195.06; and that the resolution be suspended authorizing the Treasurer to pay out of the Judgment Fund the claim of Cross, Bergen & Noe, $160.59. Carried.

The same moved the adoption of a resolution instructing the Treasurer to pay the claim of Assessor Hubbard out of the fund in bank to the credit of his account as trustee for the State and County.

Mr. Ginna moved as an amendment, that the claim be so paid after the State and County indebtedness shall have been liquidated.

Mr. Depew did not think the Assessor would like to wait until such a time.

Mr. Livingston wanted to know why the claim had not been already paid as ordered by the Council.

No one answered.

The resolution was lost by the following vote.

Affirmative—Messrs Depew, J. Simpson and Thompson—3.

Negative—President Rushmore and Messrs Gardner, Ginna, Livingston and R. Simpson—5.

On motion the claim of J. O. Nodyne was referred back for endorsement by the proper committees.

The Council then adjourned.

In Memory of Peter Balen.

At a special meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, Nathan Harper presiding, held April 3d, the following minute, presented by H. P. Reynolds, was adopted, and the secretary requested to send a copy thereof to the family of the deceased:

It is with heartfelt sorrow that this Board records the removal by death of our friend and associate, PETER BALEN.

Fully in sympathy with the purposes of this institution, he always showed full confidence in its success, and we gladly know that he lived to see that confidence justified.

A prosperous business man, he never forgot that he held his means in trust for humanity, as is attested by his countless acts of quiet benevolence.

Full of years he rests from his work, leaving behind a name sacred to his family and honored by all who knew him.

As a last mark of respect it is voted that the Board of Governors attend the funeral services of our lamented associate in a body, and that this minute be spread upon the records of the Hospital.

Clothing for All.

In this issue, Messrs. McGregor & Co., the Iron Front Clothiers of No.'s 850 and 852 Broad street, Newark, make their usual Spring announcement of men's, boys' and children's clothing. Plainfielders will find at that establishment—five doors south of the Newark station—a full and complete stock of all grades, cut in the latest styles, trimmed with the best materials, and special inducements in the way of price. A selection of any garment, satisfactory in every respect, can be made upon an inspection of the large assortment displayed—but should any purchase fail to please, it may be returned and the money refunded if desired.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Mr. J. L. Palmer, residing on Mountain avenue, has removed to his residence in Brooklyn, L. I.

The Rev. Dr. Vermilyea officiated in the Presbyterian church last Sunday, both morning and evening.

A. W. Moffett and family removed from the hotel on Saturday last to the late residence of Geo. Godfrey on the Springfield road.

Mr. William Stitt has given the contract for painting the Hotel to the Messrs Welch Bros., who will make a very decided improvement in the same when the contract is completed.

The Rev. E. Clements, of the Newark Conference, occupied the pulpit of Methodist church last Sabbath during the absence of its late Pastor, the Rev. Warren Hoagland, who was attending conference.

Mrs. S. M. Foster has rented her late residence on Sussex street to Mr. E. Wilcox of Elizabeth, N. J., and the homestead residence on Central avenue to a gentleman and family from New York city, who expect to occupy it about the 15th inst.

Oliver M. Pierson, residing on Rahway road, met with a serious accident on last Friday evening. He had gone to his stables to look after his horses, and in going in behind a young colt was kicked in the face cutting his upper lip very bad. Dr. Cooper was called and dressed the wound. Mr. Pierson is doing nicely under the doctor's care.

Mr. J. Strut, residing on Orchard street has given up his residence and is going to board at Dr. Cooper's on Central ave. Alfred Westbrook, Esq., expects to move this month to the house now occupied by Mr. Strut and Mr. John Hodges, residing on Elmer street, will remove to the residence now occupied by Mr. Westbrook, corner of Orchard and Elm street.

Samuel Gortsholf and family took possession of the Westfield Hotel on Saturday last. Mr. Gortsholf is engaged in renovating the building throughout and intends opening the same about May 1st next, as a first-class Country Hotel and boarding house. Mr. Gortsholf comes well recomended among us, as one who knows how to keep a hotel, and deserves the patronage of the traveling public.

The citizens of Westfield will be pleased to learn that the Rev. Warren Hoagland has been returned by the conference as the pastor of the Methodist church in this town for the coming year. This action is in accordance with the wish of the official Board of the church, in a resolution passed by them a week ago. Mr. Hoagland is beloved by his people, who look forward to the next twelve months with expectations of great good to be accomplished under his leadership.

Town Committee met at Town Rooms Thursday evening, March 30th, 1882 at 7:30 p. m. Present—Robert R. Sinclair, Evert M. Pierson and Oliver M. Pierson. Luther M. Whitaker, Clerk. Y.—It gives me great satisfaction to say your Cream Balm (recommended to me by a friend) has completely cured me of Catarrh, of which I have been afflicted for over ten years, after trying almost every remedy recommended, none having proved so pleasant, effective and thorough as your Cream Balm in its work. Very truly, etc., S. J. AIKEN, Wholesale Dealer in Boots & Shoes, 146 Federal St., Boston, Mass. Feb. 2, 1882.

MESSRS. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.—I have been afflicted with Catarrh for 8 years; have tried almost innumerable remedies without any relief. Last winter I found more relief in one bottle of your Cream Balm than in all the remedies I have used put together. CHAS. A. CROSWELL, 77 South Ninth St., Brooklyn, E. D., N. Y., Aug. 12, 1880. Price 50 cents.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

DR. ROGER'S VEGETABLE WORM SYRUP instantly destroys worms and removes the Secretions which cause them.

A Perfect Corset Secured at Last!

It is a well-known fact that a large proportion of the ills of female life are directly attributed to the unyielding pressure of the Corset about the waist of the wearer. This evil has been entirely overcome in this corset, by the introduction of ELASTIC SECTIONS, composed of A SERIES OF FINE COILED WIRE SPRINGS.

These springs are warranted to retain their perfect elasticity until the corset is worn out; and, unlike rubber, will not heat the person or decay with age. This corset yields readily to every respiration, and is equally comfortable in any position assumed by the wearer.—Will fit, perfectly, a greater variety of forms than any other.

A LEGEND OF MIDDLE POINT.

BY E. H. LEWIS.

Perhaps this tale is untrue. Many of the inhabitants of Middle Point do not believe it, and, indeed, in an age so civilized as this, none but madmen are supposed to give credence to so startling a prodigy as a modern Medusa. Therefore, it may be best to treat it as an old seaman's yarn. However, I have seen the remains of a beautiful statue (for a huge storm, a half a century ago, is said to have overthrown it,) at a little out-of-the-way hamlet on the Atlantic coast, and I tell the tale as old Ben Ellis, an honest fisher, told it to me, as we lounged in a ruined hulk, and gazed at the fragments half buried in the sand.

Eighty years ago, an English merchantman, after the close of the Revolution, left on the shores of the New World a young man, whose pale cheeks, as well as his own quiet declaration, designated him as a medical student.

He had rooms, as any stranger might, in the little old house owned by Ben Ellis, Sr., but showed himself to the townsfolk so rarely that I greatly wonder some serious suspicion was not attached to him by the superstitious sailors and their dames. He was known to walk only early at morning, often before the early-rising fishermen had betaken themselves away. And at any hour of the day you might have found him, locked in his dingy room, and studying his chemicals, or poring over some old leather-bound volume, verily as if he were striving to forget some great secret, which was gnawing its way into his heart, and which made his cheeks more pallid, and his raven hair blacker, though thinner, against the pallor, with each successive day.

A quaint old hamlet is Middle Point, with its long lance of black rocks, where the anemones and star fish love to cling. When the sea is quiet, the water lies placidly, in little salt pools, amid the depressions and crevices. But when it rages, the water rushes through the miniature chasms with the sound of a very hell-broth. The sea gulls ever skim over them, and at evening their summits are streaked with gold and crimson, brighter than the massy-colored weeds below.

Looking down upon a blue bay of the Atlantic, stand the few houses which comprise the village. There are only a half-dozen in all, excluding the huts, built of cornstalks and salt-grass bound together in the form of an Indian wigwam, to hold the fishers' heavy nets. A grove of trees encloses the village, leaving a space of a dozen rods open to the sea.

The winter following the mysterious arrival of Gerham Steele, for thus he gave his name, was terribly stormy. Steele had not yet given the villagers any particulars as to birth, ancestors, or even the port from which his ship had sailed. But in the increasing severity of the weather his habits became even more secluded.

Ah, that was a wild winter. One day the great rocks were covered with yellow sand, and the cliffs laid bare to the billows, stern and icy themselves, while the fishermen shook their shaggy heads, and kept burning, each night, a huge pile of drift-wood upon the headland.

One terribly furious night, when the wind, straight off the sea, tore through the woods as if panic-stricken, making the dwarf-pines and hemlocks creak and rattle like the cordage of a laboring ship, Steele sat pondering over a huge volume of medicinal lore, by the light of a single candle. His long black hair dropped around his pale face until it reached his shoulders, and he had buried, for the moment, his countenance in his hands, when the boom of a gun fell upon his ear, and immediately, a noise came from below. He started and smiled, half satirically, half sneeringly, as if he had foolishly been expecting something, and withal, foolishly dreading it. Then he wearily pushed away the volume, rose to his feet, and holding the candle behind his head, looked out the window. Nothing to be seen. The topmost boughs of a little pine waved and brushed against the window, like the arms of a restless wraith.

As he stood gazing into the darkness, however, a feeble wail, borne by the blast, came from the opposite side of the head-land. Immediately, from the door beneath, the figure of the old seaman emerged, clad in his oil-cloths, and with a heavy thud, the door was laboriously closed. He watched, for an instant, the light twinkling over the salt grass, and then, for some motive, (perhaps that of saving the wrecked mariners, perhaps of a guilty conscience, or perhaps—but here the mystery lies—) he unlocked his door, and hastening down the stairs, rushed full in the teeth of the wind, toward the head-land. As he approached, the form of a ship, caught upon the Great Rock, came in dim view. Between two projecting points, ragged and monstrous, a boiling eyrie lifted her like a toy, and let her fall, with a mighty shock, where she lay grinding and crackling, till the next huge billow should lift her. By this time, a half-dozen lanterns were twinkling on the lea, and all heading for the point.

Old Ben had reached the shore, and was swinging his lantern to his brother fishers. They hurried on, and on the rocky beach were found the forms of two men and a child, the third alive, but so exhausted that the combined efforts of the villagers hardly sufficed to restore it, although it had been lashed to the breast of one of the men, a handsome young Englishman of twenty-five. Walking up the beach, and buffeting the cruel storm, three fishermen at length bent over the form of a young woman, drowned beyond recovery, and lying with her beautiful head turned toward the jagged summits of the rocks. By the light of the lanterns, the fishers saw that her gaze was fixed, and as men will involuntarily do, they raised their eyes toward the spot. In the faint lustre of the candle which gleamed from Ben Ellis's cottage, and dimly outlined against the black sky, they saw a white, mystic figure. Advancing towards the rocks, they picked up an article at the base. It was Steele's lantern. Quickly mounting, old Ben laid his hand upon the figure. It was cold and hard as the boulders on which it rested. Startled at the effigy, the fisherman attempted to descend with his back to the sea, and fell heavily, with a fractured skull, at the feet of his companions. In the excitement at the accident, the raging storm, the dead woman, and the bruised victims, the stony apparition was forgotten till morning.

As a sad young man, Ben, Jr., for his father had died during the night, walked out to the scene of the wreck, he saw against the gray sky the outline of a beautiful statue. Although the storm had greatly subsided, the billows were yet furious, and they raged at the feet of the effigy as if to overthrow it. But there it stood, rigid and white as Death itself, with an expression of great fear wrought into its countenance that made the youth halt with affright. It stood with its eyes rivited upon the seashore, and its hands slightly thrown back and upraised.

Those of the inhabitants who do not credit the tale believe that the student was either drowned, by his carelessness of foot, or left the place as mysteriously as he had come. That such a statue did exist, no one of them can deny, since its fragments can be seen to-day; and, also, that its position was on the summit of the rocks, no one of them can deny, since there are several of them now living, who well remember its position and attitude. As for the rest, since there died a day after the wreck, the only one who could have given any clue to the mystery—the young Englishman—it is shrouded in an impenetrable veil.

SPOOPENDYKE'S BATHING SUIT.

"My dear," observed Mr. Spoopendyke, looking up from his paper, "I think I would be greatly benefitted this summer by sea-baths. Bathing in the surf is an excellent tonic, and if you will make me up a suit and one for yourself, if you like we'll go down oftener and take a dip in the waves."

"The very thing," smiled Mrs. Spoopendyke; "you certainly do need something to tone you up, and there's nothing like salt water. I think I'll make mine of blue flannel, and, let me see, yours ought to be red, my dear."

"I don't think you caught the exact drift of my remark," retorted Mr. S. "I didn't say I was going into the opera business, or that I was going to tare out to my country village as a conflagration. My plan was to go in swimming, Mrs. Spoopendyke; to go in swimming, and not grow up with the country as a cremation furnace. You can make yours of blue if you want, but you don't make mine of red, that's all."

"There's a shade of yellow flannel—"

"Most indisputably, Mrs. Spoopendyke, but if you think I am going to masquerade around Manhattan Beach in the capacity of a band, you haven't yet seized my idea. I don't apprehend that I shall be benefitted by the waters any more by going around looking like a Santa Cruz rum barrel. What I want is a bathing suit, and if you can't get one up without making me look like a Fulton street car, I'll go and buy something to suit me."

"Would you want it all in one piece, or do you want pants and blouse?"

"I want a suit easy to get in and out of. I'm not particular about following the fashion. Make up something neat, plain and substantial, but don't stick any fancy colors into it. I want it modest and serviceable."

Mrs. Spoopendyke made up the suit under the guidance of a lady friend, whose aunt had told her how it should be constructed. It was in one piece, and when completed was rather a startling garment.

"I'll try it on to-night," said Mr. S., eyeing it askance when it was handed him.

Before retiring, Mr. Spoopendyke examined the suit, and then began to get into it.

"Why didn't you make some legs to it? What d'ye want to make it all arms for?" he inquired, struggling to see why it didn't come up behind.

"You've got it on sideways," exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke. "You've got one leg into the sleeve."

"I've got it on sideways. There ain't any top to it. Don't you know enough to put the arms up where they belong? What do you think I am, anyhow? A star-fish? Where does this leg go to?"

"Right in there. That's the place for that leg."

"Then where's the leg that goes in this hole?"

"Why, the other leg."

"The measly thing is all legs. Who'd you make this thing for—me? What d'ye take me for—a centipede? Who else is going to get in here with me? I want somebody else. I ain't twins. I can't fill this business up. What d'ye call it, anyway, a family machine?"

"Those other places ain't legs, they're sleeves."

"What are they doing down there? Why ain't they up here where they belong? What are they there for—snow shoes? S'pose I'm going to stand on my head to get my arms in those holes?"

"I don't think you've got it on right," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke. "It looks twisted."

"That's the way you told me. You said 'Put this leg here and that one there,' and there they are. 'Now where does the rest of me go?'"

"I made it according to the pattern," sighed Mrs. Spoopendyke.

"Then it's all right, and it's me that's twisted," sneered Mr. Spoopendyke. "I'll have my arms and legs altered. All I want is to have my legs jammed in the small of my back and my arms stuck in my hips, then it'll fit. What did you take for a pattern, a crab? Where did you find the lobster you made this from? S'pose I'm going into the water on all fours? I told you I wanted a bathing suit, didn't I? Did I say anything about a chair cover?"

"I think if you take it off and try it on over again, it'll work," reasoned Mrs. Spoopendyke.

"Oh, of course. I've only got to humor the blasted thing. That's all it wants," and Mr. Spoopendyke wrenched it off with a growl.

"Now pull it on," said Mrs. Spoopendyke.

Mrs. Spoopendyke went at it again and reversed the original order of disposing his limbs.

"Suit you now?" he howled. "Is that the way you meant it to go? What's these things flopping around here?"

"Those are the legs, I'm afraid," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, dejectedly.

"What are they doing up here? I see; oh, I see, this is supposed to represent me making a dive. When I get this on, I'm going head first. Where's the rest? Give me the suit that represents me head up," and Mr. S. danced around the room in fury.

"Just turn it over, my dear," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, "and you are all right."

"How'm I going to turn it over?" yelled Spoopendyke. "S'pose I'm going to carry around a steam boiler to turn me over when I want the other end of this thing up? S'pose I'm going to hire a man to go around with a griddle spoon and turn me over like a flapjack just to please this dod blasted bathing suit? D'ye think I work on pivots?"

"Just take it off and put it on the other way," urged Mrs. Spoopendyke, who began to see her way clear.

Mr. Spoopendyke kicked the structure up to the ceiling, and plunged into it once more. This time it came out all right, and as he buttoned it up and surveyed himself in the glass, the clouds passed away and he smiled.

"I like it," he remarked; "the color suits me, and I think you have done very well, my dear; only," and he frowned slightly, "I wish you would mark the arms and legs so I can distinguish one from the other, or some day I will present the startling spectacle of a respectable elderly gentleman hopping around the beach upside down. That's all.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A DISGRACEFUL PROCEEDING.

According to a dispatch from Washington the funeral of Garfield appears to have been turned into a shameless orgie. The total amount of the expenditure is about $7,000. This is for the payment of bills presented by members of the House alone, and, as the Herald correspondent understands, whether they were officially of the funeral cortege or not. To judge by the bills for champagne, whisky cocktails and cigars, the solemn occasion would appear to have been made a hilarious and disgraceful scene of debauchery on the part of those who attended the funeral. One item consists, as the correspondent is informed, of $1,700 paid for champagne, brandy, whisky, cigars and lunch. $300 are charged for "cock tails" and there are said to be other bills nearly as bad as this, though less in amount. It is remembered that the press was very carefully and peremptorily excluded from the funeral train. Even the reporters for the Associated Press were refused leave to accompany the train.

A decision has been handed down in the United States Circuit Court governing the classification of imitation jewelry.

The total debt of Rahway is $1,990,333.25. An effort is being made to settle it at twenty-five cents on the dollar.

The Free Masons of Haddonfield, feeling their strength, have determined to build a hall for the use of the Order at that place.

In the list of Iron-producing States New Jersey stands next to Pennsylvania, Michigan and New York. Morris county ranks as the third county in the United States.

Miss Lizzie Lambert, the gushing young Dover Miss who created such a sensation a few months ago, by eloping with a married man, has returned to her parents at Dover. Richards, it is said, visits the place semi-occasionally, but is received very coldly by his deserted wife. He is thoroughly tired of the Lambert girl, and is anxious to return to his first love. Repentance for past misdeeds is always in order, but how much sorrow could have been prevented by a little discretion.

The late census of Germany gives that country a population of 45,234,061, of which there is an excess of 863,195 females over males. The increase of the whole population in the five years from 1875 to 1880 amounts to 2,506,689. The American Consul at one of the German ports thinks that the immigration to this country will be greater this year than ever before, and the North German Lloyd Steamship Company has decided to run three additional steamers to New York, and the number to Baltimore will also be increased.

Mr. Dawes, a U. S. Senator from Massachusetts, recently declared on the floor of the Senate, that—

"Anything is justifiable in morals and in law that will beat down the Democratic party, and keep the Republican party in power."

This is undoubtedly the doctrine upon which the leading Republican politicians stand and act. The will of the people, and any question of legality or morality, has nothing at all to do with the Government of the United States. To keep the Republican leaders in power, by fair means or foul, and the Democrats out, and to seize all the wealth of the country for this purpose, is the main gospel of those leaders—and they have not been slow to execute it.

The crank, if he is a crank, who attempted to assassinate Queen Victoria, has been committed for trial on the charge of high treason, an offence punishable by death. In this respect Guiteau had the advantage of McLean, for had Garfield lived Guiteau would have got off with a few years in prison, while the English assassin will probably suffer execution, although the Queen was unharmed. The difference is that in this country an offence committed against a private citizen is as great as that against the highest official, while in England it is a greater crime to shoot at the Queen than to kill a dozen common men.

Laws of New Jersey.

CHAPTER I.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act incorporating the inhabitants of townships, designating their powers and regulating their meetings," approved April fourteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall hereafter be lawful for the persons qualified to vote at town meetings in and for the several townships of this state, at their annual town meetings, or at any other meeting or meetings duly held for the purpose, to vote, grant and raise any sum or sums of money, not exceeding three thousand dollars at any one time, for the purchase of land and the erection and repairing of a lock-up, or place for the temporary detention of criminals or persons charged with the violation of law in any of the said townships, which money, so voted and granted, shall be assessed, levied and collected by the same persons, in the same manner, and under the like forfeitures and penalties as the money raised in such townships by the board of chosen freeholders of the county shall be levied, assessed and collected; and the said money shall be expended, and the said lock-up shall be under the direction and control of the township committee in and for the said townships.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved Feb. 10, 1882.

CHAPTER II.

An Act respecting coroners.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever a vacancy in the office of coroner of any county in this state shall exist, it shall be lawful for the governor to fill such vacancy by appointment, and the commission of the person by him so appointed shall expire at the next ensuing general election.

2. And be it enacted, That every person appointed as aforesaid, to fill a vacancy in the office of coroner, shall, before proceeding to execute such office, give the bond, and take and subscribe the oath or affirmation in manner and form as is prescribed by law for a coroner elect.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 16, 1882.

CHAPTER III.

An Act respecting the time of payment of the annual salaries of prosecutors of the pleas.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That for convenience and uniformity, in all counties in this state in which the prosecutors of the pleas are now compensated by annual salary, said salaries shall be paid in monthly installments.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and this act shall be a public act and take effect immediately.

Approved February 16, 1882.

CHAPTER IV.

An Act to prevent vending, using or exploding of guns, pistols, toy pistols, or other fire arms, to or by persons under the age of fifteen years in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to sell, barter, or exchange, or to offer or exhibit for sale, barter or exchange, any gun, pistol, toy pistol, or other fire arms in this state, to any person under the age of fifteen years.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any person to sell, hire or loan to any person under the age of fifteen years, any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other fire arms, or for any person under the age of fifteen years to purchase, barter or exchange, or carry, fire or use any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other fire arms in this state.

3. And be it enacted, That any person offending against the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on being thereof convicted shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment at hard labor for any term not exceeding three months, or both, at the discretion of the court.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take [illegible]

CHAPTER XVI.

An Act in relation to the receiving and detention of prisoners in city, town and township prisons in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act in all cities, towns and townships of this state, where there is a prison, lock-up, police station, or place of detaining for the reception and detaining of prisoners awaiting examination, trial, or final commitment at the hands of the proper authority or authorities of said cities, towns and townships, it shall be the duty of the keeper or keepers, or other proper authority having charge of such prison, lock-up, police station, or place of detention, to receive on the proper and legal commitment of any justice of the peace of any county in which said prison is situated any prisoner or prisoners, and detain the same for hearing on the order and commitment of said justice for examination, commitment to the county jail, or for trial before said justice, for any period not exceeding forty-eight hours.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 21, 1882.

CHAPTER XVII.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section thirty-one of the act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

31. And be it enacted, That an annual meeting for the election of school trustees shall be held in each district on the Tuesday of the week following the annual town meeting at the district school house, if there be one, and if there be none, at a place to be designated by the district clerk, who shall post notices thereof, specifying the day, time, object, and place of such meeting, in at least three public places in the district, one of which shall be at the school house, if there be one, at least ten days previous to the time of meeting; the voters shall be legal voters of the district, and a plurality of votes shall elect; and no person shall be eligible to the office of trustee unless he is a resident in the district; and further, no person shall be eligible to the office of school trustee unless he or she can read and write; but women who are residents in the district, and over the age of twenty-one years, shall also be eligible to the office of school trustee, and may hold such office and perform the duties of the same, when duly elected by the legal voters of the district; provided, that the term of office of any trustee which would otherwise expire on the first or second day of July in any year, shall expire on the Tuesday of the week following the annual town meeting of the same year.

2. And be it enacted, That section thirty six of said act be and is hereby amended, so as to read as follows:

36. And be it enacted, That he shall take annually or the board shall cause to be taken, during the month of May, an exact census of all children residing in the district between the ages of five and eighteen, not including the children who may be inmates of poorhouses, asylums or almshouses, and shall specify the names and ages of such children, and the names of their parents or guardians (all children who may be absent from home, attending colleges, boarding schools and private seminaries of learning, shall be included in the census list of the city, town or district in which their parents or guardians reside, and not be taken by the district clerk of the city, town or district where they may be attending such institutions of learning); and that he or the person authorized to take the same, shall make a full report thereof, verified by him under oath or affirmation that the same is correct and true, to the best of his knowledge and belief, on the blanks furnished for that purpose, to the county superintendent, on or before the first day of September next after his appointment, and keep a copy of the same for the use of the school trustees, and shall receive for his services such compensation as the board of trustees may allow.

3. And be it enacted, That all act or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, relating to districts in townships in this state, be and the same is hereby repealed.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 21, 1882.

CHAPTER XIX.

An Act to provide for the examination in certain cases of applicants for admission as attorneys to the supreme court of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any citizen of this state above the age of twenty-one years presenting to the supreme court of this state at any stated term thereof a certificate signed by five counsellors at law of said court, five years good standing, that the said citizen is a person of good moral character, and unusual aptitude in his knowledge of legal principles and that the counsellors so certifying recommend that the said applicant be admitted to examination at the stated examination of the said court for admission as attorney; shall be by the said court, at any stated term thereof, admitted to such examination, and [illegible] qualified after examination in the books now named by the supreme court in the amended rule relating to examinations of applicants for attorney's license, and recommended for admission as attorney by the examiners at such examination, he shall be so admitted to practice as an attorney of said court.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, and inconsistent with this act are repealed [illegible] ance or abatements may deem reasonably necessary for the purposes of such aid and relief.

2. And be it enacted, That said board of finance or aldermen is hereby authorized to borrow the amount of money which it may, by the act, appropriate for the purpose of such appropriation or taxes next thereafter to be levied, and to issue proper evidences of indebtedness therefor, which shall be signed by the mayor, sealed with the seal and attested by the clerk; and the said board of finance or aldermen, as the case may be, shall provide for the repayment of the said borrowed money in the tax levy to be made next thereafter, unless the same be previously paid.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 24, 1882.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A supplement to an act entitled, "A supplement to an act entitled 'A further act concerning taxes, making the same a first lien on real estate, and to authorize sales for the same,'" approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, which said supplement was approved March twelfth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section eight of the above supplementary act be amended to read as follows:

8. And be it enacted, That it shall not be necessary to advertise for sale, or to issue warrant, or to sell any lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate, purchased by "the inhabitants of the township," for non-payment of any taxes laid, assessed or imposed subsequent to the taxes for which said lands, tenements or hereditaments or real estate were so sold and purchased by "the inhabitants of the township;" but that such subsequent taxes shall be assessed in the name or names of the owners of said lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate, as if no sale for taxes had been made or taken place, and such taxes so assessed shall be and remain a first lien on said lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate, added to the original purchase money, and shall be paid to such township before such lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate can be redeemed; and the assessor and collector shall each be entitled to receive, for assessing and collecting the said taxes, the same fees as those to which they would be entitled by law, in case the said lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate had not been sold for taxes.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 24, 1882.

CHAPTER XXV.

An Act to enable trustees of religious societies in incorporated towns, boroughs and cities to remove the bodies buried in church yards to cemeteries.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the trustees of any religious society in any incorporated borough, town or city in this state shall and may have the right and privilege to remove or cause to be removed any body or bodies buried in or upon the grounds belonging to any such religious society from such grounds or church-yards; provided, there is a cemetery under the control of a legally incorporated cemetery association in or near such incorporated borough, town or city; and provided further, that no trustee or trustees of any religious society shall remove or cause to be removed any body or bodies buried in or upon the grounds granted to any religious society for the uses and purposes of a burying ground.

2. And be it enacted, That no trustees of any religious society shall remove or cause to be removed any body or bodies from their grounds under the provisions of this act unless they shall, prior to the removal of such body or bodies, procure a proper and suitable place in any cemetery for re-interment, and in the removal of any body or bodies under the provisions of this act such trustees shall cause such bodies to be conveyed to a cemetery and buried in a careful manner; and where any tombstones have been erected on or over the graves of any body or bodies removed under the provisions of this act, the trustees causing the removal of such body or bodies shall cause such tombstones to be re-erected over or on the graves in the cemetery to which such bodies shall be removed; any trustee or trustees who shall violate the provisions of this section in removing any body or bodies as herein provided for, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars, which penalty shall be collected by the overseer of the poor of any incorporated borough, town or city, in action of debt, for the use of the poor.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 24, 1882.

CHAPTER XXVI.

An Act relating to Turnpike Companies.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That if any turnpike company shall not keep the road and bridges in repair, it shall be the duty of and judge of the court of common pleas of the county in which said road, or the part thereof complained of, or bridge, is situated, upon complaint being made to him in writing by any freeholder stating the length of part of road that is out of repair, and specifying the particular defect, and after five days' notice in writing to said company, specifying the particular part of the road, or bridge, and the particular defect complained of, and after hearing the parties, if the said company should not have amended or repaired the bridge or part of the road complained of, to appoint under his hand and seal, three judicious, disinterested freeholders of the county in which said road, or part thereof complained of, or bridge, is situated, not residing in any township, borough or ward through which said road passes, who, having been duly qualified according to law to act impartially in the case, shall proceed to view and examine the said part of the turnpike road or [illegible] number shall be a quorum for the transaction of business; the persons named for that purpose in the certificate of organization shall be the first trustees, and for perpetuating a line of succession in such corporation, whenever any vacancy shall happen in the board of trustees by reason of the death, resignation, or removal from the state of any trustee, the remaining trustees may, by a majority vote of the whole number of members, elect a new trustee to fill such vacancy.

5. And be it enacted, That for the purpose of maintaining such institution and carrying out the objects of its foundation, the corporation shall have power to receive, take and hold, by gift, grant or devise, all such real and personal estate as may be given to or bestowed upon it by its founders and other persons interested in said institution.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 24, 1882.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

An Act to repeal an act entitled "An act respecting the fees of county clerks and registers of deeds and mortgages in this state," approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That an act entitled "An act respecting the fees of county clerks and registers of deeds and mortgages in this state," approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, be and the same is hereby repealed.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXIX.

An Act to repeal an act entitled "An act relating to fees of sheriffs," approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the act entitled "An act relating to the fees of sheriffs," approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, be and the same is hereby repealed.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXX.

An Act to encourage the establishment of public libraries in any town or municipality in this state, and to provide for taking care of and perpetuating the same.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That when any person or number of persons shall have heretofore or shall hereafter subscribe any amount of money, not less than two thousand dollars, for the purpose of a public library, in any town or municipality in this state and shall, by deed acknowledged in due form of law, appoint certain persons as trustees, not less than ten in number, to use and administer said trust or gift for the benefit of a public library; and shall, by said deed, provide that the said trustees may, for the proper management of any such library, and taking care of and perpetuating the same, fill any vacancies in their own number; such trustees shall, upon the recording of any such deed in the office of the clerk of any county where the said library is located, and in the office of the secretary of state, be and become a body politic and corporate in law, without capital stock, with such corporate name as may be provided for in any such deed of trust appointing said trustees.

2. And be it enacted, That such corporation shall have the right of succession, to sue and be sued, with power to hold such real estate as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of a library for the benefit of the inhabitants of any such town or municipality; and such trustees may, from time to time, adopt all needful rules and regulations regarding their organization, the tenure of their own offices, the filling of all vacancies in their own number, the election of their own successors, and the use and management of any such library.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXI.

An Act to defray the expenses of the Constitutional Commission.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the constitutional commission, appointed in pursuance of an act entitled "An act to provide for commissioners to prepare and suggest amendments to the constitution of this state," passed March twenty-third, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, the treasurer of this state is hereby directed to pay, upon the warrant of the comptroller, the following sums: for the expenses of stationery, printing, advertising, postage, et cetera, incurred by said commission in the performance of their duties, an amount not exceeding five hundred and twenty dollars; to each of the secretaries the sum of five hundred dollars, and to the stenographer the sum of five hundred dollars.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXII.

An Act to authorize cities and boroughs to provide, by ordinance, for the licensing, regulating, restraining and taxing of auctions and auctioneers.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the board of aldermen, common council, or other legislative body of every incorporated city or borough within this state, shall have power to provide by ordinance, for licensing, regulating, restraining and taxing of auctions, within the corporate limits of said city or borough, and of auctioneers carrying on or intending to carry on their said business within said limits, and to fix penalties for the violation of the same, and to prescribe the manner of collecting said penalties and of enforcing said ordinances.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

A Supplement to an act concerning roads, approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey; And it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, that in all cases when any laid out public road or any road or street that has been heretofore or may hereafter be dedicated to the use of the public as a public highway, shall terminate and end at or upon the margin of a stream of water, and there now or hereafter may be a private ferry established on such stream, it shall be lawful for the owner or owners of such ferry or ferries to demand and receive such tolls as the board of chosen freeholders of the several counties of this state are authorized by law to fix and establish; provided, that this act shall not be operative within the limits of any incorporated town or city, nor shall such ferry be established as a public ferry within one mile above or below any chartered bridge company's bridge; and provided, further, that no traveler or other person passing and repassing upon such public highway, shall be hindered or prevented from fording such stream or streams by reason of the provisions of this act, if they shall desire to do so.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to provide for the assessment and payment of the costs and expenses incurred in constructing sewers and making other improvements in townships and villages," approved March twelfth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases where the township committee of any township in this state have applied for and obtained the appointment of commissioners to make a new assessment of the costs and expenses incurred in making an improvement in such township, under the provisions of the act to which this act is a supplement, the township committee, in any such township, shall pay to such

THE CONSTITUTION AND DEMOCRACY.

The preamble to the American Constitution reads as follows:—"We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

That is a clear summary of political duty, and when put forth by the illustrious Convention of 1787 was intended to inaugurate a representative government distinguished alike for plainness of character and practical effect.

The Constitution was established for the attainment of positive purposes, namely—

"To form a more perfect union."

The meaning of which was to transform the then existing thirteen diverse Commonwealths into a sisterhood of co-equal States, each possessing precisely the same powers of reserved sovereignty and each delegating to a General Government specific authority for the well being of all, thereby harmoniously blending together for the achievement of national strength and honor, and yet exercising within themselves respectively the efficient power of home legislation and rule. That originated the beautiful and perfect system of American Union.

"To establish justice."

To ordain equitable laws, and thereunder guarantee to every citizen just personal rights, and, as a penalty for committed crime, to impose impartial punishment.

"To insure domestic tranquility."

The natural result of clearly defined and accepted national aid and authority over States of varied local interests.

"To provide for the common defence."

Not for one section more than another, but for the absolute safety of all sections and all the people.

"To promote the general welfare."

A most important provision, aiming as it does to benefit every man, woman and child throughout the entire Union, and that regardless of class or condition. The Constitution was framed not for favorites, but for all the people, and obedience to it cannot tolerate action, either legislative or administrative, that would enrich the few at the expense of the many, or in any way uphold the plundering power of monopoly.

"To secure the blessings of liberty."

Liberty to pursue unmolested any legitimate calling, liberty to earn, receive and enjoy the full reward of industry, liberty to worship according to the dictates of individual conscience, liberty to think and vote as the citizen sees fit, liberty to live securely, liberty of speech and of the press, and from all manner of tyranny, civil, military or ecclesiastical.

Such are the purposes of the Constitution of the United States and such constitute the fundamental doctrines of the Democratic party.

The support of Democracy is loyalty to the Constitution.

They are both identical with the permanent freedom and prosperity of country.

SPRING ELECTIONS.

In the Spring election at Rahway last Tuesday, the Republicans elected their Mayor, Linus High, by 30 majority, also a School Commissioner, one Freeholder and two Councilmen. The Democrats elected one Freeholder, A. J. Halliday, both Assessors and one Councilman. Wm. R. Melick, the present Democratic Freeholder, was defeated. This result makes no difference in the political status of the Board. It stands Democratic by a large majority.

In New Brunswick the result was mixed. The new Board of Aldermen will stand the same as last year, 4 Democrats to 8 Republicans. The Democrats elected a Freeholder and Councilman in the Republican Third ward. The Board will stand 8 Democrats to 11 Republicans. The Democrats elected a Mayor in Perth Amboy, also Jersey City. Bordentown went Democratic.

The city election at Trenton, N. J., Monday, resulted in the success of the Democratic ticket. Mayor Vroom was re-elected by about 800 majority; School Superintendent Shepherd by 500; Receiver of taxes, Yard, by about 600. The Democrats also elect six out of eight Councilmen and three members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders. Council will stand fourteen Democrats to seven Republicans, and the Board of Freeholders will be Democratic by two majority.

SENATE 111.

The injunction proceedings growing out of the passage of Senate bill 111, which was vetoed by Governor Ludlow, have been discontinued, the defendants whom it was proposed to enjoin from carrying out the provisions of the bill having disclaimed in affidavits all intention of doing so. The bill was to authorize the issue of stock to pay off bonds by the Directors without a vote of the stockholders. To this the Governor objected; and the bill being passed over the veto, a preliminary injunction was obtained to prevent the Directors exercising the powers conferred by the bill. Upon the assurance that this power is not to be exercised, the Court on Saturday discontinued the injunction, with leave, however, to the parties to apply for it again should any attempt to issue new stock be made by the Directors, the Court expressing the opinion that the Directors, without the approval of the stockholders, could not issue any stock—thus recognizing the correctness and soundness of the position taken by Gov. Ludlow in his veto.

LOCAL ANNEX.

Plainfield's New Industry.

A few years ago there was a prevailing feeling among large property owners in Plainfield, to exclude from our midst mechanical industry, the wrong impression existing then that it was more desirable to make Plainfield a place of residence for wealthy people than to encourage manufacturing within the city's limits. Fortunately for the future welfare of Plainfield, that idea is fast passing out of mind, and to-day there are in Plainfield several extensive manufacturing concerns with large capital invested, foremost of which are Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co's mammoth Clothing manufactory, the Potter Printing Press Works, Perrine's Hat Factory, and the latest addition, that of Newell & Wright's Oil Cloth Works, situated along the Central Railroad, above Richmond street. A visit to these works a few days since evidences that a large amount of business will be done there as soon as the works are running to their utmost capacity, which will be in a few weeks. At present the works employ 44 men and boys, which will be increased to 65 shortly. Through the kindness of the Superintendent, Mr. Silas S. Williams, we were shown through the works which occupy large buildings on either side of South avenue. The main structure on the South side is 118x200 feet in dimensions, built substantially of brick, in which all the heavy work, such as mixing of all compositions, grinding of paints, coating of goods, &c., is performed. This building contains also 32 long cells, for drying purposes, which utilize 16,030 feet of one inch pipe to heat the cells sufficiently to dry the oil cloths after undergoing certain processes by machinery. On the other side of the street are the buildings formerly known as Bird's Planing Mills, built also of brick, and occupying spaces respectively of 46x46 feet, 26x60 feet and 30x20 feet, now occupied as a part of the Oil Cloth Works. We first visited the large boiler room, where a fine 85 horse power Babcock & Wilcox boiler furnishes motive power and steam for drying purposes. This power has been found inadequate to do all the required work, and a companion boiler of the same make is to be put in. The facilities for extinguishment of fires in case there should be such need, are admirable. Hose are placed in convenient localities and a Knowle's force pump can be set at work in an instant's time to force water through the lines, while dry steam may be forced through pipes into any part of the buildings to assist in smothering an incipient fire. Situated a short distance away is a small brick building, where there are boiled daily 3,000 gallons of linseed oil used in the Works. In the large drying or finishing room, 46x46 feet in dimensions, a temperature of 130 degrees Farenheit is used. The room is fire proof, with cement floors and iron beams filled between with cement. In these buildings there are 4,000 feet of inch pipe which connecting with those in the main building opposite, make 20,000 feet of piping through which steam is forced from the boilers. The motive power is furnished by two engines, one of 30 and the other 20 horse power.

By new and complicated machinery belts of 650 yards in length, of oil cloth are turned out and finished, where by the old style lengths of 12 yards only were finished. Two men will turn out 750 yards per day of imitation of marble cloth. One man will finish up 200 yards of table covers in a day. In the imitation of wood, grain and water colors, two men or boys do 650 yards a day.

Side tracks run from the main line of the railroad to the Company's yard, where each day a freight car or cars are run and after being loaded are drawn to the main line and shipped to their destination. Everything here is handy and a great amount of expense saved by simplicity of arrangement. The Messrs. Newell & Wright contemplate making still further additions to their buildings, and will also erect commodious coal sheds and shutes along side of the railroad tracks to receive their supply of coal. Everything works systematically, and visitors are kindly shown through the works by Superintendent Williams, when his time will permit.

The new buildings were erected by Messrs. Manning and Melbourn, of this city, who will also have charge of the construction of additions. They, as well as the Oil Cloth firm are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts and the convenience afforded in the construction of these buildings.

The Temperance Reform Scheme.

On Thursday and Saturday of last week, the cases of the City of Plainfield (?) against Messrs E. P. Thorn and P. Day, were tried in the Council Chamber. Mr. Geo. P. Saydam appeared in defense of the respective plaintiffs, and Corporation Counsel Kimball and City Judge Runyon conducted the prosecution.

In spite of the fact, however, that extraordinary steps were taken to convict the accused of knowingly permitting acts that transpired in their absence and against their explicit directions to the contrary, the juries in both cases failed to agree. In the case of Mr. Thorn, the jury stood ten for conviction and two for acquittal. In Mr. Day's case, although two that were for conviction on the former jury were placed on the latter, it stood seven to five. While speaking of the juries, it may be relevant to give the testimony of a juror that the Judge was reluctant to excuse, and who was challenged for cause, by Mr. Suydam. By the latter's questioning, the following was elicited: "My name is W. W. Howland. I am here because I am interested in the prosecution of the cases. Am one of a committee of a Temperance Organization, the duty of which committee is to assist the executive officers of the city in prosecuting liquor sellers. I have so assisted as far as I am able, but have done nothing to procure evidence and have talked to none of the witnesses in the present case. I have formed an opinion as to the guilt of the accused, but such might be changed or confirmed by the evidence. I could give a verdict in accordance with my oath."

The law and the evidence were entirely opposed to any just reason for conviction, but the eloquence of Mr. Kimball combined with his skillful manipulation of the temperance proclivities of a majority of the jurors, and the decided bias of the Judge's charges in both cases, were successful in precluding the verdicts of acquittal that were obviously proper. To give an idea of the elasticity of the prosecution's sentiments, and how circumstances alter cases, it may be recorded that on Thursday, when the Day case was postponed in consequence of the defendant's illness, the Corporation Counsel asked for a postponement of the Thorn case until the same time, as the cases (in his opinion, then) were exactly alike and should be tried both together. However, on Saturday, when Mr. Suydam questioned the fairness of allowing one of the Thorn jury to pass upon the other "matter and difference," it suited the prosecution to their claim that the cases were entirely different.

It is unnecessary for us to write at any length upon the subject of these cases. Any fair minded person will be satisfied by the fact that packed juries failed to convict, that the accused were innocent of the charges preferred. It is probable that no new trials will be asked, and the results will impress upon the understanding of the temperance reformer, that no end justifies the use of dishonest means to illegally convict of blameless defendant. The effect of such action as has been displayed in the prosecution of the cases spoken of, is productive of more harm to the righteous cause we all are desirous of advancing, than the most extended policy of unrestricted license.

"A Committee of Consultation."

The above has proved to be a misnomer, and a Committee of Dictation seems to be, in view of the facts, the appropriate title with which to designate the delegation from the Common Council that met the Mayor, one evening recently, to "consult" regarding the Corporation Counsel disagreement. The Committee would have no other nominee presented than Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., a position taken that was surprising no matter how worthy that gentleman was of the office. At the head of the committee was President Rushmore, who, when a member of the Council of 1879, by his absence, thwarted the confirmation of Mr. Maxson to the very office that some are now anxious the Mayor should nominate him for. The Mayor as a Republican, may think he cannot send in the name of a Democrat for a position to which so many members of the "party in power" may have a prior right. And he does think that the counsel employed to draw up an ordinance abolishing an office, was not the proper candidate for the office he was ready to wipe out if another was to be appointed.

For the sake of the harmony Mayor Randolph has always displayed a desire to secure, he agreed to re-nominate any of the rejected names previously sent in. The Committee of Dictation, however, would have who it chose or no other. The morning of Monday came without any prospect of settling the variance, at the meeting of that evening, until President Rushmore stated to the Mayor that a majority of the Council would confirm Mr. Marsh if his name was again presented. The Mayor, upon such representation, sent a sealed communication to the Council at once, but the President withheld such and returned it to the sender the next morning, unopened, with the explanation that it was discovered that enough votes could not be depended on (which is undoubtedly true) to confirm the nomination. No explanation, we believe, was offered in excuse for suppressing a sealed communication from the City's chief executive officer to its Common Council.

Now, we are informed, the Council directs the Mayor to send in the name of Mr. Marsh at a special meeting to be held next week, and thinks that his declination to be thus dragged hither and thither as pleases the whimsical vagaries of the Council, is obstructing the good of the city. O tempora! O mores!

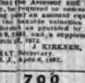
Look to Your Horses' Teeth!
DR. H. C. KUGLER,



VETERINARY DENTIST.
Office at ROBERTS' LIVERY, Laing's Hotel.
P. O. BOX, 16, Scotch Plains.

I have cured many habits and diseases of the horse by operating on their Teeth, such as tonguing, fretting, weaving, dropping, slopping short on food, starting violently, loss of flesh, side bound, nasal gleet, bleeding head, driving on one line, pulling, bolting, baiting, aging, etc.

Horses having diseased or sharp teeth (often producing bad ulcers), are hard to keep in condition, and, if poor, it is impossible to fatten them. It often produces indigestion, cribbing, wind sucking, colic, etc.

After being treated by me, they become good drivers, keep in good condition, and are free from many vices. The most vicious or nervous horses operated upon with perfect safety and without injury. No charge for examination. a14w4

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed and to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 10, 1882.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, hack, omnibus, stage, and truck owners and drivers, approved March 14, 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 3 of this ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 14, 1882, is hereby amended by inserting immediately after the words "contrary to the provisions of this ordinance," in the fourth line of that section, the words "under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense."

Sec. 2. That section 4 of said ordinance is hereby amended by inserting immediately after the words "according to the provisions of this ordinance," in the sixth line of that section, the words "under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense."

Sec. 3. That during the months of September and October hack, omnibus and stage owners and drivers may be granted a permit by the city clerk for one week, and no longer, to keep or use for hire or wages a hack, omnibus or stage upon the payment therefor into the treasury of the city through the hands of said clerk the sum of two dollars and a half, and in addition thereto a fee of fifty cents to the city clerk for issuing the said permit. And no person or persons except those regularly licensed under the ordinance to which this is an amendment shall hire out or use for hire any kind of vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage, merchandise or other property, wholly or in part within the limits of the city, as herein provided in this section, without such a specified permit, under the penalty of not to exceed ten dollars for each and every offense.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 10, 1882.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning the assessment, collection and enforcement of taxes in the City of Plainfield, pursuant to an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "A Further Act concerning Taxes," approved March 17, 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all taxes whether state, county, municipal or other taxes, required by law to be raised in said city of Plainfield, shall be assessed between the twentieth day of May and the third Monday of August in each and every year, and shall become due and payable on the first day of October of each and every year, and shall be collected between the said first day of October and the twentieth day of December in each and every year, and said taxes so far as they remain unpaid shall become and be delinquent on and after the 20th day of December in each and every year.

Sec. 2. That the commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation in said city shall meet on the fourth Tuesday of November in each and every year.

Sec. 3. That the collector of taxes in said city shall make return of the names of all delinquents in the payment of such taxes (so far as they are delinquent) with the sums due from such delinquents respectively, on the twentieth day of December in each and every year (except when said day shall happen on Sunday, and then on the following day) to the city judge of said city in order to the issue of warrants by said city judge for the collection of said taxes due from such delinquents respectively.

The Secret

of the universal success of Brown's Iron Bitters is simply this: It is the best Iron preparation ever made; is compounded on thoroughly scientific, chemical and medicinal principles, and does just what is claimed for it—no more and no less.

By thorough and rapid assimilation with the blood, it reaches every part of the system, healing, purifying and strengthening. Commencing at the foundation it builds up and restores lost health—in no other way can lasting benefit be obtained.

73 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, Nov. 7.
I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and Dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel none of the old troubles, and am a new man. I am getting much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer, and now make my trips regularly. I can not say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. D. C. MACK.

Brown's Iron Bitters does not contain whiskey or alcohol, and will not blacken the teeth, or cause headache and constipation. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, dizziness, nervous debility, weakness, &c.

Use only Brown's Iron Bitters made by Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore. Crossed red lines and trade-mark on wrapper.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

WARRANTS REDEEMED.

Notice is hereby given that on and after April 28, 1882, the following interest-bearing warrants on the City Treasurer will be redeemed at the First National Bank, in conformity with the provisions of the "Ordinance to provide that certain orders for the payment of money drawn upon the City Treasurer shall bear interest," approved April 19, 1881, viz: From the GENERAL FUND, warrants Nos. 2399 and 2474, and all those beginning with and embraced between Number 2419 and Number 2473 inclusive; and from the POOR FUND, warrant Number 2860 and all other outstanding warrants on this account up to date. Interest ceases on the warrants included in this call April 28, 1882.

By order of the Common Council.
J. VAN WINKLE,
City Treasurer.
Plainfield, N. J., April 10, 1882.

IT was a North Easter.

THE telephone Company will to-day commence to plant its poles through the city.

ALL the churches were gorgeously adorned with buds and blossoms, on Sunday last.

STRANGE as it may appear to some, His Honor the Mayor still insists that he is the Mayor.

THE sale by auction of the desirable Zuckschwert farm has been postponed until Wednesday, May 10th.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Grundy, new Spring bonnets will not be worn by the au fait regarding good-form, until Sunday next.

THE special Easter services held in the different churches of Plainfield on Sunday, were unusually impressive and largely attended.

THE alarm of fire Tuesday night was caused by the burning of two barns in Metuchin, owned by ex-councilman Henry Redfield of this city.

THE Plainfield Saengerbund celebrated the evening of Easter Monday, with an invitation hop in its rooms at the corner of Park and North avenues.

MR. John A. Thickstun, at the corner of Third Street and Madison Avenue, is offering the public Benton's blood, meat and bone super-phosphate, and special manures.

AT the Easter day dinner at the Mansion House, each lady guest found a beautiful bouquet of flowers beside her plate, placed there by order of the proprietor, Mr. E. P. Thorn.

THE grand display of native flowers and exotics that bedecked the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church on Sunday last, was from the conservatories of John Taylor Johnston, Esq.

MESSRS. Edsall & Price mention some interesting facts in another column which our readers will do well to examine, and avail themselves of the benefits thereof. They are worthy of your attention.

MR. Percy C. Ohl announces that if the thief who stole a blanket and rope from his barn one night this week, will come after a horse to keep them company, he will present the party with a small pellet of lead.

THE swamp just off Park avenue, abounds with tramps, who make its hidden recesses a rendezvous. Why don't our vigilant police make a raid on these gentry. Probably stolen goods would be found among them.

AT the establishment of Mr. S. C. Lilienstern, at No. 22 West Front St., may always be found a full line of gentlemen's furnishing goods and ready-made clothing for men and boys. The assortment is large and the prices low.

THE martin birds made their appearance in front of their old quarters, Laing's Hotel and Coriell's meat market, on Friday last, the 7th inst. They remained until Monday, when the cold snap drove them away again. Last year these birds appeared on the 19th of April.

THOSE in need of the services of a practical harness maker, should patronize Mr. J. N. Randolph, on Somerset st., North Plainfield, adjoining the Somerset House. Everything pertaining to the trade may be found at his establishment, heavy or light harness made to order and repairing neatly done at short notice.

MR. John M. Schorb, having leased his premises at No. 11 East Front Street, to the U. S. Government, to be used as a Post Office, he may in future be found by his friends and patrons, on the second floor of the same building, with a full line of the latest styles of gentlemen's suitings for custom work only.

WE would call the attention of merchants to Chapter IV of the Laws found in this paper regarding the sale or rental of firearms to boys under the age of fifteen years. And we would call the attention of the boys to the fact that they are liable to fine or imprisonment if found carrying firearms, a thing that might be put upon them by some farmer on whose land they trespass.

ONE of the most attractive vehicles that are seen on our streets, is the milk wagon of Mr. L. B. Coddington, which is as tasteful and handsome a specimen of artistic work in its line, as we have ever noticed—the talent displayed being worthy of a higher sphere. If the milk furnished is as excellent as the drawing of the cow, pictured on the side of the wagon, the reputation of Mr. Coddington as a dispenser of pure lacteal fluid, must be immense.

AT last has been made public the decision that was arrived at some time ago, to remove the Plainfield Post Office to the building now occupied by Mr. John M. Schorb, at No. 11 East Front Street, adjoining the First National Bank. A lease has been signed with the Government, for four years, at a rent of $750 per annum. About $3,000 will be spent to make the new office one of the handsomest in the State.

DR. H. C. Kugler, a veterinary dentist of great experience and ability, has established an office at Roberts' Livery Stables, where he can be consulted in relation to the many diseases and bad habits of horses. Dr. Kugler's treatment by operation upon the teeth, has always proven most successful and productive of satisfactory results. He is also the owner of the celebrated trotting mare "Nanny Johnson," now at Mr. Peter Osborne's track, which he is willing to dispose of at the very low figure of $2,500.

The Newark Conference.

The following are the appointments made in this section, of clergymen of the Methodist church: L. R. Dunn, Presiding Elder of Elizabeth district. At Bound Brook, J. M. Meeker; Dunellen, A. S. Compton; Metuchen, M. F. Compton; Millstone, Mr. Bascom; Perth Amboy, D. B. F. Randolph; Plainfield, T. H. Stockton; Raritan, J. H. Robinson; Somerville, John Krauts; Woodbridge, G. F. Dickinson.

Fire Board Election.

On Monday, at Laing's Hall, occurred the annual election for members of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department. There was no opposition to the re-election of those whose term of office had expired, and the entire number of 85 votes cast, was for the following ticket:

FOR MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS:
Jeremiah Van Winkle,
William E. Jones.
FOR ASSESSOR.
Joseph A. Hubbard.

$7,000 for Fire purposes, with authority to pay Assessor's fees for 1879, 1880 and 1881.

A Card.

The Plainfield Steam Carpet Co., of East 3d street, having heard that parties being desirous of injuring its business, have circulated reports to the effect that the steam used in the process damages the fabric, we desire to state to the public that no steam whatever come in anyway in contact with the cleaning of the carpets. The only use made of the steam is to procure the necessary power to run the engine for propelling the wheel in which the carpets are cleaned.

C. W. WHITNEY & CO., Managers.

Why He Didn't Took It.

The following forcible reasoning of a German citizen of Plainfield, was recently given Manager Ohl of the Telephone Co., in reply to a solicitation of the latter that the former should have a telephone in his house.

"I Don't got some time for so much foolishness as der boys would make mid me. So hellup me gracious, so sure what I got mineself in ped und shust to sleep laid down, ven der pell would ring like shimminy. Den up mineself I get und say 'YELL!' und some Saengerbunder say 'Hans! you goin' ter ped, are you?' Den ven I say 'yah,' he say 'Goot nite,' so sweetly."

One Year Ago.

On the 11th inst., the Alert Hose Co. was presented with an oil portrait of its popular foreman, Mr. Auguste Saltzman, painted by Mr. Julian Scott. It was voted that engrossed resolutions of thanks be extended the donor. . . . . On the evening of the 12th inst., the "Standard Opera Comique Company," after giving a mongrel performance of "Billie Taylor" at Van Deventer Hall, attempted to skip the town without settling its numerous bills for printing, board, &c. Amos Moffett and a number of amateur constables, nipped such intention in the bud, and a compromise was arranged . . . Messrs. Gillies and Fisig were elected members of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department.

A Narrow Escape.

During the morning services at Grace church on Sunday last, almost a commotion was occasioned by the cracking of a beam beneath the floor and the ominous whispering that followed among the vestrymen and pastor. The large congregation gathered therein, had risen to recite the creed, when the loud report of the breaking timber was heard; but no one was especially alarmed until Mr. Mayer, after consulting with Dr. Rodman, advised with a whisper a number of gentlemen in the center of the church to pass out by way of the side aisles. Some of the more timid, learning of such caution, imagined that some danger was evident, and a large part of those present left the building. From the cellar beneath, however, the floor was braced with supports and further damage prevented; but had a general rush occurred when the beam parted, the crowd would probably have been precipitated below and the furnace might possibly have been so demolished by the falling timber, as to have fired the structure.

Church Officers.

At the annual meeting of the parish of Grace Church on Easter Monday, the following persons were elected:

Wardens—John B. Dumont, William E. Lowe.

Vestrymen—E. N. Erickson, Gilford Mayer, E. L. Finch, Chas. Tweedy, O. T. Waring, W. R. Cock, O. H. Fleming.

Deputies to Convention—Messrs. Dumont, Lowe, and Pittis.

Alternates—Messrs. Guion, Tweedy and Cock.

Delegate to Convocation—Thomas H. Pittis.

The congregation contributed over $300 towards a payment on the lot on 7th street, and the Sunday School gave $138 for the same purpose.

At the annual election of the Church of the Holy Cross, held on Tuesday evening, the following was the result:

Wardens—W. R. Potts and Geo. Dupee.

Vestrymen—James Lyon, Frank S. Brown, Eli Long, Mason W. Tyler, Thos. E. Warman.

Delegates to Convention—W. J. Leonard, Wm. Mooney, I. C. Yawger.

Alternates—W. R. Potts, Thos. E. Warman and Geo. Dupee.

Safe with their Maker.

During the past week, the ravages of diphtheria have torn from the loving arms of many parents, a dearly cherished little one, and left only an aching void. Since our last issue the following deaths from the dread disease have occurred. On Friday last Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Pound lost their daughter, Evelyn V., aged 4 years, 8 months, the third child that has died in the past few years. On Saturday, Harry W., the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Horace M. Sherwin, died at the age of 10 months and 8 days—the same age as the little one that was lost about a year ago. On Sunday, Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGinley, died at the age of three years; and Frances Edna, aged 7 years, 1 month and 21 days, died at the residence of her parents, Wm. H. and Carrie Sebring. On Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Vosseller lost their bright little daughter, Carrie L., who was just eight years old on the last day of March, and was only sick four days.

The heartfelt sympathy of the entire community will be with these parents, out of whose lives have thus been taken so many rays of bright sunshine.

We Wonder!

Whom Alert Hose Co. will nominate for Chief of the Fire Department.

Where is to be found a Chess club that can out play the Plainfielders.

Which is the chief executive of the City. The Mayor or the Common Council.

Why those harbingers of Spring, the martins, were so "previous" in arriving on Friday last.

Whether the City expected to convict Messrs. Thorn and Day in spite of both law and evidence.

What policeman will distinguish himself by cleaning the corner of Front street and Park avenue.

Why the Mayor does not follow the ordinance and send in a new nominee for Corporation Counsel at each meeting, as required.

When Chapter CCXXVI of the laws of the 10th Legislature of New Jersey, will be complied with and the minutes of the Plainfield Common Council officially published.

Whether Chief Mumford will be able to put a stop to false alarms of fire.

What precedent authorizes the President of a Common Council to withhold from that body a sealed communication from the Mayor.

Why Ford Babcock did not come to Plainfield with the Goodwill boys last Wednesday.

Whether it is true that Messrs VanWinkle and Jones were elected "Members of the Board of Managers" by only one vote.

When Flanagan will be made to pay that fine.

When the complainant in the "liquor cases" will pocket the reward he is after—one-half the penalties.

Where a certain Councilman got his idea of the Muhlenberg Hospital as a "charitable institution."

Attractions of Plainfield.

The following are some of the advantages Plainfield possess for a popular suburban residence:

Accessibility—It is but 24 miles from New York, with extraordinary railroad communications with it; 32 trains each way daily; quick time, (45 minutes by express); dustless road bed, pleasant cars, efficient management, and to a degree unparalleled polite officials, and withal reasonable rates; round trip tickets being $1.10 and commutation $65 00 yearly.

Healthfulness—Plainfield soil is light and spongy, although fertile, and free from clay subsoil, and in consequence has uncommonly pure water and freedom from mosquitoes and malaria.

Air—Mountainous, pure and bracing. It is certain that no suburban place at an equal distance from New York can compare with it in this respect, and in exemption from coast sea air which is so harrassing to weak constitutions.

It is not a "hot place in summer," although like all places to which people constantly come in an hour and a half directly from the seashore, or from which they go to spend portions of the hot season, immediately by the sea, sometimes said to be. As compared with other inland towns of the region, the thermometer shows that it is not a "hot place," as indeed its abounding trees and shade would indicate to any visitor at once.

It has the best public school in the State of New Jersey, unsurpassed private schools, attractive churches, good physicians, of all schools, intelligent, enterprising, refined and substantial society. A place of homes rather than of business, where a New York business man, whatever his means, can spend a part of every day in the year with his family "in the country."

Lots for sale, and houses for purchase or rent (furnished or unfurnished, for the summer or the year) are offered at reasonable rates, in all locations and in every variety, suited to every taste and purse, and first-class hotels and private houses offer all facilities for summer boarders.

Special advantages for easy housekeeping, markets, groceries, bakeries, ice-houses, furniture stores, with order and delivery wagons, are a feature of the place.

Easter Services at Grace Church.

Last Sunday being the Festival of Easter, (the highest feast observed in the Protestant Episcopal church) the services at Grace Church were exceedingly interesting and impressive. The floral decorations were exquisite, and the sermon by the rector both instructive and appropriate, while a chorus composed of eight mixed voices rendered the subjoined programme of classical music in a most artistic style, and with great expression. The regular choir of Grace Church consisting of Mrs. Benj. A. Mumford, Miss Nancy Randolph, Mr. Wm. R. Cock and Mr. O. T. Roberts, was assisted by Mrs. Dr. Utter, Miss Jessie Smillie, Mr. S. St. J. McCutchen and Mr. Frank Runyon. Mrs. Wm. A. Freeman presided at the organ in her usual artistic manner, and by her brilliant and expressive rendering of the different voluntaries, accompaniments, etc., added greatly to the beauty of the musical portion of the services.

The Easter anthem and hymn in the above programme were composed by Mr. W. C. Williams, the distinguished organist of the Westminster church, Elizabeth, N. J.

The Chess Match.

Promptly at 8 o'clock on Monday evening at the Arcade building in Elizabeth, eleven players of the Plainfield Chess Club commenced a match with eleven players of the Elizabeth club.

The first game was won by Mr. Chas. Dewy, of the Plainfield Club and lasted about half an hour. It was a very irregular game on the part of the Elizabeth player, which at first seemed to a little surprise Mr. Dewey, but he soon decided on his plan of meeting it, and won.

The next game was won by Mr. Jackson of the Plainfield Club. This was a forced mate and was finely won by Mr. Jackson, who for the sake of attack sacrificed three pawns and a bishop. He mated his adversary in ten moves.

This first victory for Elizabeth was the game of Dr. Piecoska over Mr. Collier. An amusing incident of which game was the exceedingly polite way in which, after the game indicated a sure victory for him, Dr. Piecoska offered Mr. C. a cigar.

Mr. Hunt of Plainfield lost while he had a decided advantage, by carelessly losing a castle for nothing.

Mr. Opdyke was defeated after a hard fought game.

Messrs Lloyd and Reed, the rivals for the leadership of the Plainfield Club, each won their games after the most skillful playing. Mr. Reed's game lasted four and one-half hours.

The games won by the Plainfielders are credited to Messrs Reed, Lloyd, Boice, Long, Dewey, Theirs, Drake and Jackson. Those lost were by Messrs. Opdyke, Collier and Hunt. A return match will be played in this city in a few weeks.

The Gentle Zephyrs.

Not only is Zephyr H. & L. Co., to be congratulated upon its new truck, but it should be eulogized by reason of the universal attractiveness of its members. It is said that the finest looking men in the city belong to Zephyr, and the rapidity with which they are securing to themselves the most charming of Plainfield's fair women, seems to prove that the "truck boys" are quite too awfully fascinating.

On Sunday evening last, the Rev. K. P. Ketcham united by marriage Miss Amelia Minard of this city, to the bewitching Secretary of Zephyrs, Mr. Alonzo Wallace. The ceremony was private, only a few family connections being present, but the occasion was none the less joyous and pleasurable.

On Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Lizzie Welch of North Plainfield was joined in matrimonial bonds to Mr. Samuel Robinson, one of the Hook & Ladder boys and the jolliest of the original "Jolly 3." This couple as well as Mr. & Mrs. Alonzo Wallace, have the best wishes of a large circle of friends, for their future success in life and continued happiness.

The Resignation of Collector Brown.

It was with regret that our citizens learned of the intention of Mr. John B. Brown to resign his office as City Collector. Having proven himself thoroughly competent to perform the duties of the office and having given most entire satisfaction, the public is naturally concerned at the probability of a successor, less adapted to fill the position. But the extra work imposed by the Council is beyond the ability of any one man—or two men—to execute, and Mr. Brown's health necessitates his withdrawal from any attempt to accomplish impossibilities. It is not a question of greater remuneration, but of less work. And as a committee has been appointed to look into the matter, let us hope it will persuade Mr. Brown to stay and conduct the legitimate duties of the office, with the understanding that additional help will be employed to perform the extra services.

A Big Howl.

Mr. Bethune Dunham of New Brooklyn is to be credited with the capture of the largest live owl on record. The bird measures 4 feet 8 inches across the wings, and is now living on raw meat within the confines of one of Mr. Dunham's biggest hen-coops. The animal is of the species that our English cousins call a "'oot howl," and when captured was attached by one foot to a steel-trap and about four feet of chain. The unusual weight prevented the bird from rising above the ground, and after following it for some time, Mr. Dunham succeeded in tiring it out and effecting its capture. If it can be brought to this city with safety, we shall take pleasure in according the bird a position in our office window, where it may be viewed by the public without charge.

A Terrible Accident.

"Col." John Johnson, an employee of Messrs. Spicer & Hubbard, had his right hand completely cut off by a circular saw on Thursday morning. The unfortunate man had just run through a piece of cherry timber, and probably in reaching over the saw for the stick, his hand came in contact with the whirling blade. The palm was cut entirely through—the thumb and the four fingers held together by the knuckles and a portion of the hand, falling upon the table. Aid was immediately sent for and the services of Dr. M. B. Long, secured. The wounded member was bound up and the flow of blood retarded, but it is thought that possibly more of the hand will have to be amputated to save any.

Common Council Proceedings.

Adjourned meeting—Resignation of Collector Brown—The Mayor declares his independence—No batter, molasses, nor hominy for the poor—Hack and pedler's licenses granted—The salaries of City officers—Two new ordinances—More outstanding warrants to be paid.

MONDAY EVENING, April 10th.

The Council met at 8:20 p. m., pursuant to adjournment.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs Gardner, Ginna, Kaufman, Lindsley, Livingston, Newhall, J. Simpson, R. Simpson, and Thompson—10.

Absent—Mr. Depew.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. J. Simpson presented a petition from Mr. S. F. Dunn, for permission to erect a stable in the rear of his premises on Park avenue.

Ref'd to Lamps Com., with power.

By Mr. R. Simpson, a petition from Mr. L. L. Compton for permission to erect sundry wooden sheds back of his Front street confectionery, to be used as an ice cream garden.

Same reference, with power.

Also a petition from E. W. South and the property owners in the vicinity, to have a blue-stone flagging laid along the north side of Second street, from the property of Mr. South to Washington street.

Ref'd to Com. on Streets, with power.

Mr. Gardner presented the claim of John A. Thickstun, $19.62.

Ref'd to Com on Streets.

By Mr. Kaufman, the following: J. Van Winkle, $75, ref'd to Sal's Com. P. M. Demarest, 5.50 and T. J. Pruden 30, ref'd to Alms Com.

By Mr. Ginna, the following: J. O. Nodyne, $253.61, ref'd to Laws Com. E. O. Chamberlin, 52.90, ref'd to Com. on Printing.

The President presented a communication from John B. Brown Esq., tending his resignation as City Collector with the request that it be accepted at once and a committee appointed to audit his accounts.

It was moved by Mr. Lindsley, seconded by Mr. Kaufman, that a committee be appointed to confer with the Collector in relation to the communication. Carried.

The President selected as such committee: Messrs. Lindsley, Ginna and Livingston.

Mr. Ginna, from the special committee having in charge the examination of the late Collector's books, reported progress.

Mr. R. Simpson, from the special committee appointed to confer with the Mayor, reported that the latter positively declined to nominate Mr. Wm. B. Maxson for the office of Counsel to the Corporation, as requested.

On motion, the report was accepted and the Committee discharged.

Mr. Newhall from the Alms Com., reported with its approval the bill of the Plainfield Relief Asso., $41. The Com. stated that it contained two items not allowed by the ordinance—crackers 40 cents and indian meal 30 cents—but including the former under the head of "bread" and regarding the latter as "flour," the claim was assented to.

On motion the explanation was accept*ed and the bill referred to the Aud.* Com.

The same returned the December bill of the Relief Asso., without approval, as it included charges for butter, molasses and hominy, which articles did not come within the stipulations of the ordinance.

The Com., reported as correct the following: M. Bird, $16 27; Jas. M. Dunn, 4.30; A. Willett, 3.75; J. Flynn, 8; Langenbein, 6; J. M. Crane, 2.50; and Mrs. Wilkins, 9. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Also its approval of the report of the Overseer of the Poor, as presented at the last meeting. Report adopted.

Mr. J. Simpson, from Aud. Com., reported as correct the claims of J. C. Meeker, $27.88; R. Randolph, 20.50; C. W. Dodd, 56.34, and Morgan Bird, 62.50.

On motion of Mr. Kaufman, seconded by Mr. J. Simpson, warrants ordered drawn.

Mr. Newhall, from Finance Com., reported as correct the claims of John B. Brown, $48.82, and E. V. Shotwell, $50.

Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Thompson, from Lamps Com., reported favorably on the petition of the Board of Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital to have a lamp located at the entrance to the Hospital grounds.

Report adopted and petition granted.

Mr. Ginna from Laws Com., reported as correct the claims of Geo. W. Moore, $224.37, and J. O. Nodyne, $254.61.

Ref'd to Aud. Com.

*By consent of the President, Mr. Kauf*man was excused.

The Laws Com., also returned the claim of Magie & Cross, (referred to it at the last meeting) without approval, and recommended that the original bill of Cross, Bergen & Noe be paid as previously ordered from the Judgment Fund.

Carried; all aye.

The same reported its approval of the "Ordinance amending an Ordinance for the licensing and regulation of Hacks" &c.

Read the second time by the Clerk, and ordered engrossed perparatory to a third reading.

The same Committee reported that the City was not the only party that had jurisdiction over the vacating of Albert avenue. The authorities of Somerset Co., controlled it on the other side of the brook, and the county Boards of Freeholders were the managers of the bridge.

On motion, the Committee was requested to confer with the Township authorities of North Plainfield in relation to the matter, and report at a future meeting.

Mr. Livingston, from the License Com., reported its approval of the application of Messrs Roberts, Burniston, Boice, Kline and Eaton.

On motion, licenses granted; all aye.

Mr. Ginna, from Printing Com., reported as correct the claim of Runyon & Leonard, $69.25, and W. L. Force & Bro., $190.85.

Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Lindsley from Sal's Com., reported as correct the claims of A. Vanderbeek, $50; H. H. Lowrie, 62.50 and H. Hamilton, 29.50.

Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The same presented the following report:

PLAINFIELD, April 10th, 1882.

Your Committee have carefully considered the question of salaries of City Officers, and in view of the present state of our finances, do not feel justified in favoring an increase in such remunerations; therefore, in reporting adversely upon the resolution submitted, they would recommend that the salaries remain as below:

City Judge,	$300 00
City Physician,	250 00
City Treasurer,	300 00
Overseer of Poor,	200 00
Street Commissioner,	200 00
Chief of Police,	700 00
Regular Policeman,	500 00
Janitor,	50 00
and $2 00 for each special and adjourned meeting.
City Clerk,	350 00
Corporation Counsel,

H. LINDSLEY,
W. T. KAUFMAN,
JOHN SIMPSON,
Com., Sal. Officers and Elect'n.

Received and recommendations adopted. All aye.

By Mr. Newhall the following:

Resolved, That the committee on alms, or a majority of the same, be and are hereby authorized to cause to be placed in Muhlenberg Hospital for proper and necessary medical or surgical treatment, any person who may be entitled to receive the same under the provisions of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the Relief and Support of the Poor of the City of Plainfield,"—passed March 15th and April 9th, 1880; and the expense of said medical or surgical treatment and other necessary charges shall be paid out of the city poor fund, as provided by said ordinance.

Adopted, all aye.

By Mr. Ginna, a resolution to the effect that the City Treasurer be directed to pay outstanding warrants to the amount of $2,000 out of the City Fund, and all warrants to date against the Poor Fund.

Adopted, all aye.

Mr. Ginna presented for adoption an "Ordinance concerning the assessment, collection and enforcement of taxes in the City of Plainfield" &c.

Read the second time, by sections, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading.

On motion the bill of Assessor Hubbard for 1881, $453.85, was taken from the table and a warrant ordered drawn, in settlement, from the State and County Funds. All aye.

Mr. Lindsley inquired if the late Collector had paid over to the Treasurer the $400 he was holding for the Assessor's claim.

Mr. Ginna replied that the money had not been turned into the Treasury, as the late Collector had applied the amount to the settlement of another claim "some ways back."

Mr. R. Simpson presented a copy of the agreement of the authorities of Fanwood Township to keep in repair one-half of the road dividing the City of Plainfield and the Township of Fanwood. Rec'd and filed.

The Council then adjourned.

HE who builds the Plainfield Opera House, is going to secure a big interest on the investment.

Personalia.

Mr. Sidney Hulsizer has become the landlord of the Woodbridge Hotel, Woodbridge, N. J.

The many friends of Mr. Samuel Case, formerly a resident of Plainfield, and one of the firm of Dunn & Case, Central R. R. news agents, who went West for his health, will greatly sympathize with him in the loss of his only daughter Ella, who died on Saturday last, at Waterloo, Iowa, of acute consumption, in the 14th year of her age.

Mr. Morgan S. Taylor will again become a resident of North Plainfield and build a fine dwelling on Rockview avenue.

Mr. John L. Hall has left this city for Williamsport, Pa., where he will assist in closing up the business affairs of his late partner, Mr. F. B. Weed, recently deceased.

Mr. Samuel H. Stevenson and family are expecting to leave this city and take up a residence in St. Paul, Minn., where they have many friends and relatives.

The New Truck.

On Wednesday afternoon the long expected new truck for Zephyr H. & L. Co., arrived in this city and was received by the Board of Managers of the Department, the Chief and Assistants, No. 2 Engine and Hose Companies, the Foremen of the different fire organizations of Plainfield, the Chief of the Somerville Department, No. 1, of that city, Goodwill Band of New Brunswick, the Zephyr boys and a large gathering of our citizens of both sexes and all ages.

After being unloaded from the cars the truck was escorted to North avenue, where in front of the C. R. R. Station it was inspected by Commissioners Van Winkle, Jones, Gillies and Fisig. A universal feeling of disappointment and openly expressed opinions unfavorable to the apparatus was plainly apparent. It suited no one, and the almost unanimous verdict was that the old truck with new wheels would be worth a dozen like the new one. Strange to say, however, the abortion was accepted, and the President of the Fire Board placed the rope attached to the truck in the hands of Craig A. Marsh, Esq., with instructions to present the apparatus on behalf of the Board. Mr. Marsh spoke with much eloquence, and the fitness of his remarks may be judged from the following abstract:

"Members of the Fire Department of the City of Plainfield: The Fire Board of the City have empowered me to act in their behalf in the formal presentation of the apparatus now before us. Just why this pleasant duty was not assigned to President Van Winkle, I was not informed, but at the last moment, I think I have surmised. Whilst pursuing my studies in the State of New York I was frequently called upon to address public meetings, and almost invariably one and the same reason was given. The chairman would generally say that the meeting had heard from New York and California, from Maine and Texas, but they had a foreigner present, and they desired to hear from abroad. I therefore take pleasure in introducing Mr. Marsh from the other side, in fact from New Jersey. Now to-day there the full fledged Jerseyman is required, and rumor has it that your worthy President has renounced his allegiance to New Jersey, and become naturalized in the United states, or in the vernacular of this city, he has become a rooster. [laughter]. By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Fire Board I now tender to you, Frank Vail, Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department, this Hook and Ladder Truck to be by you presented to the Zephyr Hook & Ladder Company."

The rope was then handed to Chief Vail and he having requested the speaker to say a word for him, Mr. Marsh continued:

"It is said that Daniel Webster in an after dinner speech at Rochester, once spoke as follows: 'Men of Rochester, you have a waterfall one hundred and fifty feet high! Rome had her Cæsar and her Brutus, but in her palmiest days Rome did not possess a waterfall 150 feet high; Greece had her Demosthenes and her Socrates, but in her proudest days, Greece did not possess a waterfall 150 feet high. Men of Rochester, go on; no people ever lost their liberty who possessed a waterfall 150 feet high.' So I might say to-day men of the Zephyr Co. go on, no city was ever ravaged by fire that possessed a Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co. with a new truck. [laughter] But gentlemen there is an element of sadness in this occasion otherwise wholly joyful. You part with your old and trusty instrument. To those who have manned her, she has become as dear as life itself. Nor is this regard confined to your own company. Other companies, who have been repeatedly eye witnesses of the invaluable services of this old right arm of the Zephyr Co., have likewise acquired an affection for it almost akin to that of friendship. And those of our citizens whose business is such as to prevent their active participation in the noble and magnanimous work of a volunteer fire department, are not strangers to her. By their fruits, ye shall know them is true of other things besides fig trees and thistles. We know of her works. We have seen her in her accustomed place fully equipped, ready on an instant's warning to respond to the alarm bell; we have seen her in all the regalia and pomp of the holiday parade, glistening in the sunlight, a thing of beauty, and we have seen her at the conflagration, an indispensable factor the battle with the flames, and it has witnessed many an act of bravery. And so I say there is an element of sadness in parting with the old truck—a thread of sombre hue in a cloth of gold; but just as it is said in music that a more charming effect is produced by a discord ending in a harmony, so here perhaps our regret, at parting with the old may only serve to enhance our appreciation of the new. We always regret the demolition of an old landmark, but we rejoice in the stately structure which takes its place.

"Members of the Zephyr Co., if I should say that your chief, and the fire board and the city ask no more of you than to do as good work with the new as you have rendered with the old, I am sure I should express a sentiment in which all would concur. But you know Napoleon used to say that in the affairs of war he noticed that Providence always favored the heaviest battalion, and so I may say that I have noticed that in the affairs of war with the flames, Providence always favors the best equipped and most skillful company, and so may we and hope that with your increased facilities, you will ever surpass yourselves. In behalf of your Chief I present to you this beautiful apparatus. [applause.]"

A short parade through the principal streets of the city followed, after which the Zephyrs entertained their friends with a bountiful collation in the Truck house. Around the "festive board" were gathered many, and a few appropriate words were spoken by His Honor the Mayor and most favorably received. The ceremonies of the day closed with an all night ball at Laing's Hall, which was attended by a large number of merry dancers. This part of the affair, was in charge of Floor Manager, Joseph Cueny; Assistants, S J Robinson and Erwin Waters, and Reception Committee, Messrs R R Davis, C H Smith and N W Conway.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

No changes were made in the game laws of this State by the last Legislature, although the fish law was so amended as to allow the catching of black bass with hook and line from the 1st of June instead of July 1st. A bill was introduced in the Senate and passed that body, which, if it had also passed the House, would have presented the game laws in a simplified and satisfactory shape. Owing however, to the excitement and confusion in the House over the railroad and water front bills, at the end of the session, it was found impossible to bring the bill up and pass it. The game laws, therefore remain the same as last year as follows:

BIRDS.	OPEN SEASON.	Penalty for Infringement
Ruffed Grouse,	Nov. 1st to Jan. 1st.	$15
Quail,	Nov. 1st to Jan. 1st	15
Woodcock,	July 1st to Aug. 1st & Oct. 1st to Dec. 15th.	15
Rail Bird,	Months of Sept., Oct & Nov.	5
Reed Bird or Marsh Hen,	Aug. 25, to Dec 1.	5
Prairie Chicken,	Oct. 15th to Dec. 1st.	10
Upland Plover,	Aug. 1st to Jan. 1st.	10
Summer Duck,	Sep. 1st to Jan. 1st.	5
ANIMALS.
Gray Squirrel,	Sept. 1st to Jan. 1st.	5
Black Squirrel,	Sept. 1st to Jan. 1st.	5
Fox Squirrel,	Sept. 1st to Jan 1st.	5
Rabbit,	Nov. 1st to Jan. 1st.	15
Deer,	Close season for 5 years from 1881. Then only between Oct 31 & Dec 1st.	50
FISH.
Salmon Trout,	March 1st to Oct 1st.	10
Brook Trout,	March 1st to Oct. 1st.	10
Black or Oswego Bass,	June 1st, to Nov 1st.	25

The law strictly prohibits any set lines or nets in streams stocked by the State with game fish, under a penalty of $25 fine, or any devices whatever that will interfere or deter said fish from ascending the stream.

The penalty for killing any insectivorous bird, or taking or destroying the eggs of such birds is $10 for each offence.

The penalty for trapping or snaring any Game Bird at any time or place, either on one's own property or that of another, is $10 for each and every offence.

☞ Non-residents not complying with the By-laws of the Game Protective Societies of this State are prohibited from shooting in its limits under a penalty of $50, or imprisonment until the fine is paid.

Non-residents desiring to comply with the game and fish laws, may become members of The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society by addressing the Secretary, Plainfield, N. J.

But few English snipe have been killed on the meadows along the Passaic this Spring. The birds did not seem to tarry long after their arrival. The present spell of cold weather will have a tendency to keep back the flight of snipe, if indeed it has not already passed us.

Boys should remember, and their parents impress upon their minds, the fact that a penalty of Ten Dollars is likely to be imposed for every case of violating a State law in killing a robin or other insectivorous bird.

The Board of Directors of "The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society" held their regular monthly meeting at the Mansion House Wednesday evening last. Among other important business transacted was the appointment of a committee to secure suitable rooms for the use of the Society, which will be furnished in a suitable manner as a club room for the use of the members.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

The vacant lot at the corner of South street and Manning avenue has recently been sold, and rumor says that upon it is to be erected the chapel of the new Catholic church that Father Brady is about to establish in North Plainfield.

Mr. Theo. F. French having declined the office of District Clerk, Mr. Frank H. Gardner has been persuaded, against his desire, to accept the position and add another to the many offices of trust and emolument (?) he has been honored with.

Upon the best of authority, we feel warranted in stating that the Committee on the New School Building will report in favor of locating it upon that very desirable lot bounded by Somerset street and Linfield, Mountain and Summit avenues. The property is a part of the Marsh estate, and seems, in view of the rapid growth of the town that is to follow its improved facilities of education, to be very suitably situated.

Mr. Stephen Staats, former proprietor of the Rock House, recently discovered that some parties unknown, had dug a large hole, some three feet in length, under one of the large rocks so prominently situated on the brow of the mountain, and known as Washington and Lafayette Rocks. It is conjectured that the parties were in pursuit of imaginary hidden wealth, and were not inclined maliciously.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The Rev. B. F. Cory, of Elizabeth, N. J., occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on last Sunday. After the service he read a letter from the Rev. Charles Young, of Long Branch, declining to accept the unanimous call given to him a few weeks ago by the church and congregation.

William Decker and wife, of Jerseyville, Illinois, brother of Postmaster Decker, arrived last week at Westfield, to pay a visit to his brother, after an absence of about 15 years.

Postmaster Decker has put up a fine new awning in front of his store and Post Office. It is of home manufacture. All Mr. Decker wants now to make it complete is to have his name painted on the front.

There has been quite an exciting contest the past few weeks at Naar's shooting gallery, on Broad street, over a solid gold rifleman's badge, presented by Mr. Naar to the person making the best score with rifle, in fifteen shots. Four gentlemen, Messrs. Robert Woodruff, Jr., C. E. Aguirre, R. P. Cory, and C. E. Vail, tied twice on 74 and 75 points, and on Saturday last they decided to shoot off the ties, Mr. Robert Woodruff, Jr., being the lucky man or the best marksman, making a score of 72 points out of a possible 75. From the talk of one of the contestants the past few weeks, everybody supposed he could not be beat. He gave out that he was going to win the badge, and could not be beat, and even went so far as to take the badge to our jeweler and tell him how he wanted him to fix a ring to it so he could wear it on his watch-chain; but in the final contest he got left. The following is the score:

Robert Woodruff, Jr.,	72 points.
C. E. Aguirre,	69 "
R. P. Cory,	69 "
C. E. Vail,	67 "

The explosion of the giant powder factory at Star Landing, about 3 miles south of Rahway, on Sunday last, was distinctly heard and felt at Westfield, jarring the buildings and windows, a number of the residents imagined an earthquake had struck the town.

A special meeting of the Westfield Game and Fish Protective Society was held on Tuesday evening, April 11, 1882, at the Hook & Ladder Co's. room. There was a good attendance of members. The President of the Society, Mr. John J. Willis, occupied the Chair, and C. E. Young, Secretary. The Chairman stated that the object of the special meeting was to take into consideration an amendment to the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society, in regard to the amount of initiation fee, and whether or not there should be any annual dues. After considerable discussion for and against the proposition, it was resolved that the question be submitted at the annual meeting of the Society on the second Tuesday of May next, whether or not the amount of initiation fee for new members be raised to $5.00, and annual dues 50 cts or remain as it is now, $2.00, initiation fee and no annual dues. This Society is in a very flourishing condition, and the present board of officers and directors deserve great credit for the time labor and expense they have been to in stocking the farms with quail. Every farmer should join the Society, as it will be a great protection to them from the pot hunters who roam over their lands in the fall, besides shooting game, break their fences down and kill their poultry.

The Woodruff cottage on Mountain avenue, has been rented by real estate agent P. Pearsall to Mr. H. P. Cleeve, of New York, who expects to occupy it the first of next month.

Mr. Post, the new proprietor of the old De Baud hotel, is generally liked by the public. The house has been re-fitted in fine style, and the new proprietor promises to make the hotel a popular resort.

Mr. James Burtis has opened Exchange Stables on the Nicholl property, where any person desiring a good horse may secure one always at a fair price. Mr. Burtis, besides being a good judge of horse flesh, is an honorable man to deal with.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

2. And be it enacted, That the stenographer of the court of oyer and terminer may be present for the purpose of furnishing information to members of the press concerning the execution.

3. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 1, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

An Act concerning corporations.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases where the bonds of any corporation created by or organized under any act of the legislature of this state, have been heretofore issued, and which bonds are due or about to become due, or may be paid by such corporation at its option, it shall be lawful for the board of directors of such corporation to increase its capital stock in order to provide means for the payment of such bonds, and for that purpose to issue and sell the shares of such increase of capital stock for cash only, and in such manner as they deem best, at a price not below the par value of such shares; but no greater number of shares shall be issued or sold than shall be sufficient to raise an amount sufficient for the payment of the principal sums secured by the said bonds and the interest accrued thereon; and certificates of stock shall be issued to the purchasers of such additional shares, upon payment in cash of the purchase price thereof; and the holders of the said shares of the increased capital stock hereby authorized, shall possess and exercise the same rights and privileges in all respects as are possessed and exercised by the holders of the other shares of the capital stock of said corporation (other than the preferred stock thereof); and the proceeds of the sale of the shares representing such increase of capital stock shall be applied to the payment of such outstanding bonds as aforesaid, and to no other purpose whatever.

2. And be it enacted, That if the capital stock of any corporation shall be increased, as is authorized by the preceding section of this act, it shall be the duty of its president and secretary, within thirty days thereafter, to make a certificate under their respective oaths or affirmations, setting forth what bonds of such corporation have been paid by the proceeds of increased capital stock, and the number of shares of the increased capital stock thereof that have been issued for that purpose, and to cause such certificate to be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state of this state.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 2, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

An Act in relation to the improvement and maintenance of certain roads.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any county in this state where the custody, rule, keeping and charge of the jail of such county, and of the prisoners in such jail, has been heretofore or shall be hereafter assumed by the board of chosen freeholders of such county according to law, it shall be lawful for such board to improve and keep in repair any road, or part thereof, in such county, the title to which has become vested in such board, and to put and keep at work thereon such prisoners detained in the county jail as may be lawfully required to work at hard labor; which prisoners may be taken from and returned to the custody of the warden or keeper of the county jail each day, under such rules and regulations as the said board may from time to time prescribe, and by such person or persons as the said board may employ for that purpose, and an escape from such person or persons shall be deemed an escape from jail; the said board may employ such agents and provide such implements as may be needed for carrying into effect the provisions of this act; provided that the entire expense incurred hereunder in any one year shall not exceed one-fortieth of one per centum of the taxable valuation of such county for the next preceding year, which expenditure may be in excess of any limit heretofore fixed by law for the annual expenditures for account of "public works" by any such board; and provided further, that all such expenses for men employed in the care and oversight of such prisoners while working upon any such road or roads shall be paid on demand to the board of chosen freeholders by any township or by any city using the labor of the prisoners under the provisions of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any such board to incur any damages for widening or straightening, or for changing the lawfully established grade of any road or highway; and this act shall not be construed to alter the provisions of any city charter in relation to the improvement of streets or highways, and no street or highway within the corporate limits of any city shall be improved or repaired by any board of chosen freeholders under the provisions of this act, without the written consent of the corporate authorities of such city first had and obtained for that purpose by such board.

3. And be it enacted, That the warden or keeper of any county jail from which prisoners may be taken to be put and kept at work as provided in the first section of this act shall not be liable in any way for the escape of any prisoner during the time such prisoner shall be out of the custody of the warden or keeper and under the charge of the agents to be provided by the board of chosen freeholders as aforesaid, and every such agent shall give bonds to such board in such sum as shall be required conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and the exercise of due diligence in the safe custody of the prisoners entrusted to him and their prompt return to the jail whence they have been taken.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect on the first day of May next.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of sidewalks in the townships of this state," approved April fifth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section nine of the act to which this is a supplement be amended so that the same shall read as follows:

9. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed; provided, that this act shall not be taken as repealing any special act or acts, or any part or parts thereof, regulating the construction of sidewalks in any townships of this state, but this act shall be deemed and taken as granting an additional separate authority and method for the construction of sidewalks in any such townships; and further provided, that in any petition presented under this act the petitioners shall therein state that such improvement is petitioned for under the provisions of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

An Act relating to the licensing and regulating of bill posters in cities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the common council, board of finance, or other legislative body, however designated, of any city in this state, to provide by ordinance for the licensing of bill posters in any such city, and to adopt such rules, regulations and restrictions with reference to the conduct of the said business and the persons by whom it may be carried on, as to it shall seem proper; provided, that the consent of property owners in front of whose premises bill boards are erected, or bills posted, shall be first had and obtained; and it shall also be lawful for said common council, board of finance or other legislative body of any city, to exact an annual license fee from the persons engaged in said business, which said license fee may be levied and collected for the purpose of regulation.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be a public act and shall go into effect immediately.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XL.

An Act to provide for the better protection of the drivers of horse cars on street passenger railroads in the cities and towns of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter all horse car passenger railroads in the cities and towns of this state shall provide a proper seat upon the front platform of each car for the use of the driver, on such car, when driving the same, under reasonable restrictions by the company operating such car as to the use of the said seat in going up or down grade or otherwise.

2. And be it enacted, That any such company failing to comply with the requirements of the first section of this act, shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars, for each day any car belonging to them, shall be in use without such seat, to be recovered in an action of debt, before any justice of the peace, or district court, in the county or city where such railroad may be, by any person suing for the same; one-half of said forfeiture to be paid to the county treasurer of the county where such suit is brought, and one-half to the person who shall prosecute the same to effect.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XLI.

Supplement to an act regulating fisheries.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act it shall be lawful to commence fishing in any of the waters of this state, with hook and line, for black bass, on the first day of June, in each and every year.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XLII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the punishment of crimes," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be unlawful to expose to public view the body of any person who shall have suffered the infliction of the death penalty either in this state or in any part of the United States for the crime of murder, after such body shall have been delivered from the custody of the sheriff; and it shall be unlawful to have any public funeral or gathering in connection with the burial of the body of any such offender.

2. And be it enacted, That prior to the delivery of the body of any such person upon whom the death penalty shall have been inflicted to the relatives or friends, or to any person or persons, or to any association, the party or parties so applying for possession of such body, shall file with the sheriff having custody of such body, a bond in the sum of one hundred dollars, with two sufficient sureties, which bond shall be forfeited to the county in case of a violation of the provisions of this act; and if no application for such body be made, and bond filed, on or before the day on which the death penalty is inflicted, the sheriff may deliver such body to any surgeon or medical college for dissection, or he may cause such body to be otherwise properly disposed of.

3. And be it enacted, That any person or persons offending against the provisions of this act, and being convicted, shall be deemed and adjudged to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment at hard labor not exceeding six months, or both.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XLIII.

An Act in relation to public education.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act any officer of public instruction of this State, being intrusted with the funds of any school board and not directed by law to give security for the same, shall enter into such security as any school board under whom he may serve shall direct, before entering on the duties assigned to him by said board.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 3, 1882.

CHAPTER XLIV.

An Act authorizing fire departments to renew matured and maturing bonds.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any incorporated fire department in this state may, and it shall be lawful for such fire department to renew such of its bonds as have been legally issued and are now due, and to renew seventy-five per centum of such bonds as have been legally issued and that will become due on or before first day of July, in the year eighteen hundred and eighty-four, by the issuing of bonds for that purpose in denominations of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and payable in periods of time not exceeding ten years from the date of issuing the same, bearing interest not exceeding six per centum per annum, and which said bonds shall be signed by the president and treasurer of such fire departments, and shall have coupons attached for every half year's interest until due, and which coupons shall be signed by the treasurer of such corporation and numbered to correspond with the bond to which they shall be attached, and all bonds issued under this act shall be numbered, and a register of such numbers, and the date of issuing, and the time of payment, shall be made by the treasurer of such corporation, and which bonds may be sold at not less than their par value at either public or private sale.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 3, 1882.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

SOME NEW GEOGRAPHY

"Of what is the surface of the earth composed?"

"Of corner lots, mighty poor roads, railroad tracks, base ball grounds, cricket fields and skating rinks."

"What portion of the globe is water?"

"About three-fourths. Sometimes they add a little gin and nutmeg to it."

"What is a town?"

"A town is a considerable collection of houses and inhabitants, with four or five men who 'run the party' and lend money at fifteen per cent. interest."

"What is a city?"

"A city is an incorporated town, with a Mayor who believes the whole world shakes when he happens to fall flat on a cross-walk."

"What is commerce?"

"Borrowing $5 for a day or two and dodging the lender for a year or two."

"Name the different races."

"Horse race, boat race, bicycle race and racing around to find a man to endorse your note."

"Into how many classes is mankind divided?"

"Six; being enlightened, civilized, half civilized, savage, too utter, not-worth-a-cent and Indian agents."

"What nations are called enlightened?"

"Those which have had the most wars, worst laws and produced the worst criminals."

"How many motions has the earth?"

"That's according to how you mix your drinks and which way you go home."

"What is the earth's axis?"

"The lines passing between New York and Chicago."

"What causes day and night?"

"Day is caused by night getting tired out. Night is caused by everybody taking the street car and going home to supper."

"What is a map?"

"A map is a drawing to show the jury where Smith stood when Jones gave him a lift under the eye."

"What is a mariner's compass?"

"A jug holding four gallons."—Detroit Free Press.

It is said if you sit down when assaulted by a ferocious dog, the beast will not touch you. But the judicious man will select as high a seat as possible—at the top of a tall tree for example.

Moving.

During the past few days almost everybody's neighbor has "moved" or made up their mind to move. The causes assigned for indulging in this luxury, may be called legion, as well as the tastes of those who move, and it may not be improper for us to "notice briefly" a few of the reasons which impel—or circumstances which compel—the general movement. For instance: some will move because it is the time of the year to do so; others, because they want to "get even" with the family across the street who are going to move; others will move, or sell out, or both, because their self-assumed aristocratic standing, or ideas, are not appreciated as they should be, by their illiterate, or common-place, neighbors. Others move because their landlords have accepted the promises of more rent from other parties. Others again, move because of polite invitations to "git up and git" by penurious landlords, who are "so particular about the payment of the rent." We have known people who have acquired a habit of moving about once a month, because they would rather do that than pay rent. With such people, a borrowed wheelbarrow and a full moon are very important auxiliaries. Their goods, moreover, are of the most portable nature, and therefore it is no trouble for them to move, provided they can get a place to move in to. But there is a class of people who move in high society (or high social circles) who have a "high old time" when they move. They never move across the street or any where else in town; they move from the city to the country and vice versa. This way or manner of moving, possesses peculiar advantages, as the job is always done a night, and the darker the night, the better for the purpose; for it is the most convenient way to "get the drop" on importunate and unfortunate creditors, who have dropped into their meshes like flies into molasses. It is certainly a very great annoyance for such people when they are about to load up their household effects, to be pestered by a swarm of grocers, butchers, fishmongers, coal-dealers, dry-goods men, tax collectors etc. etc., hence the convenient custom of moving away in the dark. Some of our city merchants will appreciate the full force of these latter remarks, and call to mind certain "personal recollections" with peculiar pleasure(?) Another very great advantage of moving at night is, that it prevents inquisitive neighbors from scrutinizing the quantity and quality of your household effects and "passing remarks" upon the same. There is also a class of people who don't move, or will not move. Amos —— that is to say—a constable, a sheriff, a fire, a flood or death, are the only calamities that can be brought to bear upon them with any degree of success. Some people would as soon have the small pox as to be compelled to move. It has been said that "three moves is as bad as a fire," but everybody knows that it is 250 per cent worse than a fire, provided you have your furniture well insured. We pause just here to state that this theme admits of very widely extended remarks and observations and we feel that it requires more space than we can spare at present in order to do full justice to such an important subject.

The Atlanta Constitution seems to be an authority on kissing, and gives the following as the peculiarities of the girls of several of the States:

"The Maine girl, tall and ruddy, kisses as if she was making an impression in the chewing gum of her native State. The Massachusetts girl kisses in the Greek style, flavored with brown bread. The New York girl goes at it as if she were dabbling in a Wall street speculation. The kiss of the New Jersey girl is fiery as the taste of apple-jack, better known as Jersey lightning. Little Delaware girls are as soft as the peaches which grow there. A Maryland kiss is rich and juicy as a terrapin stew. In the Old Dominion you are met with a genuine hospitality; the girls kiss as though they wanted you to stay. The Ohio girl is described as possessing all the comprehensive qualities of the Ohio man—she wants all she can get and gets all she can. A Louisiana girl is said to be like eating sugar-cane, while the North Carolina girls stick like tar."

Legal.

An act has been recently passed by the Legislature in reference to delinquent taxes. It provides that all persons owning property or paying taxes, who are delinquent in their taxes assessed previous to 1881, shall be allowed one year in which to liquidate their arrearages, with an addition of 7 per cent. interest.

A ton of gold makes a fraction over half a million dollars, and when a man says his wife is worth her weight in gold, and she weighs 120 pounds, she is worth $30,000.

An inquisitive young lady asks: "What is the most popular color for the bride?" A New York paper answers: If we were going to marry we should prefer a white one.

THE PLAINFIELD
STEAM CARPET CLEANING,
Mattress and Feather-Bed
RENOVATING CO.,
Nos. 2, 4 and 6 East 3d Street,
(NEAR PEACE.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

We desire to call the attention of the public to the method of Cleaning Carpets of all grades, and of "Extracting Moth" without beating, shaking or stretching, Renovating the Carpets more thoroughly than in any other way without injury to the fabric by the Celebrated Rader Patent, for which we have secured the right, and we invite all who may feel interested to visit the machines in operation.

PRICES.

Ingrains and 3-Ply,	3c. per yard.
Brussels and Tapestry,	4c. " "
Moquet, Velvet, Wilton and Axminster,	5c. " "

The Mattresses and Feather-Beds are Renovated by the Popular Manley Process,

Which has been in operation in Plainfield for the past three years, giving entire satisfaction, and for which we can furnish testimonials from all the leading physicians, and as many as desired from the citizens generally.

The Mattresses, Beds, Pillows and Bolsters are rendered free from DUST and MOTH by steaming, purified by the laws of evaporation, and dried by the heat of steam, so that no dry heat, or rather heat from fire comes in contact with the feathers at all.

We WARRANT all our WORK. Send for it and return it free of charge, within the City limits.

All goods while in our possession Insured against loss by Fire. Carpets taken up and relaid if desired. Also, furniture, &c., boxed and shipped.

C. W. WHITNEY, & CO.,
Managers.

All orders left at our office or the Real Estate office of Benj. A. Mumford, 39 North Ave. opposite the Depot, will receive prompt attention.

Laws of New Jersey.

CHAPTER XLVI.

An Act for the classification of cities in this state for the purposes of municipal legislation in relation thereto.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act, the classification of the cities of this state shall, for the purposes of municipal legislation in relation thereto, be as follows, viz: "cities of the first class," "cities of the second class," "cities of the third class," "cities of the fourth class."

2. And be it enacted, That "cities of the first class" shall consist of all cities in this state that have within their territorial limits a population exceeding one hundred thousand inhabitants; that "cities of the second class" shall consist of cities in this state that have a population within their territorial limits of not less than twelve thousand nor more than one hundred thousand inhabitants; and that "cities of the third class" shall consist of all cities in this state not embraced within either the first or second class as herein distinguished, except cities bordering upon the Atlantic Ocean, and being seaside or summer resorts; "cities of the fourth class" shall consist of the cities of this state bordering upon the Atlantic Ocean and being seaside or summer resorts.

3. And be it enacted, That it shall be a sufficient classification of cities to which any law hereafter enacted shall apply, to refer in any such law to cities under the classification herein provided by the classification herein designated, and such law shall be construed to apply to and embrace all cities of the class referred to in the act; and all courts of this state shall take notice of this classification and construe all legislation founded upon the classification herein designated, as if this act were a part of the law under consideration, when any law passed on the basis of the classification in this act shall in any wise be called in question.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 4, 1882.

CHAPTER LIII.

An Act to forbid the assumption of the title of port warden by persons not duly appointed.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no person not duly appointed by the governor, by and with the consent of the senate, to the office of port warden, shall within this state assume to be a port warden or give himself out as such.

2. And be it enacted, That no person shall within this state make, sign or issue any certificate, report or other paper purporting to be made or signed by any person not so appointed, in which certificate, report or paper such person not so appointed, as provided in section one of this act, is designated or described as a port warden, whether of this or any other state, or any [illegible] thereof.

3. And be it enacted, That no person not so appointed, as provided in section one of this act, shall have, permit or continue in or about his premises, place of business, or office, any sign, token or notice that he is a port warden, or that he can or will act as a port warden, or give notice or advertise that he is such or will act as such.

4. And be it enacted, That any person violating any provision of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment not less than three months, or more than one year.

5. And be it enacted, That any person violating any provision of this act shall also be liable to pay a penalty of one hundred dollars for each offense, to be sued for and recovered by the attorney-general, in the name of the State of New Jersey.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 8, 1882.

CHAPTER LIV.

An Act concerning cities in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any city in this state where lands, dedicated to public uses, have been sold, and the purchase money thereof is required by law to be used for the purchase of other real estate, and the erection thereon of buildings, and the furnishing of the same for the same public uses as the property sold, if such purchase money shall not be deemed by the municipal board having the power to make such sale and purchase, sufficient to purchase property and erect buildings suitable for such public uses, it shall be lawful for such board to expend, for the purchase of real estate for such public uses, a sum not exceeding the amount received from the sale of said property so appropriated, in addition to such amount, for the purchase of [illegible].

2. And be it enacted, That to provide moneys necessary to carry this act into effect, it shall be lawful for the board having control of the finances of the city to borrow money for such purposes, upon [illegible] by the board having power to make such sale and purchase [illegible] in amount [illegible] bonds having not more than thirty years to run, and bearing interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, such bonds being issued in manner and [illegible] provided by law to be issued; provided, the issue of bonds under this act [illegible].

The Constitutionalist.

Published every Friday by
W. L. FORCE and A. L. FORCE.

ECHOES OF DEMOCRACY.

Until we come back to the ancient canons of our faith and reason aright as to the dividing line between State and Federal powers and politics, the administration of public affairs will go awry and misdirected policies lead to demoralization and corruption.

The fountain should be pure and the stream will then be less putrescent.

We cannot too often renew allegiance to the fundamental doctrines of Jefferson, essential as they are to the preservation of political freedom and the rights of man.

The relation of the States to the sovereignty of the people is the most interesting and important feature in our constitutional system.

The States are the people organized for home government into political communities with the most important attributes of sovereignty.

The people brought their State governments with them into the Union.

New York and Rhode Island, the greatest and the least of the States, side by side, came into the Union on terms of perfect equality.

In all the wide field of battle for the right, for the Constitution and honor of country, the Jeffersonian Democracy are standing to their arms, and bearing aloft their time-honored banners.

Strike out or disband the Democratic party and with it would end the last hope of constitutional liberty for the American people—

Its mission is the highest that ever engaged the services of mankind in temporal affairs.

Its organization is founded on the bed-rock of the Constitution.

Its first great leader was the wisest, boldest and truest friend of liberty regulated by law and secured by irrevocable guaranties.

Its hopes are not dimmed by weary vigils.

Its hands are not weakened by frequent conflicts.

Its history is civic strife for liberty and the Constitution, in which every page is emblazoned with great and patriotic deeds.

When the people are free and the despoilers are at bay, the Democratic party can rest on their arms as conquerors and enjoy triumph in the peace and prosperity of country.

GOVERNMENT.

The functions of government are, in reality few and simple. To protect the rights of person and property irrespective of class or condition, to enact and execute laws for public safety, to preserve order and advance the general welfare, to keep unblocked the pathway to individual prosperity by affording impartial encouragement and freedom to all citizens and every legitimate pursuit, and, as far as possible, through judicious expenditure and honest accounting, to lighten the burden of taxation and realize therefrom the greatest amount of practical good, constitute about the sum total of governmental duty.

Governments so carried on and faithfully upheld are blessings to the people, but perverted to contrary ends, they become oppressive and often cruel.

Under a Monarchy, the people are of little consideration other than as task driven servants for the support of princely nabobs and titled rulers.

Beneath a liberty professing, but corruptly swayed Republic, the people may degenerate into freemen only by name.

The government of the United States was established for the purpose of conferring equal benefits upon all citizens, and withholding tribute from any. Fashioned by wise and patriotic statesmen it is the most perfect system ever devised, and yet, unless closely guarded, it may be defrauded of its original excellence and become the prey of destroying evil.

True, privileged classes and absolute authority are unknown to our Constitution, but the fact nevertheless exists, that, even in this country, a moneyed aristocracy, as baneful in effect as the nobility of other lands, and capitalized extortioners, as mercenary as the military power of crowned potentates, may arise and rob the American people of their dearly bought inheritance.

Rigid devotion to the plain and positive principles of government ordained by the Constitution, and determined hostility to everything at variance therewith, whether openly avowed or secretly harbored, is to-day as it has been for the past four score years the aim and intent of the Democratic party. On that line Democracy will fight to victory.

KEIFERIZED.

It is generally understood that the selection of Mr. Keifer, of Ohio, as Speaker of the present House of Congress over Mr. Kasson and other qualified Republicans, was the intrigue and to do the bidding of such partisan beauties as Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania.

Speaker Keifer's one-sided formation of certain prominent committees clearly revealed the bargain, and recent action on his part furnishes additional evidence.

Among the official stenographers of the House was a Mr. Hayes, thoroughly versed in that important duty and always discharging it without fault.

The Speaker removed him.

Why?

Because he was a Democrat, as an American freeman he had the right to be.

To take his place, a notoriously insufficient man by the name of Dawson was appointed.

Why?

Because a political hanger-on of Navy Robeson.

Look at the result?

Dawson was assigned to report testimony in the matter of the Peruvian Company investigation before the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and made such a disgusting botch of the work that it was rejected as worthless by questioners and witness.

That is Civil Service Reform Keiferized, very much like playing Hamlet with the character of Hamlet omitted.

Were half the money squandered on partisan incompetents covered back into the Treasury, the surplus on hand would be largely augmented and the public service relieved of much burning disgrace.

PEORIA, Ill., April 17.—The Freeman of this city has been sold for $3,000, to J. A. Morgan, of the Tradesman and Manufacturer, who will change it to an evening paper. Judge Cochran has sunk over $10,000 trying to establish the Freeman as a Democratic organ in opposition to the National Democrat.

Conditional release has been offered to American subjects which has not been accepted. The American Minister has been instructed to demand their trial or release.

Edward J. Wambold, a brother of David Wambold, once a well-known minstrel, died at his home in Newark on Tuesday. He was a minstrel and well known in the profession.

The Ford brothers on Monday last pleaded guilty of the murder of Jesse James, were sentenced to be hanged and were immediately pardoned by Governor Crittenden. They were subsequently arrested and held to answer a charge of complicity in the murder of one of the James' gang.

John J. Kromer was arrested at Wenonah, Gloucester county, Friday evening of last week, on a charge made by Assemblyman Joseph H. Shinn, of Atlantic county, of attempted bribery on bill No. 167, before the Legislature at its recent session. Kromer gave bail to answer at the May term of the Mercer County Court.

New Jersey Central.

Last evening Hon. H. S. Little, Receiver of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, filed his long-looked for report as Receiver of the Company, in the Chancery Clerk's Office, in this city. It is as follows:

To His Honor Theodore Runyon, Chancellor of the State of New Jersey:

I, Henry S. Little, Receiver for the creditors and stockholders of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, respectfully report:

That I have made the inquiry which, by the order of the Court, dated March 6th, 1882, I was directed to make in reference to the report of the late Receiver, as to the solvency of the company, which report was contained in his answer to the petition of the Company for an order requiring the delivery to them of the property and assets held by him, and that I am unable for the reasons hereafter given to make a definite report on the subject. The assets are very numerous and of various characters. Those applicable to the payment of the unfunded debt consists (speaking generally) of three or four classes: One immediately available for the purpose without disadvantage to the Company or its business; another consists of assets which, though immediately available for the purpose, it would be disadvantageous in some degree at least, to the interest or business of the Company in connection with which they have obtained, to dispose of now; and another consists of assets, the value of which depends on different considerations, such as the market value of the property pledged for their payment. Some of them are very large interests in coal lands. To force these assets to sale now obviously would be, to say the least of it, extremely judicious. There are considerable assets whose essential and main value is in the business which they either control or secure. Preference is now made to the branch roads built to attract and secure important and lucrative business for the main line, in which point of view they are very desirable investments. There are also other real estate assets than those above mentioned, for instance property of the American Dock Company (the stock of which company is owned by the Central Railroad Company), which are exceedingly valuable, especially for terminal and other like purposes, by reason of their location and character. The availability of these for the payment of the unfunded debt depends on the opportunity for advantageous sale. It would manifestly be in the highest degree unwise to press them upon the market.

While I have refrained from expressing an opinion as to the value of the property and assets of the company for the reasons given, yet I see no reason to doubt that if they are properly managed and administered, the company in a brief period could pass out of the control of the Court.

Respectfully submitted this 14th day of April, 1882.

H. S. LITTLE, Receiver.

Yesterday Messrs. A. G. Richey, of this city, and Franklyn B. Gowen, of Philadelphia, appeared before Chancellor Runyon, at Newark, for the purpose of presenting a petition in behalf of Mr. Edward C. Knight, of Philadelphia, a large stockholder of the Central Railroad, asking that the Chancellor order the officers and directors of the Central Railroad to put a movement on foot which would bring about the election of a new Board of Directors to be held at an early date, in order that the present stockholders may have a voice in the management of the company. Ex-Chancellor Benjamin Williamson appeared as counsel for the Railroad Company, and Mr. Thomas N. McCarter for a large number of the stockholders. After a private consultation with the Chancellor, a petition, embracing an order, was agreed upon by the counsel on all sides, praying, among other things, the injunction now existing against the Central Railroad Company be so far modified as to allow the officers and directors to take the necessary steps for an election of directors by the stockholders.

The Chancellor granted an order that the injunction against the Central Railroad Company be so modified and relaxed as to permit the directors and officers of the Company to take the necessary steps for an election of directors by the stockholders.—True American, April 14th.

Chautauqua in 1882.

The Chautauqua Foreign Missionary Institute invites all friends of Missions, Foreign and Home, in every denomination and from every land, to its fourth annual gathering, in the beautiful grove beside Lake Chautauqua, a little west of the City of Buffalo, from July 29 to August 3. The great days at Chautauqua will be: Opening Day, C. Teachers' Retreat, and C. School of Languages, July 8; Memorial Day, C. Literary and Scientific Circle, July 9; Closing Exercises, C. T. R., July 28; Mid-Season Celebration, Saturday, July 29; Fourth Anniversary, C. F. M. I., Monday, July 31; Ninth Annual Assembly Opening, August 1; Closing Exercises, C. F. M. I., Thursday, August 3; Memorial Day Anniversary, C. L. S. C., Aug. 5; National Day, Aug. 5; Denominational Congresses, Aug. 9; Alumni Day—Reunion, Illuminated fleet, etc., Aug. 10; C. L. S. C. Day, First Commencement, Aug. 12; C. School Theology Day, Aug. 15; College Society Day, Aug. 17; The Farewell, Aug. 21. As in other years, the C. F. M. I., through its President, Dr. Vincent, secures a rich programme, and this it shall soon send out. Suggestions and inquiries will be welcomed by the Executive Committee: Congregational, W. A. Duncan, Esq., chairman, Syracuse, N. Y.; Baptist, A. H. Burlingham, D. D., New York; Presbyterian, Rev. M. B. DeWitt, McMinnville, Tenn.; Lutheran, Rev. J. A. Clutz, Baltimore, Md.; Methodist Episcopal, M. M. Parkhurst, D. D., Elgin, Ill.; Methodist Church of Canada, Rev. J. Philp, Belgrave, Ont.; Presbyterian, D. Cunningham, D. D., Wheeling, W. Va.; Reformed, Rev. J. P. Bobenkam, Philadelphia, Pa.; United Brethren in Christ, D. Berger, D. D., Dayton, O. Latest reports of all missionary work, also papers publishing the Chautauqua notices, are desired, that they may be seen in the missionary reading room at Chautauqua; these may be sent to the St. Mark's parsonage, Buffalo, N. Y., to G. F. Hard, secretary.

Still Collector Brown.

The public that have not been slow to appreciate the satisfactory service of Mr. John B. Brown as City Collector, will be glad to learn of the possibility that his resignation of the office will be withdrawn. If it can be so arranged that the committees which are desirous of making all sorts of delinquent-lists and other unabridged statements in detail of the ex-Collector's books for the past ten years, will attend to such business themselves, Mr. Brown can probably be induced to remain and transact the duties he was elected to perform.

Councilmanic Perplexities.

It was discovered that the necessary length of notice could not be given to allow of a special Council meeting on Monday, so such was called for this (Thursday) evening. As we go to press, consequently, that body is discussing the abolishing of the office of Counsel to the Corporation, the passage of the ordinance concerning the assessment and collection of taxes, and taking final action regarding the erection of telephone poles through the streets of the city.

A striped bass, weighing 21 pounds, which had been caught by Mr. George Labose in the Raritan River, was on exhibition at Reed's fish stand, New Brunswick, last Saturday night.

SHERIFF'S SALE—New Jersey Supreme Court. Between John R. Marsh, Plaintiff, and J. Dayton Winans, Defendant. In debt. Fi. fa. de bonis et terris.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias, to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-FOURTH DAY OF MAY, A. D., 1882,

At two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the village of Westfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a stake in the southwesterly side of Elm street, two chains and nineteen links from the corner of formerly John D. Miller's lot, now James E. Ferris; thence first, south forty-two degrees west along the lines of James McMurray two hundred and thirty-one feet to land of William T. Peck; thence second, along said Peck's line and binding thereon north forty-eight degrees west forty feet to a stake in an angle of (formerly) Corra and Jonathan Osborne's land; thence third, north forty-two degrees east two hundred and thirty-one feet to the side of said Elm street south forty-eight degrees forty feet to the place of beginning, containing nineteen-hundredths of an acre of land, more or less, it being the same land and premises conveyed to the said Winans by deed from Corra and Jonathan Osborn. Dated April 18.

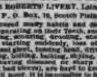
SEEK
health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?
You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.
How? By getting one bottle of BROWN' IRON BITTERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.
Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 26, 1881.
Gentlemen:—I have suffered with pain in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medicines, and was treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters; I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well—pain in side and back all gone—soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and flesh. It can justly be called the king of medicines.
JOHN K. ALLENDER.
BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is composed of Iron in soluble form; Cinchona the great tonic, together with other standard remedies, making a remarkable non-alcoholic tonic, which will cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Weakness, and relieve all Lung and Kidney diseases.

Look to Your Horses' Teeth!
DR. H. C. KUGLER,



VETERINARY DENTIST.
Office at ROBERTS' LIVERY, Laing's Hotel.
P. O. Box, 76, Scotch Plains.
I have cured many habits and diseases of the horse by operating on their Teeth, such as coughing, tracking, scouring, drooling, stopping short on road, starting suddenly, loss of flesh, hide bound, nasal gleet, tossing head, driving on one line, pulling, bolting, balking, shying, etc.
Horses having diseased or sharp teeth (often producing bad ulcers), are hard to keep in condition, and, if poor, it is impossible to fatten them. It often produces indigestion, cribbing, wind sucking, colic, etc.
After being treated by me, they become good drivers, keep in good condition, and are free from many vices. The most vicious or nervous horses operated upon with perfect safety and without injury. No charge for examination.

Ten Reasons
Why I Sell Cheap!
1st. I ATTEND TO MY BUSINESS,
and do not have to pay some one else to do it for me.
2d. I MANUFACTURE MY CLOTHING,
and save at least one profit.
3d. I BUY FROM FIRST HANDS,
and save from 10 to 25 per cent. by so doing.
4th. I DISCOUNT ALL MY BILLS,
which is a large item saved.
5th. I SELL FOR CASH ONLY,
No bad accounts to be added to my prices.
6th. I HAVE BUT ONE STORE,
therefore but one rent, and that very low.
7th. I HAVE THE LEAST EXPENSES,
under which my business can be properly conducted.
8th. I MANUFACTURE STRONG GOODS,
that give satisfaction, and are never returned.
9th. I UNDERSTAND THE BUSINESS,
having had 20 years' experience in the wholesale and retail clothing trade.
10th. I ASK ONLY A SMALL PROFIT,
and mark all goods at the lowest price for which they can be sold.
Give me a Call, and you will be satisfied with Prices and Quality of Goods.

IT will soon be time to "shoot that hat" and get a new one. E. M. Laing, No. 5 Park avenue, has a fine assortment of Spring and Summer styles of hats and caps.

SUBSCRIPTION papers, with many signers, are circulating for the relief of "Col." Johnson, who had his hand sawed off recently while working in Spicer & Hubbard's mill.

AT the Citizens' Coal Yard, opposite the Fanwood station, Mr. E. M. Johnston has always on hand a full stock of standard fertilizers. Also Bowker's lawn dressing, German Valley lime, by the car load and coal of the best quality.

CURTISS & GRIFFEN, at No. 13 East Front Street, are offering a new lawn mower with noiseless ratchet, light running, simple in construction, durable and cheap. Also a line of Stockbridge manures, dissolved bone and other fertilizers.

MESSRS. Bleecker & Mumford, in our advertising columns today, offer for rent a very desirable two-story and french-roof brick house on Jackson avenue. It contains 10 rooms and all improvements, at the exceedingly low price of $350 per annum.

WHAT she said: "If Plainfield doesn't have an Opera House soon, I think it will be just too horrid for anything. So!" What he said: "Its a blame shame that there hasn't been one built long ago." What they all say: "Plainfield needs an Opera House."

WE call attention to the Card of Mr. Clayton, counsel for B. F. Green, owner of the Driven Well patent. Mr. Clayton called at our office to-day, and we learn from him that the papers for suits are now preparing for those who failed to settle promptly.

DEMAREST, the Front street grocer, is offering in addition to the many table delicacies he has always in stock, a lot of the celebrated Davis Sugar Cured Hams. All who have tried them pronounced them delicious, perfectly sweet and of just the right "cure."

THERE is a saddening tenderness about the following sweet little obituary from the Detroit Free Press, which seems to lift us, as it were, beyond the confines of the illimitable into the thereness of the hereafter: "It took a little Oswego girl just three weeks to get to heaven by way of a jumping rope."

ON Friday afternoon last, a Rahway man engaged in loading his wagon at French's Mills, was thrown out by the sudden starting of his horse. He fell on the pavement and striking the top of his head cut the scalp severely, besides stunning himself. He subsequently recovered sufficiently to drive home again.

THE extensive business of Mr. L. L. Compton of this city, in the vicinity of Asbury Park, has so increased that he will open about May 1st a bakery and confectionery establishment at that place. He will thereby possess additional facilities for supplying dealers and others in that section of the State.

ON Saturday evening of next week, the old post office will be removed to its new quarters next to the First National Bank, and on Monday, May 1st, will open therein for business. During the first few days the sale of boxes will continue, and parties desiring may rent lock boxes at the same price they are now paying for others.

SLOWLY but surely the work of building a park at the junction of Broadway and Crescent avenue, is being done. With the $250 given by the Church facing it, and the $750 subscribed by residents in the vicinity, a beautiful plot of landscape gardening is to be laid out, in the centre of which will be erected a handsome lamp-post presented by ex-Mayor John H. Evans.

THE "Chips of the Old Blocks" that recently billed the city for a performance of the "Two Orphans" at Van Deventer Hall, failed to connect on Thursday evening of last week. We received a telegram stating that "the leading lady was seriously ill" as a reason for the non-appearance, but judge that the prospective poor patronage of Plainfield sickened rather the advance agent.

SPRING having come to impel the packing away of furs, Messrs. W. H. & R. Burnett, of Newark, again through our advertising columns notify the public of their readiness to take seal sacques and all kinds of fur garments on storage, insuring them against damage by fire or moth. Full particulars may be obtained by addressing the firm, at 17 Academy street, Newark, N. J.

FARMERS and others in want of unleached ashes and land plaster will do well to call at the coal and lumber yard of Mr. C. A. Smith at Fanwood, N. J. As he is the only authorized agent for these fertilizers in that section, and makes a specialty in the procurement of the same either by the car load or cargo, He will make satisfactory terms with purchasers. He is also agent for Lister Bros. Bone and Phosphate for Westfield and Fanwood.

THE remarkable display of the aurora borealis that covered the entire sky last Sunday evening was witnessed by thousands of people in this city many of whom were awe-stricken by the grand sight. Groups of people gathered on the corners until after midnight and continued gazing with exclamations of wonder and admiration. No similar display, of so extensive a character, was ever witnessed in this section.

MR. L. M. French, the carriage manufacturer of No. 18 Somerset street, has been so full of work that he has been compelled to engage a large force of extra workmen. Consequently he is now able to do repairing in all branches, besides having on hand a full stock of all styles and weights of fine carriages and low-priced wagons. Call and inspect his assortment before purchasing elsewhere, for you will then be convinced that his goods cannot be excelled nor undersold.

THE Telephone Co. commenced planting its poles on Monday.

THE storm on Wednesday night, was—as our readers are well aware—a combination of lustrous lightning, tumultuous thunder, boisterous breezes and submerging showers. Its like has not been experienced in this city for some time, and was received with all human gradations of admiration, awe, apprehension and alarm.

THERE were not sufficient funds in the treasury of the Plainfield Irish-Republican Club to pay P. J. Flanagan, Esq.'s fine for illicit liquor selling. In consequence the entire organization on Saturday last was taken to the County Jail for twenty days.

ON Tuesday morning last, Walker the baker's horse took the whole wagon, the bread and the cake at a lively rate of speed through Park avenue into Front street. The animal came to a stand still after a vain attempt to climb up the front of the building at the corner of Somerset street.

AT about five o'clock of Wednesday afternoon, Justice of the Peace, L. F. Wadsworth, missed his footing at the top of the stairs leading from the office of the City Clerk and fell to the bottom. Striking on his head the scalp was slightly cut and the unfortunate man knocked senseless, but after being carried into the drug store of Mr. R. J. Shaw, he recovered sufficient to be sent home in a carriage.

One Year Ago.

A partial list of the delinquent taxpayers (?) of the city, was published "by authority" in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. On Tuesday, Bound Brook was visited with the disastrous conflagration that destroyed such a large part of its business centre. On Monday the Council passed the ordinance providing for the issue of interest-bearing warrants, and Mr. Alex. Gilbert was elected to fill the existing vacancy in that body.

A Successful Ball.

On Thursday evening of last week, St. Mary's Hall was crowded till it almost overflowed, with about three hundred couples of merry dancers. The attraction that drew them together was the Eighth Annual Ball of the T. A. B. Society, which upon this occasion far surpassed any previous event of the sort that Plainfield ever witnessed. Cahill's sweetest music led the dancers through an extended order that was selected with great taste and judgment, and included everything from the stirring jig to the soothing waltz. The Committee of arrangements, composed of Messrs John Harding, John Welsh, Alexander McGuigan, Peter Flynn and Patrick Lynch, deserves great credit for the success of the affair in spite of its postponement. And much praise is due the following for their efforts during the evening, in securing the enjoyment of all: Floor Managers, Messrs Thos. Marley and Robert Manning; Floor Committee, Messrs John Motley and John Gery; Reception Committee, Messrs Charles Winston and Patrick Kenny.

Those Telephone Poles.

It is amusing to listen to the numerous theories advanced by those who always object to public benefits, in their endeavor to put forth a single substantial argument against the erection of the telephone poles in this city. One ridiculous idea is that the poles being so large are for use by some telegraph line, in spite of the fact that at least 60 wires will be necessary for the telephone subscribers already obtained—and even if it was another telegraph line, wouldn't it be a public benefit to have a little competition and lower rates in consequence? The superintendent of construction has, however, moved right along in spite of opposition and to-day the line of poles has reached Richmond street on the way from Netherwood. It is morever believed that the Council, at its meeting of last (Thursday) evening, will reaffirm the permission given last month for the company to carry out its intention. As the company not only connects free with the fire houses, Muhlenberg Hospital and City Jail, but also proposes to make such connection with the alarm bell as will ring it from the general office, those who are signing protests and endeavoring to impede the scheme in every way, are merely interfering with the good of the city and not effecting in the least the final result.

The Plainfield Academy.

The Spring distribution of medals at the Plainfield Academy for Boys took place April 6th, and the following young gentlemen were the fortunate recipients:

Daniel S. Adams, E. L. Walz, H. Johnson, W. Moore, J. Sandford, L. Echeverria, Adam Blair, F. Walz, E. Field, W. Sandford, W. Marsh, H. Lyon, W. Fenton, E. Finch, G. Lowe, H. Mayer, Seymour Marsh.

The school room, filled with boys, rang with applause as the names of the successful competitors were announced and as they came forward to receive their hard earned rewards. The evidence of thorough teaching and of good discipline, apparent everywhere, afforded ample explanation of the prosperous condition of this admirable school for boys. We understand Prof. Lyon intends to increase the facilities of the school the coming year, by engaging a Princeton graduate as Professor of the classics. We also noticed that accommodations are provided for pupils coming from a distance. The large airy rooms, pleasant surroundings, gentlemanly associations, and the enviable reputation of Plainfield for healthfulness, added to the excellence of the school, are advantages it is difficult to find combined elsewhere, and parties having friends living at a distance who have sons they wish to place at boarding school cannot err in recommending this thorough school for boys. We hope Prof. Lyon will be supported as he deserves to be, in his enterprising efforts to supply Plainfield with a school for boys that promises to be second to none in the country.

Clear the Sidewalks!

We are glad to report that there has been begun an attempt to clear our sidewalks of the crowds of loafers that block them. On Saturday evening officer Randolph ordered a New Brooklyn citizen that was standing on Front street opposite the Somerset street cross-walk, to move on; and followed his command with the arrest of a Plainfielder who stood by and loudly expressed his opinion of the Officer's orders. After remaining in the City Jail until Monday morning, Judge Runyon (with his usual lack of severity—except by word of mouth) released the prisoner with a fine of $3. If Officer Randolph will continue the good work and arrest a dozen or so each evening, the practice of loafing at the corners will cease, even if the City Judge, with his mistaken ideas of leniency to offenders, imposes ridiculously small penalties. That all may read and learn the provisions of the ordinance that covers the misdemeanor, we publish in full the section that applies to the offence.

"If any person obstruct the free passage of pedestrians by loitering or assembling on the streets, or on the corners of the streets, or on the sidewalks, or in front of any private or public building, or church, or place where religious services are held, or interfere with, or annoy in any way whatever, persons going to or returning from any place where religious or other services have been held, such person so offending shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the city or county jail, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court."

The Bric-a-Brac Club.

Invitations are out for the closing reception of the Bric-a-Brac Club, to be held at the residence of Miss Jean Murray, on Thursday evening of next week. This social organization has, during the past Winter, given many select evening entertainments, and its success has been as definitive as it was deserving.

David Swalm—Deceased.

David Swalm, the oldest brother of A. Swalm, Esq., of this city, died at the residence of another brother, Mr. Oscar Swalm, on the Coleman Farm, near Mt. Hope, N. Y., on the 23d of March. He was born at Montgomery, N. Y., but spent most of his life in Greenpoint. He was one of the small band of worshippers which organized the "Dutch Reformed Church," the services being held in his house on Franklin street. Mr. Swalm was the first elder of the Reformed Church and was also Superintendent of the Sunday School. David Swalm was the oldest of five brothers, children of Godfrey Swalm, who came when a boy to this country from Germany, being a brother of Sir Oscar Swalm, who was the heir of Hesse Cassel. Mr. Swalm died at the age of eighty-four.

"Rooms to Rent."

On this (Friday) evening at VanDeventer Hall, will be presented for the first time in this city, the four-act farcical comedy, "Rooms to Rent," and no one who desires to enjoy an evening of music, merriment and mimicry should neglect to attend. The characters are continually becoming involved in all kinds of scenes and situations, which are immensely amusing, and while there is no particular plot or purpose in the succession of laughable events, everything runs so smoothly and pleasantly that one does not care for the why and wherefore, but is simply content to enjoy. The piece is one of the most entertaining trifles ever presented in this city, and the characters are without exception excellently impersonated. During its acting Miss Johnson sings a plaintive but pleasing ballad. Mr. Holst does a droll burlesque ballet dance, and Mrs. Reynolds sings a spirited song, with a catchy chorus. The company's avowed object is to amuse, and they succeed admirably. In the words of their posters, "You can't afford to miss it."

Sadly Afflicted.

Following closely upon the death of his daughter as recorded last week, County Clerk Vosseller and family were again deeply afflicted on Saturday night by the loss of their boy Victor. On Thursday evening the little lad retired seemingly in perfect health, but forty-eight hours later his brief bright life had closed. The two deaths following so closely one another, have resulted from either the outrageous policy adopted by so many builders in contracting for cheap and improper plumbing to save cost, or from the culpable neglect of others in allowing the filling up of cess-pools placed too close to their dwellings. Other members of Mr. Vosseller's family have also been ill from probably the same source, added to the unsparing grief and distress of the sad losses. All are now, however, well again except from that heart sickness in which they have the sincere sympathy of so many friends and acquaintances. Those that were so suddenly taken away, died from severe blood-poisoning—quietly sinking into rest from the very instant they became ill. The last, little Victor—born as the news was brought to the father of his election as County Clerk, and named in honor of such event—is the sixth child that the loving parents have lost.

Where to Spend the Summer.

On the borders of a large and handsome sheet of water, situated in the very centre of the Lake Region of the Adirondack wilderness, is located the Tupper Lake House owned and managed by one of Plainfield's citizens—Mr. Wm. K. McClure. The spacious and elegant hotel contains accommodations for one hundred guests, and is furnished throughout with new and handsome furniture, hair mattresses and spring beds. The proverbial inconveniences of Adirondack hostelries are not to be found at the Tupper Lake House—open fire-places in the principal bed-rooms and parlors give a cheerful warmth, gas throughout the house expels the offensive and dangerous lamp and cold spring water from the surrounding mountains is conducted to all the floors. The advantage of the location to guests and sportsmen, has been briefly specified in a neat pamphlet on the subject, containing also extracts from the New York Telegram, Dr. Alfred Loomis and a list of guests who can personally recommend the place. This can be obtained, as well as terms and other information, by addressing Mr. McClure at Plainfield, N. J., up to May 10th, after which at Saranac Lake, Franklin Co., N. Y.

Personalia.

Miss C. Becker, daughter of Mr. Christopher Becker, the Front street dyer, sails for Europe on Saturday.

Mr. Augustus Van Deventer, after a Winter's residence in Philadelphia, has returned to this city with his family and is stopping at the Park House.

Mr. Clinton Van Fleet, son of Voorhees Van Fleet, Esq., of North Plainfield, has rented the Rev. Dr. N. E. Smith's house on Central avenue, where he will spend the Summer.

The family of Plainfield's popular Station Agent, Mr. J. A. Haynes, will remove to Elizabeth where they have rented a residence. Our sister city's gain will be our loss.

Mr. J. H. Adams, formerly of the firm of Martin & Adams, clothiers of this city, has returned after an absence of some years and again taken up his residence in Plainfield.

Mr. Charles H. Featherstone, a former resident of this city and an adopted son of W. A. Bass, Esq., died at Taylor's Island, Md., on Saturday last, aged 29 years. His sad demise while just entering manhood, will incite sincere regret among his large circle of friends in this city as well as heartfelt sympathy with the family that has lost so cherished a member.

At the M. E. church on Friday afternoon of last week, there was gathered a large number of sympathetic friends to take part in the effecting funeral ceremonies over the remains of Pauline Steiner. As during her short life of less than 16 years she had been so cherished and admired for her kind heart, charming disposition and beauty of character, so after her soul had flown to the God she revered and followed, the love of those who had known her on earth ascended with her to Heaven.

Late advices from a former resident of Plainfield, Mr. Joseph C. Ohl, who had charge of a sugar plantation on the Bayou Teche, near Morgan City, Louisiana, give a brief but gloomy condition of affairs there in consequence of the recent floods. He states the water rose to the second story of the dwelling house, covering entirely the plantation. Household goods were placed on a flatboat moored along side the building, and he was sleeping on a counter in the store, with three and a half feet of water beneath him. It is thought the worst is over, and the waters will soon subside, but the crops on the plantation are ruined and the stock lost.

People throughout New Jersey will find their taxes increased ten cents on the hundred dollars this year, through the action of the Legislature in levying a State tax.

State Tax.

COMPTROLLER Anderson has apportioned the new State tax among the counties. The whole amount is $827,451, of which $373,406 or more than one half is assessed upon five counties in East Jersey as follows:—Essex, $108,494; Hudson, $91,903; Passaic, $37,963; Union, $24,016; Morris, $21,040.

We Wonder!

Whether the city will be charged for the Central avenue bridge lamps that were not lighted during last Thursday night.

When Officer Lynch will follow Officer Randolph's example and arrest some of the "statues" on Park avenue at the corner of Second street.

Who will be far sighted enough to seize the opportunity of making a fortune by the erection of an Opera House in Plainfield.

Why there is no effort made to discover the ringers of false alarms.

When the other associations and organizations of the city are going to do as much for the Muhlenberg Hospital as the Saengerbund has.

Where the towers will be located that are to light the city by electricity.

Why the Council doesn't borrow the money it is empowered to, and pay off the entire amount of outstanding warrants.

Why Messrs Suydam & Jackson do not make complaint against the gang that occupies their office entrance every evening.

Which is the worse habit—smoking or tea drinking.

Why the Council does not publish officially the minutes of its meetings, as the laws of the State direct.

When any other paper in Union County will equal THE CONSTITUTIONALIST in popularity, enterprise and circulation.

Why there are no more deaths from diphtheria in view of the fact that such imperfect plumbing is allowed in the majority of Plainfield residences.

When Plainfield will have another Ball as successful as that of the T. A. B. Society, on Thursday night of last week.

Whether it is incorrect to say "yesterday was Thursday" or that "to-morrow is Saturday."

Why some people always object to, and "cry down" the introduction of any desirable public benefit of practical use.

FIRE MATTERS.

Since the importation of the new truck, false alarms have been the order of the day—or rather night. On Monday evening a large bon-fire, at the head of Duer street, and just back of Mr. Adam Fritz's residence, caused an alarm that gave the members of the Department a chance to exercise their pedal extremities.

During midnight of Thursday of last week, two citizens returning home from the T. A. B. Ball, discovered a quantity of "waste" soaked with kerosene that had been lighted and thrust under one corner of Flannery, Cooper & Harding's smithery on the corner of Church and Third streets. The flames were promptly extinguished and a disastrous conflagration thus frustrated. The ringing of the fire bell at about the same time, proved conclusively that the person or persons that had started the fire supposed the building would catch at once, and in consequence gave an alarm. If a slight effort was made to trace the one who rang the bell, the reason given by him for doing so might tend to reveal the identity of the incendiary.

On Friday evening an alarm was given that called out all the apparatus on this side of the brook. No fire required attention, however, and the Department was ordered back. No. 2's engine having steam up, took a wash at the brook back of Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co's factory, and worked as usual in a most satisfactory manner.

At two o'clock a. m., of Monday a real and genuine alarm was rung on account of the burning of the residence of Mr. John H. Brady, on Randolph road, between Madison avenue and Cedar Brook. Of the many awakened by the bell, some thought the Northern Lights had occasioned it, others that the alarm was the customary imposture. So few members turned out of their comfortable beds, that the different apparatus were a long while getting even so far as Park avenue and Fourth street. Here the Gazelle Engine and Truck companies came to the conclusion that the fire was beyond the limits, and returned to their houses, while the No. 2 Engine and Alert Hose companies proceeded to the scene of conflagration. The bell over the brook did not ring and Warren engine was not rolled. The origin of the fire is unknown, but so quickly did it spread that the inmates merely escaped with their lives and but scanty clothing. When Mr. Brady awoke the entire house was wrapped in flames, and one child was just rescued from its room in time to save it from a terrible death. The firemen arrived too late to be of any service. The personal effects of Mr. Brady were insured in the Firemans' Ins. Co., of Newark, for $600. The house, which belongs to the Dunn estate, was insured for $900 in the old Plainfield Mutual Co. About two years ago, Mr. Brady's barn on the same premises, was consumed and considerable live stock burned. A tramp with a female companion, stopped at the house last Sunday and insisted upon being allowed to stay all night. This Mr. Brady refused to agree to, but had to threaten the couple with a pitchfork before they would leave. In revenge, possibly, the house may have been fired by the importunate travelers. Mr. Brady's daughter, a young lady of about 19 years of age, intended to leave home early on Monday morning, and fearing that she would not be awakened in time, slept but lightly. Smelling smoke a little past midnight, she called her father, asked the time of him and inquired if he was building a fire so early. Mr. Brady on getting up found the hall full of smoke and opening the dining-room door was almost suffocated. As we said before, only the greatest activity resulted in saving the lives of the family. It is believed that the fire was started on the stoop of the house.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department held a special meeting in the parlor of No. 2 Engine Co., on Monday evening. Present—President Van Winkle and Messrs. Depew, Gillies, Morris and Flaig. Absent—Mr. Jones. A resolution was adopted directing the Secretaries of the several fire companies to hand in their rolls of membership, for use by the Board at the election of Chief and assistants, to be held on Monday, May 1st. The polls will be open from 7 to 9 o'clock p. m., at Alert Hose house. The new truck was officially accepted as satisfactory by the passage of a motion directing a settlement with the contractor according to the terms of the agreement.

The Alert Hose Co., on Monday evening nominated as its candidate for Chief, Mr. Benj. A. Mumford. The "returns" are now all in, and the companies stand as follows: Alert, Zephyr and Gazelle for Mr. Mumford; No. 2 and Warren for the present Chief, Mr. Vail. May the best man win.

On Tuesday evening another alarm (said to be incited by a "brush fire put on Central avenue") was rung in this city, followed by the loud clanging of the North Plainfield bell. The Department turned out and in again, with the alacrity attained by frequent practice. On this occasion some of the authorities awoke to a sense of duty, however, and arrested the ringer of the alarm; so at last, it is possible, an example will be made as a warning to other offenders of the same sort.

Seriously Ill.

Although possibly not dangerously sick, the many friends of Dr. J. T. Fritts will regret to learn of his serious illness. About a week ago the patient was afflicted with an exceedingly sore throat, so bad as to confine him to the house. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson who was called in, was afraid that diphtheric symptoms would set in, and watched carefully for the possible deposit that would indicate the disease feared. On Monday, however, a severe case of scarlet fever was developed, and Dr. Fritts now lies in a very critical condition. Even should his life be spared, as is earnestly and sincerely hoped, the effects that follow may be most serious and preferable only to death. The sick man has had no cases of the fever to tend for some time, and the rumors that he contracted the disease from a patient, are consequently without foundation. It seems to be in the air, and the condition of many at this season of the year make such unusually susceptible.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

At Somerville on Tuesday, licenses to keep an inn and tavern were granted Messrs. Joseph Blatz, George Demler and Jacob Bilman.

The Directors of the Somerset County Agricultural Society, announce that the Annual Fair will commence this year on Tuesday, Oct. 3d, and continue for four days.

The members of Warren Hose Co., are already agitating the project of a picnic early in June with a full brass band and a dancing platform twice the size of any ever before built.

The contrary types made us say last week that the lot purchased for the Catholic chapel in prospect, was situated on the corner of "South" street when we meant Somerset street.

Messrs. Isaac Brokaw and Theo. F. French are the North Plainfield members of the Grand Jury of Somerset county. The April term of Court opened on Tuesday last before Judge Magie.

Overseer Whitlock has been engaged during the past week in scraping the roads most satisfactorily. He has secured the scraper formerly owned by ex-Street Commissioner Hand of Plainfield.

A large gathering of North Plainfielders is greatly desired at the meeting of Tuesday evening, May 2d, to hear the report of the Select Committee regarding the proposed new school house and to act thereon.

Mr. David J. Carney one of our best known townsmen, lies seriously ill with erysipelas at his residence No. 18 Emily street. A slight improvement in his condition was noticed during the past few days, and the many friends of the patient will rejoice at such and future satisfactory progress towards recovery.

During the promiscuous wanderings of Wednesday evening's thunder storm, the residence of Mr. Jeremiah Bilyeau, on Greenbrook road near Duer street, was struck by lightning. No particular damage was done besides the tearing down of some of the paper on the walls; but the sulphuric atmosphere that filled the rooms was decidedly suggestive of a future state.

The Roman Catholic parish of North Plainfield is slowly but steadily developing into a substantial organization. Father Brady has proven to be just the active and untiring worker that was needed to carry out the project and secure its permanent establishment. On Sunday at 10:30 o'clock a. m., Father O'Hanlon will conduct mass at No. 76 Somerset street (the premises formerly occupied by Dr. White the druggist) and at the same place at 2:30 o'clock p. m., Sunday school will be held.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Robert Luckey, residing on Picton street, is the happy father of a daughter.

John De Long, of New York city, has rented the house of Benj. J. Crosby on Park street, and will occupy it this week.

Henry L. Webb, who resided for the past two years on Central avenue, has removed to the Hannah Miller property, Fourth avenue, Oakland.

Frank N. Earle has rented the Mc Reynold property, corner of Third ave. and Maple street, Oakland, through the agency of John D. Jaques.

Samuel Lockwood has opened a flour, feed and grain store on North avenue opposite Prospect street. It is the kind of a store long needed in our place and Sam deserves success.

John N. Wilcox, carpenter and builder, has secured the contract and has already commenced operation in erecting a new dwelling house on North avenue, for Mr. Theodore Hetfield.

The estate of Thomas Tomlinson has sold one of the fine building lots situated on Kimball avenue and Walnut street to Mr. E. Embree. It is one of the choice building lots situated on the Tomlinson property.

A young lad named Otis Fugerson, who came to work for James M. French about two weeks ago, took French leave on Tuesday last. Mr. French is to be congratulated in getting rid of him without any loss of property.

No. 3, Vol. 1, of the Westfield Methodist, published in the interest of the Methodist church of our town, made its appearance on Wednesday last. It is full of valuable reading matter. The paper is under the supervision of the pastor of the church, Rev. Warren Hoagland.

The irrepressible John Peiffer, lamplighter, has again been discharged from lighting the street lamps, and on Wednesday evening our citizens had a chance to realize what a benefit the street lamps were, a few of them only on Broad street being lighted, and the evening very dark and rainy.

The Congregationalist church is fast assuming proportions under the guidance of Joel Moffett, builder. The building committee made a great improvement in the appearance of the edifice in changing the original plans of the spire and make it considerable higher than at first contemplated.

On Sunday last the Sabbath Schools were opened, and on the following Monday the Public and Private schools, they having been closed for the past two months owing to the prevalence of Scarlet Fever in our town, which has now been pretty thoroughly cleaned up, only a few cases on the outskirts of the town remaining.

The hackmen at the depot ought to be stopped from soliciting passengers, upon the platform of the station. It is a nuisance to the strangers coming in our midst, to be pulled around by first one and then another of the different hackmen. Let them have their positions assigned each one, and if they overstep the bounds, send them out on North avenue.

Our new hotel proprietors, Messrs. Hart Moore and Samuel Godshalf, have been very busy renovating the hotel property since the 1st of April, and expect to be ready to open the building about May 1st, as a first-class hotel in every respect. No doubt success will attend their efforts, as both are hotel men and know how it should be kept for the public good.

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher delivered his lecture on the subject "Wealth, Luxury and Beauty," for the benefit of the Congregational church of our town on last Tuesday evening, in the Presbyterian church, which had been kindly offered to them for the occasion. There was a fair attendance, quite a number of persons coming from Plainfield and Cranford. The proceeds from sale of tickets, will net the church about $235. Mr. E. Embree, Esq., and others of the committee are to be congratulated for securing so able a lecturer.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an Impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

POETRY.

THE TAPESTRY WEAVERS.

Let us learn a New Year lesson—no braver lesson can be—
From the ways of the tapestry weavers on the other side of the sea.
Above their heads the pattern hangs, they study it with care,
And, as to and fro the shuttle leaps, their eyes are fastened there.
They tell this curious thing besides, of the patient plodding weaver;
He works on the wrong side evermore, but works for the right side ever.
It is only when the weaving stops, and the web is loosed and turned,
That he sees his real handiwork; that his marvelous skill is learned.
Ah! the sight of its delicate beauty, it pays him for all his cost;
No rarer, daintier work than his was ever done by the frost!
Then the master bringeth him golden hire, and giveth him praise as well.
And how happy the heart of the weaver is, no tongue but his own can tell.
The years of man are the looms of God, let down from the place of the sun,
Wherein we are ever weaving, till the mystic web is done.
Weaving blindly, but weaving surely, each for himself his fate;
We may not see how the right side looks, we can only weave and wait.
But, looking above for the pattern, no weaver hath need to fear.
Only let him look clear into heaven—the Perfect Pattern is there.
If he'd keep the face of the Saviour forever and always in sight,
His toil shall be sweeter than honey, and his weaving sure to be right.
And when his task is ended, and the web is turned and shown,
He shall hear the voice of the Master; it shall say to him "Well done!"
And the white-winged angels of Heaven, to bear him thence shall come down,
And God shall give him gold for his hire—not coin, but a crown.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE BLUE SATIN BOOTS.

There was a church fair and festival on hand at Waynesville; and all the young ladies were in a state of feminine flutter.

Pretty, brown-eyed Jenny Carson had one of the fancy tables. She had also a new dress for the occasion. The soft, shining folds of dark-blue silk were draped over the bed, and Jennie was kneeling upon the floor, and arranging the loops of satin ribbon to her taste, when Miss Bell Dorsey, who was Jenny's most intimate friend, burst into the room.

"Oh, what a pretty dress, Jenny! You'll look ravishing in it. You only need a pair of blue satin boots to match it; and then you'll be the best dressed girl at the festival."

"But—satin boots are very expensive," said Jenny, hesitatingly.

"Oh, well, yes—somewhat. But there's nothing sets off a lady's appearance like nice shoes and gloves. I heard Doctor Chester say he never considered a lady well dressed, if she wore ill-fitting boots or gloves." And Miss Bell complacently crossed her own pretty French kids, while Jenny nervously put away the pretty silk.

What Doctor Chester said, was beginning to be a matter of some moment to Jenny Carson. She was conscious of a longing for the blue boots; but, alas! they were too expensive for her.

Miss Bell presently took her leave; and Jenny, with half her pleasure spoiled, went on with her preparations.

"Well, daughter," said her father, at the dinner-table, "do you need any fallals for your frolic to-morrow?"

"Yes, I do need some new shoes and some gloves," said Jenny.

"You do, eh? Well, what must I give you to buy them with?"

"Whatever you can spare, papa."

"Well, here's a ten-dollar bill. I guess that will be enough. Get a good, sensible pair of shoes, now; something to keep you warm this cold weather, and no flimsy things."

"Yes, sir. Thank you, papa. I'll do the best I can," says Miss Jenny. But she blushed; for, in her heart, she felt very guilty.

However, she did mean to buy a pair of warm kid boots for every-day wear. She hoped to get the blue ones for about four dollars, which would leave her enough for the others and for the gloves.

But, when she stood in Turner's store and asked the price of the dainty, shiny things offered her, the clerk promptly answered: "Seven dollars, Miss Carson."

"Oh, dear! I was in hopes they were cheap," frankly confessed Jenny, laying down the boots.

"Indeed they are cheap," said Mr. Wheeler. "I assure you, Miss Carson, we have sold these right along at eight dollars. This is the last pair, so we offer them for less. They're very fine."

"Yes," admitted Jenny.

"Nothing sets off a dainty foot like a pair of these fairy-like boots," pursued the wily clerk, with an eye for his trade. "Very few young ladies could wear so small a shoe—just your size, you see, Miss Carson."

Poor Jennie sighed; thought of the thick, warm boots she ought to have, cast a longing look at the blue beauties, recalled what Dr. Chester said, and—silly little puss—for once, let her vanity run away with her reason.

"I'll take them," she said. After the boots were paid for, there was barely enough left to buy her gloves and a ribbon or two.

The next day, the great one, was clear and cold, with a sharp wind. Overshoes would ruin the dainty, satin boots; but, luckily for Jenny, the ground was dry. But, it was frozen hard, and when she reached the gaily decorated church, her feet were like ice.

Jenny presided at one of the fancy tables. She made a lovely picture, in the beautiful blue silk; her throat and wrists shaded with softest lace, and the dainty, blue boots, fluttering in and out below the plaiting of her skirt.

Bell Dorsey was already at her post, and, as Jenny came up, she opened her eyes wide and exclaimed: "Oh, my! You blue angel! Did you drop from the clouds?"

Jenny laughed; and happening, just then, to catch a glance from Dr. Chester, who stood near, blushed with pleasure, while the gentle heart in her bosom throbbed tumultuously.

Jenny had a very busy day of it. There was much buying and selling, and Jenny's table was very popular. But, as the new church was large and not yet finished, it was not very warm. The girls at the table were chilly all day, and by the time evening came, Jenny's feet were so numb and cold that she could hardly stand.

A hot supper, however, had been prepared at the hotel just across the street. Dr. Chester waited on Jenny at the table. Glad enough was she to get something warm and be near a fire.

But, Dr. Chester, though kind and polite, was not what he had been. He seemed strangely cold and distant and Jenny felt as if her bright day was spoiled. But girls know how to hide these things, and Jenny was the gayest of the gay. She had to return to her stall again immediately after supper, and, oh! how sharply the cold struck her as she stepped out into the night.

Dr. Chester left her at the door of a small room, designed for a vestry, but now used by the ladies as a dressing room. Jenny ran in to put off her wraps, but, while doing this, heard her name spoken in the narrow passage without.

"It's all settled, I suppose, Doc, between you and Miss Carson," was what she heard.

"No, Fred. I've seen the folly of that to-day." The tones which answered were the well-known tones of Dr. Chester.

"You astonish me!" replied Fred.

"I don't mind giving you the reason, Fred," said the doctor. "Just look at that young lady's feet, and you will have it. In spite of this cold day, she wears nothing but a flimsy pair of blue silk shoes. I have more than fancied Miss Carson, I don't deny it. But, you will see at once, that a girl who can so utterly sacrifice her reason to her vanity, is not the wife for a poor, struggling doctor, with his fortune yet to make. But, enough of this. Let's go in. It's chilly here."

Poor Jennie! Fortunately, there was no one in the dressing-room but herself. She flew to the farthest end, and hid her burning face on a pile of cloaks. But, after a brief struggle, she rallied. It would never do to cry. It would never do to go to her table with red eyes. It was a very erect, firm-mouthed, little lady, who walked to her table, presently; and the heels of the pretty blue boots came down upon the floor, with a sharp resolute little click; for Miss Jennie had made up her mind to do something very odd.

"I am a little fool," she said to herself; "but I don't quite deserve to lose a good man's opinion; and I won't either, if I can help it."

It was late, before she was ready to go home. Just as she was about to start, Doctor Chester, who was her escort, handed her a pair of overshoes, saying, quietly, as if it were a matter of course:

"Miss Jennie, please put these on. It is too cold a night for thin shoes, as I see you wear."

Poor Jennie! Her face was scarlet with mortification. She made out to utter a confused "Thank you," and put on the offending overshoes, without another word. Then she took the doctor's arm and they went out together.

Jenny's heart was beating so fast, that it almost choked her. But she was as determined as ever. Before ten steps had been taken, she said:

"Doctor Chester, do you think it right, to condemn a person, for a single fault?"

"Certainly not," said the doctor, promptly.

"Then, why do you condemn me?"

"I don't understand you," said he.

"I heard every word you said to Fred Somers, to-night," rejoined Jenny, quietly.

"Miss Jenny!" He stopped, startled.

"I did. I don't blame you, doctor. I gave you reason to think me only a vain, silly girl. But, please hear my defense; and how sorry and ashamed I am, won't you?" And then Jenny penitent, made her little confession, ending with, "I don't know what you think of me, now; but, indeed—"

"I think you the dearest, bravest little girl in all the world; and 'tis I who am the fool," cried the doctor, ardently. And then—but then, I don't know, that outsiders, like you and I, reader, have any business to listen.

When Jennie got home, she took off the blue boots, which had so nearly cost her a lover, and flung them under her wardrobe, saying:

"Lie there, you blue wretches! But, you've taught me a good lesson. I've done with you. I'll buy my wedding boots, before long; and they'll not be blue ones, either."

LOYAL TO HIS STATE.

In a letter to Rev. E. A. Hamilton, of Deckertown, Mrs. Kilpatrick says that a few weeks before his death the General requested her to deliver his battle flag to the State of New Jersey, and she adds that she esteems it her sacred duty to comply with this request of her husband. And we believe the State of New Jersey will respond and show to this noble wife how well it esteems the high courage, patriotism and gallant services of her lamented husband. Prominent among the precious relics of New Jersey's proud participation in every struggle for the life of the Republic should be placed the pennon that so often accompanied to victory the brilliant cavalryman who brought honor to his State in the clouds above Chattanooga, in the raid around Richmond, and upon many hard fought fields in five of the rebellious States.—Iron Era.

From Union County.

The twenty-seventh annual report of the Board of Trustees of the State Normal and Model Schools, at Trenton, recently presented to the Legislature, shows that there were nine pupils in the institution from Union county during the school year for which the report is made—all ladies. One of the number was from Rahway, Miss Minnie C. Ayres. The city of Elizabeth had four representatives, Miss Nanie J. Ely, Miss Ella M. Fishbough and Misses Louise E. and Mirian E. Wheeler. The latter was a graduate in the advanced course. There were two pupils from Plainfield, Miss Mary M. Grace and Miss Carrie W. Ketcham. Two courses of instruction are pursued at the school, an elementary and an advanced course. The former covers a period of two years, the latter of three. The number of pupils in the school was 236; 41 young gentlemen and 196 young ladies. The treasurer's report shows the disbursements for the year to have been $29,570.69, of which $24,001.25 was for salaries. There was a balance of $5,504.42 in the treasury at the end of the school year. In the Model School the total number of students enrolled was 361, 172 in the male department and 189 in the female department. Among the names of students are those of Gustave Gorham and George J. Merrick, of Rahway, and Miss Jennie Brokaw, of Plainfield.—Elizabeth Journal.

We usually help those who are able to help themselves. Lightning can smash the earth without any assistance and yet man put up lightning rods for lightning to slide down on.

If man, or woman either, wishes to realize the full power of personal beauty, it must be by cherishing noble hopes and purposes, by having something to do and something to live for.

Easter Eggs.

Easter eggs symbolize the Resurrection, and they are colored red in allusion to the Blood of Redemption. The custom dates back to the ancient Hindoos, Jews, Persians and Egyptians, and it was symbolical of the mundane egg from which, according to an ancient tradition, the earth was hatched. It is said also to refer to the recreative powers of nature, which begin to be displayed in the Easter season.

Explosion in Rahway.

A low rumbling noise, resembling an explosion, was heard by many in this city on Saturday April 8. The cause of the same has since been ascertained to have been caused by the explosion of materials in the nitro-glycerine works at East Rahway. A deep hole in the meadow marked the place where the factory had stood. The shock of the explosion was felt for many miles. Fifty-four window lights in a dwelling house 500 yards away from the factory were shattered to fragments, and all the houses in East Rahway suffered more or less. Elizabeth, Linden, and Rahway proper were considerably shaken. The loss will probably not exceed $5,000.

WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE.

During the twelve weeks of the One Hundred and Sixth Legislature, which closed on Friday of last week, there were 243 Senate bills introduced and 384 Assembly bills; 64 Senate bills passed the House and went to the Governor and 134 Assembly bills passed through the Senate; 65 Senate bills remain unacted upon by the House and as many or more Assembly bills; 13 Senate bills were defeated in the House and the same number of Assembly bills in the Senate; 20 Assembly bills were not acted upon finally in the Senate, dying in committee or by postponement. There will probably be about 200 chapters in the laws of the session, but many of them are very short.

The happiness of the human race in this world does not consist in our being devoid of passions, but in our learning to command them.

The bill empowering township committees to improve streets has become a law without the signature of the Governor, but the good is as plain notwithstanding. Now townships can improve properties of citizens refusing to do so and sue for the amount of such improvement.

The inhabitants of Linden have voted to become a borough, only nine votes being cast against the proposition. The following persons have been nominated for Commissioners: John A. Etheridge, Meeker Wood, Walter Luttgen, Wm. H. Hood, Edward Gulager, F. W. H. Hahn and Ferdinand Blancke.

Wm. H. Winans, ex-City Treasurer of Newark, was arrested early Friday evening of last week at his house, No. 410 Plane street, Newark, on a charge of forgery of city warrants. The charge was based upon a discovery made by Expert Yalden, who has been engaged in an examination of the accounts of the city since last Fall.

The nomination of P. T. Quinn for Comptroller of Newark, was sent to the Common Council Friday evening of last week by Mayor Lang. The nomination was confirmed. Mr. Quinn has been for years identified with the New Jersey State Agricultural Society as Secretary and with the Newark Board of Trade.

The committee of the holders of Rahway bonds, appointed at the late conference, have met and discussed the question pretty fully. It is understood that they decided to procure the names of as many of the bondholders as possible for the purpose of consulting their views before submitting any proposition to the city authorities. It is thought that a compromise may be made at thirty cents.

Some time since we published in our columns a report that a large quantity of salmon eggs had been received by the New Jersey Fish Commissioners and placed in the hatching-houses at Bloomsbury. The hatching operation is over, and this week, it is expected, that 96,000 salmon fry will be placed in the Delaware river, in the hope that, like bread cast upon the waters, they will return ere many days.

Messrs. Seabury & Johnson, Manufacturing Chemists, 21 Platt St., New York:

Gentlemen:—For the past few years we have sold various brands of Porous Plasters. Physicians and the Public prefer Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster to all others. We consider them one of the very few reliable household remedies worthy of confidence. They are superior to all other Porous Plasters or Liniments for external use.

Benson's Capcine Plaster is a genuine Pharmaceutical product, of the highest order of merit, and so recognized by physicians and druggists.

When other remedies fail get a Benson's Capcine Plaster.

You will be disappointed if you use cheap Plasters, Liniments, Pads or Electrical Magnetic toys.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed and to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 10, 1882.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, hack, omnibus, stage, and truck owners and drivers, approved March 11, 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 2 of the ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 11, 1882, be hereby amended by inserting immediately after the words "according to the provisions of this ordinance," in the fourth line of that section, the words, "under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offence."

Sec. 2. That section 6 of said ordinance be hereby amended by inserting immediately after the words "according to the provisions of this ordinance," in the sixth line of that section, the words "under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offence."

Sec. 3. That during the months of September and October hack, omnibus and stage owners and drivers may be granted a permit by the city clerk for one week, and no longer, to keep or use for hire or wages a hack, omnibus or stage upon the payment therefor into the treasury of the city through the hands of said clerk the sum of two dollars and a half, and in addition thereto a fee of fifty cents to the city clerk for issuing the said permit. And no person or persons, except those regularly licensed under the provisions of this ordinance, shall have out or use for hire any kind of vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage, merchandise or other property, a holding in part within the limits of the city, as herein provided in this section, without such a specified permit, under the penalty of ten to exceed ten dollars for each and every offence.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 10, 1882.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning the assessment, collection and enforcement of taxes in the City of Plainfield, pursuant to an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "A Further Act concerning Cities," approved March 17, 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all taxes, whether state, county, municipal or other taxes, required by law to be raised in said city of Plainfield, shall be assessed between the twentieth day of May and the third Monday of August in each and every year, and shall become due and payable on the first day of October of each and every year, and shall be collected between the said first day of October and the twentieth day of December in each and every year, and all taxes so far as the persons assessed shall become and be delinquent on and after the 20th day of December in each and every year.

Sec. 2. That the commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation in said city shall meet on the fourth Tuesday of November in each and every year.

Sec. 3. That the collector of taxes in said city shall make returns of the names of all delinquents in the payment of such taxes as shall be so delinquent [illegible] on the twentieth day of December [illegible]

Laws of New Jersey.

CHAPTER LX.

A Supplement to the act entitled "An act to authorize cities to issue bonds to fund obligations incurred for street improvements," approved March sixth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the governing body of any city in this state which has heretofore issued "street improvement bonds" under the authority conferred by the act to which this is a supplement, to issue bonds of said city, to be styled "general street improvement bonds;" and that the proceeds of such bonds shall be appropriated only to the payment and cancellation of such "street improvement bonds" heretofore issued by such city, and that the amount of such "general street improvement bonds" shall not exceed eighty-five per centum of the amount of the "street improvement bonds" which shall mature and become due within sixty days from the issuing of the bonds herein provided for.

2. And be it enacted, That all the provisions of the said act to which this is a supplement, so far as the same are not inconsistent herewith, are continued in force and made applicable to the bonds hereby authorized.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1882.

CHAPTER LXI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act exempting firemen from taxation," approved March twenty-fourth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the first section of the act entitled "An act exempting firemen from taxation," approved March twenty-fourth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, shall be and is hereby amended, so that the said section shall read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all members of an organized volunteer or other fire department or salvage corps organized under the laws of this state, of any town, city, borough or township of this state, organized as an independent volunteer fire department, working under a special or general law of this state, incorporating said fire department, or organized under the control of any town committee, common council or municipal corporation, which are now or may hereafter be established, shall be exempt from the payment of taxes to said town, township, city and borough, to the extent and in the manner following, to wit: if the sum, at any one time, assessed by any assessor upon any member of said fire department, shall not exceed the sum of five dollars, then such member shall be exempt from the payment of taxes upon such assessment; if the sum, at any time, exceeds the sum of five dollars assessed against any member, then such member shall have credit for the sum of five dollars on the amount assessed against such member, and the amount over and above said five [illegible]

An Act concerning the appointment of city clerks in the cities of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act, the board of aldermen, council, common council or other legislative body of any city in this state of the fourth class as fixed by an act for the classification of cities in this state, shall appoint a city clerk for such city, in the manner provided by law for the appointment of other city officers by such legislative body; and such city clerk shall hold office for the term now provided by law.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 14, 1882.

TRUTH AND WISDOM.

To cherish peace and friendly intercourse with all nations, having correspondent dispositions.

To maintain sincere neutrality towards belligerent nations.

To prefer, in all cases, amicable discussion and reasonable accommodation of differences, to a decision of them by an appeal to arms.

To exclude foreign intrigues and foreign partialities, so degrading to all countries, and so baneful to free ones.

To foster a spirit of independence, too just to invade the rights of others, too proud to surrender our own.

To hold the Union of the States as the basis of their peace and happiness.

To support the Constitution, as well in its limitations as in its authorities.

To respect the rights and authorities reserved to the States and to the people, as equally incorporated with, and essential to the success of the general system.

To avoid the slightest interference with the rights of conscience, or the functions of religion, so wisely exempted from civil jurisdiction.

To preserve, to their full energy, the provisions of the Constitution in behalf of private and personal rights, and of the freedom of the press.

To observe economy in public expenditures.

To liberate the public resources by an honorable discharge of the public debts.

To keep within the requisite limits a standing military force.

To promote, by authorized means, improvements friendly to agriculture, to manufactures, and to external as well as internal commerce.

To favor the advancement of science and the diffusion of information, as the best aliment to true liberty.

Such were the publicly uttered sentiments of the Father of the Constitution, that thorough and renowned Democrat, James Madison, when inaugurated President of the United States, seventy-three years ago.

They were words of truth and wisdom then, and they are precisely the same now.

At that time they clearly and forcibly bespoke the faith of the Democratic party, and, without a particle of change, they do it still.

They compose the chart, by following which, under the Democratic statesmanship of Jefferson and Madison, our country grew in prosperous greatness, and which alone can safely guide her in the future.

LAND MONOPOLY.

The journals of the day mention that certain capitalists propose purchasing, or have purchased, for the purpose of cotton culture on a grand consolidated scale, an immense tract of land in the State of Arkansas.

We hear of similar large land-holdings for grain cultivation and stock raising in the North West, and some people argue that capital so concentrated and applied to agricultural development is beneficial, because of the alleged superior facilities it affords for increased valuable production, and the giving of employment to many laborers under one managing head.

That may appear plausible on the surface, but slight examination will show that it draws a mask over the most dangerous enemy of the general good—grasping monopoly.

The present curse of England and Ireland is the extensive ownership of land by the wealthy and privileged few, and the consequent dependence and poverty of the legions who drudge like slaves to till it for the emolument of lordly masters. That applies measurably to England, but especially to Ireland, where tenants and laborers are but slightly removed from the degradation of serfdom.

Monopoly is a heartless and blighting evil view it as you please, and in no way more so than when its gory talons clutch the national domain.

We want no lords of the manor in America.

Independent farmers and planters, cultivating their own lands, however limited in extent, and receiving direct returns for the full worth of their own industrious toil, is what the dignity of manhood, individual prosperity, and the glory of the Republic demand.

A thousand acres of tillable soil, the homestead property of and worked by twenty distinct farmers, is of infinitely greater national value than fifty thousand acres controlled by two or three capitalized owners.

Monopoly is altogether selfish and for the unprincipled few.

We battle for the free and just rights of the many.

That is Democracy.

RIGHT! SENATOR!

Senator Mc Pherson, of New Jersey, has caused to be arrested and held for trial the Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Herald for falsely associating his name with the unsavory Peruvian Company.

The Senator declares under oath that he never owned stock in or had any connection whatever with the Company, and that it is time to test the question of where the liberty of a citizen ends and where that of the press begins.

Senator Mc Pherson is right and deserves thanks for the position taken. Being himself not only honest and honorable, but able and determined, we hope he will succeed in putting an end to the despicable newspaper custom of defaming public men for the sake of sensation or malice, and totally devoid of fact.

There is a vast difference between liberty and licentiousness.

SENATOR McPHERSON ON THE RIGHTS OF CITIZENS.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, came to this city this morning and made an affidavit in the office of Magistrate Lennan charging Julius Chambers, the Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Herald, with a defamatory libel in an interview with James B. Mantrop, concerning the Peruvian Company. Mr. Chambers was given a hearing this afternoon at which he stated that he got all his information from Mantrop, who is now in prison. Senator McPherson testified that every portion of the article relating to him was false. He swore that he never bought nor owned a share of the Peruvian Company's stock and never had any connection with the company. He was not acquainted with Mantrop and never had to his knowledge any dealings with him. All that he knew of the Peruvian Company he had learned from the reports of the investigation now pending in Washington. W. W. Kerr, of the Star-route prosecution, acted as the Senator's counsel. Chambers was held in $1,000 bail to answer at the next term of court.

TO OUR READERS.

The gentleman whose name we to-day place at the head of our local page as City Editor, is too well known to the majority of you to need more distinct introduction. During his past few year's connection with us we feel convinced that he has served the people with general satisfaction and undoubtedly occupies a position in the kind remembrance of all. The public recognition we to-day give but faintly expresses our personal appreciation of his talents and ability.

A RASCAL.

Ex-Governor Moses' photograph has gone into the New York Rogue's Gallery. Another Democratic outrage, we suppose. Moses was once the thieving Governor of South Carolina, when that State was under carpet-bag rule.

The Democratic Congressional Committee have appointed a Board of Control, consisting of Congressmen Flower, of New York; Rosecrans, of California; Cobb, of Indiana, and Randall, of Pennsylvania; Senators Davis, of West Virginia, and Gorman, of Maryland, and J. R. McLean, of Ohio; C. C. Baldwin, of New York, and J. P. Stockton, of New Jersey.

Warren Ackerman's suit against Jos. A. Halsey, President of the Mechanics' National Bank of Newark, N. J., to recover the amount of money he lost by the failure of the bank has been dismissed.

New Jersey Labor Statistics.

In New Jersey last year the average sum earned by skilled workmen was $607, and by common laborers $374.55 each. The report of James Bishop, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industry, shows that New Jersey is ahead of all other States of the Union combined in the production of silk goods. These goods are manufactured by eighty-four firms, in whose mills were consumed last year 1,572,078 pounds of raw silk. The capital invested in the business is $7,524,200, and the value of the product $18,053,210, one dollar of capital annually reproducing $2.50 in silk goods. The average number of hands employed was 14,152, of whom 5,458 were men, 5,175 women, and 3,489 children. Their average earnings per day were: Men, $1.81; women, $1.01; children, 63 1-10 cents; skilled men received as high as $4 and skilled women $2 a day. In the entire United States there are 383 silk mills, employing 31,300 hands, who are paid $9,000,000. These mills furnish 39 per cent. of all the silk goods now used by us. Twenty years ago all but 13 per cent of the silk goods consumed in the United States were imported.

New Jersey holds the fifth place among the iron-producing States. Skilled mechanics earned $2.32 per day and unskilled $1.21. There was paid in wages 16½ per cent of the value of the products manufactured—$10,241,896.

In the hat factories, which produce 538,626 dozen hats, over 91 per cent of the total value of the product went to the employees. The average daily wages was for men $2.07; for women, $1.66; for children, 73.05 cents.

In the pottery industry, for every dollar of capital invested $1.12 was produced. It gave employment to $3,682 persons. The average daily wages was $2 01 for men, 88 cents for women, and 70 cents for children.

The brick, glass and clay industries yielded $1.34 for every dollar invested. Thirty-seven per cent went into the hands of the employees. The average daily wages of men varied from $2 to $1.10, those of women from $1 to 75 cents, those of children from $1.12½ to 40 cents. Skilled workmen earned as high as $5 a day.

Glass blowers and nail cutters were paid the highest wages, their yearly average earnings amounting to from $900 to $1,080.

Unskilled workmen made annual average earnings as follows: Employees in canning factories (10½ hours), $237.90; brick yard laborers (10 hours), $368.75; puddlers' helpers (11½ hours), $375; nail factory feeders (boys, 10 hours), $287.50; glass batch mixers (10 hours), $390; glass packers (9½ hours), $390.83; railroad employees (11½ hours), $399.29; 'longshoremen (10 hours), $425; miscellaneous iron workers (9½ hours), $438; miscellaneous glass workmen (10 5-6 hours), $383 89; miscellaneous occupations (10½ hours), $457; laborers unclassified (10½ hours), $349.93.

In those industries where all or the greater part of the employees are women or children, the pay is not only comparatively small, but the hours of work are many, and in general, as the number of hours increase the wages decrease.

Of the 11,000 employees mentioned in the report the wages of 1,916 were increased last year, while those of 571 were reduced. The advance was among glass blowers, harness makers, hatters, iron moulders, shoemakers, trunkmakers, machinists, printers, bricklayers, carpenters, masons, painters and carriage makers. Among those who suffered a reduction were miners and jewelers, and silk workers in some departments.

Farm wages averaged, without board, $22.39; with board, $14.86 a month. New England paid $22 76, without board per month on yearly engagements, but the cost of subsistence there was $9 a month against $7.53 in New Jersey.

The New Jersey Central.

The following report of the condition of the Central Railroad of New Jersey has been filed at Trenton by Receiver Little. Its preparation was somewhat delayed owing to the fact that the receiver has only been in office for a short time, and the report was not completed before the death of Receiver Lathrop:

LOCAL ANNEX.

Courtesy Prevails.

The action of a majority of the Common Council on Thursday evening of last week, in voting down the passage of the proposed ordinance to abolish the office of Corporation Counsel, cannot be too highly commended. Certain members have opposed such intention from its origination and should receive every credit due their discernment of the discourtesy it effected, their appreciation of the unlimited expense to the people it would permit by the allowing of unrestricted fees for the services of a counsellor and their manly course in standing by their own convictions against the contrary pressure brought to bear. Those, however, who after advocating the passage of the ordinance and using every endeavor to accomplish such an end, were sufficiently impartial and unprejudiced to see the error of their ways and courageous enough to publicly signify that assurance—those, especially, are to be congratulated upon the defeat of the ordinance and the triumph of justice realized by good breeding. If, during the continuance of their term of office, Councilman Rushmore, Depew, Ginna, Kaufman, Lindsley, Newhall or Thompson is an active promoter of any scheme that may not seem for the best interests of the people, the latter—judging by the vote of last Thursday evening—will be slow to believe the members mentioned guilty of any action antagonistic to their intelligence, culture or the instincts of a gentleman.

It is now rumored that the Mayor, in pursuance of his repeatedly expressed desire to nominate for the office a person acceptable to a majority of the Council (outside of Mr. Kimball whom the Council won't have, and Mr. Maxson, whom His Honor will not name), will, on Monday evening, present for confirmation as Counsel to the Corporation, Craig A. Marsh. Although in our judgment, Mr. Marsh is no better fitted for the position than Mr. Kimball or Mr. Maxson, no more do we believe that either of the latter has or would have served the City with more ability, satisfaction or success than will the proposed nominee. It is said that eight votes for confirmation are assured—if so, we are glad to learn that at least one of the advocates of abolishment is manly enough to accept the ruling of the majority and unite in an endeavor to promote harmony for the people's good. Let spite and malice now give way for the benefit of the public, and personal prejudice be buried beneath the interests of the community.

To the Public.

The Plainfield Post Office, by order of the Postmaster General, will be removed and opened for business on Monday morning May 1, 1882, in the Schorb Building, adjoining the First National Bank. It will be fitted up and entirely re-furnished throughout with all the latest improvements to facilitate the business of the office and the convenience of the public. The charge for Lock boxes will be 50 cts. per quarter; 3 keys will be given with each box and a deposit of $1.00 will be required, for which a receipt will be given and money refunded upon the return of keys. The Call boxes will be 30 cts. per quarter. The Lock boxes will number from 520 to 1075; the Call boxes from 0 to 519 and from 1080 to 1599. As far as possible the present box numbers will be reserved for the parties now owning them, until other arrangements are made.

The Driven-Well.
Office 758 Broad St., Newark, N. J.

March 28th, 1882, Judge Nixon, in U. S. Circuit Court at Trenton, decided 81 test cases under the Driven-Well patent, in favor of N. F. Green. "Six learned Judges in different Districts have substantially agreed in the construction of the patent." "Almost without a parallel in the history of patent litigation." "One of the most remarkable inventions of the Century."

"The Complainant is entitled to a decree."

The patent has been sustained on final hearing in six U. S. Circuit Courts.

$10 license fee for use of each domestic driven-well. All unlicensed makers or users of driven-wells are liable to immediate suit without notice. Licenses to "use" Driven-Wells in the State of New Jersey, (except in Newark City, Atlantic, Ocean and Monmouth Counties, and that part of Plainfield which is in Union County), can be obtained on application to

N. F. GREEN,
No. 758 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.
J. C. CLAYTON,
No. 7 Warren Street, N. Y. City.

"Parties in North Plainfield and vicinity can obtain licenses or have new driven wells made, upon application to Stephen O. Horton, 15 Somerset Street, North Plainfield."

Strengthens the muscles and nerves, enriches the blood.

Overcomes weakness, wakefulness, and lack of energy

Keeps off all chills, fevers, and other malarial poison.

Will infuse with new life the weakest invalid.

37 Walker St., Baltimore, Dec. 1881.
For six years I have been a great sufferer from Blood Disease, Dyspepsia, and Constipation, and became so debilitated that I could not retain anything on my stomach, in fact, life had almost become a burden. Finally, when hope had almost left me, my husband seeing Brown's Iron Bitters advertised in the paper, induced me to give it a trial. I am now taking the third bottle and have not felt so well in six years as I do at the present time.
Mrs. L. F. Griffin.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will have a better tonic effect upon any one who needs "bracing up," than any medicine made.

THE PLAINFIELD

Brussels and Tapestry,	[illegible] " "
Moquet, Velvet, Wilton and Axminster,	[illegible] " "

The Mattresses and Feather-Beds are Renovated by the Popular Manley Process,

Which has been in operation in Plainfield for the past three years, giving entire satisfaction, and for which we can furnish testimonials from all the leading physicians, and as many as desired from the citizens generally.

The Mattresses, Beds Pillows and Bolsters are rendered free from DUST and MOTH by steaming, purified by the laws of evaporation, and dried by the heat of steam, so that no dry heat, or rather heat from fire comes in contact with the feathers at all.

We WARRANT all our WORK. Send for it and return it free of charge, within the City limits.

All goods while in our possession insured against loss by Fire. Carpets taken up and relaid if desired. Also, furniture, &c., boxed and shipped.

All orders left at our office or the Real Estate office of Benj. A. Mumford, 29 North Ave., opposite the Depot, will receive prompt attention.

Look to Your Horses' Teeth!
DR. H. C. KUGLER,

VETERINARY DENTIST.
Office at ROBERTS' LIVERY, Laing's Hotel.
P. O. Box, 16, Scotch Plains.

I have cured many habits and diseases of the horse by operating on their Teeth, such as coughing, fretting, scouring, choking, stopping short on road, starting suddenly, loss of flesh, hide bound, nasal gleet, loosing head, driving on one line, pulling, bolting, balking, shying, etc.

Horses having diseased or sharp teeth often producing bad ulcers, are hard to keep in condition, and, if poor, it is impossible to fatten them. It often produces indigestion, cribbing, wind sucking, colic, etc.

After being treated by me, they become good drivers, keep in good condition, and are free from many vices. The most vicious or nervous horses operated upon with perfect safety and without injury. No charge for examination.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

OYSTERS are ostracized.

OH for "that Opera House."

START the soda-water fountains.

TWO Council meetings on Monday evening next.

A WORD of advice for you, young man: Begin to-day to lay up your ice cream money.

TIGHT pants are very pretty, there's no rubbing that out, but what awful feet they make.

THE newspaper is the the bulletin board where every good business man announces his general orders.

SPRING, glorious spring is here. The pithy radish is on sale, and the robins begin to yank the early worm.

THE would-be paragraph-punsters are beginning to record the usual Spring series of "moving accidents."

MANY a young man (and old one) has, during the past week, repeatedly quoted Byron's sentiments—"Take Bock."

IT has been noticed that while there are many ladies who do fancy work, there are a great many more who don't fancy work.

THE Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, meets in regular meeting on Wednesday evening of next week.

OUR public would be favored with many an entertainment as enjoyable and ably rendered as "Rooms to Rent," if Plainfield only had that Opera House.

We have every assurance that a public reading room is soon to be thrown open, as a result so far of the labors of the Board of Directors in charge of the scheme.

THE corner stone of the Episcopal Church at Scotch Plains, will be laid with interesting and appropriate ceremonies, on Sunday afternoon, the 30th inst, at 4:30 o'clock.

AT the nursery of Mr. Chas. Peterson, Peace street, facing North avenue, may be found a large assortment of garden plants at most reasonable prices. Also a fine lot of rustic stands.

OF the twenty-one newly elected Boards of County Freeholders in this State of New Jersey, the Democrats will control in twelve counties and the Republicans in nine.

LAST Summer's drought played "hob" with so many strawberry beds that grave fears are entertained for the crop this year. Is the festive strawberry shortcake to be a mockery?

If the farmers will commence now and give their poultry a small quantity of sulphur with their food, and sprinkle a little coal oil over the hen house once a week, they will never be annoyed with vermin, the fancier's pest.

IT is stated that there are at least 182,000 milch cows, valued at over $6,000,000, in New Jersey, producing annually nearly 92,000,000 gallons of milk. In this connection the statistician should also have given us the number of pumps in New Jersey.

A MOST talented company in an extremely funny comedy called "Rooms to Rent," entertained a large audience at VanDeventer Hall on Friday evening of last week. A better combination of artists or a more enjoyable play, has never before visited this city.

WE are informed by citizens of veracity, that ice formed in and about Plainfield on Sunday night. This, however, does not so much surprise us as additional intelligence to the effect that the peach crop was not ruined thereby. Verily, this is an age of improvement.

MR. John Keefe, who has been long known as the junior member of the firm of Craig & Keefe, the Dunellen brick makers, left on Wednesday for Augusta, Ga., where he has accepted a position as Superintendent of the extensive brick-kilns of W. J. Rutherford, Esq.

EVEN our special policemen are displaying unusual activity. Mr. Robert Carson a newly appointed officer, arrest*ed a drunkard last week* who subsequently was awarded twenty days in the County Jail. Robert is to be congratulated and the City Judge commended.

THERE was no Spring cleaning in Paradise, and Adam never returned from his day's inspection of the live stock to find his wife with a black streak meandering down the left side of her nose, a broom in her hand, and the house in a general state of confusion. Adam fell, but he was spared all this.

MR. Chas. Smith with that thoughtful generosity towards his customers so often displayed, announces in this issue that those Spring delicacies, "Bockwurst" and "Sauerkraut," will be offered the public at his saloon, No. 4 West Front street, during Friday and Saturday. Also for a few days, commencing to-day, the 28th inst, Kreuger's celebrated Bock Beer will be on tap.

MESSRS. Bissell & Price have been giving special attention to the selection of seasonable attractions, and announce in another column advantages of the "closing out prices" of a large importer of New York. Their recent purchases of beautiful spring and summer goods lends additional interest to this popular establishment, and so the crowds continue to pay them their respects, and they are happy.

THE Madison Square Theatre management of New York, is busily at work engaging the best actors in the country for next season. Nearly two hundred have already been signed with, and it is proposed by this management to send out next season a better class of companies than have hitherto been seen in the towns and cities of the United States. They will present "Esmeralda," "Hazel Kirk" and "The Professor," in every part of the country next year.

AT the P. H. S., on Monday morning, most interesting and instructive exercises were held in which the entire school took part. Different selections from the works of Shakespeare were taken up by the several classes, and the members chose therefrom and recited the sentiments of the many characters with general excellency. The exercises were adapted to impress upon the mind the authorship of many of the proverbial quotations of the day, as well as to impart elocutionary practice.

OUR mails have been flooded for the past week with specimen copies of Tourgee's Continent, as intimation that this publication which started less than three months ago with promises never fulfilled, is slowly sinking into oblivion. Even Miss Kate Field, whom Tourgee claims as an associate editor, is compelled to write from London that she is not the author of the article in the last number to which her name is appended, and that she has severed all connection with the periodical.

THE new comet can now be faintly seen low in the northeast, on a perfectly clear evening. It is said to be about 125,000,000 miles from the earth. It will continue to approach until May 20th, when its distance will still be about 80,000,000 miles from us. It will not be conspicuous until the middle of May, and by the end of that month and during June will, without doubt, furnish a splendid display. It will probably be seen in its greatest glory about June 8th or 9th, far down in the northeast, just before the first glimmer of dawn.

ENORMOUS, on Wednesday night, remarked that "it must be the obnoxial storm."

WE have experienced several Falls on ice. This season, however, seems to have seen a Spring on ice.

THE Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis will preach in the Trinity Reformed church on Sunday morning and evening next.

MR. J. H. Adams has once more assumed the position of cutter for Mr. John H. French's large list of patrons.

THE young people of the Seventh Day Baptist Church, will hold a social gathering and entertainment in its parlors, this (Thursday) evening.

THE county board of Chosen Freeholders will organize for the transaction of the business of the ensuing year on Wednesday, the 10th of May.

AGAIN we would respectfully protest against the wholesale use made of our columns by the Elizabeth Journal and other contemporaries, without credit.

PLAINFIELD Lodge, No. 44, I O O F, will celebrate the 63d Anniversary of the Order of American Odd-Fellowship, at its rooms on Wednesday evening of next week.

THE subscription list for the relief of "Col." Johnson, who lost his right hand by an accident in Spicer & Hubbard's planing mill two weeks since, has reached a sum near $375.

ONE of the new laws of the last Legislature allows each Chosen Freeholder three cents per mile for each mile traveled going to and returning from sessions of the Board and its committees.

AT Scholle's jewelry store, on Front street, next to the Post Office, may be seen a large and handsome clock, the workmanship of Mr. Scholle. The time piece runs three months after once winding.

PROPERTY owners on Seventh street, are seriously agitating the question of macadamizing that thoroughfare its entire length. Such an improvement is needed and we trust the effort will prove successful.

THE Lehigh Valley coal dumps at Bound Brook took fire at about 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon and were totally destroyed, together with about 50 tons of coal belonging to McNabb Bros. Loss about $3,000.

GREEN & Co., furniture dealers, announce a large line of new and desirable goods. Those in need of good furniture need not go out of town to purchase, when they can be suited so well in style and price at this popular house.

SUNDAY, May 14th, is the annual "Children's Day" at the Crescent avenue church. In the morning, interesting and appropriate exercises will take place, a feature of which will be the vocal selections of a Young People's Choir.

FROM various city officers we hear differently as to the probability of a new trial of the "Day case" on Monday next. Information negative and affirmative is about equally divided. Whether or not such action will be taken, seems very probable.

BEAUTIFUL little bits of finery in children's and infant's lace caps, are the latest of the lovely novelties designed for the little ones. A large assortment of such as well as a full line of fancy worsteds and new goods, can be seen at No. 8 Park avenue.

ABOUT fifty carrier pigeons were released at the depot Wednesday morning, by a gentleman who brought the birds from Brooklyn. After circling about for a short time, the birds took a direct line for their point of destination, from whence they came.

THE new post office, for the sale of boxes, will be thrown open to the public during Saturday evening. Our citizens may then see what Postmaster Pope has accomplished in the way of making his office the most convenient and best furnished in the State.

IT can safely be said that never in the history of printing has such an elaborate and valuable work, of its class, been issued by any man, as the two volumes of "The Newspaper and Bank Directory of the World" just published by Mr. H. P. Hubbard of New Haven, Conn.

MR. S. Hudson of Somerset street N. Plainfield, is manufacturing a superior quality of bone and meat super-phosphates and a highly ammoniated bone-dust. Also a pure article of neats-foot and machinery oil. Orders may be addressed, for him, to the Plainfield P. O.

A DISTRESSING incident is reported from North Plainfield in the death of John C. Mouston, who was taken suddenly ill in the midst of perfect health on Sunday last, and died on Tuesday. The deceased was just past 18 years of age and greatly respected by all who knew him.

PECK is offering his patrons some rare bargains which they should "come" and inspect before purchasing elsewhere. A full line of ladies' lace goods, hosiery and kid gloves, are a few of the necessary articles of adornment that are shown in large assortment, at low prices, at Peck's.

IN answer to the Central Times, we would call its attention to the fact that Mr. Flanagan did not become so totally demoralized as to be imprisoned for illicit liquor selling, until after he had been some time a member of the Republican party. Confess, neighbor, that your gain has not been our loss.

THE stockholders of the Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association are called to meet together on their grounds May 1st, to elect officers for the ensuing year. We are informed that the premiums due from last Fair remaining unpaid, will be adjusted in a very short time, which will be gratifying news to many.

A FIRST-CLASS grocery has been established at the corner of Second street and Madison avenue, by Mr. Thos. F. Randolph, so long and well-known in that particular line of business. It is run on no co-operative plan, and controlled entirely by Mr. Randolph whose great experience will assure satisfactory dealings with all who may tender their patronage.

THIS (Friday) evening, in the parlors of the Crescent avenue church, the Young People's Association of that congregation will hold another of its pleasurable "sociables," that is designed to eclipse in interest those of the past. The main feature of the programme will be a vocal selection—rehearsals of which have been most thorough although surreptitious—that will inure to the credit to those who take part and the enjoyment of those who listen.

MRS. Mary Dunn, an industrious, hard laboring woman, met with an accident last Friday, which will confine her to her bed for some time. She was engaged in scrubbing at a house on Liberty street, and in crossing the yard with a pail of hot water in her hand, incautiously stepped on some boards that lay over a 12 foot deep cess-pool, which had been cleaned out that morning, she not knowing of its existence. The boards giving way beneath her, she was precipitated to the bottom, injuring her hip seriously, besides receiving scalds from the hot water.

MR. John H. Tier has made decided improvements about his Ice Cream Garden on Front street, by re-modeling and extending his buildings. He has now a cool and inviting veranda facing the lake, which is over 80 feet in length, a large and cosy covered platform 40 x 40 feet in dimensions and two large rooms 45 x 16 feet, from which to serve his customers, besides a row of stalls adjoining the buildings, which present a fine appearance in their style of architecture.—The lake is free from weeds or grass and will afford pleasure to those fond of boating when the season opens.

Important Laws.

Among the laws of New Jersey to be found on the first page of this issue are several of importance to certain classes of our citizens. Chapter LXI is of interest to our firemen, as it relates to exemption from taxes. Milk merchants should read Chapter LXXXII. Ice merchants will find protection in Chapter LXXVII. Those who fail to keep their sidewalks free from ice and snow will do well to read Chapter LXXVIII.

The Telephone.

The New Jersey Telephone & Telegraph Co., since our last issue, has steadily proceeded with its work of connecting the subscribers, and by to-morrow, probably, at least twenty will be in communication. While a few obstructionists are endeavoring to drive the Company from a business thoroughfare where the poles would be least objectionable, into streets lined with private residences, the Superintendent of Construction is planting the poles wherever desired with permission of philanthropic property owners. The most prominent business men of the city and the largest tax-payers, have of their own accord offered to draw up a petition signed by a large number of the best citizens, requesting the Common Council to grant its permission that the Telephone Co., may erect its lines wherever it desires. This, however, proves to be unnecessary, in view of the fact that unselfish and fair-minded residents generally are gladly granting such privilege on their own premises. And also because the "remonstrance" that so much has been made of (perhaps) needs no effect of the kind, in view of the fact that many of its signers repudiate the sentiments expressed and deny sympathy with the result it is intended to secure, on the ground that its purpose was misrepresented by the originators. Antagonism to any scheme or project of public benefit, is sure to be ineffective if deceptively and unjustly operated.

Poor Peter's Peace.

Luckless Love—Departed Dollars—Fickle Fancy and Ruthless Revenge.

Peter Clawson, a feeble old man about sixty years of age, living in Dunellen, caused the arrest on Monday of two women named Brown, residing on the road between Scotch Plains and the Fanwood station. Clawson is a batchelor and has always lived on his father's form when not working for neighboring farmers. He is eccentric but harmless, and has always been considered, as one of our citizens expressed it, "sorter off his base, especially on the subject of women." He was always industrious, did not drink to excess and had accumulated and deposited a few hundred dollars. He goes by the name of "Onions" in this city, but nothing angers him more than to have that epithet applied to him. His recent adventure is not the first he has had in the endeavor to obtain a wife. The Brown women are well known in and about Plainfield and have been in the habit of visiting this city every Saturday night to do the week's marketing for the family. They live with their mother Mrs. Rachel Brown Garrety. The older, Mary A., is forty-four years old, and the younger, is forty-one. They are both light-complexioned, of medium height and by no means handsome. Clawson became infatuated with Margaret and a few weeks ago he went to board at their house. They on one pretext and another induced the old man to put into their hands for safe keeping about $290 in money, and to buy carpets and other presents for them to the value of about $150 more. They had also made him promise to give them an additional $200, and apparently intended to get possession of all the money he had.

When arrested by Constable Amos Moffett on Monday, a watch, $100 of the money and considerable clothing belonging to Clawson were found in their possession. They were taken before Justice Lewis E. Clark, where Clawson made a charge of grand larceny against them. Justice Clark held them for the Grand Jury and they were sent to the Union County Jail, in Elizabeth, Monday evening, in default of $700 bail. During the examination Margaret, who appears in the jail records as "Moore or Miller," claimed that Clawson had promised to marry her, and insisted that he should redeem his pledge at once. Quite a scene followed, and the old man was so badly frightened that he ran out of the court-room to escape the fury of the enraged woman. The sisters remained in the Elizabeth jail until Tuesday when they were released, their mother becoming their surety. Margaret claimed that Clawson left the money with her voluntarily to keep for him when he went away from the house on business. She also claimed that the carpets were bought by her from her own means. The reputation of the women in this vicinity is not good, but it is a fact that Clawson, in company of one of them whom he introduced as his wife, purchased a sewing-machine for her recently of a dealer in this city.

Personalia.

Mr. Eli H. Boston, who, in spite of his long absence from Plainfield still occupies a place in the kind remembrances of our citizens, was married on Wednesday of last week, at St. Joseph, Mo., to a young lady of that city, of admired character and varied accomplishments.

Mr. Stephen O. Staats, the former proprietor and beautiful host of the Rock House, has connected himself with the establishment of Mr. James M. Dunn, at No. 36 Park avenue, where he will be glad to receive his many friends and attend to their wants and wishes.

Miss Mamie Henkle, daughter of the local editor of the Hunterdon Co. Democrat, has been visiting Miss Euphemia France, of this city for the past two weeks. We can now understand on what foundation our contemporary bases its claim that Flemington is the repository of so much female attractiveness.

Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Doane of No. 68 W. Fifth street, are in receipt, just at present, of an enormous amount of heartfelt congratulation. The affair that has caused such expression of feeling is that "interesting event"—a birth. A fine boy to be a companion to Thad, Jr., and a treasure to its parents, arrived on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Eliza Pooler, widow of the late John W. Pooler, Esq., died at her residence on Central avenue, on Friday morning of last week. The deceased had long suffered from a painful and incurable affliction, and her death was undoubtedly a most happy release. She was in the 63d year of her age, and an aunt of Mr. Augusto Saltzman of this city.

Mr. Frank S. Nason of this city, was, on Monday last, married to Miss Tillie S. Byers of Brooklyn at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 161 Bergen street. The couple are enjoying a short "wedding trip," prior to taking up their residence with the groom's father, James S. Nason, Esq., at the corner of Peace and Fifth street.

Dr. J. T. Fritts has so rapidly improved in health since our last issue, that all fears of serious results which we were led to express upon the authority of those who were well informed, are allayed. During the past few days the patient has been able to sit up, and under the efficient care of Mr. Hiram Hornish will steadily regain the enviable vigor he had always possessed.

Mr. Edward Fox, who has occupied the position of Executive Clerk at Trenton during the terms of six Governors successively, is to receive a token of appreciation of his uniform courtesy and faithfulness in the discharge of duty. The testimonial will be the outcome of the contributions of five ex-Governors, the present Governor and a number of prominent state officials.

Mr. T. Frank Wright, who last week was the only bachelor that remained of the original "Jolly 8," was married on Monday at St. Thomas' Church, Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, to Miss Ella M. Lahey of that city. His companions are, in consequence, envying him the bride he has won, while his numerous lady friends are deep in despair at their loss of the prize their attractions failed to secure.

County Clerk James S. Vosseller resumed his duties on Tuesday morning, after a short absence induced by his unfortunate illness of body and family affliction. During the interval, Mr. John L. Crowell, Clerk of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, has attended to the business of the office in a most efficient and satisfactory manner. Mr. Vosseller's friends will be glad to hear of his continued recovery and the assurance of renewed health.

Mr. W. Alex. Bass, Jr., late with Messrs. John S. Tilney & Co., of New-York, has just formed a partnership with Mr. W. H. Rolston, to carry on the business of bankers and brokers at No. 7 Nassau street, N. Y. city. The firm by its possession of a membership in both the New York and the Chicago Stock Exchanges and in the New York Mining Exchange, is enabled to enter so wide a field of money-making as will insure the wealth and prosperity its abilities deserve.

At the bride's residence corner of Peace and Fourth streets, on Wednesday evening last, Mr. Edward Laing and Mrs. Avis L. Mosher joined themselves in marriage, according to the customary Quaker ceremony, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The happy event was most auspiciously effected, and Mr. and Mrs. Laing received extended congratulations and numerous sincere wishes that their united lives might continue in happiness forever.

Mr. John Vetterlein of this city, is the fortunate inventor of a very useful article which will supply a want that has long been unprovided for. The invention is a lawn-mower sharpener, made in a compact and durable form and admirably adapted to effect the object in view. It is simple, reliable and easily adjusted to any mower manufactured, besides being so low in price as to be within the reach of all. Patents have been applied for by the Challenge Manufacturing Co., of Plainfield, and it may be found for sale by the hardware merchants in general.

Mr. Courtlandt DeLacey Evans and Miss Clara V. Milliken were married on Wednesday, at Bellefont, Pa.,—"no cards." In offering herewith our best wishes for a future of happiness, we know we are echoing the sincere sentiments of the host of friends and admirers among our citizens, possessed by the bride and groom. And we feel assured that the community at large will unite with us in congratulating this couple (which has been so shamelessly and cruelly misrep*resented in public print) upon the final* consummation of their mutual desires.

The North Plainfield School Project.

It is particularly desired and earnestly hoped, that a large attendance of North Plainfield's citizens will gather at the School House on Tuesday evening of next week, to hear and act upon the report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the feasibility and cost of erecting a new Public School building. It is not, probably, distinctly necessary that a decision for or against should be reached; but the suggestions, recommendations or advice of the Committee should be discussed, and the project in all its details thoughtfully considered. Our neighbors over the brook undoubtedly suffer from lack of growth by reason of their need of more extensive educational facilities. The very class of citizens which does the most for the advancement of the interests of its place of residence, is composed of those who consider well the school comforts and privileges offered before settling in a neighborhood that possesses the best conveniences in each direction. North Plainfield's loss for that reason, is of course our gain, but only the most culpable selfishness would impel us to oppose the erection of a new and much larger Public School building in the township. We sincerely hope such design will be consummated.

A Strange Death.

The death by suicide was reported on Monday last, of Mrs. Carl Handwerg, aged about 30 years, the wife of an industrious mechanic and the mother of five children, all living on the side of the mountain at the head of Grove street. Her husband had departed early to his work in this city, when soon after one of the children found its mother lying on her face with her head and part of the body in a little pool of water near the house. The husband was at once notified and with Dr. T. H. Tomlinson hurried home, but only to find that the unfortunate woman was dead. The physician notified the proper authorities and reported the case as a death by drowning. The cause of the woman's act is supposed to be aberration of the mind, which theory the testimony of husband and children serves to substantiate.

Common Council Proceedings.

A Special Session—An Ordinance Levying the Tax—The Office of Corporation Counsel to Continue—The Council's manly action in the matter—The Telephone Question—Agreements and Remonstrance—Adjourned until May First.

THURSDAY, APRIL 20TH.

The Council met in special session, pursuant to a call of the President, at 8:35 o'clock, p. m.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs. Depew, Ginna, Kaufman, Gardner, Lindsley, Livingston, Newhall, J. Simpson, R. Simpson and Thompson—11.

Absent—none.

On motion of Mr. Kaufman, the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, was suspended.

The Clerk read the call of the meeting, which was to approve an ordinance levying the amounts of tax for the different purposes, to further consider the ordinance repealing the ordinances creating the office of Counsel to the Corporation and to define the duties of such, and to take final action on the petition of the N. J. Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Mr. Ginna presented for adoption an ordinance providing for the assessment of property and the collection of taxes.

Read for the first and second times by the Clerk.

During its reading by sections for adoption, Mr. Lindsley rose to ask if it was obligatory or merely optional with the Council to provide by tax for the raising of $800 for the purposes of the Public Library.

Mr. J. Simpson considered that the Council could do as it pleased in the matter, and he intended to vote against such a levy.

Mr. Ginna replied the authority was given by an act of the Legislature, passed in 1879, which permitted but did not require. He was sorry to find any opposition to the fund, as its use would be of great benefit to the city. He did not believe that anyone would object to pay the slight additional tax of about two cents on the one hundred dollars.

On motion the ordinance was ordered engrossed preparatory to a third reading; Mr. J. Simpson voting in the negative.

The ordinance repealing certain ordinances "to provide for the office of" and "to prescribe the duties of the Counsel to the Corporation," was taken from the table and, on motion, read the third time—all aye.

It was moved by Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. Gardner, that the same be placed on its final passage.

Mr. Kaufman said that he understood there was a chance for an amicable settlement of the disagreement between the Council and the Mayor in relation to the office of Counsel to the Corporation. He was opposed to the taking away of any of the prerogative of the Executive, and if there existed the possibility of a satisfactory arrangement regarding the matter, he was not in favor of the ordinance. The speaker trusted the difference would be settled by the presentation of a name for the office that would meet with the approval of all.

Mr. Ginna stated that he had originally introduced and advocated the ordinance, but since then had become fully satisfied that in view of its effect on other ordinances, its passage would be a doubtful measure. He had every reason to believe that an effort to promote harmony was to be made, but was also satisfied that no such action would be taken until something was done regarding the ordinance in question. In closing, Mr. Ginna spoke very courteously regarding the present Corporation Counsel, Mr. Kimball, and referred most flatteringly to that officer's efforts to carry out the aims and ends of the Council.

Mr. Newhall thought it would be most unfortunate to delay final action on the ordinance until a future meeting. He hoped for a unanimous vote against it, and trusted it would not be left suspended like an axe to be dropped in retaliation if future events did not suit the Council as a body.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Livingston, a recess of ten minutes was taken.

Upon reassembling the question was called for, and the passage of the ordinance defeated.

Negative—President Rushmore and Messrs. Depew, Ginna, Kaufman, Lindsley, Newhall and Thompson—7.

Affirmative—Messrs. Gardner, Livingston, J. Simpson and R. Simpson—4.

Mr. R. Simpson presented an agreement of the N. J. Telephone and Telegraph Co.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:

In conformity to the resolution of your Hon. Body, passed March 13, 1882, adopting the favorable report of the Committee on Streets, with reference to the Telephone Company's petition for privilege of establishing Telephone lines within the City limits, the said Company, The New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company, in consideration of the free use to them of the public thoroughfares of the City, for the said privilege, agree, according to the report of said Street Committee, to erect all necessary poles and attach wires thereto, to keep and maintain the same in good condition and to connect, without cost to the municipality, the Telephone wires with the engine houses of the Fire Department, Police Stations and Muhlenberg Hospital, and so with the Central Exchange system. And further, all the poles approved by your Committee on Streets, shall be put in places least objectionable to property owners, and so located as in no way to interfere with the safety or convenience of citizens.

NEW JERSEY TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
By C. H. BARNEY, General Agent.

Moved by Mr. R. Simpson, seconded by Mr. Livingston that it be received and placed on the table.

Mr. Depew asked for the reading of a former resolution of the Council in relation to the subject. The Clerk read from the minutes that the Committee on Streets reported its approval of the petition of the Company, which report was accepted and adopted.

Mr. Depew thought that the owners of property should have something to say regarding the location of the poles. He moved, seconded by Mr. Livingston, that the agreement be referred to the Committee on Laws for its report at the next meeting. Carried; all aye.

Mr. Ginna presented a remonstrance to the erection of the poles on Park ave.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—

Your petitioners would most respectfully represent to your Hon. Body, our objections to having a Telegraph Line with large unsightly poles erected through one of the most public streets of the city, (as well as one of the most valuable.) A street which the property owners, a few years ago, graded, paved, curbed and widened, and cut down all the shade trees to accommodate the public travel at our own expense, and to make it one of the main streets from the railroad station to the other portion of our city; therefore we ask of your Body to look at the poles about to be erected and the cross-pieces to be attached, before your consent, to the damage which our property would most assuredly receive, is given; and your petitioners would ask you to prohibit and forbid the erection of said poles on Park avenue.

D. J. Bates, [illegible]

Also the following:

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—

It having been represented to me, the undersigned, that a Telephone or Telegraph Company were asking the privilege of erecting poles and wires on Park ave. I, as a property holder on said avenue, do hereby respectfully and earnestly enter my protest against the use of said avenue for such purpose.

A. D. GIBSON,
Rahway, N. J.

Referred to same Committee.

Mr. Newhall presented a letter from the General Agent of the Company guaranteeing that the poles would not be used for telegraphic communication.

On motion referred, with all the papers on the Clerk's table relating to the subject, to the Com. on Laws.

The meeting then adjourned until Monday evening, May 1st.

Grace Church.

Bishop Scarborough will preach and administer the apostolic rite of Confirmation in this church on Sunday morning. Morning prayer at 9:30; Litany sermon, Confirmation and Holy Communion at 10:30. At 3 o'clock p. m., he will lay the corner stone of All Saints' Chapel, at Scotch Plains.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The Ladies' Guild of the Episcopal church, held a Fair at Lyceum Hall on Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening of this week. The attendance was fair on Tuesday, but owing to the storm on Wednesday evening but few persons turned out. The ladies of the Guild had a fine display of fancy work and flowers, also a fine lot of choice groceries for sale and which were disposed of at reasonable prices. The proceeds were for the benefit of the church Guild.

We have but a few vacant houses in our town, most of them having been let the past month. Our real estate agents have been kept busy with customers, the call for houses at reasonable rents being very large, and that is what Westfield wants—a class of neat cottage houses that will rent for about $250 per year. Most any number of them could be filled with first-class tenants.

On Saturday last, Officer Marsh took Mary A. Pullman to the Morris Plains' Asylum. Mrs. Pullman has been a resident of our place for the past 15 years. For several years back her friends and neighbors have noticed symptoms of insanity in her conversation, and last week it took a turn of a violent nature. She had to be conveyed to the Asylum.

Clifford Trask, aged 34 years, son of A. G. Trask, residing on Dudley avenue, died on Friday last of congestion of the lungs. His funeral occurred on Monday last. Interment in Fairview Cemetery.

Mrs. Woodruff, wife of David M. Woodruff, who was until within a few years past a resident of our place, died at Summit, N. J., on Friday last. Her funeral took place on Sunday from the Presbyterian church, Westfield. She was interred in the family lot of the old church yard. Mrs. Woodruff was a sister of Benjamin Pierson of our town.

John Logan of our town has received the position on Central Railroad, of switchman at Dunellen, N. J. Johnnie still claims his residence here.

Very interesting services were held in the Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday last, the same being the annual reunion of the Sunday School. The servi*ces consisted of singing, responsive read*ings and an interesting address by the pastor, Rev Warren Hoagland.

John Pierson, Overseer of Road Dist. No. 7, has commenced work on his district in repairing the roads and sidewalks. That is what we want, good roads and walks, to make it inviting for people to come and reside in our town.

Dr. F. A. Kinch, has made a fine improvement of the lot recently purchased by him from Gideon E. Ludlow, adjoining his residence on Mountain avenue, he having filled in the cellar and graded the lot so as to make a fine lawn, and trellis for grapes, and also having erected a fine substantial picket fence along the line of Mountain avenue, and graded the sidewalk.

John Moffett, Overseer of our main Road District No. 8, has commenced carting stone preparatory to filling in the bad piece of road on South avenue, near Elm street. This is what has been needed for years past. That point on South avenue is the poorest piece of road in our Township in the spring, wagons getting fast in the mud, it being near the brook and very marshy.

For the past week petitions have been circulating for signatures, asking the Township Committee to call a special election in the township to give the people a chance to vote the sum of five hundred dollars towards the purchase of a steam stone crusher, to be used in crushing stone for macadamizing our public roads. From the appearance of the several petitions it looks as if nearly every voter had signed the same. Private parties have pledged themselves to raise all that is needed beyond five hundred dollars for the purchase of the machine. Hurry the same along. What we want is good substantial roads, and our property will increase in value. Almost the first question asked by a new comer in our town is "why don't you make good roads?" The amount asked for being only five hundred dollars would make but a small difference in our tax bills, and a large increase in the valuation of our real estate.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

Literary.

In the North American Review for May, Carl Schurz, treating of "Party Schisms and Future Problems," presents many well-considered observations which cannot fail to interest in the highest degree that large and growing class of citizens who refuse to be influenced by obsolete party cries. "Days with Longfellow," by Samuel Ward, contains personal reminiscences of the beloved poet just deceased, extending over a period of forty-five years. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in an article entitled "What does Revelation Reveal?" seeks to prove that the objections brought against the Bible by modern unbelievers are based upon a misconception of the true intent and scope of the sacred volume. Lieutenant-Commander Gorringe writes of "The Navy," with abundant knowledge of its needs, and with a degree of frankness almost, if not quite, unprecedented in the naval service. W. H. Mallock, the well-known English essayist, in the first of a series of "Conversations with a Solitary," very ingeniously contrives to put the advocates of democracy and modern progress on the defensive. Finally, Gail Hamilton contributes a paper, "The Spent Bullet," in which science, the pulpit and the law are with exquisite wit taken to task for the part they respectively played in the Guiteau-Garfield tragedy.

Mrs. Craig Wadsworth, of Geneseo, N. Y., a widow, spoken of as the possible bride of President Arthur, is a tall and graceful person, dark-eyed, dark-haired and of agreeable manners. She is a Democrat in politics and a Parisian in dress.

Four hundred and sixty rainbow-hued shad, a thousand or more herring, and bushels upon bushels of smaller fry, was the result of the first haul of the "big seine" Monday at Gloucester. Wise old fishermen predict that the unusually large catch at this time of year, made in such unfavorable weather, augurs extraordinary luck during the entire shad fishing season. A more magnificent lot of fish than those hauled has never been caught on the Gloucester shore.

LOVE BEFORE THE CURTAIN.

REALISTIC COURTSHIP IN THE PARQUET OF A CLEVELAND THEATRE.

It is seldom that a man chooses so inopportune a place as a crowded opera house to tell the story of his love. Recently at the Euclid Avenue Opera House, says the Cleveland Press, a couple occupied seats near the south aisle of the parquet. The lady was handsome, with dark eyes and hair and red lips. She was dressed in black, with a wide Mother Hubbard collar and wide Gainsborough hat. Her escort was a dark man, with black mustache and hair, and seemed not so tall as the lady. He wore the stunningest necktie, and his hair gave out an odor of b'ar's oil, which stole over the delighted senses like coal gas from a leaky base burner. He nestled close to her side, offered her a gum drop and murmured:

"I have loved you ever since I first met you."

The faintest little summer cloud of a frown passed over her face as she replied:

"I don't see what there was about me to love, dressed as I was in that old traveling dress."

"It wasn't your dress, it was the girlish sweetness, the maiden modesty, which pervaded you."

Just then the curtain went up on another act, and she requested him to postpone his love scene until the close of the dramatic scene. He had no eyes for the play save the play of mirth and tenderness over her features. Finally he took from his chewing tobacco pocket some cards containing the names of the ladies with whom he had kept company. Then from the pocket of his vest, situated exactly where his throbbing heart kept pounding against it like the hoofs of a mule against a barn door, he drew the card of the lady at his side. With her love of admiration, she asked him why he carried it there, a question whose answer she well knew, and in a peach-and-cream tone of voice he replied:

"Because I love you."

"I don't see why you should," she responded. "I have never given you any encouragement to lead you to believe that I loved you. I am keeping company with several gentlemen, one of whom expects me to marry him."

The young man's face turned to the color of Cleveland mills' flour, and an injured look such as a wounded gazelle wears came into his eyes.

"You don't expect to marry this year?" gasped he.

A wicked smile played over her features as she replied: "He wants me to marry him this month, but I am so busy in the store that I haven't time to prepare."

Then the young man pleaded in a lower tone, and as a last inducement told her:

"I am my mother's pet."

The love-sick swain begged the girl to take a walk after the theatre, in order that he might lay the matter before her, but she wouldn't hear to it. Poor young man! You are silly, but such as you, make the best and most loving husbands, because love and a wife are your ambition. You would build the fires in the morning and cook your wife's breakfast without a murmur. The girl who so cruelly refused you will marry a more dashing man. He doesn't love her half as well as you, but she looks up to him and almost fears him.

SPECIAL MARKET REPORT.

Young Men—Steady.

Girls—Lively, willing, and in demand.

Papa—Firm, but declining.

Mammas—Unsettled, but waiting for higher bids.

Coffee—Considerably mixed.

Fresh Fish—Active and slippery.

Wheat—A grain better than barley.

Eggs—Quiet, but will probably open lively in a short time.

Whiskey—Steadily going down.

Onions—Strong and rising.

Breadstuffs—Heavy.

Boots and Shoes—Those in the market are soled, and are constantly going up and down.

Hats and Caps—Not as high as last spring, except foolscap, which is stationery.

Tobacco—Very low, and has a downward tendency.

Silver—Close, but not close enough to get hold of.

Did you ever hear two married women take leave of each other at the gate on a mild evening? This is how they do it:

"Good-by!"

"Good-by! Come down and see us soon."

"I will. Good-by!"

"Good-by! Don't forget to come soon."

"No, I won't. Don't you forget to come up."

"I won't. Be sure and bring Sarah Jane with you next time."

"I will. I'd have brought her up this time, but she wasn't very well. She wanted to come awfully."

"Did she now? That was too bad! Be sure and bring her next time."

"I will; and you be sure and bring the baby."

"I will. I forgot to tell you that he's cut another tooth."

"You dont say so! How many has he now?"

"Five. It makes him awfully cross."

"I dare say it does, this hot weather. Well, good-by! Don't forget to come down."

"No, I won't. Don't you forget to come up. Good-by!" And they separate.

The State Fish Commissioners have just taken 95,000 salmon fry out of the hatching-house at Bloomsbury, Warren county, and placed them in the upper waters of the Delaware.

BROTHER GARDNER ON MINSTRELS.

"I hev bin axed," began Brother Gardner, of the Lime Kiln Club, "what relashun de negro minstrel troupe b'ars to de cull'd race. To return an off-hand answer, I should say dat it ba'rs about the same relation dat a husty pudding does to a $10,000 paintin'. If dar am any relashun whatever, I hev neber bin able to diskiver it. De cull'd man may dance an' sing, but he never trabbles on his ignorance, nor on de jokes an' gags of de pas' gineration. If twenty cull'd men should put on wigs an' paint up to resemble twenty white men, and sot down befo' de public and ask why an elephant was like a gimlet, an' what was the difference between a clam on de sand and a sand on de clam, dey would be hooted off de stage. Yet de public will see white men disguise deirselves as negroes, an' applaud de gags, an' jokes, an' conundrums dat de poorest Afr'can in Detroit would be ashamed to acknowledge. If de public hankers fur such shows, an' must hev 'em, let 'em go on, but doan't let white folks deceive deirselves or be deceived. Continer to call 'em negro minstrel shows, but doan' look fur de negro in 'em. He ain't dar. He's home in de busum of his family, warmin' his feet, learnin' de chilen' to read an' telling de ole woman dat all flesh am grass."

A SMART BOY.

A young man called on his intended the other evening and while waiting for her to make her appearance, he struck up a conversation with his brother-in-law. After a while the boy asked:

"Does galvanized niggers know much?"

"I really can't say," replied the much amused young man.

And then silence reigned for a few moments, when the boy resumed the conversation.

"Kin you play checkers with your nose?"

"No, I have never acquired that accomplishment."

"Well, you'd better learn, you hear me?"

"Why?"

"'Cause, Sis says that you're dummer 'n a galvanized nigger, but your dad's got lots of stamps, and she'll marry you anyhow; and she said when she got hold of the old man's sugar she was going to all of the Fourth of July percessions and ice cream gum sucks, and let you stay at home and play checkers with that hollyhock nose of yourn."

And when Sis got her hair banged and came in, she found the parlor deserted by all save her brother, who was innocently tying the tails of two kittens together and singing:

"Oh, I love the Sabbath school!"

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

ROTTEN HULKS.

An enormous amount of public money has been thrown away during the past twelve years in the name of the Navy Department, and to-day there is practicably nothing to show for it.

The money went out of the pockets of the people, millions upon millions.

That is a solemn fact.

Where did it go?

Not into an efficient navy, for we do not possess a single ship capable of competing with the sea-fighting power of even Spain or Italy.

True, we have a fleet of worthless hulks and a crowd of rich officials, and one would, in case of emergency, prove as great a national defense as the other.

There might be some hope for the people if the books were at once closed and naval appropriations forever stopped, but that would not please nor profit a peculiar class of enterprising patriots.

They want more cash to build a navy.

A certain gentleman, once in the Cabinet of President Grant, and who as Naval Secretary earned anything but an enviable reputation, is now in Congress on the Naval Committee.

He and his friends say we must have a navy.

"There's millions in it."

Ha! Ha! Don't you see Sambo behind the windlass?

He is there, artfully enveloped in Uncle Sam's uniform.

Watch him!

The Committee on Naval Affairs of the present House of Representatives, or a majority thereof, favor large appropriations for building a navy.

Let us take a look at that Committee.

Mr. Harris, of Massachusetts, is Chairman, next comes Mr. Robeson, of New Jersey, and then Mr. Harmer, of Pennsylvania.

There is also a Committee of the House styled Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department, the purpose of which is to see how funds are spent and whether properly.

That Committee is also Keiferized.

Mr. Robeson being Chairman, with Mr. Harris and Mr. Harmer to assist him as members.

Consequently, Messrs. Robeson, Harris and Harmer are to pass official judgment upon the actions of Messrs. Harris, Robeson and Harmer.

Was there ever legislative audacity known to equal that?

Watch Sambo behind the windlass! Honest Citizens!

At the same time don't fail to watch the professed patriots in Congress who say they want to build a navy!

Your millions are at risk!

WORDS OF DEMOCRACY.

"Pure elections, an honest canvass of and a peaceful submission to their results, to the end that the majority may control the Government.

Equal and exact justice to all men, that neither the poverty of the poor nor the wealth of the rich may help or hinder the maintenance of their rights.

Rigid economy in public expenses, and the lightest possible exercise of the taxing power, that labor may bear no needless burdens.

An honest currency, assuring stability to finance and steadiness to wages.

Perfect integrity and fidelity in office.

A prosecution and punishment of derelict officials as prompt and energetic as that of common criminals.

The protection of every man in his right to pursue his lawful calling in his own way and to enjoy its fruits.

The sacred preservation of the public faith under all circumstances."

So spake ex-Governor Robinson, of New York, and so speaks every genuine Democrat in the land.

The words of Democracy are truth.

LOCAL ANNEX.

Fire Matters.

The old Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department met in the parlors of No. 2 Engine Co., on Wednesday evening. All the members present. The minutes of the last regular and special meeting were read and approved. The Treasurer reported that the new Bonds were printed and ready to be issued by direction of the Board. Exemption certificate was granted Mr. E T Polak and his name placed on the roll as active-exempt. The following bills were ordered paid: J Sutphen $3; I L McVoy, 11.75; W Hand, 5.50; J A Thickstun, 41 50; E D Moffett, 7 65; J S Cutter, 11 41; Berry & Thorn, 6 93; Spicer & Hubbard, 11 50; George Fraser, 1; Alex Gee, 2; E O Chamberlin, 23 75; W B Gramnatt, 22 50; Van Winkle & Maxson, 64 80; George Goeller, 2; M Bird, 57; J B Miller, 10; Thos Parkinson, 2; J W Stewart, 5 50; George W Foster, 1; Flannery & Cooper, 7 75, and Rent Alert House, 75. The motion to furnish the Chief with a horse and carriage upon the occasion of an alarm, was taken from the table and withdrawn. On motion the Board authorized the Chief to procure a carriage when, in his discretion, necessary. The officers elected by the respective companies (as published elsewhere) were approved. The Secretary reported the election of Frank W. Vail as Chief and Stephen A. Davis and Wm. L. Wright as First and Second Assistant Engineers.—On motion the President was empowered to appoint a committee to meet a committee from Fanwood Township and agree upon the boundary of fire limits between Plainfield and Scotch Plains. A resolution was adopted thanking the Central Railroad Company for its free transportation of the new truck to this city and its offer to take away the old one. Certificate of exemption was granted Andrew Carey provided he had served the required time. The Board then adjourned sine die.

The new Board was called to order by Secretary Gillies, and organized by the re-election of all the former officers and the appointment of the same committee members. Mr. Morris presented a resolution to the effect that the Board certify that the new truck is satisfactory as per contract and that any dissatisfaction that has occurred is outside of the Department. Mr. Jones said that he was not satisfied and would refuse to vote for any such resolution until the truck was put in proper shape. The Treasurer stated that the Board held an agreement with the contractor, Mr. Preston, to re-paint the truck in any way desired and to reset the tires if necessary at any time within a year.

The Secretary thought it the duty of the Board to sign the resolution as the comments of the press condemning the truck were hurting Mr. Preston in his business. Mr. Flaig could see no use in arguing that the truck was all right, when the fact that Mr. Preston agreed to fix it up proved it was not satisfactory. He was willing to sign anything near the truth, but the resolution went too far for him. The Secretary replied that he did not think the truck was all right, but the resolution should be passed to relieve Mr. Preston of the odium. The blame, he thought, should be shouldered by the Board which had signed a weak contract. The Treasurer considered the greatest service that could be done Mr. Preston, would be to say nothing more. Continued argument only made the matter worse. The resolution was subsequently withdrawn. Mr. Morris presented correspondence in relation to a new hose carriage for Warren Engine Co. No. 3, which was laid over. The Board then adjourned to meet at No. 2's house on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst., at 7.30 o'clock.

The residence of Mr. Mark Chambetta, at No. 4 Rockview avenue, North Plainfield caught fire from—as is supposed—a defective flue, on Monday morning last. With the assistance of a neighbor, however, the flames were extinguished before any considerable amount of damage was occasioned.

The new truck and its appurtenances will be tried and tested during Friday evening on North avenue in front of the R R station.

About two o'clock p. m., of Tuesday, news was received at THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office by telephone, that the roof of a dwelling on Fourth street near the Gas House, was burning. Word was at once sent to the Department houses and all turned out with the exception of the new truck. An effort was made to ring the fire bell, but, as the rope had been pulled up out of reach and the doors leading to the tower locked, it was impossible to give an alarm. In consequence, only such members of the Department as were in the neighborhood of their houses received any notice, and had the services of the apparatus been needed, only an insufficient number of firemen would have been available. The house that was burning had caught on the roof from a locomotive spark, and was situated at No. 51 East Fourth street next to the dwelling of Mr. David Clark that was burned a few months ago. It is occupied by the families of Mr. Dennis Carney and Abraham Staats. Mr. James Armstrong who first noticed the flames, procured a ladder by means of which he mounted the roof, after sending his nephew to notify the Department. Foreman Aaron Marsh of No. 2 Hose Co., who was working near the scene, came to Mr Armstrong's assistance, and with the help of the neighbors the roof was flooded with buckets of water and a conflagration prevented. No. 1 and No. 2 Engine Co's were turned back after reaching North avenue, and No. 3 came only as far as Park avenue and Second street.

By order of Chief Vail, Gazelle Eng. Co No. 1, and its steamer were at work, during Saturday morning of last week, pumping out the clay pits in the vicinity of Mr. Jimerson's brick yard.

On Wednesday morning at 10:30, the house at No. 49 East Fourth street, adjoining the one on fire the day before, caught from the chimney but was put out before the arrival of the Department. Notice of the fire was received at this office by telephone some minutes before the apparatus was rolled out of the houses.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

H. M. Moffett has purchased one acre of ground in Clark Township, on the road from Westfield to Rahway, on which she intends erecting a dwelling house the present summer.

James T. Pierson who is a member of the Grand Jury now in session at Elizabeth, is the only representative Westfield has at the present term of Union County Courts. There were no petit jurymen drawn from our town. Elizabeth has 32 out of 48 men.

J. Henry Manning, our ice man, on Tuesday last while on his Cranford trip, had the misfortune to have his team of horses, attached to his large ice wagon, run away from in front of a store at Cranford, upsetting the wagon an breaking it considerably. Very little damage was done to the horses.

An Apron Fair and Supper was held in Lyceum Hall on Tuesday evening last, by the ladies of the Congregational church of Westfield. The proceeds for the benefit of the church. There was a good attendance. The result being a benefit to the Treasury of the church of over one hundred dollars.

On Tuesday last the Court of Common Pleas, at Elizabeth, granted a license to Hart Moore and Samuel Godshalk to keep a hotel in Westfield. They occupy the old hotel stand and have thoroughly renovated it; so that Westfield can now boast of a first-class hotel. The hotel was opened to the public on Tuesday afternoon with both proprietors on hand to attend to the wants of their customers.

On Tuesday last a young Englishman who had been working for Mr. George S. Murfey, for about two months past, asked leave of Mr. Murfey, in the morning, to go to Elizabeth, as he wished to get his naturalization papers. He left Westfield on the 10:40 train and went to Elizabeth Court House and declared his intentions of becoming a citizen, and from there went to Newark, where he had been several times before. Officer O'Connor of the Police force of that city, saw him enter a Jew clothing store, with a bundle. He followed him in and arrested him on suspicion, as he had a ladies' silk dress, shawl, muff, tidies and skirts, offering them for sale. He claimed at the time that they were his. Officer O'Connor took him to the Station House, and while in front of the desk he broke away from the officer and ran out of the building, and but for the fleetness of the officer, would have succeeded in getting away. After returning to the Station House he broke down and confessed he had stolen the goods from his employer, Mr. Murfey. Chief Meldrum immediately telegraphed to Mr. Murfey, who had not as yet missed anything from the house, but on searching the building he found that a trunk, packed with clothing, had been opened and the contents taken. Mr. Murfey and officer Marsh went to Newark on Wednesday morning, and at headquarters Mr. Murfey identified the goods. The prisoner was turned over to Union County, brought to Elizabeth and confined in jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, now in session. Officer O'Connor deserves credit of the community for his watchfulness in the matter.

Town Committee met at Town Rooms Wednesday evening May 3d, at 7:30 p. m. Present—Robert R Sinclair, Evert M Pierson, Oliver M Pierson, Luther M Whitaker, Clerk. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. The following resolution was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the Chairman of the committee and Clerk of the Township be and they are hereby authorized to affix the seal of the Township and execute and deliver proper deeds of release to persons desiring to redeem their lands and premises from sale to the Township for unpaid taxes, upon receiving from said person, the full amount, for which said lands were so sold together with all interests and costs to date of release.

On motion, bill of James B Ferris for rent of rooms to May 1st, was ordered paid. The Clerk reported that Mr. Ferris was willing to renew the lease of Town Rooms at the same rent, $100 per year. On motion the Clerk was authorized to lease the Town Rooms on the above terms. On motion the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That a quit claim deed be made to William Shipman, for release of property taxed to Amos Clark Jr., for the year 1880. Sold by William W Connoly, Collector, to the inhabitants of the Township of Westfield, Oct 19th, 1881. Said certificate recorded in Union County Clerk's office. Amt. tax $50.88.

Their being no election for Road Overseer on Dist. No. 9, Mr. Oliver M. Pierson moved that Mr. Theo. Hetfield be appointed for the ensuing year. Several petitions were received from the inhabitants in regard to the purchase of a stone crusher, which was received and placed on file.

"PRINCE" Brown (whose sisters have been achieving newspaper notoriety as the admired of Mr. Peter Clawson of Dunellen) recently sought public renown by risking his health in an encounter with Mr. Robert Walpole, a brother blacksmith. The latter's science in a pugilistic encounter, however, proving too much for "Prince," he attempted to impale Walpole on a pitchfork, and was arrested by Captain Dodd for such desire. Justice Wadsworth placed the accused under $250 bail.

J. VAN WINKLE, City Treasurer.
Plainfield, May 1st, 1882.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed and to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.
O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 20, 1882.

AN ORDINANCE

For the assessment of property and the collection of taxes within the City of Plainfield for the year 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There shall be assessed, levied and collected by tax for the current expenses of this city for the year 1882 the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.)

Sec. 2. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the support of the city poor for the year 1882 the sum of Thirty-five Hundred Dollars ($3,500), at the same time and in the same manner as the said sum of Ten Thousand Dollars mentioned in section one of this ordinance is assessed, levied and collected.

Sec. 3. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the purposes of the Library Fund of the City of Plainfield for the year 1882 the sum of Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) at the same time and in like manner as the amount mentioned in section one of this ordinance is assessed, levied and collected, and the moneys when collected shall be held as provided in chapter [illegible], Laws of New Jersey for 1879.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning the assessment, collection and enforcement of taxes in the City of Plainfield, pursuant to an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "A Further Act concerning Cities," approved March 31, 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all taxes, whether state, county, municipal or other taxes, required by law to be raised in the City of Plainfield, shall be assessed between the twentieth day of May and the third Monday of August in each and every year, and shall become due and payable on the first day of October in each and every year, and shall be collected between the said first day of October and the twentieth day of December in each and every year, and said taxes so far as they remain unpaid shall become and be delinquent on and after the 20th day of December in each and every year.

Sec. 2. That the commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation in said city shall meet on the fourth Tuesday of November in each and every year.

Sec. 3. That the collector of taxes in said city shall make return of the names of all delinquents in the payment of such taxes (so far as they are delinquent) with the sums due from such delinquents respectively, on the fifteenth day of December in each and every year (except when said day shall happen on Sunday, and then on the following day) to the city judge of said city in order to the issuing of warrants by said city judge for the collection of said taxes from such delinquents respectively.

Adopted May 1, 1882.
Approved May 1, 1882.
L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.
O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 1, 1882.

AN ORDINANCE

To abolish an Ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance to provide that certain orders drawn upon the City Treasurer shall bear interest," approved April 19, 1881.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the "Ordinance to provide that certain orders drawn upon the City Treasurer shall bear interest," approved April 19, 1881, be and hereby is abolished.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, carmen, hack, omnibus, stage, and truck owners and drivers, approved March 14, 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 3 of this ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, carmen, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 14, 1882, is hereby amended by inserting immediately after the words "according to the provisions of this ordinance," in the fourth line of that section, the words "under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offence."

Sec. 2. That section 4 of said ordinance be hereby amended by inserting immediately after the words "according to the provisions of this ordinance," in the sixth line of that section, the words "under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offence."

Sec. 3. That during the months of September and October hack, omnibus and stage owners and drivers may be granted a permit by the city clerk for one week, and no longer, to keep or use for hire or wages a hack, omnibus or stage upon the payment therefor into the treasury of the city through the hands of said clerk the sum of two dollars and a half, and in addition thereto the fee of fifty cents to the city clerk for issuing the said permit. And any person or persons except those regularly licensed under the ordinance to which this is an amendment, shall hire out or use for hire any kind of vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage, merchandise or other property, wholly or in part within the limits of the city, as herein provided in this section, without such a specified permit, under the penalty of not to exceed ten dollars for each and every offence.

Adopted May 1, 1882.
Approved May 1, 1882.

Look to Your Horses' Teeth!
DR. H. C. KUGLER,
VETERINARY DENTIST.
Office at ROBERTS' LIVERY, Laing's Hotel.
P. O. Box, 19, Scotch Plains.

I have cured many habits and diseases of the horse by operating on their Teeth, such as coughing, fretting, scouring, drooling, stopping short on road, starving suddenly, loss of flesh, side bound, nasal gleet, tossing head, driving on one line, pulling, bolting, balking, shying, etc.

Horses having diseased or sharp teeth, often producing bad habits, are hard to keep in condition, and, if poor, it is impossible to fatten them. It often produces indigestion, cropping, wind sucking, colic, etc.

After being treated by me, they become good drivers, keep in good condition, and are free from many vices. The most stubborn or nervous horses operated upon with perfect safety and without injury. No charge for examination.

The Menagerie embraces among its leading features—a living Nondescript, the only one ever captured. Camels and Dromedaries, Zebra, White Llama, a very rare animal, wild Yak of Tartary, Lions and Lionesses, Abyssinian Ibex, Royal Bengal Tigers, African Leopard, spotted and striped Hyenas, black and white Deer, Kangaroos, Crocodiles from the river Nile, Python Snakes from the Gambia river—also 50 dens of other rare and valuable Animals, Birds, Monkeys and other monstrosities.

THE MONSTER CIRCUS

in which the talent employed is unequaled and comprises the highest order of performers in the land. The public and particularly ladies and children and families are assured that this department is without a blemish, and nothing is said or done that can offend the most fastidious taste of a refined community. Among the illustrious and world-famed artists in this department are:—
MLLE. ANNA CARROLL, the most charming young lady Equestrienne in the profession. Her Challenge Bareback Act has never been equaled.
C. H. LOWRY, who rides the most thrilling, dashing and electrifying Hurdle Act of any artist in the business.
MLLE. LIZZIE CORDELLO, the Aerial Queen.
W. B. CARROLL, the Peerless Rider, whose reputation is world wide.
MLLE. MANARD, the Thrilling Trapeze Performer, assisted by Mons. Richard.
SIG. MAQUESE, Wild Indian Rider, and has no equal in the world.

THE circus is coming.

OH, for an Opera House.

THE last month of Spring.

COUNCIL meeting next Monday evening.

WILL some one please be philanthropic enough to build an Opera House in this city?

THE latest real-estate transaction in this city, is the purchase, by Samuel C. Drier, of a house on the corner of Second and Elm streets.

THE attention of Plainfield's innumerable M. D's. is directed to Chapter XCI of the Laws of New Jersey, published on the outside of this issue.

THE new shades in dress goods, with trimmings to correspond, can be found at Bachman's. Go and see them; they are worth while noticing.

A NEW postal law or decision authorizes the publishers of newspapers to arrest any person for fraud, who takes his paper and refuses to pay for it.

THE intended macadamizing of Seventh street will add greatly to the beauty of the thoroughfare as well as to advance the value of property thereon.

ONE of the features of the street parade that Van Amburgh's Circus promises on the morning of the 12th inst., is a tribe of "real Indians" on horseback.

ANOTHER victim to the carelessness in handling machinery, is Clarkson Hope, who had the tip of his finger cut off in Spicer & Hubbard's mill, on Wednesday.

THE members of the Grand Jury from Plainfield for the May term of Union Co. Courts are—Abram Baker, D. J. Marshall, Isaac W. Rushmore and John W. Laing.

FOR the first time in the history of Union County, a colored man is acting as a member of the petit jury. He is a citizen of Elizabeth and is serving in a very commendable manner.

A NEW grocery store has been fitted up and stocked at No. 52 East Front street, by Mr. Wm H. Combs who proposes by fair dealing and low prices to attract a share of the community's patronage.

MR. Chas. Smith has been so successful with his Temperance Pool and Billiard Room, at No. 43 West Front street, that he has engaged Mr. Miles to decorate its exterior with a handsome sign.

THE Board of Education, at its meeting of Monday evening last, selected Mr. George H. Babcock to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Charles H. Stillman, until the next municipal election.

AN exciting game of base-ball is on the tapis for the 20th inst. The match to be between a chess-nine headed by ex-Corporation Counsel Suydam and a bicycle-nine under the captaincy of Mr. J. Wilkins Gavett.

THE "Lake House" at New Market has a new proprietor in the person of Mr. Michael Behringer, who has re-fitted and renovated this popular public house in a fine manner, and invites the public to give him a call.

DECISION in the matter of the charges against the Rev. J. P. Morris is expected very soon; and the establishment of a Roman Catholic parish in North Plainfield depends somewhat upon the nature and direct effect of the verdict.

IN view of the fact that so many are changing their box direction at the post-office, we would request our advertisers to send us their new numbers that we may insert such in their advertisements for the information of patrons.

THE old system of taking up tickets from passengers on the Central Railroad at the ferry gates, Communipaw, before they were allowed to pass on to the ferry boats, has been done away with. The tickets are now collected on the incoming trains.

ON Thursday, the 18th inst, Mr. A. J. Brecker will sell at auction the fine residence and grounds on Pearl near Somerset street, North Plainfield, formerly owned by Mr. Joseph Martin, deceased. The advertisement in this issue gives additional particulars.

MARRIAGE seems to be epidemic in Plainfield. In addition to those who have already been stricken with the malady, a Seventh-street-young-man and belles of Crescent avenue and Front street betray premonitory symptoms of coming indisposition (?)

THE matters in difference between the city and the parties accused of selling liquor to minors, remain in statu quo. Now that Mr. Marsh is the City's prosecutor, yet retained by one of the accused as his counsel in defence, the aspect of affairs is in consequence rather peculiar.

THE Park House under the superintendency of Mr. C. C. Hoff, is rapidly filling with guests, and gives every promise of an unusually profitable summer. No hotel in the State is better supplied with the comforts desired, or managed by men of greater experience and liberality.

MESSRS. Whitney & Co.'s process of carpet-cleaning by steam is proving so *satisfactory that the establishment is re*ceiving all the patronage it can attend to. The most delicate fabrics are thoroughly cleansed and the dust completely removed without effecting the material in any undesirable manner.

ON Wednesday of next week the celebrated Zuckschwert Farm, in Union Village, will be sold by auction on the premises; the former sale, as advertised, having been postponed. The farm is well known as worthy the attention of any one desiring a dairy, stock or house farm, or seeking a good investment. Don't neglect to attend the sale.

A VERY enjoyable sociable was given the congregation and friends of the Seventh Day Baptist church, on Thursday evening of last week, in the parlors of the church, by the young people of the society. A number took part in an entertaining programme of varied diversions, including vocal music, elocution and tableaux; and the bright little daughter of the Pastor, also contributed a quota of the evening's amusement.

FRONT street merchants justly complain of the nuisance created by careless persons throwing waste paper, and other materials into the gutters. The high winds catch up the papers and scurry them around the doorways to the annoyance and inconvenience of the merchant who tries to keep his front looking clean and tidy, besides the flying papers are liable to frighten horses that along the street. Is there no remedy for this evil?

SOME of the "runners" of the Fire Department, instead of "taking a run"—as customary on their election night—indulged in a promiscuous row on Monday evening in a saloon of this city. Who provoked the fight or started the disturbance, we (not being present) are unprepared to state; it resulted however, in innumerable bruises impartially distributed, the smashing of considerable furniture and the arrest of two of the combatants.

THE community is so thoroughly satisfied with the conveniences and entire arrangement of the new post office, that naught in its praise—more than we have already said—is necessary. The furnishing is chaste in design and beautiful in effect and finish; the service is admirably conducted, and the great reason our public has for congratulation is implied by the manner the press throughout the State unite in expressions of envy and covetousness.

THE distance from the platform of the R. R. station to the post-office—as measured on Saturday afternoon by Government Surveyor M. M. Thorn—is just 129 feet, and in consequence within the distance that calls for a free delivery of the mails by the transporting agent. Officer Conway now shoulders the bags, and faithful Jerry, who has in past years carried so many tons of love—at least business letters for the public, finds his occupation gone.

TWO young girls of this city had mounted the platform of one of the cars of the 9:14 p. m., train from Plainfield on Thursday of last week, to carry on a flirtation with a gallant brakeman. Conductor Finnhout not knowing of their presence signalled the engineer and the locomotive was started. The skirts of the fair damsels, in the hurry to get off, were caught by the car steps and they were dragged some distance before the stoppage of the train released them. In future, that brakeman will have to leave the platform if he desires to continue his acquaintance with those particular ladies.

THE Young People's Association of the Crescent avenue church, held one of its recurrent social entertainments on Friday evening of last week. The Committee in charge had arranged an unusually pleasing programme, which was executed by such an array of talent as is seldom found outside of professional circles. Vocal selections were given by Mrs. Samuel Kimball, Mrs. S. H. Struthers, Miss Jennie L. Demarest and Messrs. Struthers and Tyler, which, as well as the violin solos of Mr. Wolfe, were quite perfectly rendered. The success of the evening was, however, achieved by Miss Etta Gavett, in her execution on the piano of the "Reveil du Lion," a grand composition ably performed and entirely deserving of the encore it received.

MR. James Connolly of Park avenue, has just repainted the front of his establishment, pure white.

IF such of our subscribers as receive their papers through the city mail, will notify us of the retention of their old boxes or a change of number, it will greatly reduce our labors in directing the papers as well as insure promptness of delivery.

THE young ladies of the Mission Band of the Crescent avenue and First Presbyterian churches, are arranging a concert for the benefit of the cause. The date and place are not yet decided upon, but it is fully settled that the best of our city's amateur vocal and instrumental talent, will take part.

REGULAR policeman Lynch has struck work, and refuses longer to do a dollar's worth of service for fifty cents. The public will regret the fact that its police protection again numbers one, but Officer Randolph can furnish about twice the security that is within the power and disposition of the average guardian of the peace.

THE employee at the Gas House, whose business it is each evening to fill a small receiver from the larger ones, was taken suddenly ill on Monday and his duty was neglected. In consequence the supply became exhausted and the lights throughout the city were extinguished a number of times. The Company, however, was soon notified and the omission remedied.

SOME cowardly miscreant, during Saturday night, covered the newly-painted fence and front door of the residence of Mr. B. Obitz, on Somerset street near Mountain avenue, with yellow paint. The graining was greatly defaced thereby, although every effort was made to remove the cause. Who it is that was guilty of so contemptible a deed, is not known.

THE Convocation of New Brunswick Diocese of New Jersey, will hold its next quarterly meeting in Grace Church this city, on Tuesday May 9th. The services will be as follows: An early celebration at 6:30 a. m., morning prayer, sermon and holy communion at 10:30 a. m., to be followed by the regular business session. At 7:30 p. m. there will be a public missionary meeting, with addresses from the Bishop of the Diocese and several of the clergy.

THE Sixty-third Anniversary of the Independent Order of Odd-Fellowship in America, was observed by Plainfield Lodge No. 44, at its rooms in this city on Wednesday evening. The programme of exercises included vocal performances by Mrs. Frank P. Doty, Miss Ella Staats, Mr. T. B. Brown and others, an oration by Mr. Lewis Parker, Jr., Grand Sec. of the Grand Lodge and a recitation by Mr. Robert F. Y. Pierce, Grand Conductor. Other entertaining features contributed towards making the occasion a memorable one.

Firemen's Election.

NO. 2 HOSE CO.

On Wednesday April 26, No 2 Hose Co. elected the following officers. Foreman, Aaron Marsh; Assistant, Charles Krewson; Secretary, James Frazee; Treasurer, Henry Heidelolf.

WARREN HOSE CO.

Foreman—John Loughlin. Assistant—D. Smith. Secretary—M. Flynn. Treasurer—P. Maag.

North Plainfield's New School House.

An adjourned meeting of the tax-payers of North Plainfield Township, was held at the School House on Tuesday evening, where a large attendance of the most prominent citizens had gathered to hear the report of the Committee selected to consider the project of erecting a new Public School building. Chairman Place presided and Secretary Brokaw read the notice of the present and the minutes of the previous meeting. Mr. James McGee on being called upon for the report, stated that the Committee had held constant meetings together, as well as consultations with the School Trustees, architect, influential townsmen and others. The conclusions arrived at were embodied in the report, which the speaker requested Mr. H. K. Carroll, the Secretary of the Committee, to read. It was as follows:

To the Inhabitants of School District No. 28, Somerset County, New Jersey.

Your committee, appointed at the annual District meeting, held March 21, to prepare a plan for a new school building, to select a suitable site, and to present an estimate of the cost of such house and lot, have performed the duty assigned them, and submit for your consideration the following conclusions and recommendations.

After having made a patient and extended inquiry as to the school accommodations actually needed in this District, and the ability of the tax-payers to provide them, and carefully considered the important question of location, we are convinced that a substantial brick building is required; that it should be large enough, with due regard to the requirements of health, to accommodate at least six hundred children; that the most central and accessible site attainable is the Thorne lot on Somerset-st. below Park Place; that these objects cannot be secured with a less expenditure than $25,000.

We therefore recommend—

1. That twenty-five thousand dollars be appropriated for a new school building, including furniture and site.

2. That $4,500 be raised for the site, $3,000 for the furniture, and $17,500 for the building.

3. That the house be built of brick, and be made strong and safe and durable; that it consist of two stories with six class-rooms on each floor and each class-room large enough to afford accommodations for fifty scholars; that the dimensions be about sixty by eighty feet, ground measurement, and its ceilings thirteen or fourteen feet high; that its stairways and doorways be wide and ample for ingress or egress; and that the most approved systems of ventilation and heating be used and the provisions against fire be as nearly perfect as possible.

4. That the Thorne lot, which has a frontage of 140 feet on Somerset street and a depth of [illegible] feet, be purchased for $4,500; and that a piece of ground in the rear, 145 feet wide and fifty feet deep be also secured at a cost not more than $[illegible].

The committee has obtained a "refusal" of the Thorne lot for thirty days.

Respectfully submitted,
JAMES McGEE,
P. M. FRENCH,
H. K. CARROLL,
Committee.

North Plainfield, May 1, 1882.

Mr. Edwin L. Bonny then moved the adoption of a series of resolutions, in effect as follows:

First—That the report be accepted and recorded, and that the Committee be discharged with the thanks of the meeting. Carried.

Second—That the recommendations of the Committee be adopted and the Trustees of the District be instructed to take the necessary steps to carry them out.

Before the motion was put, Mr. Francis H. Gardner stated for information, what amount of additional yearly tax each person assessed would have to pay, in the event of raising, by bond the money desired. The resolution was then adopted unanimously.

Third—That the Trustees be directed to give the required ten days notice of a meeting to be held on Tuesday, the 16th instant, to determine whether the amounts specified shall be appropriated. Carried unanimously and the meeting then adjourned.

Common Council Proceedings.

SPECIAL AND REGULAR MEETINGS.

The Telephone Co. given the right of way through the City—Unanimous Confirmation of Mr. Craig A. Marsh, as Counsel to the Corporation—Report of the City Collector and Treasurer—The Impotency of the Hack Ordinance—Collector Brown unwilling to collect by law—Two new ordinances passed—Adjourned for one week.

MONDAY EVENING, May 1st, 1882.

The Council met in special meeting at 8:15 o'clock, pursuant to adjournment, to take final action on the petition of the N. J. Telephone and Telegraph Co., for permission to erect poles and maintain a line of wires through the streets of the City.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs. Depew, Gardner, Ginna, Kaufman, Lindsley, Livingston, Newhall, J. Simpson and Thompson—10.

Absent—Mr. R. Simpson.

Mr. Ginna, from the Laws Com., reported as follows.

Report of the Law and Ordinance Committee concerning the matter of the New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The Law & Ordinance Committee to whom was referred the papers bearing upon the application of and privilege granted to the New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company to erect poles through the streets of the city, beg to report that they have carefully examined this matter, and arrive at the following conclusions:

First. The New Jersey Telephone & Telegraph Company, having been induced by the subscription of some seventy-five citizens—nearly all of whom are property owners—to favorably entertain the scheme of introducing telephonic service into the city, advertised their design through the medium of the local press, and afterward by application to the Common Council, at their meeting held February 27th 1882, for the privilege of erecting their poles through the streets of the city, thus giving opportunity for all who might be opposed to the enterprise to enter their protest. The application of the Company was referred to Committee on Streets, and by them reported upon favorably at the meeting of Council held April 10th. This report was confirmed by the Council and the Street Committee instructed to supervise the erection of the poles, and to see that they were of a satisfactory character, and placed where would be least objectionable to property owners. Acting upon the consent of the Council, the Company proceeded at once to the work of completing their lines. At this juncture, a protest was drawn up, signed by a number of property holders on Park avenue, and presented to the Council at a special meeting held April 20, asking them to restrain the Company from erection of poles on that street. In deference to this, and that the Council might have opportunity to examine into the matter, the Company ceased the erection of poles on Park avenue, and are now only placing them where they are not interfered with by the property owners. While your Committee do not feel themselves called upon or competent to give an opinion as to the full powers of the Common Council in granting street privileges, yet in this instance, the Council having extended to the Company their permission to proceed with the erection of their poles and stringing of their wires, under certain restrictions heretofore named, would recommend that this permission should be continued.

Second. In regard to the charge that the New Jersey Telephone & Telegraph Company was only a telegraph company in disguise, and liable to be transferred to some of the great monopolies now controlling the telegraph system of our country, your committee find no foundation whatever. But to more fully protect the city and the subscribers to this system, we have procured from the Company the agreement herewith attached.

Third. The Committee would recommend that supervision of the erection of the poles of the New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company be continued with the Street Committee and they be instructed to exercise great care in having them placed in the most unobjectionable locations giving also due consideration to the Company's requirements and insisting that the poles shall be of a smooth, straight and sightly character.

S. A. GINNA,
ROBT. L. LIVINGSTON,
M. LINDSLEY,
Committee on L. & O.

MAY 1, 1882.

Mr. Newhall, seconded by Mr. J Simpson, moved that the report be accepted and the recommendation adopted. Carried; all aye.

On motion the following supplementary agreement was received and placed on file:

In consideration of the permission heretofore granted by the Common Council of the city of Plainfield to the New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company with reference to the erection of its poles upon certain of the streets within said city, the said "The New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Company" hereby covenants and agrees that said poles shall not be used for any purpose whatsoever except for the support of its own wires, and the necessary fixtures; which said wires shall be used exclusively for the transmission of telephonic messages to and from the subscribers in (or in the neighborhood of) the city of Plainfield; that the right, title and interest of said company in and to said poles and wires shall not be sold, assigned or leased without the consent of said Common Council, and the said Company further agrees that said poles shall be erected and at all times maintained under the supervision and control of said Common Council of the city of Plainfield or of such Committee thereof, as said Council shall designate for the purpose.

The N. J. Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
by C. M. BARNEY,
Gen'l Agent.

Jersey City, April 27, 1882.

Mr. Ginna offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Com. on Streets and Public Roads be, and they hereby are directed to supervise the erection of the poles of the New Jersey Telephone and Telegraph Co., and to direct said poles to be placed where will be least objectionable to property owners on line of route which said Co. may find it necessary to pursue in order to extend service to their subscribers; and the Com. to insist upon only smooth, sightly poles being erected, and if in their judgment it would improve their appearance, to direct the Company to have them painted.

Seconded by Mr. Newhall, and adopted; all aye.

The meeting then adjourned.

MONDAY EVENING, May 1st, 1882.

The Council met in regular session at the close of the adjourned special meeting.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs Depew, Gardner, Ginna, Kaufman, Lindsley, Livingston, Newhall, J. Simpson and Thompson—10.

Absent—Mr. R. Simpson.

Minutes of adjourned meeting of April 10th and special meeting of April 20th, were read and approved.

Mr. Kaufman presented a petition from numerous owners and drivers of Hacks, requesting the modification and revision of certain provisions in the ordinance regulating and licensing hacks &c.

Ref'd to the Com. on Laws and Ordinances.

Also, by the same, the application of V. Palermo for a license to carry on the business of a pedler. Ref'd.

Also, a petition from Mr. P. M. Demarest for permission to erect a shed in the rear of lot at No. 34 West Front street. Ref'd.

Also, a petition from Mr. T. J. Pruden to erect an awning from over the sidewalk at No. 13 West Front street. Ref'd.

By Mr. J. Simpson, a petition from property owners and residents in the vicinity for a cross walk at Eighth street and Central avenue. Ref'd to Street Com., with power.

Also, a petition from residents in the vicinity of Third and Liberty streets, asking that steps be taken to break up an organized band of boys that disturb the peace and good order of the neighborhood. Ref'd to Police Com.

Mr. Depew presented from Corporation Counsel Kimball a list of the cases in legal process to which the City of Plainfield is a party. Rec'd and ref'd to Com. on Laws.

Also, a petition from property owners in the vicinity, for cross walks at Crescent avenue and Second place, crossing both thoroughfares. Ref'd to street Com., with power.

Also, a petition for the location of a lamp on the West side of Crescent ave., opposite Third Place. Ref'd to Lamps Com., with power.

Mr. Ginna presented a communication from the Assessor in relation to a clerical error causing an overcharge in the amount due from a certain tax-payer, and asking that the latter be credited the amount.

On motion of Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. J. Simpson, the Assessor was empowered to make the necessary correction. All aye.

Mr. Newhall presented the claims of D. W. Little, $17.50; Karl Peterson, 12; A. M. Runyon, 17; P. Relief Asso., (Feb.) 40.27, (March) 51.20. Ref'd.

By Mr. Thompson, the claim of the Plainfield Gaslight Co., for the month of April, $243.25. Ref'd.

By Mr. Gardner, the claim of Street Commissioner Meeker for work done on the streets from April 12th to 25th, $116.75. Ref'd.

The President presented the following communication from the Mayor with the accompanying letter from Corporation Counsel Kimball:

PLAINFIELD, May 1st, 1882.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:

The decision reached at your last meeting having re-opened a way for further action in the matter of the "Counsel to the Corporation," and Mr. Kimball having renewed his request to be relieved (as per his letter herewith), I now, in accordance with the desire expressed by several members of your Honorable body, re-nominate for that office, Mr. Craig A. Marsh.

While warmly appreciating Mr. Kimball's efficiency and faithfulness, I cannot doubt that the city's legal interests will be abundantly well served by Mr. Marsh.

Yours Respectfully,
L. V. F. RANDOLPH,
Mayor.

PLAINFIELD, April 29th, 1882.

Hon. L. V. F. Randolph, Mayor, &c.

DEAR SIR:

Pardon me for calling attention still again to the request that I be relieved from the office of Corporation Counsel. As you are aware, I have remained in the office during the last two or three months against my wishes, not feeling justified in resigning absolutely, so long as that course would create a vacancy in the office. As the difficulties in the way of the confirmation of a successor seem now to be, in part, at least, overcome, I venture to express the wish that you will renew your efforts to relieve me, by sending in a nomination at the next meeting of the Common Council.

I am,
Very Respectfully Yours,
CHAS. W. KIMBALL.

Moved by Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Ginna, that the communication be received and the nomination confirmed.

Mr. Livingston called the attention of the Council to a section of an ordinance to regulate the appointment of officers, providing that a person not before nominated should be named.

Mr. Ginna thought such stipulation was for the accommodation of the Council, and if it saw fit to waive the provision it might do so.

The nomination was then unanimously confirmed.

The Clerk read a communication from E. W. Runyon Esq., attorney for Mr. A. D. Gibbon, requesting settlement of the latter's claim of $100, for damages arising out of the widening of Park avenue. Ref'd to Laws Com.

Mr. Depew presented the monthly reports of the City Treasurer and the Collector. Rec'd and ordered published.

Also a communication from the Collector stating that the lists of delinquents were ready to be returned to City Judge. Ref'd to Laws Com.

Mr. Ginna, from the Com. appointed to make an examination of the late Collector's books, reported that the expert had gone as far as possible without the aid of the ex-Collector. The action of the latter was awaited.

Mr. Newhall, from Alms Com., reported as correct the claims of P. Relief Asso., $42.40; P. M. Demarest, 4.50; T. J. Pruden, 30; D. J. Hand, 102.86, and Mrs. Mary Van Nars, 45. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The rules were suspended to allow Mr. Kaufman to present the claims of Runyon & Leonard, $67,50. Ref'd.

Mr. Livingston presented the claims of H. H. Lowrie, $61.50; O. B. Leonard, 62; J. C. Meeker, 50; C. W. Dodd, 58.34; P. Lynch, 27.78; R. Randolph, 31.50; G. W. Grant, 5.20, and Geo. W. Moore, 22.50. Ref'd.

Mr. J. Simpson, from Auditing Com., reported as correct the following claims: A. Vanderbeek, $60; W. L. Force & Bro., 199.85; H. H. Lowrie, 62.50; H. Hamilton, 29.50; Runyon & Leonard, 62.25; J. B. Brown, 48.22; J. O. Nedyne, 264.61, Geo. W. Moore, 224.37 and E. V. Shotwell, 50.

On motion, laid on the table.

Also the following claims against the Poor Fund: Relief Asso., $41; J. M. Dunn, 4.30; Mrs. J. Wilkins, 9; J. Flynn, 8; J. M. Crane, 2.50; P. Langenbahn, 6; A. Willett, 3.75 and M. Bird, 16.27. Tabled.

Mr. Depew, from the Finance Com., made a verbal report regarding the finances of the city, and moved the adoption of a resolution empowering the Treasurer to borrow in anticipation of taxes the sum of $1,714.40 and pay in full the claim of the County.

Carried; all aye.

Also a resolution to borrow $3,000 to pay all uncalled warrants and bills now before the Council for city expenses. Carried; all aye.

Mr. Thompson, from Lamps Com., reported progress in relation to petition of the new Gas Com.

Mr. Ginna, from Laws Com., reported that the Township authorities of North Plainfield had no power to vacate Albert avenue. The power belonged to the Board of Survey and it had no right in the face of any objection. Also that there was such an objection.

Mr. Kaufman from printing Com., reported as correct the claims of Runyon & Leonard $57.50, and E. O. Chamberlin, 52.90. Ref'd to Aud Com.

Mr. Lindsley, from Sal's Com., reported as correct the claims of J. Van Winkle, $75, and J. A. Hubbard (assessing State and County taxes for '78, '79 & '80) $521 including interest. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Kaufman moved that the License Committee be instructed to investigate whether the hackmen were conforming with the ordinance regulating their trade.

Carried; Messrs. Livingston, Thomp*son and J.Simpson voting in the negative.*

The same moved the adoption of a resolution requesting the Mayor to offer a reward of $25 for the apprehension of parties guilty of breaking street lamps.

Mr. Thompson thought the resolution useless, as in the case of an offender found guilty of breaking a lamp, the City Judge had only imposed a fine sufficient to pay the costs of repair.

Mr. J. Simpson thought it the business of the police to look after the matter.

Messrs Lindsley and Livingston were of the opinion that the reward was too large.

The motion was lost. Messrs Gardner, Ginna, Lindsley, Rushmore, J. Simpson and Thompson voting in the negative.

Mr. Kaufman moved the adoption of a resolution, requiring Deputy-Tax-Collector, Geo. W. Moore, to furnish a bond of $1,000 by next meeting, in accordance with resolution of March 13th. And if not done that a new Deputy be appointed subject to the same provision.

Carried; all aye.

Mr. Depew presented an ordinance to abolish the ordinance that provides for the issuing of interest-bearing warrants.

Read first and second times, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading.

By the same, a resolution that the City Treasurer be empowered to pay all outstanding warrants after advertisement. Carried; all aye.

Also a resolution that the City Treasurer be allowed $100 for receiving and paying over money of the State and County taxes for 1882.

On motion of Mr. Newhall, seconded by Mr. Kaufman, ref'd to Com. on Salaries.

Mr. Ginna moved for adoption a resolution instructing the City Judge to issue his warrants against the delinquents of 1880 and 1881.

Mr. Kaufman offered as an amendment that the warrants be issued to the City Collector.

Mr. Depew thought that it would be better to further consider the matter as to whom the warrants were to be issued. The City Collector was only induced to retain his office with the understanding that his duties should not be made heavier than necessary. He moved that the resolution be referred to the Com. on Laws. Seconded by Mr. Kaufman.

Mr. Ginna from such Com., stated that the Collector was not willing to take legal steps against delinquents. He absolutely declined to have warrants issued to him and refuses to prosecute and distress parties with whom he is on friendly terms.

The motion to refer was carried. Mr. Newhall voting in the negative.

The rules were suspended to allow Mr. Lindsley to present the report of the select committee appointed to wait upon the Collector in relation to his resignation. In effect the report stated that Mr. Brown would consent to remain in office provided he was not called upon to press the collection of delinquent taxes by legal processes.

Report accepted.

The ordinance relating to the assessments, collection and enforcement of taxes, and the ordinance amending the hack ordinance were placed upon their final passage and adopted; all aye.

It was moved that when the Council adjourn it be until Monday evening the 8th inst. Carried.

Mr. Thompson presented a resolution to the effect that the Mayor be requested to offer a reward—not to exceed one-half of the penalty imposed—for the arrest and conviction of parties guilty of breaking street lamps.

Lost. The mover voting in the negative as well as Messrs Depew, Gardner, Livingston, Newhall, Rushmore and J. Simpson.

The Council then adjourned.

Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association.

Pursuant to notice a number of stockholders of the above Association, assembled at the Fair grounds last Monday evening to elect a board of thirteen Directors to serve the ensuing year, the result being as follows:—John I. Holly, James S. Voorhees, Eugene Gross, E. C. Pierson, N. Robins, A. H. Smith, J. W. Johnson, O. T. Waring, W. C. Smith, Geo. Rockfellow, Bergen Vanderhoven, J. H. Meyer and J. V D. Christopher. The last five named gentlemen are new members of the board, the others being re-elected. They will elect officers of the Association at a future meeting. There is every prospect that the Board will make arrangements for the holding of a Fair on the grounds next Fall, that will prove a grand success, as they are gentlemen of ability and perseverance. All premiums awarded at the last Fair in sums of $5 and under have recently been paid and the larger amounts will be liquidated in a few days.

A Way to Dress Economically.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of The London & Liverpool Clothing Co., which appears in this issue. This firm, although but lately entering into competition with the many large establishments of New York city, seems determined to secure the patronage of the public by offering the handsomest goods at the lowest prices. Their stock should be seen in its completeness to judge of its extent and variety, but to accommodate those who have not the time for a visit, Mr. Fred H Martin of this city will be pleased to bring out any garment of the large assortment for inspection and approval. This gentleman is well known to our public as possessing extended experience in the clothing business, as well as the courteous and accommodating disposition that admirably fits him for the performance of such favors.

WHITNEY'S stock of lace goods cannot be surpassed in this or any other city, while his line of kid gloves and assortment of corsets are meeting with large sale and universal satisfaction.

Personalia.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt D. Evans are visiting the groom's parents in this city.

Col. Johnson and Dr. Fritts are both so much better in condition, as to be able to be out on Saturday of last week.

Mr. Russell C. Johnson and family have returned to their residence on Somerset street, for the Summer.

Mr. Wm. Dyos and family of this city left for Europe on Tuesday for a short visit to that gentleman's mother.

Mr. Amos Morrill has given up his residence on Broadway and removed with his family to New York city.

Justice of the Peace, L. F. Wadsworth, has almost entirely recovered from the effects of his recent fall and is able again to be out and attend to Court duties.

Mr. J. Wesley Johnson has just added to his extensive stud of valuable horses, a very handsome and stylish Black-Hawk mare, formerly the property of one of our residents.

The Rt. Rev. John Scarborough preached and administered the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation in Grace Church on Sunday morning, and at the Church of the Holy Cross during the evening of the same day.

Mr. William Grogan, so well known to many of our citizens, is now connected with the establishment of Mr. James H. Force at No. 20 West Front street, where his numerous friends may continue to receive his courteous attention.

Mr. Joseph W. Yates and other residents in the vicinity of the Crescent ave. Park, have been so active and untiring in their efforts to make that triangular plot of ground a thing of beauty, that it already gives promise of being as attractive a piece of landscape gardening of its size as can be found in the State.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh is herewith accorded our heartiest congratulations upon his attainment of the office and title referred to. An unusual amount of service will be required of the new Counsel, but our personal knowledge of Mr. Marsh's talents and ability, assures us that such will be satisfactorily realized.

The recent death of Emily Bee, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bee of North Plainfield, leaves a void in the affection of all who knew her and a vacancy in the religious and social circles she was wont to adorn. The deceased was a young lady respected and admired by all, and her generosity of disposition and kindness of heart gained for her the many friends that now sincerely mourn her loss.

Mr. Samuel Manning of this city has been elevated from the position of "searcher" to the more responsible one of General Car Agent for the C R R. His headquarters will be at Elizabeth, and his duties will include a thorough knowledge in detail of the whereabouts, condition, etc., of about 23,000 cars. The appointment is a most judicious one and the advancement entirely deserving.

Ex-Postmaster Vail, on Saturday morning, reached the last car of the 8:01 train as it was leaving the station, and succeeded in grasping the rail of the back platform. The increasing motion of the train, however, prevented his gaining a foothold, and a passing "freight" was too suggestive of danger to allow Mr. Vail to let go his hold. The lookers on expected a local tragedy in consequence, but the train was stopped at the Peace street bridge and the calamity averted by the disappearance of the principal character through the doorway of the back car.

The Fire Alarm Bell.

It looks very much as if the authorities of the Fire Department were shirking the urgency of apprehending the parties guilty of ringing false alarms. To prevent the ringing of such the bell rope has been placed out of reach and the entrance to the tower locked—which procedure, while it stops false alarms, effectually prevents public notice of conflagrations where the service of our firemen is desired and necessary. If the authorities will not take steps to convict those who ring without reason, let the latter continue without limit, rather than interfere with the sounding of a general alarm on occasions when property is endangered.

A Grave Grievance.

There was a strange fight between two sisters in the William street cemetery, on Sunday afternoon, over the grave of their mother. The deceased's name was Mrs. Farington, and at the time of her death resided near Chimney Rock in the vicinity of Bound Brook. The entire family were Roman Catholics except one daughter who had married a Protestant. Another married daughter was asked to assist in burying her mother but declined, and the Protestant daughter consented only on condition that the remains should be interred in a Protestant cemetery. Because they were not buried in consecrated ground so enraged the other that she tried to brain her sister over the grave. There are sweet consolations in religion, sometimes.

Mr. S. T. Varian, the veteran crockery and glass-ware merchant of this city, having accepted the position of Superintendent of the coal docks of the D L & W R R., at Hoboken, announces in this issue that he intends closing out his large stock at No. 4 East Front street, regardless of cost.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

LIVER, KIDNEY AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Complaints, and has power to root them out of the system, is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof of this can be found by one trial, or by asking your neighbors, who have been cured by it.

FEAR NOT.

All kidney complaints, especially Bright's disease, diabetes and liver troubles, Hop Bitters will surely and lastingly cure. Cases exactly like your own have been cured in your own neighborhood, and you can find reliable proof at home of what Hop Bitters has and can do.

ELY'S CREAM BALM has intrinsic worth. We hear from many who are using it for Catarrh, of wonderful cures being effected, and without hesitation offer it to our customers as the best remedy for its purpose in use. DURBAN & HOYT, Druggists, Catskill, N. Y.

CATSKILL, Dec. 21, 1880.

Messrs. Ely Bros., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.: I have suffered for many years from Chronic Catarrh and tried a great number of remedies without any permanent relief; but some six weeks ago I was induced to try your Cream Balm, and with the very best results. Relief was almost instantaneous, and continued use has resulted in an almost complete cure. Therefore I take pleasure in recommending your Cream Balm to all who may be suffering as I was. S. M. GREENE, Bookkeeper, Office N. Y., Catskill & Athens Steamboat Co. Price 50 cents.

Do not suffer from sick headache a moment longer. It is not necessary. Carter's Liver Pills will cure you. Dose, one little pill. All druggists sell them.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, skin, etc. It corrects Indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

DR. ROGERS' VEGETABLE WORM SYRUP instantly destroys worms and removes the Secretions which cause them.

CHAPTER XCVI.

A Further Act concerning cities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the common council of any city may fix by ordinance the times and dates within which taxes required by law to be raised in such city, whether state, county, municipal or other taxes, shall be assessed, as well as the times and dates when the same shall become due and within which the same shall be collected, the date of the session of the commissioner of appeal, and the date on which the collector of taxes in said city shall make return of the names of the delinquents in the payment of such taxes, in order to the issue of warrants for the collection of taxes due from such delinquents respectively; and whenever the common council of any city shall so fix such times, dates and periods as aforesaid, all provisions of law affecting such city, so far as they fix such times, dates and periods otherwise, shall be suspended and of no effect so far as concerns such city, during the continuance of such ordinance unrepealed; provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the fixing of any date, time or period, as aforesaid, later than the several corresponding dates, times or periods for the assessment, time of falling due, collection, session of the commissioners of appeal and return of delinquents, which are, or shall at any time be fixed by the general law in respect of townships.

2. And be it enacted, That every city shall have full power, through its appropriate officers, to assess and collect the full quotas of state, school and county taxes, and that said taxes shall, in each city, be assessed and collected by the same officers and in the same manner as municipal taxes in such city are or shall be by law directed or authorized to be assessed and collected, respectively, and the names of delinquents in the payment of such taxes shall also, so far as said taxes shall remain unpaid, be returned, with the sums due from such delinquents respectively, in the same manner and to the same magistrate, as the names of delinquents in the payment of municipal taxes in such city are by law required to be returned; every assessor and collector who is by law charged with any duty in respect to the assessment or collection of municipal taxes in any city, is hereby empowered and directed to perform the like duties, in respect to the assessment and collection, respectively, of such city's quotas of state, state school and county taxes, and the common council of each city is hereby empowered and directed to exercise the like authority, supervision and control over and in respect to the assessment, collection and enforcement of such city's quotas of state, state school and county taxes, as well as of its taxes for municipal and other local purposes, as township committees of townships are by law empowered to exercise over and in respect to the assessment, collection and enforcement of state, state school and county taxes required to be raised in townships, and any balance of moneys remaining in the hands of the treasurer of any city, derived from the levy of state, state school or county taxes, for any year, shall, after the quota of state, state school and county taxes, due from the taxes of such city for that year, and for all previous years, has been paid in full, be transferred to the general fund, and belong to and be applicable to the general municipal or other purposes of such city.

3. And be it enacted, That after the date fixed, pursuant to the provisions of this act, by the common council of any city for the return of the names of delinquents in the payment of any taxes, the magistrate to whom any such return in such city shall have been made, shall thereupon issue his warrant, and, if required, shall issue from time to time successive alias and pluries warrants, for the collection of such taxes, to such officer as shall have been or shall be designated by such common council to receive the same, commanding him to collect such taxes, with the interest and costs by law chargeable thereon, by levy and sale of personal property in like manner as justices of the peace in townships are authorized by law to issue warrants for the collection of taxes in townships, and with like force and effect; and such common council may at any time revoke the designation of any such officer, and designate another for the like purpose, who shall have the like powers; and the officer to whom any such warrant shall have been issued, is hereby empowered and directed to collect all taxes by such warrant commanded to be collected, whether such taxes be for state, county, municipal or other purposes, and to this end he is empowered and directed to levy upon and sell personal property of delinquents, so far as may be necessary to collect the amounts due from them respectively for such taxes, with the interest and costs by law chargeable thereon, in like manner as is required or authorized by law in respect to or upon similar warrants issued in townships.

4. And be it enacted, That whenever, by reason of any ambiguity or incompleteness in or misconstruction of existing laws, or for any other reason, no legal return of the names of delinquents, in the payment of any taxes now or heretofore due and payable in any city has been made, then and in such case, at any time within six months after the passage of this act, a return of the names of delinquents in the payment of such taxes, with the sums due from them respectively, shall be made by the collector for the time being to the magistrate to whom, by the foregoing provisions of this act, returns are required to be made; provided, that the common council of such city shall by resolution so direct; and upon the receipt of such return and upon the request of such common council, such magistrate shall issue his warrant and, if required, shall issue from time to time successive alias and pluries warrants for the collection of such taxes, to such officer as shall have been or shall be designated by such common council to receive the same, commanding him to collect such taxes, with the interest and costs by law chargeable thereon, by levy and sale of personal property, in like manner as justices of the peace in townships are authorized by law to issue warrants for the collection of taxes in townships, and with the like force and effect; and such common council may, at any time, revoke the designation of any such officer, and designate another for the like purpose, who shall have the like powers; and the officer to whom any such warrant shall have been issued, is hereby empowered and directed to collect all taxes by such warrant commanded to be collected, whether such taxes be for state, county, municipal or other purposes, and to this end he is empowered and directed to levy upon and sell personal property of delinquents, so far as may be necessary to collect the amounts due from them respectively for such taxes, with the interest and costs by law chargeable thereon, in like manner as is required or authorized by law in respect to or upon similar warrants issued in townships.

5. And be it enacted, That the powers conferred, and the duties imposed, by law upon any officer, in any city, in respect to the collection or enforcement of taxes in such city, including the power and duty of issuing warrants therefor, shall not lapse or cease to exist by reason of the expiration of his term of office, or by reason of any vacancy which may arise in said office, but all such powers and duties shall, so far as the same shall not have been executed or performed, devolve upon his successor in office, and be executed and performed by such successor; and if at any time within six years next previous to the passage of this act, the power to collect and enforce the payment of any taxes in any such city has lapsed or ceased to exist, solely through the expiration of the term of office of any such officer, then, and in every such case, the time to collect such taxes in such city shall be, and hereby is, extended and continued for two years next after the passage of this act, and any time within six months after such passage a return of the names of the delinquents in the payment of such taxes, with the sums due from them, respectively, may be made, and warrants issued by and to the same officers or persons, respectively, and in like manner, and with like effect, as is provided in the last preceding section of this act with reference to the making of returns and the issue of warrants in cases of improper, illegal or inadequate returns, or in case of the absence of any returns, by reason of ambiguity or inconsistency or misconstruction of the law.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall not take away or impair any power conferred by law upon any city, or any officer thereof, in relation to the assessment, collection or enforcement of taxes, and shall not apply to any city within whose limits state and county taxes are now assessed and collected by officers of a township or townships.

7. And be it enacted, That the term common council, whenever used in this act, shall be construed to mean the legislative body of any city, whether called "common council" or "board of aldermen," or called or known by any other designation.

8. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed and taken to be a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1882.

HEPATICA.

April.

The wind blew straight from the darkened land of rain,
The wind blew cold and long,
The sun went down with a dull and cheerless glow,
That tinged the floating ice, o'er the river's endless flow,
And the blue-bird hushed his song.

High on the hill, in a brook of stone,
Two spotted leaves of red and brown,
[illegible] close together.

MAY.

The wind blew straight from the fragrant land of rain,
The wind blew soft and long,
And the sun went down in his gold again,
The clouds, with glad tears, drenched the trees [illegible]
And the blue-bird waked his song.

Up from the stems which [illegible],
Awakening beauty lifts her face,
At the kiss of the loving weather.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE LAST WAR STORY.

It was a hot day as I followed the track of McClellan's retreat from Malvern Hill, and I was both hungry and thirsty. A woman being at the gate of a yard, I rode up and asked: "Madame, can I get dinner here?"

She saw the "Yank" in me quicker than scat, and instantly replied: "The Yankees stole all I had to eat."

"I'll pay you well."

"But I haven't got nuthin' to sell."

"If you had some potatoes and bacon and——"

"Yanks stole 'em all!" she interrupted.

"But you can give me a drink of water, can't you?"

"No, sir! The Yankees filled up the well and carried away the dipper."

"Is there a spring around here?"

"Used to be lots of 'em, but the Yanks toted 'em off!"

Below us was the muddy James, and the drought had lasted so long that there was hardly enough water to float a catfish. Pointing to the historic stream, I asked:

"Why didn't the Yankees steal the river too?"

She scratched her head with a sliver pulled off the fence, and never unbent a particle as she replied:

"They wanted to do it, stranger—wanted to the wust way, and when they diskivered that it would'nt load up worth a cent they galloped their old gunboats up and down and washed so many shirts in Turkey Bend that the James has been ashamed to look a cow in the face ever since! Maybe you kin git a drink down thar, but this 'ere neighborhood won't stand by and see you carry off any of sand-bars! Be a little keerful how you paw around."

SOUR APPLES.

"Johnny," said a lady living on Austin avenue, to her ten-year-old son, "take a basket, go to the grocery on the corner and bring me a dozen nice apples. Be sure and taste them, and see they are not sour ones."

"Yes, mother, I will try and remember to taste them," said Johnny, cheerfully, taking up the basket and sauntering out the gate. In about half an hour he came back and placed the empty basket on the table.

"Didn't the grocer have any apples?" asked the anxious mother.

"Yes, mam, I bought a dozen. They were not sour."

"Where are they?" asked the fond mother, taking another squint into the empty basket.

"You told me to be sure and see that they were not sour, so I had to taste every one of them, you know, ma; I had to bite each apple, you know."

"Where are they?" shrieked the now thoroughly aroused woman.

"They were all little apples, ma, and one of them didn't make more than a good bite, but they wasn't sour, ma, indeed they wasn't."

PHOTOGRAPHY by moonlight! How suggestive of lovers' walks and fond good-nights that have hitherto escaped the subtle process of reproduction. It opens the front gate, as it were, to many sweet and tender possibilities in art.

ABOLISH the feather dusters in the house. Use a cloth—wipe away the dust. Do you know just what you are doing when you brush away the dust? You fill the air with it, and consequently introduce into your tissues and respiratory organs all sorts of eggs, spores, epidemic germs and murderous vibriones which dust contains.

THE Morristown Banner says—"there is little doubt that living between New Vernon and Plainfield there are persons in league with expert horse thieves, if not directly in the business of running off and disposing of the stock themselves. Within the past year or so there have been a score of horses stolen from the neighborhood of the country embraced within the limits we name, and in every instance the thief has evinced perfect familiarity with the premises and a knowledge of the animal, to be taken that enabled the thief or thieves to discriminate in favor of the best horse in the stable."

TREASURES.

A. R. B.

Close in my hand, I tenderly hold
Two little book-marks, discolored and old;
Dearer to me than Ophir's fair gold.

Baby hands made them, made them for me,
Wrought with soft silk in clear tracery
The sweet loving words, "Dear Mamma for thee."

The poor little edges, all broken and torn,
I would not replace by gems that adorn
The beautiful garments by royalty worn.

How quaint little stitches, so simple and plain,
Can hold a rare magic, I seek for in vain
In elegant art, only love can explain.

In my Bible I keep them, keep them to show
The promises sweetest, most precious to know,
Marked by her hand in the dear long ago.

They carry me back to old times and places;
Carry me back to dear loving faces,
Making soft pictures that memory traces.

I see a fair babe, with eyes darkly blue,
Shaded by lashes of night's dusky hue,
Gleefully crowing o'er her first tiny shoe.

That same little shoe now reposes in state,
In my treasure box, nestling close by the mate
Near some little pink socks of earlier date.

With a wee ring of hair, a curl dark as night,
And softer than silk, which time in its flight,
Changed to a hue that was gold in the light.

And these are my treasures, dearer to me
Than fabrics from Ind, or pearls from the sea,
Precious mementos, my darling of thee.

Scotch Plains, May 1st, 1882.

Laws of New Jersey.

CHAPTER XCVII.

An Amendment to an act approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty, entitled "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act concerning taxes,'" approved April fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, making the same a first lien on real estate.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the first section of the act approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty, entitled as above set forth, be and the same hereby is amended so as to read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any and all taxes which shall or may hereafter be laid, assessed or imposed, pursuant to the laws of this state, within any incorporate city, village, borough or other municipality of this state, against any person or persons or corporations for or on account of any lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate situate, lying and being in such city, village, borough or other municipality, together with lawful interest thereon accruing, and all costs, fees, charges and expenses in relation to the levy, assessment and collection of said taxes, shall be, become and remain, from and after the date of such levy and assessment, a full and complete first and paramount lien on all the lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate on account of which such levy and assessment shall be made, for and during the period now provided for in the act of incorporation or any supplement thereto or revision of the same, of any such city, village, borough or municipality as aforesaid, or if no such period is provided in such act of incorporation, supplement or revision, for and during the period of three years; and that any and all estates therein, whether legal or equitable, and any and all mortgages, alienations, devises, descents, liens and incumbrances of every kind and nature, of, in, upon or against such lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate, shall be in every respect subject and subservient to the lien of the aforesaid taxes, interest, costs, fees, charges and expenses; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to apply to any township in this state, or to conflict with any laws regulating the assessment and collection of taxes in said townships.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1882.

CHAPTER XCVIII.

An Act concerning cities in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cities of this state which now have or hereafter shall have the care of streets, sewers and water vested in a single municipal board, such board shall have power to elect a chief engineer, who shall have been a resident of such city for at least two years prior to his election, and be a civil engineer in active practice in either public or private capacity at the time of such election; such officer so elected shall have full charge of all matters pertaining to the business of a civil or hydraulic engineer in relation to any public improvement or other work proper to be managed under the direction of such municipal board; his term of office shall be for two years from the date of such election, or in any case where such election shall require confirmation by any other city board or officer, for two years from the date of such confirmation, and such officer shall receive such salary as shall be fixed by said board appointing him, not exceeding the sum of five thousand dollars per annum, and such board shall have power to remove him for malfeasance in office or incompetency, after proper trial and opportunity to be heard in his defence; but nothing in this section shall shorten the time of any chief engineer now holding office, unless he shall be appointed to succeed himself for the full term as above, and whenever the act of the appointing board shall require confirmation by any other board or city officer the incumbent then or now in office shall continue in office until his successor is appointed and confirmed.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1882.

CHAPTER XCIX.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to establish a bureau of statistics upon the subject of labor, commercial in its relation to the growth and development of state industries."

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the sum of three thousand dollars be and is hereby appropriated for the current expenses of said bureau.

2. And be it enacted, That the treasurer of this state is hereby authorized to pay from any money, not otherwise appropriated, the sum provided for in the first section of this act.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1882.

CHAPTER C.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to establish a state board of health," approved March ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, [illegible] March twelfth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty, and also a supplement to the further supplement to said act, approved March twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That when any animal is killed or ordered to be killed by the state board of health or its agents, [illegible] scribed in the first paragraph of this section, adopting the name of "the county board of agriculture" (inserting in each case the name of the proper county), and filing with the secretary of the state board of agriculture, and also with the clerk of such county, a certificate of such organization; the certificate filed in every such case shall state the names of the respective organizations uniting in the organization of the county board, the number of bona fide members belonging to each, and that the assent of such organizations, respectively, to the formation of such county board was given by a vote of at least two-thirds of the bona fide members present and voting at a meeting called for the express purpose of acting upon said question, after such notice to members as, by the rules of such organizations, is or may be required to be given in similar cases; provided, however, that if such organizations shall neglect or refuse to organize a county board, as herein provided, on or before the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two, then a county board may be organized in the manner herein provided for counties having no agricultural organization, or in such other manner as the state board of agriculture may authorize and direct.

[illegible]

6. And be it enacted, That every certificate filed, as hereinbefore provided, shall truly and correctly state: (1) the name of the county board filing the same; (2) the date of its organization under this act; (3) the names of its officers and directors; (4) the number of bona fide members in each organization represented in the county board at the date of organizing said board, and the names of such organizations.

7. And be it enacted, That in any county in which there may be at the same time a county board of agriculture and any other agricultural organization, such board shall have the prior right to representation in the state board, unless, for good cause shown, the said state board, or its executive committee, shall otherwise order.

8. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the secretary of the state board of agriculture, at all times, to keep a correct list of the members of said board, with the date of their respective elections or appointments, and the time at which their several terms of service will expire; and to furnish to the proper organizations or officers reasonable notice of new elections or appointments to be made.

9. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of each county board of agriculture, on or before the first day of December in each year, to make to the secretary of the state board of agriculture a full report of the transactions of such board during the year next preceding, with as complete a statement as practicable, of the condition, progress and results of agricultural and horticultural industries, in such counties respectively, together with reports on such special subjects of inquiry as may from time to time present themselves to such county boards, or be submitted by the state board of agriculture, or the executive committee thereof; and it shall be the duty of the several representatives of county boards in the said state board to make a full report to their respective county boards of the proceedings of such meetings of the state board as they may from time to time attend.

10. And be it enacted, That the state board of agriculture, or its executive committee, shall have power to make all necessary and proper by-laws for carrying into execution the provisions of this act, and to adopt suitable rules and regulations, not inconsistent herewith, for the organization and representation of county boards of agriculture, as herein provided for.

11. And be it enacted, That the secretary of the state board of agriculture, in consideration of the additional duties imposed upon him by this act, shall be entitled to receive, in full compensation for his services under this act, and the act to which this is a supplement, a salary at the rate of five hundred dollars per annum, said sum to include all expenses of office, rent and clerk hire, and to be paid out of the treasury of the state in the manner provided by the act to which this is a supplement.

12. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith, so far as the same may be inconsistent, be and are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 18, 1882.

JOINT RESOLUTION NUMBER II.

Joint Resolution authorizing the purchase of an oil portrait of the late President of the United States, James A. Garfield.

1. Be it resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That commissioners of the state library be authorized to contract for and purchase an oil portrait of James A. Garfield, late president of the United States, to be placed in the assembly chamber; and on the requisition of the said commissioners for the cost of the same, the comptroller is directed to draw his warrant for the amount, and the treasurer authorized to pay the said warrant.

2. And be it resolved, That this joint resolution shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

JOINT RESOLUTION NUMBER III.

Joint Resolution in reference to securing and preserving Temple Farm and the Moore House, at Yorktown, Virginia.

Whereas, The Moore House, and Temple Farm, upon which it is situated, will carry with them through all time the memories of the siege and victory, by which the allied armies of France and the American colonies secured our nation's independence; and whereas, during the recent centennial celebration of the event by the citizens and representatives of the republic of France and the United States of America, the hope was expressed by the descendants of the officers of both France and America, who commanded on the field in one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one, that the farm and house should be preserved and perpetuated as a memorial of the friendly alliance which then and ever since has existed between the people of the two nations, as well as in respect to the memories of those who fell in or survived the struggle that ended the protracted war and gave peace and hope to a then impoverished people; and whereas, it is stated, the property can at this time be secured for a nominal sum, and that the product of the farm will probably be ample to preserve and keep the buildings in repair, and which are so located as to be well adapted for government purposes on occasion of naval inspections and reviews on York river; and whereas, the sentiment expressed by representatives of the French republic and descendants of French officers, who commanded on the field at Yorktown, during their recent visit to participate in the centennial celebration, in conjunction with the descendants of the colonial officers, was that this government should take charge of and preserve and perpetuate the property; and, believing this to be also the sentiment of the American people in general; therefore,

1. Be it resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the United States senators from the State of New Jersey be, and they are hereby instructed, and the representatives in congress, requested to prepare and support a bill for the purchase of the Temple Farm and Moore House, at Yorktown, Virginia, by the government of the United States of America, provided the cost of the said farm and all improvements shall not exceed twenty-five thousand dollars, and that the state of Virginia shall exempt the same from taxation.

2. And be it resolved, That engrossed copies of this preamble and joint resolution be sent the United States senators and representatives in congress from the state of New Jersey.

Approved March 22, 1882.

JOINT RESOLUTION NUMBER IV.

Joint Resolution to provide for the care of the geological collection and military relics of the state.

Whereas, The valuable collection of specimens of minerals of this state, and other articles belonging to the geological department, prepared for the international exposition at Philadelphia, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, is now deposited in a room in the state house at Trenton, known as the geological museum; and whereas, the said room also contains prepared specimens of the several native woods of the state, specimens of the clay deposits and many other objects of scientific interest, as well as the flags borne by the New Jersey regiments in the late civil war, and other military relics, all of which are objects of attraction and interest to the people of this state, and should be carefully preserved and at all proper times open to the inspection of the people of this as well as other states; therefore,

1. Be it resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the care of the said collection of scientific objects and military relics be confided to the governor and quartermaster general of this state and the state geologist, who shall have power and authority to receive as gifts, or procure by exchange such further specimens of the mineral wealth, or the productions of this state, as will in their judgment add to the value and public interest of the said collection.

2. And be it resolved, That the room in which the said specimens and relics are preserved, shall be open to the public at such times as the above named officers shall prescribe, and the said officers shall have authority to employ a suitable person to care for the said room, and to attend therein at such times as they shall prescribe; and the compensation of the said attendant, and such other expenses as may be incurred in the care of said room and collection, shall be determined by the said officers, and paid in monthly payments by the state treasurer on the warrant of the comptroller; provided that the said compensation and expenses shall not exceed six hundred dollars per annum.

3. And be it resolved, That this joint resolution shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

PERUVIAN.

A lengthy examination of distinguished witnesses has been going on for some time before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the National House of Representatives, touching the connection of certain official gentlemen with a speculative affair styled the "Peruvian Company."

The thing in question smells strongly, not sweetly, of an anti-cologne enterprise well known in the annals of this country as "Credit Mobilier."

The difference between the two consists chiefly in the fact, that from one personal gain was realized by Congressmen and kindred and from the other only its promise.

Which is a distinction, with about the same quantity and quality of principle.

A Frenchman in Peru claimed to have discovered the fertilizing value of guano, and another, named Landreau, asserting naturalized American citizenship, large additional deposits of that important material.

Their heated imaginations saw millions in the air, and concocted claims against the Peruvian Government to about the worth of the entire Republic.

Financial patriots in the United States, that mighty legion, who are so utter—utterly patriotic, that nothing stands between them and love of country save their own deep cut pockets, bought the claims for a song.

And organized a Company under a second-hand elastic charter granted to somebody for some purpose by the State of Georgia, giving themselves the high sounding name of "Peruvian."

Peru and Chili became involved in war and the former is defeated.

Diplomacy shows its head.

There is a prospect that the immense claim of Landreau may be utilized to great profit in the formation of treaty stipulations between Peru and Chili, through the "good offices" of the American Minister at Lima.

He is approached.

So is the Secretary of State.

A Senator of the United States agrees to serve the Company as counsel.

He is intimate at the Department of State.

He there talks Peruvian and formally introduces another patriot.

Singular dispatches go forth.

Strange intimations find utterance.

A change comes over their golden dreams.

A new Secretary of State comes in, the old one goes out, the glorious speculation explodes, leaving amid smoke and dust two B's and an S.

Such, briefly sketched, is the Peruvian Company, or, as a Western paper puts it, "Guano Diplomacy."

We hope the Committee will persevere and expose the true inwardness of the whole affair.

Get at the bottom facts, Mr. Belmont, if you can!

The country will thank you!

THE TARIFF.

The House of Representatives at Washington passed on Saturday last a Tariff Commission bill worded as follows:

Be it enacted, &c., That a commission is hereby created to be called the "Tariff commission," to consist of nine members.

SEC. 2. That the President of the United States shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint nine commissioners from civil life, one of whom—the first named—shall be the president of the Commission. The Commissioners shall receive as compensation for their services each at the rate of $10 per day when engaged in active duty and actual traveling and other necessary expenses. The commission shall have power to employ a stenographer and a messenger; and the foregoing compensation and expenses to be audited and to be paid by the Secretary of the Treasury out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 3. That it shall be the duty of said commission to take into consideration and to thoroughly investigate all the various questions relating to the agricultural, commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, mining and industrial interests of the United States so far as the same may be necessary to the establishment of a judicious tariff or a revision of the existing tariff upon a scale of justice to all interests; and for the purpose of fully examining the matters which may come before it said commission in the prosecution of its inquiries is empowered to visit such different portions and sections of the country as it may deem advisable.

SEC. 4. That the commission shall make to Congress final report of the results of its investigation and the testimony taken in the course of the same not later than the first Monday of December, 1882, and it shall cause the testimony taken to be printed from time to time and distributed to members of Congress by the public printer, and shall also cause to be printed for the use of Congress 2,000 copies of its final report, together with the testimony.

In opposition to such a measure it was contended, and with forcible argument, that the scheme meant delay in the reasonable reduction of taxation now far in excess of the wants of government, and furthermore, that it was the imperative duty of Congressmen to revise the tariff themselves, and not delegate the task to an outside body.

There may be much truth in that, and yet, it is possible, that nine Commissioners will be found more efficient for the proper discharge of the important work than any committee of the present House, provided, those Commissioners are practical and impartial business men, and not grabbing monopolists or scurvy politicians.

There comes the difficulty—the wise appointment of a Commission.

That the revenue system of the country needs alteration is admitted on all sides. No intelligent and honest man thinks otherwise.

The duty imposed by the bill in question upon a Tariff Commission is this—to investigate for the establishment of a tariff, just to all interests.

That is what is wanted, what the Constitution demands, the welfare of the people requires, and the Democracy have ever urged.

Not chimerical Free Trade.

Not thieving Monopoly.

But duties levied for the attainment of necessary revenue and for the equal encouragement of every interest—agricultural, commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, mining and industrial, and for the benefit of labor as well as capital.

If the Commission suggested will prepare a law so based, and sufficient good sense and integrity can be got together in Congress to enact it, we shall gladly eulogize the deed.

It is not difficult to understand that a feeling of indignation and stupefaction exists in England over the dastardly crime committed in Dublin last Saturday night in the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Under Secretary Burke. Happening so soon after the change of policy toward Ireland by the British Ministry, it cannot help but work detrimental to Ireland's cause, however unjust it may be to lay the blame of the assassination at the door of any of that down-trodden country's friends. There are none more earnest in condemnation of the crime, or more interested in discovering the criminals than the people of Ireland.

Maine will indulge in five political State Conventions during this month and next. The first one to meet will be the straight Greenback Convention at Bangor, May 30, and it will be followed by the Greenback, Prohibition, Republican and Democratic Conventions.

ASSASSINATION.

A terrible tragedy occurred at Dublin, May 6. Lord Frederick Cavendish, the new Chief Secretary, and Mr. Thos. Henry Burke, the Under Secretary, were assassinated in Phoenix Park. About 7:30 o'clock they left the Under Secretary's lodge to walk over to the Chief Secretary's residence to dinner. When within one hundred yards of the Phoenix Monument they were attacked by four men wearing slouched hats. It is supposed that Mr. Burke was first assailed and stabbed through the heart. Lord Frederick Cavendish attempted to defend him, but he, too, was stabbed by the assassins. They repeatedly plunged their knives into the breasts of their victims, and, having cut their throats, they got on a car and drove rapidly from the park by the Chapelizod gate. A few minutes afterwards a man walking along the park road found the bodies covered with blood, and at once informed the police, who had the bodies removed to the Stephens Hospital. A slight examination was made, and it was found that Lord Frederick Cavendish's arm was also broken. The news rapidly spread and created the wildest excitement and consternation in the city. It is stated that some lads riding bicycles in the park saw the attack and the murders, which were the work of less than a minute.

Many people were within a few hundred yards of the scene of assassination, but no one appears to have been near enough to interfere. When the bodies were first found Lord Frederick Cavendish's lips were moving, as if he were trying to speak, but he showed no further signs of consciousness. It is needless to add that the assassinations are attributed to the Fenians, although this must be pure conjecture. The assassins were seen entering the park on a car and driving rapidly along the main road, and from all accounts they must have encountered their victims as they were crossing the road. Robbery could not have been their object, as nothing on the bodies was touched.

The Irishmen of Boston have offered a reward of $5,000 for the capture of the assassins. The President of the Land League in America has cabled to Lord Gladstone, denouncing the assassination. The Assembly has unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the crime and absolving the Land League from any share in it.

The Chinese bill has been signed by the President.

LOCAL ANNEX.

THE election in Rahway on Wednesday, in the contested ward, resulted in a majority of 30 for the Democratic ticket.

THE reading-room of the Plainfield Public Library has been thrown open upon the first floor of the White & Stelle Building at the corner of Front street and Park avenue. The room is the one so long occupied in former years by the Y. M. C. A. Library, and is well suited in every respect for the purpose. A large reading table, comfortable chairs and an assortment of daily and illustrated weeklies, show the beginning of the privileges and benefits that are to be accorded the public.

One Year Ago last Week.

Mr. D. W. Rogers, Foreman of Plainfield Eng. Co., No. 2, was presented with a gold and silver badge, by the members of his company - - - - Mr. Auguste Saltzman sailed for Europe on the 4th inst., and received a royal "send off" from his friends in celebration of the occasion - - - - On Monday the 2d inst., the vote of the people was cast as follows—Money, 77; No Money, 390 - - - - Vennor's prediction for the week, was "cold, with snow in some localities."

Somerset County Freeholders.

The new Board of Freeholders of Somerset County met for organization at the Court House, Somerville, on Wednesday last. Mr. Isaac Voorhees was unanimously elected Director; J. G. Cortelyou, Clerk; Alfred Berry, Collector; Jas. L. Griggs, Counsel. The salary of the Clerk was fixed at $125 per year; that of Collector at $500, and the Counsel allowed a retaining fee of $50. There was no opposition to the election of the old officers.

To North Plainfielders.

On Tuesday evening of next week, the tax-payers of North Plainfield Township, will—it is to be hoped—vote solidly for the raising of the money necessary to erect the new Public School building so desirable and desired. Everyone having the interest of the township in contemplation, will cast a ballot in favor of the appropriation, and thereby insure the needed addition to the attractions of the place, that is proposed. Vote for the new building, and you will increase the value of your property, impel a growth of population and amplify the recommendations of your Township.

We Wonder!

What privileges or advantages The Telephone Co. is receiving from the city in return for the free service that is given the Fire Department and City Jail.

Where there is a superior post-office in the State, than ours.

Why we cannot have moon-light nights, successively, all the year round.

When Plainfield is to have Water Works.

Whether Plainfield ever will have an Opera House.

Whether the new license ordinance permits fish peddlers to ply their odoriferous trade at the corners of our principal thoroughfares.

Why the request of the only property holder who ASKED to have a telephone erected on his sidewalk, was refused.

Important to the Public.

Stoutenburgh & Co., Newark Clothiers, 803 and 805 Broad street, are offering the largest stock of ready-made clothing of any house in the State. It is artistic in cut, reliable in make and durable for wear. Three important considerations. "We have no rent to pay, as we own our large, commodious building, which is packed from cellar to roof with clothing of the finest description. Some idea of the immensity of our business may be formed from the fact that we keep a large force of cutters constantly employed, which enables us to renew our stock daily. Customers are therefore always sure to find what they want. We are our own manufacturers, and retail our goods at wholesale prices. Our motto is one price to all, which we guarantee the lowest price that can be found; in fact, so low as to astonish the closest buyers." Hence, all who study their own interest, should visit the palace emporium of Stoutenburgh & Co., 803 and 805 Broad St.

A Good Time Coming.

That all of our readers may know of the estimation in which the Great Van Amburgh, Frost & Stone's Great Show is held by the press and public, we copy this from the Burlington Hawkeye of 1881: "But our readers must bear in mind that this Great Show is five times larger this season than ever before. Stone's Great Oriental Circus, Oh Ke Na Wakees, Comanche Indian troupe and Crane's Museum, Aquarium and Gymnasium have been combined with Van Amburgh, Frost & Co's Great Golden Menagerie and Circus, making this the Largest and Best Show in the World. Yesterday was circus day again, and notwithstanding that this makes the Third Mammoth Show that has visited Burlington within a little over a month, a large number of people were in the city from the surrounding country to see the street parade, hear the music and take in the show. There is always a fascination about the circus that draws a crowd, that even a first class Fourth of July cannot compete with; perhaps the reason is there is always something among the features of a first class show that pleases all classes of society and all kinds of people; the many curiosities in the menagerie interest one class, the beautiful trained horses another, the ring performances and clowns others, and the crowd and rush, all others who cannot find anything else to please them. As to the details of the day's programme, the most truthful thing that can be said of this circus is, that the managers present everything on the street in the menagerie and in the Great Circus that they advertise—an honesty few Shows are guilty of. The procession was the grandest ever seen in Burlington; the menagerie fills the bill in every respect from the Elephants down to the Baby Monkey. Many new and rare specimens in the animal kingdom being in the collection, but the great feature of this monster show that commends itself to the public, is the manner in which it is conducted. Every attache performs his duty in a quiet way, and does not seem to take delight in annoying every one, and for this alone, not to say a word about many other good things, we can heartily recommend this Great Show to the public wherever it goes." The Great Show will be in Plainfield on Saturday afternoon and evening next.

Board of Freeholders.

The new Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, met Wednesday forenoon last, at the Court House, Elizabeth, and organized. The members were sworn in by Judge McCormack. Mr. C. W. L. Martine was chosen Director without opposition. Mr. J. L. Crowell was re-elected Clerk at a salary of $300. Mr. P. Sheridan was re-elected County Collector at a salary of $1,000, and Mr. J. Aug. Fay was elected County Attorney at a salary of $300. This is the only change that was made. The rules of the old Board were adopted, and other routine work was performed. The County Collector's report was ordered published, and several committees were appointed. The standing committees were also announced. The Board adjourned to meet on the 24th.

The Mattresses and Feather-Beds are Renovated by the Popular Manley Process,

Which has been in operation in Plainfield for the past three years, giving entire satisfaction, and for which we can furnish testimonials from all the leading physicians, and as many as desired, from the citizens generally.

The Mattresses, Beds, Pillows and Bolsters are rendered free from DUST and MOTH by steaming, purified by the loss of evaporation, and dried by the heat of steam, so that no dry heat, or rather heat from fire comes in contact with the feathers at all.

WE WARRANT all our WORK. Send for it and return it free of charge, within the City limits.

All goods while in our possession insured against loss by Fire. Carpets taken up and relaid if desired. Also, furniture, &c., boxed and shipped.

C. W. WHITNEY, & CO., Managers.

All orders left at our office, or the Real Estate office of Benj. A. Hegeman, 38 North Ave., opposite the Depot, will receive prompt attention. 12d1

STONE'S Monster Circus.
Oh Ke Na Wakees Camanche Indian Troupe,
And Crane's Gymnasium and Aquarium.
Five Great Shows Combined for this Season only.

A Mammoth Exhibition.
50 Dens of Rare Animals.
A Herd of the Finest Performing Elephants in the World

The Menagerie embraces among its leading features—a living Nondescript, the only one ever captured. Camels and Dromedaries, Zebra, White Llama, a very rare animal, wild Yak of Tartary, Lions and Lionesses, Abyssenian Ibex, Royal Bengal Tigers, African Leopard, spotted and striped Hyenas, black and white Deer, Kangaroos, Crocodiles from the river Nile, Python Snakes from the Gambia river—also 50 dens of other rare and valuable Animals, Birds, Monkeys and other monstrosities.

THE MONSTER CIRCUS

in which the talent employed is unequaled and comprises the highest order of performers in the land. The public and particularly ladies and children and families are assured that this department is without a blemish, and nothing is said or done that can offend the most fastidious taste of a refined community. Among the illustrious and world-famed artists in this department are:—
MLLE. ANNA CARROLL, the most charming young lady Equestrienne in the profession. Her Challenge Bareback Act has never been equaled.
C. H. LOWRY, who rides the most thrilling, dashing and electrifying Hurdle Act of any artist in the business.
MLLE. LIZZIE CORDELLO, the Aerial Queen.
W. B. CARROLL, the Peerless Rider, whose reputation is world wide.
MLLE. MANARD, the Thrilling Trapeze Performer, assisted by Mons. Manard.
SIG. MAQUESSE, Wild Indian Rider, and has no equal in the world.
JOHN SAUNDERS, The World's Champion Equestrian.
CORDELLO and LA ROSE, the Champion Horizontal Bar performers.
D. W. STONE, SAM McFLYNN, HARRY LA ROSE, Clowns, Wits, Jesters and Comic Vocalists, the most original, refined, gentlemanly and witty Clowns that ever stepped on saw-dust, and many other special and general performers appearing daily and nightly in friendly competition.
One of the many sensational features of the great show is, Oh Ke Na Wakees Iroquois and Camanche Indian Troupe, the greatest attraction ever seen under canvas, being a complete exhibition of the manners, customs and ceremonies of the red men. War songs, war dances, feats of horsemanship, also the entire tribe appearing in the romantic episode of A CHASE FOR A WIFE.
A grand street pageant will take place daily between the hours of 9 and 10.
Two Performances Daily. Doors open at 1 and 7 P. M.
One Ticket admits to Museum, Menagerie, Aquarium and Circus Exhibition!
All purchasers of Tickets to the Museum and Menagerie have an opportunity of witnessing the Monster Circus Free.

EDSALL & PRICE'S
WEEKLY BULLETIN.
GEO. L. VAN EMBURGH, Manager, Plainfield, N. J., May 12th. No. 1.

A Fine Gauze Fancy stripe.	Regular Made Hose 25c.	It is a Splendid Bargain.
We have a line of Real Pretty	Combination Checks 25c.	Which are so much worn now.
Special pains have been taken in the selection of	Parasols & Sun Umbrellas,	Which are now selling at very attractive prices.
A full line of	Black Cashmeres,	At wide awake popular prices.
We show some very beautiful	Colored Embroidered Skirts,	And what pleases the ladies most, they are very cheap.
In all our departments	Bargains! Bargains!	We can't mention them all. Call and see for yourselves.

EDSALL'S CHIT CHAT.

Here we shall speak of things in general, blow our own horn to a great extent, and perhaps occasionally our neighbors.

Showers of complimentary remarks are poured upon our seventy-five cent kid gloves. Ladies say it is as good as they pay a dollar for.

The editors of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, are the chattiest, happiest and best looking editors in town.

The ladies fall regular made fancy hose, we mention above, is one of the best bargains in this line. They are going off sharp. Can't be duplicated. Buy quick.

Our genial manager, Mr. Geo. L. VanEmburgh, wears an unusually pleasant and happy smile upon his countenance lately, the explanation whereof we will make in our next "Chit Chat."

The "Bristol" is the name of the latest and most fashionable linen collar for gentlemen. We have it. It has an eyelet-buttonhole.

We encourage enough jollity, good wholesome wit and humor, to drive away long faces and cross words. All who visit our establishment may be sure of polite attention and pleasantly served.

Don't forget the beautiful parasols and sun umbrellas we advertised last week. You may need one soon.

We have only a few of those splendid regular made fancy half-hose, at fifteen cents, left. Delays are dangerous.

Our former salesman, Mr. Howard Gardner, is happy in Newark, but he is missed here, and he "Misses" somebody.

Our customers say we have the nicest salesladies in town. We hav'nt asked their consent to say this much, and trust they will excuse the liberty.

Our neighbor Green is a wide awake, right royal good fellow, and knows how to run a first-class furniture establishment. He carries a fine pipe-organ. Long may he wave.

Notwithstanding the general complaint of dull trade, our sales for the past three months are far in excess of those of corresponding date a year ago.

Ladies who desire a fine, jaunty, neater, genteel lace-top Lisle glove, ask to see ours at thirty-nine cents. It is just splendid.

We have a full line of seasonable goods of all kinds, genteel, pretty and useful, and offer them at attractive prices.

EDSALL'S CHIT CHAT.

Inquiries are being made in regard to another "bargain week," or "week of fun," as some call it. It may be fun for our patrons, but our employees don't look at it in that light. We may have one soon.

Plainfield is the prettiest town in the State, but a little more public spirit would suit its business interests just as well. Let us have it.

We have now some of the most beautiful vestings we have ever sold. They are just elegant, and very cheap, too.

The editor of the Central Times is a staunch temperance advocate, which we believe is better than beauty. Please don't construe this to mean that he isn't both.

Silas S. Williams, the efficient superintendent of the new oil cloth factory, is one of the most thoroughly experienced men in the state.

Sabbath-laws are either too much observed in Plainfield or not enough, and we are unable to decide which.

An exquisite young Miss in Newark says she is sure that school teachers there will never get to heaven. Wonder if this is applicable to Plainfield teachers.

"Æsthetics" has become epidemic. We have got it bad. We have æsthetic laces, æsthetic gloves, æsthetic collars, æsthetic ruchings, æsthetic ties, æsthetic ribbons, æsthetic hosiery, æsthetic dress goods, æsthetic parasols, æsthetic everything, and the best of all is we have æsthetic customers to buy them.

The noisy gents of Plainfield have changed "O! those golden slippers" to "O! those pinching pants, those pinching pants."

Wedding talk heard at a fashionable wedding: "Here she comes!" "Pretty, is'nt she?" "Who made her dress?" "Is her veil real lace?" "She's as white as the wall!" "Wonder how much he's worth?" "What on earth did she marry him for?" "His money of course!" "Isn't he handsome?" "Homely as a hog!" "Good enough for her, anyway!" "She's a stuck up thing!" "She'd be worse now." "There the ceremony has begun." "Why don't they hurry up?" "Did she say she would obey?" "Yes." "What a precious fool!" "There they are married." "Doesn't she look happy?" "Pity if she wouldn't." "Glad it's over." "O dear!" "Where'd she get all her beautiful things?" "At Edsall & Price's of course."

Look out for our next "Chit Chat."

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

PUT up your window screens.

THE weather is particularly pluvious.

NEXT holiday—Tuesday the 30th inst.

IT is time to poke around for the palatable poke.

PLAINFIELD is suffering for the want of an Opera House.

AS we believe we remarked before—Oh, for an Opera House.

Warren Hose Co., will "have a picnic" in Wooden's Grove, about June 15th.

ONE year ago last Wednesday, the thermometer registered 92 in the shade.

THE Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, meets at No. 1 Engine House on Wednesday evening next.

AGAIN we are in receipt of the exceedingly generous offer of a $40 Organ for $35 worth of advertising and $60 in cash.

MR. John B. Brown will still retain his office of City Collector, and the public is to be congratulated thereon.

VENNOR is not so venturesome of late. Egregious thinks he has seen the weakness of being too prospicuous.

THERE has been no change in the new post-office in one respect. Our box is still flooded with "specimen" copies of Our Continent.

THE Plainfield Chess Club still patient-awaits challenges from like organizations in the State, and sighs in vain for other clubs to conquer.

THE advertisement of Devlin & Co., the long-established firm of New York clothiers, appears in another column, offering to patrons unusual inducements.

THERE should be generosity among our citizens sufficient to subscribe the amount necessary to realize the ringing of the "Town Clock" in the M. E. church tower.

BOTH last week and this we were compelled, for want of space, to leave out a great deal of local news and to curtail many items that deserved extended notice.

ACCORDING to the provisions of Chapter CX of the Laws of New Jersey, published in this issue, many property owners of Plainfield are violating a State law. Read it.

AN enterprising dealer of this city advertises the popular music of the day at five cents a sheet. Egregious says, "at the churches you can get music by the quire for nothing."

IT has long been a moot-point as to which is the butt end of a goat. Possibly parties in this city owning such contrary animals, can furnish evidence that will settle the question.

THE cigar manufacturers and dealers of this city on Monday the 1st, met the tax commissioner of the district in the office of the City Hotel and paid in their usual license fee for the coming year.

RICHARD R. CORNWALL, the defaulting clerk of the Fourth National Bank, was indicted by the United States Grand Jury on Tuesday, for embezzlement and making false entries in the bank books.

THE first order per telephone in this city, was received by us on Wednesday from Shaw the Front street pharmacist, who desired through the medium of our presses to notify the public of the many remedies, cures and other articles he is offering.

STREET Commissioner Meeker has been doing the community commendable service, during the past week, by filling up the many holes in the Park avenue pavement that have long offered passing vehicles an opportunity to wreck themselves.

WE publish this week the advertisement of "Titsworth's sure cure for Malaria," a remedy that it is claimed will drive out of the system all effects of the disease and prevent the possibility of any recurrence. A trial will do no harm, and prove its worth.

WE would herewith apologize to our subscribers for the demands made upon our columns by the intelligent advertisers who appreciate the benefits of our large circulation. With this issue, however, we publish a supplement full of interesting reading in general.

ONE of the cans containing the daily apportionment of cream from Mr. John Taylor Johnston's dairy in this city to his New York residence, was upset on the ferry boat, recently and its contents mingled with the watery element it is prone to assimilate.

AS we implied last week, the Mission Band of the Presbyterian churches of this city will give an entertainment consisting of music, vocal and instrumental, and recitations in costume, on Tuesday evening, May 16th, at 8 o'clock, in the chapel of the Crescent avenue church.

THE notices of Mr. L. B. Boice, which again appear in our "Local Miscellany" column, will undoubtedly convey to our readers the assurance—of which fact we are convinced—that at his Somerset street warehouse he is offering the purest and choicest of goods in his line of trade.

ON Thursday evening of last week Miss Bover's class in elocution of the P. H. S., gave its annual prize contest, in Assembly Hall. The efforts of the scholars were very entertaining. The Committee, Heywood Cuthbert and Corydon Tyler, awarded first premium to Miss Madge Sutphen.

MR. Chas. Zuckschwert the tobacconist of No. 11 Park avenue, has been making a number of desirable alterations in his establishment, necessitated by his increasing business. He has removed his manufactory to the story above, and thrown the entire lower floor into a commodious store.

"THE Earnest Workers" of the Mt. Olive Baptist Church of this city, will hold a Fair in the church on Wednesday and Thursday, May 31st and June 1st. Proceeds for the benefit of the church. They extend a cordial invitation to all their friends and to the public in general. Any donation to the object will be thankfully received.

MR. James H. Adams, of the recent firm of Martin & Adams, formerly clothiers of this city, has connected himself with Mr. John H. French, of No. 6 East Front street, and will have exclusive control of the custom department of the latter's merchant-tailoring establishment. Mr. Adams has been long and favorably known to our community as a first-class cutter and satisfactory fitter.

THAT we have a rival in the newspaper line may be seen by the first number of "Edsall & Price's Bulletin" printed elsewhere. This firm's business has grown so during the past three months, in spite of the backwardness of the season, that they, in consequence, are able to appreciate the value of printers ink and the benefit of advertising in the columns of this paper. Read "Edsall's Chit Chat."

THE second Sunday in May is "Temperance Day." The N. J. Temperance Alliance, composed in good part of leading clergymen of the principal denominations, requests all pastors, if convenient, to preach a temperance sermon on that day, or on the first opportunity thereafter. The Alliance requests contributions also from friends of the cause, to be sent to Hon. H. F. Howell, Treas., Trenton, N. J.

A YOUNG girl of about 15 years of age, employed in the neighborhood of Somerville, becoming discontented with her place, recently tramped to this city and applied at the Muhlenberg Hospital for assistance. After hearing her history and the circumstances surrounding the case, ex-Mayor Harper of the Board of Governors gave the girl employment about the Hospital building. She has so far shown ability and a willingness to earn a living.

THE fire alarm bell still swings in the rickety tower, with its rope beyond the reach of ordinary mortal. Let us hope that no conflagration will occur necessitating a general and speedy alarm, before the Board of Managers of the Department realizes its duty to investigate false alarmers. As it is now, some one's property may be destroyed before the firemen learn that such is in danger—then, the policy of the Board will be investigated.

ON account of the state of the weather, the public test and trial of the new truck that was intended on Friday evening last, was postponed. The Board of Managers of the Fire Department, in part, reinspected the apparatus at its house during the evening, and among other conclusions reached in relation to its serviceableness was this—"If a few strong men should pull together on any of the hooks, they (the hooks) would immediately straighten out."

IN our Council Proceedings will be found a statement of the Plainfield Water Co., setting forth what it proposes to do. There seems to be every reason to suppose, that at the next meeting of the Council—June 5th—both the above and the petition of the new Gas Co., will be favorably reported upon, and the two companies allowed to lay their pipes through the streets of the city at the same time. Thus obviating the tearing up of our thoroughfares upon two separate occasions.

Common Council Proceedings.

Adjourned meeting—The Plainfield Water Co's proposition—Collector Brown to remain in office—Constable Wm. N. Pangborn appointed as Deputy Collector—$100 more for the City Treasurer—$200 more for the Corporation Counsel—The Assessor's and Collector's fees proposed—The balance of State & County quota to be paid out of the Poor Fund—The Ordinance assessing the taxes for 1882, passed.

MONDAY EVENING, May 8th, 1882.

The Council met in adjourned meeting at 8 o'clock.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs Gardner, Ginna, Lindsley, Livingston, Newhall, J. Simpson and Thompson—8.

Absent—Messrs Depew, Kaufman and R. Simpson—3.

On motion of Mr. Ginna, the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was dispensed with.

Mr. Newhall presented a petition from residents in the vicinity, for a cross-walk on New street at the south-east corner of Fifth; Ref'd.

By the same, a petition for a license as truckman, by A. B. Summers; Ref'd.

Mr. Ginna presented the following, which was read by the clerk:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey:

GENTLEMEN—

We the undersigned incorporators of the Plainfield Water Company propose to construct a complete system of water works for the supply of water for household and manufacturing purposes, and also a complete system of fire protection connected with so many hydrants as may be hereafter agreed upon by the Common Council of Plainfield, New Jersey.

The location of said hydrants to be at proper distances from each other upon the sidewalks of the streets along which pipes are laid.

The work to be constructed in accordance with detailed plans and specifications to be prepared by the engineer of the company.

A system of distributing mains, sixteen, twelve, ten, eight, six and four inches in diameter, will be laid in the streets, controlled by stop-valves, and to be connected with such number of fire hydrants as may hereafter be agreed upon.

The Plainfield Water Company will keep their mains constantly filled with water and have their pumping apparatus always in readiness, so that as soon as an alarm of fire is given, water will immediately be supplied under augmented pressure for the purpose of extinguishing fires.

The Plainfield Water Company will construct and keep in repair and in operation the above described water works at their own cost and expense.

The City of Plainfield are to pay the said Plainfield Water Company for each hydrant that may be hereafter agreed upon, fifty dollars per annum from the time of contracting for the same until the expiration of this grant. This compensation to be in full for the use of the water for extinguishing fires and flushing gutters, the City Council to give the said Plainfield Water Company exclusive rights to lay pipes for the distribution of water in the streets, avenues and alleys in the City of Plainfield, the Plainfield Water Company to replace the pavement and leave the streets in as good condition as found before laying their pipes. The payment for the use of said hydrants to be made by the City of Plainfield to the said Water Company on the first day of June and December of each year.

The City of Plainfield to be at no other cost or expense for the construction and maintenance of the water works, or for the use of water for the purpose designated above.

The Plainfield Water Company will also extend the street mains wherever directed by the City Council and erect fire hydrants, provided at least one fire hydrant be located upon each five hundred feet of street mains ordered to be laid by the said City Council. The consideration for each hydrant to be same as named in section seven.

At the expiration of the time for the life of this contract, thirty years, the City shall become possessed of the right to purchase all the property used in the business specified, either by negotiations or by the judgment of referees, provided the Plainfield Water Company are duly notified by resolution of the City Council of Plainfield, New Jersey, or their successors, nine months before the expiration of said time, that said right to purchase at the time specified will be availed of; and provided also, that a failure to purchase at the time specified shall prolong the contract in its entirety by periods of ten years, the right to purchase as above reverting to the City at each decade. In the event of resorting to the judgment of referees to establish the purchase consideration, they shall consist of five residents of this State and disinterested in property located within the jurisdiction of the City of Plainfield, two to be chosen by each party and the fifth by the four referees. The decision of this board of referees shall be the consideration to be given and taken, and from said decision there shall be no appeal by either party.

The Plainfield Water Company will furnish free under proper regulations, water for one public fountain, which may be erected and located by the Council.

The Plainfield Water Company agree to commence work within thirty days after the adoption of the proper ordinance to make this contract effective and to begin to furnish the City with water for the purpose named, within one year hereafter.

Plainfield, May 8th 1882.

Mr. Livingston offered the following in connection.

WHEREAS, The Plainfield Water Co., have submitted to this Common Council, a proposition setting forth that said company propose to construct a complete system of Water Works for supplying the city of Plainfield and the Township of North Plainfield with water for household and manufacturing purposes, and for protection against fire; and whereas, it is of the utmost importance for the continued good health of the City, and for due protection against fire, that some system of Water Works should be constructed and put into operation without any unnecessary delay; and whereas, before said company can proceed to construct their works and lay their pipes, it is necessary to have the consent of the corporate authorities of the city, authorizing said company to erect and construct such works; therefore be it

Resolved, that the said proposition be and the same is hereby approved, and said company are hereby authorized to construct, maintain and operate Water Works within the City of Plainfield in accordance with the plan set forth in their proposition above referred to.

On motion of Mr. Livingston, the petition and the preamble and resolutions were referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps, with the request that it report thereon at the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. Thompson presented a petition for a cross-walk on Seventh street where it intersects with Grant avenue. Ref'd to Street Com., with power.

By the same, a petition for a cross-walk on Seventh street where it intersects with Spooner avenue.

On motion being made for the same reference with power, Mr. Ginna said he thought the Council was granting too many cross-walks. He considered the property owners, who would receive the greatest benefit, should come forward and offer to pay the cost themselves. The residents in his vicinity were always willing so to do.

Upon an amendment of Mr. Newhall's, the petition was referred without power.

Mr. Livingston presented the claims of Mrs. M. A. King, $9; Plainfield Relief Asso., 24; A. D. Cook & Bro., 32 41; Ref'd.

By Mr. Thompson, the claim of the N. Y. & N. J., Globe Gaslight Co., (April) $136 73; Ref'd.

By Mr. J. Simpson, the claim of Chas. S. Guion (1880) $61 46; Ref'd.

Mr. Ginna presented a communication from the Collector stating that he had returned to the City Judge the delinquent lists of City, Poor and School taxes, and that the lists of State & County delinquents would be ready in a few days; Rec'd and filed.

Mr. Depew, who had been absent, took his seat at this stage of the proceedings.

Mr. Ginna, from the Com., appointed to examine the books of the late Collector, reported progress. A statement of his disbursements had been received from that officer, and was being examined.

Mr. Thompson, from Lamps Com., reported its approval of the petitions of T. J. Pruden, P. M. Demarest and for the location of a lamp on Crescent avenue.

Report approved and petitions granted.

Also reported progress in relation to petition of New Gas Co., and expressing a desire to postpone final action until next meeting.

Mr. Ginna from Laws Com., reported in regard to the issuing of warrants against delinquents. The Collector had expressed his intention to resign in case the warrants were issued to him for enforcement, and the Committee felt it would be unwise at present to impel such resignation. He also presented a resolution designating Constable Wm. N. Pangborn as the officer to whom the warrants should be issued; and that such officer, before entering upon the duties and within ten days of his appointment, shall present for the approval of the Council a bond in the sum of $1,000. Also that all authority now invested in any other officer to collect delinquent taxes, be revoked.

Mr. Livingston moved that the report be received and the resolutions adopted. Carried; all aye.

Mr. Ginna returned the resolution directing the City Judge to issue warrants (without the approval of the Com., to which it was referred) and offered a substitute ordering the warrants to be issued to Mr. Wm. N. Pangborn.

Adopted; all aye.

Mr. Livingston, from License Com., reported its approval of the petition of V. Palermo for a peddler's license. Petition granted; all aye.

Mr. Lindsley, from Sal's Com., reported as correct the claims of H. H. Lowrie, $62 50; Jno. C. Meeker, 50; G. B. Leonard, 87 50; Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By the same with approval, a resolution that the City Treasurer be allowed $100 extra as compensation for receiving and paying the State and County moneys for 1882.

Moved by Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. J. Simpson, that the same be adopted. Carried; all aye.

Also a resolution allowing the Assessor 12 cents for each name assessed for City, State & County taxes and 5 cents for each assessed on Dist. School tax.

On motion of Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. Depew, adopted; all aye.

Also that the Collector receive $150 per annum, and 1½ per centum on all money actually collected by him. And that he shall be allowed no fees for moneys disbursed, nor any percentage of the taxes collected by the Collector of delinquent taxes.

On motion of Mr. Newhall, seconded by Mr. Livingston, referred to Laws Com. All aye.

Also that the Corporation Counsel's salary for the present year, shall be $500.

Moved by Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. J. Simpson, that the resolution be adopted.

Mr. Livingston inquired if the Council had not been informed by the Mayor in his letter nominating Mr. Marsh, that that gentleman would serve at the present salary. He thought that the Council was getting very liberal on an empty treasury.

Mr. Ginna stated there was a tacit understanding that, upon the confirmation of any Corporation Counsel, the salary for the year should be increased to $500. The Mayor was desirous that Mr. Kimball should continue the prosecution of the liquor cases, and as the ex-Counsel had agreed so to do without compensation, it was just that the increase of salary should be allowed.

At the request of Mr. Newhall, the Clerk read the Mayor's communication nominating Mr. Marsh, which said that that gentleman "was willing to serve the City for the modest compensation that was last year accorded to the office."

Mr. Newhall said he knew of no "tacit understanding" such as had been expressed, but, on the other hand, the Council had on file the Mayor's assurance that the present incumbent would serve at the present salary.

Then motion was then carried by the following vote:

Affirmative—President Rushmore and Messrs. Depew, Gardner, Ginna and Lindsley—5.

Negative—Messrs. Livingston, Newhall, J. Simpson and Thompson—4.

The rules were suspended and a petition of E. H. Holmes for license as an expressman, was presented and referred.

Mr. Newhall called from the table the bill of A. V. Searing, $8.75. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

On motion of Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. Livingston, the claim of J. O. Nodyne was taken from the table.

Mr. Ginna moved that a warrant be ordered drawn for its payment. Not seconded.

Moved by Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Livingston, that the claim be laid on the table. Carried.

Mr. Depew moved the adoption of a resolution rescinding the previous resolutions empowering the Finance Com. to borrow money for certain purposes, in anticipation of taxes. Carried.

Also that the note of the city for $2,000 be discounted to pay outstanding claims. Carried.

Also that $1,814 36 of the moneys now to the credit of the Poor Fund in the bank, be temporarily used to settle the balance due the State and County, and returned to such fund from the State and County moneys when collected. Carried; all aye.

Mr. Ginna moved the adoption of a resolution authorizing the Com. on Printing to procure suitable books in which the Collector should record his receipts and disbursements. The books to be the property of the city and accessible at all times to the proper authorities. Carried.

Also that the Com. on Laws and Ord.'s, act in conjunction with the Corporation Counsel in all steps taken to enforce the processes of collecting taxes. Carried.

"An ordinance for the assessment of property and the collection of taxes within the City of Plainfield, for the year 1882," was then taken from the table and after its third reading passed; all aye.

Mr. Ginna called the attention of the Council to the report that gun-cotton was being manufactured at the corner of Fourth and Sycamore streets.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Thompson, the Com. on Laws was instructed to look into the matter as to whether any business was being conducted thereat, contrary to the laws and ordinances of the city.

The Council then adjourned.

Plainfield's Post Office.

Since the new post office was thrown open to the public in a yet unfinished condition, we have awaited the completion of all its comforts and conveniences before describing for the information and appreciation of out-of-town readers the perfected arrangements that are to be completely valued by those who daily avail themselves of such. The office is on a level with the street and was formerly divided into two stores, now, however, thrown into one commodious room.—Facing you as you enter from Front street, is the "General Delivery Window," situated in the centre and extreme front of the room. Each side of this is a large ground-glass plate, behind which are the "alphabet boxes," partitioned so as to separate not only the last names according to the initial, but also these according to the first name of the one addressed. The "interior office" then runs directly back towards the rear of the building, thus leaving two broad passage-ways along each side where the lock and call boxes are placed. At the end of the right-hand passage is Postmaster Pope's private office; while at the end of the rows of boxes on the other side, is the stamp window entirely removed from chance of interference with those visiting the office for their mail. Adjoining this window is the entrance to the money-order office, within which is also to be placed a desk where applications may be made out, letters addressed or other writing executed. It will thus be understood that the General Delivery, Stamp and Call Windows are each distinctly separate, and those having business of one sort to transact do not intrude upon the wants of others. The stamp window is open at all times until the hour of closing—7:30, p. m. The office entrance remains open until 9:30 o'clock each evening, for the convenience only of those having lock boxes.

The cabinet work is wholly of smoothly-oiled and hard-polished ash, with panels of ash-root. The lock boxes being of burnished brass, after the latest improved style and provided with the celebrated locks of the Yale Co., which is the maker of the entire outfit. The interior was built by the Company at its works in Connecticut, and upon being received here was put together by that experienced firm of carpenters and joiners—Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown. The complete production reflects great credit upon the taste of our new Postmaster and the abilities of the workmen. In all of which the public should appreciate its good-fortune, brought about by the appointment of Mr. E. R. Pope.

Personalia.

Mr. Samuel T. Varian, who has been one of the City's oldest residents, will remove with his family to Orange, in a few weeks.

Mr. Joseph Staats, one of North Plainfield's oldest and most revered citizens, died at his residence, corner of Emily and Duer streets, during the early morning of yesterday.

City Clerk Leonard has removed his office to the much larger room adjoining the Central Times editorial sanctum, and next to his former quarters. Bright carpet and serviceable furniture gives the new office an appearance both comfortable and business like.

Mr. Percy C. Ohl, Manager of the Telephone Exchange of this city, has become the fortunate possessor of a most valuable relic. It is a sea chronometer, mounted in gold and about the size of an ordinary watch, which belonged to the Marquis de Lafayette and was carried by that illustrious General throughout the Revolutionary War.

This week we are called upon to record the demise of Mr. James S. Garretson of Millstone, who died on Wednesday of last week in the 76th year of his age. The deceased was universally respected by the community in which he had lived so long a life of honor and righteousness, and the sympathy of all is with the generations of descendants he has left to mourn his loss.

Mr. Fred H. Martin, of North Plainfield, while descending a stairway of his place of business in New York on Wednesday, twisted his ankle under him and falling some distance broke his right leg below the knee. An ambulance was summoned and the young man taken to a hospital where the bones were set; after which he was brought to his home here and is rapidly recovering.

We heartily congratulate Mr. S. O. Horton upon his exaltation to the office of Justice of the Peace of North Plainfield Township, and would herewith express our confidence that the public's best interests will be satisfactorily effected by his occupancy of the position. Judge Horton was elected to the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Moses H. French Esq., and was notified on Tuesday that his commission was awaiting him at Somerville.

At last our former fellow townsman and esteemed friend, David Roach, has succumbed to Hymen's wiles and taken unto himself a wife. After safely resisting the charms of Plainfield's lassies, a stranger has "taken him in"—one of New York's fair daughters being the happy bride. "Dave" was remarkably quiet about the matter, "afraid the newspapers would write him up, &c.," but he should remember there is always "A chiel among ye takin notes." May the brave and his squaw be happy and prosperous and many papooses cheer them as they grow old.

HEAVY overcoats are not uncomfortable this 11th day of May.

MURDER.

Plainfield not content with its late notoriety as the residence of various law-breakers, augments its unenviable reputation in that direction by the accomplishment of a murder on the very borders of the city. On Friday morning of last week, the sons of Mr. John Maier—a farmer residing on Leland avenue near Front street—were on their way to work just back of their father's house, when they discovered the murdered body of a young man by the roadside. Word was at once sent to this city and to the authorities of Somerset county, wherein the body was found, and by afternoon Prosecuting Attorney James J. Bergen and County Physician Henry G. Wagoner of Somerville arrived at the scene and an examination was made. The victim was just inside the fence separating a field from the road, with his head leaning against a tree as he had probably laid himself down to sleep. One hand was in his pocket and the other held over his mouth. The eyes were closed. On the left side of the neck was a terrible gash that had parted the vertebra, and almost entirely severed the head from the body. In the back between the shoulder blades was a stab wound and another was discovered in the neck above.

In the inside pocket of the unfortunate man's coat was found a letter written on four pages of note paper in Hebrew, that stated $22 had been sent the person addressed from some one "at home". In a vest pocket was found a piece of a suspender, and a slip of brown paper on which was the address, "Frederick Wurz, No. 223 North Central avenue, between Aisquith and Chase streets, Baltimore." In the hip pocket of the pantaloons was a two-foot rule and a pair of scissors.

A basket of tinware stood near the body, and there was nothing to indicate that its contents had been disturbed. The man had been seen with another in this city on Thursday night, but no trace of his companion could be found. Both were selling tinware when they passed through Plainfield. It is believed that when night came on the murdered peddler lay down in the woods to sleep, first standing his basket of tin goods by his side. There were no signs of a struggle, and it is supposed that while he slept a tramp or a party of tramps cut his throat. A tramp with a pack on his back had been seen in the neighborhood an hour or so before the body of the dead man was discovered. The body was still warm when it was found, and suspicion was at once directed to that fellow. A search was made for him, and he was overtaken in Netherwood, and arrested. He gave the name of August Schlachley, and denied that he had seen the peddler, much less murdered him. Further investigation showed that the tramp was entirely innocent. Two itinerant chair-bottomers, Russian Jews, were discovered, who have made a statement that they met the murdered man in Plainfield, Thursday, in company with a chair bottomer, whom they described. The tinware peddler's companion told them that he was trying to get money with which to go back to Russia.

The body was brought to Leeson's Morgue on Front street, Friday afternoon, and there viewed by the following jury empanelled by the County Physician: Stephen O. Horton, P. M. French, Levi Bird, George Kesseiring, John Whitlock, James K. Arnold, George Demens, Frank Stone, David Gardner, Charles Adair, Andrew Huff, Lewis Willett. After viewing the body the jury adjourned to meet at Blatz's Hotel, this (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock. The remains were, however, left in the Morgue for some unaccountable reason until Wednesday morning before a permit to remove them was received from the Coroner. The body was then taken to New York and given in charge of relatives that claimed it.

On Saturday last Prosecuting Attorney Bergen called on Police Superintendent Walling and enlisted the aid of the police of New York in the search for the murderer. Mr. Bergen was accompanied by Captain Dodd and a young Russian Jew, a peddler of wooden chair seats, an important witness in the case. The latter gives the information that on Thursday night he saw the tinware peddler in company with a peddler of wooden chair seats in front of a cheap lodging house in Plainfield and had some conversation with them. He describes the latter as a tall, well-proportioned, Russian or Polish Jew, who wore a dark coat, light trousers, and black derby hat. Superintendent Walling summoned Capt. Kealy of the Fourteenth Precinct, and Detectives Kerns and English of the Sixth Precinct, and Wilson, of the Tenth Precinct, who were directed to aid the New Jersey authorities in their search for the suspected murderer. Attorney Bergen said that in anticipation of an attempt on the part of the murderer to leave the country, he had had the German steamers Mosel and Suevia, which sailed from Hoboken Saturday, searched, but no person answering the description was found. The suspected person is believed to have lived in Bayard street, New York and the New Jersey authorities are confident that after committing the murder he went there. The remains of the peddler have been fully identified by his cousin, Jehiel Loeb, living at No. 59 Essex street, New York, as those of David Harris Notes, known generally as David Hirsch. He was but 19 years of age, and a native of the Province of Kovno, West Russia. He came to this country six months ago to escape persecution. Since coming here he has boarded with Elias Schafe, at No. 19 Essex street, and peddled tinware in N. Y. City. On Sunday, the 30th ult., he purchased a stock of tinware from Gabriel Cohen, at No. 57 Bayard street, for $6, and on Monday morning started on his first trip into the country, proposing to go as far as Plainfield, N. J. At that time he had but $3 or $4 with him.

The relatives of the murdered man as spoken of above, arranged to have his body brought to New York for interment. A circumstance calculated to cast a doubt upon the identity of the murdered man, however, was disclosed by a dispatch from Baltimore. In one of the pockets of the dead man was found a slip of paper bearing the address of Frederick Wurz. A dispatch from that gentleman states that the deceased was Frederick Ebling, of Baltimore, who left that city for New York in January last, shortly after having been married to a girl named Mary Satler. On Tuesday of last week, Mrs. Ebling received a letter from her husband dated at New Brunswick, in which he requested her to join him at once, and inclosed $4 to pay her fare. Mrs. Ebling left for New Brunswick the same day. Ebling was a butcher, and a native of Germany. Despite these statements, Loeb insisted that the murdered peddler was his cousin, David Hirsch. How the address of Wurz came into the possession of the murdered man is a mystery the authorities are now endeavoring to solve.

FIRE MATTERS.

Last Monday night, between twelve and one o'clock, the barn of Mr. Joel Bloomfield, who resides about one mile this side of Metuchen, on the turnpike leading from this city, was discovered to be on fire. The alarm was immediately given, but, before the neighbors could assemble, the fire had gained such headway that their efforts to save the building were altogether fruitless, and it was only by tearing down a wagon house and other outbuildings that the dwelling was saved. Mr. Bloomfield loses three of his best horses and three cows, which he found impossible to rescue; one horse was saved. There was also burned three tons of hay, 250 bushels of corn in the ear in a corn crib, two sets of new double harness, two sets of old harness, and some farming implements. He places his loss at about $1,500, although his barn was insured for $300. The fire was undoubtedly the act of an incendiary.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The match between Mr. Charles Macalister, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Edgar G. Murphy, of New York, to shoot at 200 pigeons each at thirty yards rise, for $1,000 a side, will take place on the grounds of the New York Gun Club, at Bergen Point, on the 15th instant. The shooting will begin immediately after the arrival of the 11:30 a. m. train from the foot Liberty street.

The "New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," have leased the second floor of Hetfield's building, on Park avenue, opposite the City Hotel, which they will convert into a Club or meeting room. All the prominent sporting papers and journals will be kept on file for the use of members and visitors.

AT the charter election in Morristown on Monday last the Citizens' Ticket, made principally under Democratic leadership, with James F. Sullivan, Democrat, for Mayor, was elected by over forty majority. The Republican ticket was composed of the old city officials who were repudiated by the Jerseyman and many Republicans.

THE action of the Common Council in reaffirming its permission for the Telephone Co., to erect its lines through the streets of the city, removes every vestige of obstruction or possibility of objection that has emanated or may arise. The subscribers to the system may now expect the service desired in a few days.

AN exchange says, "Well, how do you like your new house, and did you have many things broken in moving, and have you got 'straightened round' yet, and did the stove-pipe fit, and have you been reduced to poverty by the carpenter's charges, and what are you taking for a bad cold?"

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The record of vital statistics for the month of April, of Westfield Township, shows five deaths and two births.

Assessor John M. C. Marsh, has commenced his duties of assessing the Township of Westfield for the year 1882. It has to be completed by the second Tuesday in July.

The principal of our Public School has been appointed to take the census of the children of School Dist. No 10. All those between the ages of five and eighteen are the names he wants, whether they go to a public or private school or to no school at all.

We understand that one of the residents of Smoky Hollow, is organizing a circus on a small scale. The proprietor has already imported a music box and is now negotiating for a monkey, when he will be ready to travel and amuse the children and collect their pennies.

The wife of one of our residents, left her home and husband last Friday, telling her husband she was going to leave him for good. He bade her good-bye and the next day sold out his furniture and broke up keeping house. They had only been married about eight months. Rumor has it that she has gone off with a sewing machine man.

Overseer Moffett, of Road Dist. No. 8, has made a fine improvement on Broad street, in making a new cross-walk at the junction with Elm street and raising the flagging and plank walk in front of Miller & Ross store; also in laying a cross walk on North avenue from Railroad Park. Now let him commence to repair the roads, not wait until late in the summer.

The case of Edward Johnson, infant, against Squire Radly of Westfield, was tried before Judge Van Sickle and a jury, at Elizabeth on Thursday last. It is a case of damages to the person of Edward Johnson, a young boy about 12 years old. Mr. Radley had had considerable damage done to his crops, also his fruit stolen by boys from the village. Mr. Radley, on going home from church on a Sunday in July 1881, saw several boys around his well near his dwelling. He feeling angry, jumped out of his carriage and ordered them away. He says the boys called him names and threw stones at him; he then caught Johnson and whipped him with his carriage whip. The case was ably tried. William G. Peckham Jr., of our place, represented Johnson, and Frank Bergen Esq., looked after the interest of Radley. Two days were consumed in the trial. The Jury were out about one half an hour and rendered a verdict of $2,000 damages. On Monday, Mr. Bergen made a motion before Judge Van Sickle for a new trial, on account of the damages being excessive. The motion has not yet been agreed.

The annual meeting of the Westfield Game and Fish Protective Society, met on Thursday evening, May 9th inst, at 8 o'clock, at the rooms of the Westfield Hook and Ladder Co. John J. Willis, President of the society, presided. Geo. A. Young, Secretary. There was a fair attendance of members present. Minutes of last regular meeting was read and on motion approved. The President read a very able report of the doings of the society the past year. Showing that the funds of the society had been judiciously spent in stocking the hunting grounds with Quail, and two of the ponds with Carp. The society had met with but one refusal of a game lease from the farmers of the Township. The Secretary reported that twenty-three new members had joined the society the past year, making the total membership 70. The Treasurer reported the total receipts the past year $121 15. Amount expended $75 65. Balance on hand $45 50. The following amendment was made to the Constitution and By-laws: That hereafter the initiation fee for members shall be $3 00, instead of $2 00, as formerly and an annual due from each member of $1 00. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John J. Willis; Vice President, Levy Cory; Secretary, Charles E. Young; Treasurer, Chetwood M. Smith; Counsel, William G. Peckham Jr.; Board of Directors, Levy Cory, Albert A. Drake, William Dallas, S. G. Smith, George Young, Alfred Westbrook, Charles E. Young.

This society is meeting with the success which it richly deserves, in procuring game leases from the farmers of the Township; as will be seen by the report of the President, they have only been refused by one farmer. The stock of quail which was released about six weeks ago upon the leased grounds, is doing well and thriving nicely, and if only protected from the professional poacher, during the coming summer and early fall, there no doubt will be a fine chance for sportsmen during the hunting season.

JOINT RESOLUTION NUMBER V.

Joint Resolution relative to the exemption of steamers landing upon the New Jersey side of the port of New York from the operations of an act of congress, approved June fifteenth one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

Whereas, an act of congress was approved June fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, for the erection of a barge office at Castle Garden, in the city of New York, for the landing of passengers and baggage arriving by European steamers; and whereas, ample accommodations now exist upon the New Jersey side of the port of New York for the landing of passengers and baggage arriving at Jersey City and Hoboken; therefor

1. Be it resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That our senators and representatives in congress be requested to confer with the secretary of the navy, and endeavor to obtain from him, in behalf of all steamers now landing upon the New Jersey side of the port of New York, an exemption from the operations of said barge act, whereby the landing of passengers and baggage may continue upon their own docks as at present.

2. And be it resolved, That a certified copy of these resolutions be forwarded to each of our senators an representatives at Washington.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXIII.

An Act to authorize the erection of school houses in the cities of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall and may be lawful for any city in this state, from time to time, to purchase lands for the purpose of erecting school houses thereon, and to raise the money required for such purpose by loan on the credit of such city; provided, that the total amount of bonds outstanding and unpaid, issued for such purpose, shall not exceed at any one time the sum of fifty thousand dollars; and further, that said bonds shall not bear more than the legal rate of interest, and shall not be sold at less than par value.

2. And be it enacted, That all such loans shall be authorized by an ordinance of the common council or board of aldermen of such city, which ordinance shall distinctly specify and provide the ways and means, exclusive of loans, to pay the principal of said loans and the interest on the same annually, and also the time within which the said bonds shall be paid, which ordinance shall be irrepealable until such debt be paid.

3. And be it enacted, That when, in any city of this state, loans have heretofore been made for the purpose of purchasing lands and erecting school houses thereon and the bonds issued for such purpose are still outstanding and unpaid, the amount of the bonds so issued shall be included within the amount authorized to be issued by this act, and nothing in this act shall be taken or construed as authorizing the issuing of bonds to a greater amount, at any one time, than the sum of fifty thousand dollars, for the purposes aforesaid.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXIV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the orphans' court, and relating to the powers and duties of the ordinary, and the orphans' court and surrogates" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one hundred and fifty-nine of the above entitled act to which this is a supplement, be amended so as to read as follows:

159. And be it enacted, That all examinations to be taken and made use of at the hearing of any cause in the orphans' court of any county, may be taken and reduced to writing before the surrogate of such county; which examinations shall be taken on ten days' notice of the time and place of taking the same, given by the party or his attorney to the opposite party or his attorney; and either of the parties may, in person, or by his attorney, be present and examine and cross-examine such witnesses; and the examination so taken, shall be of the like force and effect as if taken in the orphans' court before the judges thereof, and shall be filed with the clerk of the said court and read in evidence upon the hearing of the cause, saving all just exceptions.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXV.

An Act to fix the minimum amount of salary of the law or president judges of the court of common pleas in the several counties of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all counties in this state having a law or president judge of the court of common pleas, such judge shall receive an annual salary of at least fifteen hundred dollars, to be paid to him in equal monthly instalments.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall only apply to such judges whose term of office shall hereafter commence, or to those now in office whose term does not expire during the present year, who may file their assent in writing, under their hand, to the provisions of this act in the office of the clerk of the county of which he is such judge.

3. And be it enacted, That so much of all acts or parts of acts as relate to the amount of salary of the law or president judges of the court of common pleas in the several counties of this state, whether general, special or local, that come in conflict with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed; provided, however, that nothing in this act contained shall in anywise be construed or held as reducing the salary of any of the law or president judges of the court of common pleas in any of the counties of this state.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXVI

An Act to provide for the payment for certain badges ordered for the New Jersey state rifle team by the inspector general.

Whereas, The inspector general of the national guard of the state of New Jersey did, during the year eighteen hundred and eighty, order from the firm of Jabez W. Hayes and company, manufacturing jewelers of the city of Newark, New Jersey, a gold badge for each of the sixteen members of the military team that represented this state at the meeting of the national rifle association which took place at Creedmoor during the autumn of eighteen hundred and eighty; and whereas, the said firm of Jabez W. Hayes and company did make and deliver to the proper military authorities of this state, in pursuance of such order, sixteen gold badges, at a cost of one hundred and twenty dollars, which said badges were accepted by said authorities and presented by them to the members of said state team; and whereas, the bill of said firm of Jabez W. Hayes and company, for said badges, has been presented for payment to the proper state authorities having first been certified as correct by the inspector general and approved by the governor, but has not been paid for the reason that there is no law authorizing its payment out of the state treasury; now, therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the sum of one hundred and twenty dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose of paying the bill of said firm of Jabez W. Hayes and company for the making and delivery of said sixteen badges; and the comptroller is hereby authorized to draw his warrant upon the treasury for the amount of said bill on the presentation of a proper voucher.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXVII.

A Further Supplement to the act entitled "An act respecting executions" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section twenty five of the act to which this is a supplement, be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows: Witnesses may be required to appear and testify concerning said matters, by either party, by process of subpoena and [illegible], issued out of the court wherein such judgment shall be recovered or docketed, and the defendant or defendants to any judgment shall be entitled to be represented by counsel at any examination under this act, and cross-examine any witnesses sworn and examined, and the judge or commissioner may adjourn the examination from time to time, at the instance of either party as may be needful.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

Back Ache

POSITIVELY CURED BY

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased [illegible], stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.

Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

The Princess' Song.

In paths of peace and virtue
Always the good remain;
And sorrow shall not stay with them,
Nor long access of pain;
At meeting or at parting,
Joys to their bosom strike,
For good to good is friendly,
And Virtue loves her like.
The great Sun goes his journey
By their strong truth impelled;
By their pure lives and penances
Is earth itself upheld;
Of all which live or shall live
Upon its hills and fields,
Pure hearts are the protectors,
For Virtue saves and shields.

Never are noble spirits
Poor while their like survive;
Without request these render,
Without return they give.
Never is lost or wasted
The goodness of the good;
Never against a mercy,
Against a right, it stood;
And seeing this, that Virtue
Is always friend of all,
The Virtuous and Pure-hearted
Men their "Protectors" call.

JOSEPHINE'S DREAM.

Josephine March lived in an old red brick house, which stood at the corner where the Canon's Close intercepts the Cathedral square. It looked on neither of them, except as it were by the side glance of two big windows which lit its staircase. All its casements opened on its own green garden, large enough to allow of bright flower beds, open sunny lawns and bower-like leafy dells.

The Misses Knightley, to whom the house belonged, took a pride and an interest in their garden. They were proud, too, of the delicate needlework which decorated their apartments, and days had been when they had added to its treasures; but they were old ladies now, and their eyes were failing, and they did no more. But spring and summer, autumn and winter, made room for perpetual changes in that garden, and their gentle exercise in its genial sunshine did them good. And Miss Margaret often said to Miss Elizabeth: "What should we do without the garden and Josephine?"

Josephine was not of their blood. She could remember the day when first she wondered who she was. She remembered asking that question of Miss Elizabeth. And she remembered the kind lady's answer, "that when she was old enough she should know all they could tell her." The promise was kept when she was seventeen.

That was three years ago, and Josephine would have started to be told how many hours she had spent in revolving the few meager particulars she then heard. She was a foundling discovered in an encampment of gypsies, whose thievishness had brought down the police upon them. The pretty baby's fair hair and blue eyes had provoked inquiry, and some of the old women of the gang had eagerly confessed that she was none of their people; she had belonged to a strange young woman who had joined them some months before and had since died. They could not be quite sure whether she was the mother. She had always said she was not. One harridan went so far as to narrate the dead girl's confession that she had a baby of her own, which had died, and that she had stolen this one to personate it, for the sake of some money.

The Misses Knightley had heard all this at the time, and, like most of the neighboring innocent ladies, they had gone to see the poor little babe crowing in the honest arms of the constable's wife, who had it in temporary charge.

The Misses Knightley walked home in silence till Miss Margaret said: "Lizzie, the little thing took to you."

Then she saw her sister was crying.

But Miss Elizabeth put aside her tears, with a strong effort, and said: "She curled her little fingers round mine just as Joseph did when he was a baby."

Joseph was a brother years younger than themselves, who had died in boyhood.

"Her eyes are the color of his," observed Miss Margaret. "Ah, if he had grown up and married, we might have had his children about us now."

"Why shouldn't we take this one?" asked Miss Elizabeth, impulsively. "We have a right to do as we like, I suppose," she added, with a dash of defiance at the storm of criticism and ridicule which she felt would rise about them.

And in the end the two ladies drove back in the twilight and bore home the baby in triumph.

"I never in my life felt so much as if I was committing a crime," Miss Margaret had afterward confided.

This was little enough for poor Josephine to hear, though it was dressed up with loving little details of how they gave her the feminine form of their dead boy-brother's name, and added for patronymic that of the "roaring moon of daffodils," during which she was carried into their quiet retreat.

What dwelt most in Josephine's mind was the vague unknown which lay behind all the information she could get. In her own heart she entirely refused to believe that she could be the child of the outcast woman who had died in the gypsies' camp. The police might have refused to believe about her dying confession—the Misses Knightley might seem to have forgotten all about it.

What did they care to whom she belonged, now that they saw her a fair and graceful maiden, full of gentle ways and learned in gentle lore, turning over their old volumes of the poets with her fresh young fingers, and looking and speaking and acting just as they could have wished in that dream-child who might have been Joseph's "if Joseph had lived?"

They had her portrait painted by the rising young artist of the town, and it was exhibited in the county art academy.

It was not called "Miss Josephine March." "Nobody but our Josephine's friends need know who it is," they said to each other, and the picture was called "An English Girl."

It showed her standing at the door of Miss Elizabeth's favorite arbor, just as she really stood nearly every morning during the mild months, for she always ran down there to await that lady's return from her daily tour round the garden.

The young artist, Philip Harvey, felt he had never had a sweeter subject, and perhaps there was something in his eyes which said so, for certainly there was something which set Josephine thinking what would happen if they fell in love with each other, and she was suddenly discovered to be some great man's daughter—the child perhaps of some secret marriage. That dream dominated the poor girl's mind terribly. She grew to believe in it.

It was only natural that she should yearn after the unknown kindred who must be somewhere in the world. It was only unfortunate she began to feel that the two maiden ladies were not really her aunts, and that this, and this alone, accounted for any rebellious feelings which would arise when the wise restrictions and counsels of age occasionally crossed the whims and impulses of youth.

It came to pass that one morning, when she was standing by the arbor, just as she stood in the picture, a carriage drove up to the gate. At least, it was not a carriage, but a cab; and out of this cab stepped an elderly lady, with a lean dark face, muffled in rich but rather rusty black lace.

She paid the cabman, and lingered for a moment at the gate, looking to the right and to the left. Then she advanced up the straight center walk toward the arbor.

She was nobody whom Josephine had ever seen before—a sour, commonplace-looking person, who eyed her with great curiosity.

"This is Miss Knightley's house?" she asked, abruptly, when she was within speaking distance.

"Yes, madame, it is," answered Josephine.

The lady came a step nearer and looked at her shrewdly.

"And you are a Miss March," she said; "and your portrait is in the —— Gallery. Have they been good to you—these people here?"

Josephine flushed hotly.

"They have been my truest, kindest friends," she said, warmly. "But for them—"

"There, there child!" interrupted the stranger, "don't go into heroics. I want to see them. Take me to them."

Josephine obeyed. She led the stranger to the prim little drawing-room and bade a maid to send the Misses Knightley to her immediately.

Then she returned to the arbor. Her heart beat fast with uneasy fears. No, no; it could not be; she was foolish to imagine it. This was somebody from the county town, probably begging on behalf of some institution.

Presently there was a light step on the gravel walk beside her. It was only Miss Elizabeth; but her face was pale and her eyes tearful.

Josephine's heart stood still.

"Child," said the old lady, tenderly, "it is a comfort to think you will not suffer in leaving us as we shall suffer in losing you. We often felt that you must long for your own people. We think they are found now.

"That is not—not my mother?" gasped Josephine.

"No," said Miss Elizabeth; "your mother died when you were born, sweet one; and that poor outcast of the gypsies' camp stole you from the woman with whom were placed at nurse. It was that pretty portrait which did it all!" cried the old lady, bursting into tears. "Your relations saw it, and thought that nobody but her own lost daughter could be so like your dead mother. And so they found out who you were and all your story. This lady is your aunt—your father's sister."

"And my father?" gasped Josephine again.

"Is a learned and distinguished old gentleman with whom she lives in profound retirement, about a hundred miles from here," returned Miss Elizabeth, with heroic truthfulness. "Come into the house, child, and see your mother's miniature and hear all your aunt has to say."

How different it was from Josephine's dream! Yet her courage somewhat revived at the thought of the learned old gentleman and his scholarly seclusion.

Only her new aunt—her "real aunt"—damped it again. She was so ugly and so business-like. She did not want to lay any surreptitious claim to Josephine's affections. She did not want to carry her off. A lawyer would wait on the Misses Knightley and go into every detail of the matter before they would be expected to resign their charge. Then she would return for her. Her name was Payne—Miss Selina Payne; and her niece had been christened after her.

"So you're Selina Payne, too," she said, looking at Josephine March; "and I expect you will be very thankful to have a name that really belongs to you."

Josephine had just one more week in the old Corner House, and a sad and trying week it was. As for the Misses Knightley they wept much in secret, and though they said little about Miss Selina Payne they often wondered over Mr. Payne, and remarked to each other that brothers and sisters were frequently very unlike, as if that offered the most hopeful view of that unknown savant.

Then Josephine left them. Miss Selina cut their farewells short.

"You're not parting forever," she said. "I come very near here every half year about some money business, and sometimes I'll bring her with me and leave her for half an hour."

And before the Misses Knightley could protest against such curtailed visits the cab had driven away.

Their railroad journey brought them to a dismal little black village called Carrow. It stood up anyhow round a great factory, which was pouring forth fierce light from a hundred square windows.

"That's the works, Selina," said her aunt—"the chemical works for which your father experiments and analyzes."

"Oh, how ugly!" cried the girl—which was perhaps ungracious.

"It brings us bread, Selina," said the aunt; "and your father will expect you to take an interest in his work and to help him, I can tell you," she added; "though he'll claim more from you for his hobbies and his pets and such useless trash."

"And so you're Selina," cried a thin, cracked voice in the hall of the low, dark house into which they were ushered "Ah, you've got Maggie's eyes. Poor Maggie! There, there, don't smother me! We shall have plenty of time to get to know each other."

And as that life began so it continued through that awful winter. The old lady and gentleman received no visitors; they had dropped most of the amenities of life, and they were waited on by faithful servants after their own heart.

Mr. Payne's duties lay among dangerous gases and acids; his recreation consisted of the study and domestication of living snakes and newts and frogs, and the dissection of dead specimens—delights which he cordially invited his daughter to share.

As for Miss Selina, she always gave a grunt when letters came from the Misses Knightley, and when Josephine threw out hints that she would like them to receive some substantial yet graceful recognition of their goodness to her, Miss Selina curtly replied that she had no doubt they had paid themselves in one way and another.

And this was the fulfillment of the dream for which Josephine had often turned away from the sweet realities of her old life at the Corner House!

There was nothing shameful in it; on the contrary, it had credit and honor, for the poor girl saw from a newspaper and certificate how high her father stood in the estimate of his brethren. And she would inherit a considerable fortune, too. She was assured of that. Yet Josephine's head was sick and her whole heart was faint.

The crisis came one day, when, rising from a dutiful but nauseating endeavor to mount a specimen for her father, she fancied she heard a familiar voice in the hall.

What could have brought Philip Harvey here, and what sort of reception would he get from Aunt Selina? Hastening from the study she met that lady returning from the front door with a satisfied smile on her lips.

"Who has been here?" asked the niece, with a sinking heart.

"Some young whipper-snapper wanting to see you," returned Aunt Selina. "A Mr. Harvey. We don't want any of that sort here. Those fellows who live by their wits are always very sharp after fortunes."

As her aunt spoke Josephine felt the low dismal hall reel round her, until it seemed as if the frayed brown oilcloth rose up and smote her on the face—and she had fainted!

* * * * *

It was summer once more, and the old green garden of the Corner House was again rich in color and sweetness. A carriage stands at the gate. Half an hour ago it brought up three people; in a few minutes it will carry away only two.

A group of five advance from the little arbor. There are the two Misses Knightley and Josephine. How pale and thin she looks, and how like a convalescent breathing fresh air and sunshine after months of fevered confinement! and yet Josephine has never been, as her Aunt Selina says, "really ill." And there is Aunt Selina herself and Mr. Payne.

"Yes, ladies," says the old gentleman, "I know it's all right. 'What can the girl want,' says my sister, 'more than to have us always and to see the Misses Knightley every now and then?' Say I, 'Selina, maybe the right chemical combination would be for her to have the Misses Knightley always, and see us now and then, just by way of renewed experiment to prove it would not do.' You needn't defend yourself, child, I know you did your best. Selina, are you ready? Well, child, if ever you hear of any curious specimens—you remember that rare toad I was always looking out for—let me know. Good-bye."

"Josephine," whispered Miss Elizabeth, as the three turned back to the old house, "I have asked Mr. Harvey to come up and spend this evening with us—I did not think you would object — Why, Margaret, the roses on her cheeks are beginning to bloom again already!"

And Josephine dreamed no more of grandeur and broken hearts.

Cutting the Key Log of a Lumber Jam.

The first thing to be done is to find out where the jam occurred, and then to discover what is called the "key log," that is to say, the log which holds the base of the "jam." An old experienced "steam driver" is soon on the spot, for the news is soon carried up stream that there is a "jam" below. Every minute is of consequence, as logs are coming down and the "jam" increasing in strength. The "key log" being found, there is a cry for volunteers to cut it. Now, when you consider that there are some hundred big logs of timber forming a dam, and the instant the key log is cut the whole fabric comes rushing down with a crush, you will see that unless the axman gets instantly away he is crushed to death. There are usually in camp plenty of men ready to volunteer, for a man who cuts a key log is looked upon by the rest of the loggers just as a soldier is by his regiment when he has done any act of bravery.

The man I saw cut away a log which brought down the whole jam of logs was a quiet young fellow, some twenty years of age. He stripped everything save his drawers; a strong rope was placed under his arms, and a gang of smart young fellows held the end. The man shook hands with his comrades and quietly walked out on the logs, ax in hand. I do not know how the loggy-road one felt, but I shall never forget my feelings. The man was quietly walking to what very likely might be his death. At any moment the jam might break of its own accord; and also if he cut the key log, unless he instantly got out of the way, he would be crushed by the falling timber.

There was a dead silence while the keen ax was dropped with force and skill on the pine log. Now the notch was near half through the log, one or two more blows, and a crack was heard. The men got in all the slack of the rope that held the axman; one more blow and there was a crash like thunder, and down came the wall to all appearances on the axman.

Like many others I rushed to help haul away the poor fellow, but to my great joy I saw him safe on the bank, certainly sadly bruised and bleeding from sundry wounds, but safe.—Field.

The Tramp's Reward.

A Western newspaper draws on its imagination for the following story:

An ingenious tramp, thinking to wring tears and money assistance from the stoniest hearts with a new science, gave it an experimental trial in the North End. He has decided not to patent the invention. He told a North End lady of his unfortunate condition, and asked if he might eat some of the grass in the yard. The lady, not less amused than surprised, said:

"Certainly."

He went out, and getting down on all fours commenced on the grass after the neglected and never popular fashion of Nebuchadnezzar, and apparently not enjoying the diet any more than that ancient sinner of olden time. Presently the tramp's anxious eye caught sight of the servant girl beckoning to him from the back yard. He thought a rich reward for his humility was in store, and instantly responded.

"Did you motion to me?"

"Yes."

"What did you want?" He now wore a look of most hopeful expectancy.

"You may go in the back yard if you want to. The grass is taller there."

LADIES' DEPARTMENT.

Flannel Dresses.

White, cadet blue, olive and black are the desirable colors for sheer flannel dresses that will be worn all summer at the seaside and mountains. The white flannel dresses are only suitable for morning wear, but those of colors will be used for traveling. The princesse effect, with panier sash and plaited skirt, prevails for young ladies' creamy white flannel dresses, and to these are sometimes added Byron collars, square cuffs and pockets, of velvet, but as these dresses must be cleansed often, the Hercules braid in many rows on the skirt, with frogs on the cuirass waist will be a better trimming. A snugly fitted hunting jacket well belted in, braid to match in color, and a skirt like that just described, is the design for black and colored dresses of flannel.—Bazar.

The Kind of a Man to Marry.

A young man, receiving a small salary, determines to put aside each week a certain sum as a foundation for the pleasant home he some time hopes to have. It forces him to make many sacrifices; he eschews jewelry and canes, soda water and cigars, and carries an unperfumed handkerchief. When in this semi-rustic plight, and wearing a suit (perfectly preserved) two seasons old, he calls on a maiden whose company he desires, she looks with scorn at the dowdy dress, and is suddenly otherwise engaged. Discouraging as this may be, he plods on in the chosen path, and finally lays his heart before a quiet maiden who has read:

"I see a man:
I do not see his shabby dress,
I see him in his manliness;
I see his ax, I see his spade,
I see a man that God has made.
If such a man before you stand—
Give him your heart, give him your hand,
And thank your Maker for such men—
They make this old earth young again."

The beginning of their wedded life is devoid of much of the splendor that attended the other pair, but to them there is no rude awakening to misery and woe. Their affection having never been trifled away, but reserved, each for the other, proves a constant joy and ever-present delight.

A Woman's Warning.

The Lowell Courier reports a recent lecture of Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, in which the speaker said:

"A prominent cause of the degeneracy of woman is the compressing of their chests by the use of corsets. They are not necessary to a good figure; what artist would choose a corseted female for a model? They are not necessary for support. Indeed, they are destructive of those very means upon which a woman should depend to uphold her body. The female form is provided with muscles exactly similar to those of the male, but in the former those muscles are not developed, they are weakened, compressed, until in a woman forty years of age, who has always worn corsets, the waist muscles have entirely disappeared, and the woman is absolutely obliged to depend upon the artificial means to support her body. This practice also interferes with digestion, and with the operation of the lungs."

Mrs. Livermore also discountenanced the support of clothing upon the hips, and the use of small peg-heeled shoes. The latter occasion permanent injury to the muscles and incurable lameness in many cases.

Fashion Notes.

Worth uses jet profusely.

Satin straws are popular.

Tournures are very large.

Cloth jackets are severely plain.

Roses border evening dress skirts.

Some of the new mantles have paniers.

Polka-knotted handkerchiefs are again carried.

Lace is worn with everything and on everything.

White camels' hair is much worn for tea gowns.

Historical and picturesque costumes grow in favor.

Brocaded China crape appears among late novelties.

Some of the new ulsters show box-plaits in the back.

Hip draperies and tunics are much tucked and gauged.

Ostrich feathers droop over the front edge of large straw hats.

Soldier-blue is the popular shade for cloth jackets and suits.

Patent leather low shoes will be worn in the summer by ladies.

Worth uses striped and changeable silks in his richest dresses.

White flannel dresses will be popular in the country with young ladies.

Jersey jackets are preferred to the masculine English walking jackets.

Persain cloth mantles trimmed with chenille fringe are very fashionable.

Parisian hair-dressers are making an effort to revive the Roman coiffure of the first directory period in the style worn by the Empress Josephine and Madame Recamier just before the days of the empire.

Fiocllo or Medici lace is the coming novelty for trimming dresses and bonnets.

The hair, to be fashionably dressed, must fall low on the neck and also on the brow.

In spite of efforts to make all evening dresses short, trains are worn extensively.

Pink is a favorite color for young ladies' dresses, both for morning and evening wear.

Hideous curtain paniers disfigure a large proportion of Paris-made dresses of this season.

Pale gray and terra cotta, pale blue and canary yellow, are favorite combinations for tea gowns.

Bridesmaids wear white straw Rembrandt hats with white plumes falling over the front of the brim.

A loose, puffed drapery just below the hips all around the skirt appears on handsome dresses for children.

The colors for neck ribbons are terra cotta, aurora pink, porcelain blue, mahogany, ruby and cardinal red.

Information About the Aged.

After Mrs. Mary McElroy, of Greensburg, Ind., had lived 100 years, she was burned to death.

Mrs. Lally died recently in Chicago, aged 108 years. Her health had not been good for three years.

Mrs. Catherine Mannion died lately in Baltimore at 106. Her sister, ninety-two years old, had died just before.

Colonel Camp, of Shippensville, Pa., was ninety-four years old when he was married recently, and his bride, Mrs. Rich, was seventy-two.

Christopher C. Graham, of Louisville, Ky., is ninety-eight years of age. He recollects that he was a guest at the wedding of Abraham Lincoln's parents.

After ninety-six years of active life, Polly Herr, of Phenix, N. Y., passed into eternal rest. She was never sick in her life, and died in her sleep.

At a birthday surprise supper given to Mrs. Hannah Roberts, of South Bend, Ind., the united ages of the sixteen persons at table made 1,083 years.

Archie McTavish has just made a long journey by rail to spend his old age with a favorite son. He is at Uxbridge, in Canada, and 106 years of age.

Mr. Sarah Fifield, who died recently at Deer Isle, Va., at the age of ninety-eight, had been a strictly pious woman for eighty-three years, and of descendants had 252.

The united ages of a family of Newburg, consisting of eleven brothers and sisters, is 760 years, an average of nearly seventy years. Their father lived 100 years.

With good physical health and all his mental faculties unimpaired, Andrew Bisconnior still lives at 108 in the city of Syracuse, N. Y. He is now cutting teeth and recovering his sight.

The father of Robert A. Wright, of Santa Rosa county, Florida, is 116 years of age, more or less, and he has three sons fifty-two years old. Healthy triplets, that is to say, were vouchsafed to him in his sixty-fourth year.

"Fun" With a Mule.

A little Southern boy, when asked if his father had a good mule, mournfully replied: "One end of him is good." Personal attempts to play with the heels of a mule are generally failures. A correspondent of the Chicago Times, writing from Fort Buford, gives an example of that kind of an experiment:

A gallant captain of the Fifth Infantry, on a notable occasion, attempted to coerce a mule which had backed up against his tent on a wild and stormy night to secure some slight protection from the whirling blasts. The mule was an old offender, and was continually wandering about the camp after night. Upon this occasion he backed up against the tent, and the light inside permitted an accurate view of the animal as his shadow fell on the canvas. The captain was entertaining a party of friends, and when he caught sight of the mule he picked up a pine board, and remarking to his visitors, "Now we will have some fun, boys," leveled a full and fair blow at the animal.

The aim had evidently been true, as the shadow was seen to move on the canvas, and then followed an awful tearing sound, and a pair of mule's heels made themselves distinctly visible to the assembled crowd. The mule continued the kicking process until he had torn in shreds the objective side of the tent selected for his attack, and his heels reached far enough to enable him to encounter the stove. The boys adjourned for the evening, concluding they had had "fun" enough.

The officer who assaulted the mule was given other quarters that night, and on the following day purchased a tarpaulin with which to repair his domicile.

A reason given why a piano was not saved at a fire was because none of the firemen could play on it.

CLIPPINGS FOR THE CURIOUS.

Ants usually live but one season.

A breed of solid-hoofed pigs is said to exist in Texas.

The loss of a hand was one of the penal mutilations enacted by William the Conqueror.

It is within the last two centuries that the first attempt was made in Europe to establish quarantine.

Long before tobacco was introduced into England the dried leaves of coltsfoot were quite generally smoked.

One ancient Mexican penalty was to have the hair cut at some public place; and during medieval times in Europe cutting the hair was enacted as a punishment.

It is said of the wives of a Zulu king that they were never permitted to stand up while their lord and master was in the house, but moved about on their hands and knees.

In the Chinese famine of 1875 some of the inhabitants ate the thatch from their cottages. A statement hardly to be understood is that some of them attacked red slate-stone.

Domitian once actually assembled the Roman senate in special session to vote on the merits of a new sauce which he desired to try on a fat specimen of the Mediterranean turbot.

Of the 95,495,000 people in America, there are credited to the United States 50,000,000; to Brazil 11,100,000; to Mexico 9,485,000; to British North America 3,800,000; Iceland is given 72,000 and Greenland 10,000.

It is a common belief that Dr. Guillotin, who invented the instrument bearing his name, was executed by means of it. It is, however, stated on good authority that he survived the revolution many years, and died a natural death in 1814.

A colossal æolian harp was made in Milan in 1786 by the Abbe Gattoni. He stretched seven strong iron wires from the top of a tower, sixty feet high, to a house near by. This giant harp was heard, in a high wind, at a distance of several miles.

Several years ago the bleaching powder made in the world was 55,000 tons per annum, whereas it is now over 150,000 tons. By this increase every sheet of white paper and every yard of calico made in the world have been cheapened.

The much abused dragon flies are perfectly harmless to human beings; they neither bite nor sting, but destroy vast quantities of mosquitoes, flies and other insects. They can be brought into the house to catch flies and mosquitoes, which duty they perform if unmolested. While in the larvæ state they perform the same good work.

A Business "Skeleton."

A New York reporter stumbled upon what may have been a veritable "skeleton" in many a household. Noticing an odd advertisement he followed it up and found a young man who had in his possession two small account books, or "skeletons," as he called them, which he had taken from his former employer, a milliner, and held as hostages until she paid him his back salary. "She's been advertising for me ever since," said the young man, and added:

"Why? Why, because she can't run her business without 'em, that's why. There's $50,000 in money lent in these books, and she can't make out her spring bills without them. Why, I could burst the whole millinery business in New York inside of a month if I could get hold of their skeletons." "But what do you call skeletons?" demanded the reporter. "The extra books," replied the young man. "See here, now. There are but few dressmakers in New York with any style that do a straight business. They can't. Their customers won't have it. There's more money lent than there is spent on customers' dresses, and when a bill for a couple of thousand is made out, you can bet your life that half of it is clear cash with interest. In these here skeletons," said the young man, impressively, tapping the books with his forefinger, "there's over $75,000 entries, and less than $30,000 of them are square business. The rest are loans at five per cent. a month that the husbands have to pay for along with the clothes that their wives wear. There's one lady in this book whose spring bill will be over $5,000, and less than $2,000 is for dresses. The rest is cash borrowed since last fall, and interest on it." "Do you mean to say that dressmaking is only another name for usury, then?" "I mean to say that many dressmakers in New York lend money to customers on interest. That's where the skeletons come from. The skeletons are the secret books of the house. On one page of them is entered the actual indebtedness of the customer for dresses. On the opposite page are the loans. Every month the books of the business are made up from the skeletons, money loaned being charged to the dressmaker's account."

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

How to Avoid Contagion.—A writer in the Nineteenth Century says that contagion consists of minute solid particles and not gaseous disseminations. If this is true we can readily understand that a person who breathes only through the nose will be much less likely to catch a contagious disease in a sick-room than would a mouth-breather. Free ventilation, perfect cleanliness and frequent changes of clothing afford the best means of removing the contagious particles given off by the sick persons.

Ice for Teething Children.—The pain of teething may be almost done away, and the health of the child benefited by giving it fine splinters of ice, picked off with a pin, to melt in its mouth. The fragment is so small that it is but a drop of warm water before it can be swallowed, and the child has all the coolness for its feverish gums without the slightest injury. The avidity with which the little things taste the cooling morsel, the instant quiet which succeeds hours of fretfulness, and the sleep which follows the relief, are the best witnesses for the magic remedy. Ice may be fed to a three-months' child in this way, each splinter being no longer than a common pin, for five or ten minutes, the result being that it has swallowed in that time a teaspoonful of warm water, which, so far from being a harm, is good for it, and the process may be repeated hourly as often as the fretting fits from teething begin.

A Cold Bath.—A cold bath as a tonic can be safely used "all the year round; (by those who can bear it all), if one will remember that the temperature of the water should be uniformly about sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and not take it as it comes, cool in summer and way down toward freezing in winter.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

The Life-Saving Service.

According to the report of the United States life-saving service there are 183 stations in operation, of which seven are on the coast of Maine and New Hampshire, fifteen on the coast of Massachusetts, thirty-seven on Rhode Island and Long Island, forty on the New Jersey shore, forty-four south of Cape May and in the Gulf of Mexico, thirty-four on the lakes and six on the Pacific coast. This arrangement gives 143 stations to the Atlantic coast, where, of course, they are most needed, and apportions more stations to the dangerous coast of New Jersey and Long Island than to any other part of the sea-board. Within the districts covered by these stations there were, in the last year, 256 disasters to vessels. On these vessels were 1,878 persons, of whom 1,854 persons were rescued and only twenty-four were lost. This number of rescued persons does not include sixteen who were not on board vessels, but who were saved from drowning. Relief was given at the stations to 407 shipwrecked persons who would otherwise have been left to the tender mercies of the willing but poverty-stricken residents in the neighborhood of the stations. The saving of nearly 2,000 lives puts all pecuniary considerations in the background, but the value of the vessels and cargoes involved in these disasters was $4,054,752. Of this amount $2,828,680 was saved and $1,226,072 was lost. The number of disasters involving the total loss of vessels was sixty-six.

Suspended Animation.

Within two weeks the Herald has reported three cases of supposed death, in each of which some person who had been placed in a coffin exhibited some phases of countenance that are not common to dead persons. It is hardly probable that, if a spark of life was in any of these bodies when they were prepared for burial, they were really buried alive, for several minutes in a closed coffin would be sufficient to kill a healthy person, let alone one who was too feeble to speak or make any motion. Still, it is well to remember that if a sick person seems likely to die the quickest way to hasten the final shuffling off of the mortal coil is to lay him on his back in a coffin or any other place and put ice under or around him. To lie flat upon the back, with the head on the same level as the body, is an experience that no healthy person can long endure without frightful sensations, and to any one exhausted by disease the position offers a positive prospect of early decease. When a body in a coffin shows signs of life there is little trouble and no risk in removing it, laying it on its side upon a bed and gently agitating the chest and abdomen as is done in the case of a person who has been drowned. The opinion of a physician is generally satisfactory evidence of death, but when there is any doubt it is simple idiocy to leave a body in a coffin, particularly if natural warmth is being antagonized by ice.—New York Herald.

Several small, living sea-fish have been sent by mail on a four days' journey. They were packed in damp sea-weed, and all but one survived the trip and came out in good condition.

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS.

How to Look at Things.

I went to see a lady once who was in deep trouble and in great darkness on account of the great afflictions which had come to her from the hands of the Lord. She had fallen into deep melancholy. When I went in she was working on a bit of embroidery, and as I talked with her she dropped it wrong side up, and there it lay, a mass of crude work, tangled everything seeming out of order. "Well," said I, "what is this you are engaged at?" "Oh," she replied, "it's for a Christmas gift." I said: "I should not think you would waste your time on that. It looks tangled, without design or meaning," and I went on abusing the combination of color, and so on. "Why Mr. Pentecost," she said, surprised at the sudden and abrupt change of the subject on which we had before been talking, and the persistency with which I had opposed her work—"why, Mr. Pentecost you are looking at the wrong side. Turn it over." Then I said: "That's just what you are doing; you are looking at the wrong side of God's working with you. Down here they seem tangled, but up there He is working from the right side." Down here we are looking at the tangled side of God's providence; but He has a plan, here a stitch, there a movement of the shuttle, and in the end there is a beautiful work. Be not afraid, only believing. Believe Him in the darkness; believe Him in the mysteries. Let him that walketh in darkness, and seeth not the light, yet trust in the Lord.—G. F. Pentecost.

Religious News and Notes.

There are 26,373 Baptist churches in the United States.

There are 11,253 Presbyterians in Missouri with 210 churches.

During their two months' stay in Edinburgh Moody and Sankey conducted one hundred and thirty meetings.

The number of Protestant communicants increased about 14,000 in the city of Berlin during the last year, owing largely to the labors of the city missionaries.

The Lutheran Theological seminary in Philadelphia, in the eighteen years of its existence, has graduated 183 young men. There are now forty-three students in the seminary.

The Congregational churches of Massachusetts report 89,962 members. The net gain for the year is 424. There are 529 churches, of which 269 have pastors and 164 acting pastors.

There has been a large gathering at Swatow, China, of Baptist preachers and women. About thirty applicants for baptism were examined, of whom sixteen were accepted and were baptized.

The churches in the New York East Methodist Episcopal conference show a total membership of 42,699; local preachers, 203; children baptized, 1,474; adults baptized, 1,020; church buildings owned, 286, valued at $3,546,400, and parsonages 153, valued at $684,500. The conference funds show an increase for the year of $11,259.68.

The percentage of increase of the various religious denominations in Canada in the past ten years is as follows: Methodist, 35 per cent; Presbyterian, 24; Baptist, 24; Catholic, 21; Church of England, 16½. The latter stands fourth as to members, the Catholic, the Presbyterian and the Methodist churches standing respectively first, second and third. The Catholics have 1,791,982 of the population, the Presbyterian church 629,280, the Methodist church 582,965, and the Church of England 574,818.

Kansas Praising It.

"While I was in Topeka last winter," said the Hon. Arthur Edgington, "I had a pretty rough time of it. I got a bad cold, and then, that not being sufficiently severe, I was also attacked with rheumatism. The pain was in my left shoulder. At times I almost writhed in agony. I tell you, sir, that the pain could not have been greater had my shoulder been screwed up in a vise. I was utterly helpless, and felt like I was destined to remain in that condition indefinitely. My friends and a physician were generous in their prescriptions and my room soon became a miniature apothecary shop. But nothing did me any good. One day some one told me I was enduring a great deal of needless pain when I could invest fifty cents in a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil and be cured. I invested in a bottle of the Oil, rubbed it on my shoulder twice, and in two days forgot that I ever had rheumatism. Yes, that is a great remedy, and no mistake. They can't say too much in favor of its healing power."

The above was uttered by Mr. Edgington while sitting on the porch of the La Gonda house, at Columbus, the other evening, and was overheard by an escaped reporter, who is traveling over the country incog. Inquiry developed the fact that Mr. Edgington is one of the most widely known men in Kansas, figuring prominently in politics, and acting as the responsible agent of the Bradstreet Commercial Agency. Upon subsequently making Mr. Edgington's acquaintance the reporter was assured that all he had heard was true, and he was at liberty to use it in the papers.—[Oswego (Kas.) Democrat.

Hortense Kittrell was appointed a clerk in the Nevada legislature. Henry H. Welch, the chief clerk, at first objected to the presence of a woman in the office. But his prejudice has been overcome during the present session. Miss Kittrell is now Mrs. Welch.

A little boy who was accustomed to say grace in the absence of his father, had a younger brother who found it hard to wait until grace was over without helping himself to some of the good things near. On one occasion, when company was present, the young master of ceremonies observed the small boy helping himself liberally to cake before the blessing was asked, so he deliberately said: "For what we are about to receive, and for what Charlie has already helped himself to, the Lord make us truly thankful."

The St. Paul (Minn.) Globe, observes: "Things had gone wrong with him, and he wanted to die; yet he had the whole house darting around mighty lively, so we heard, hunting for the St. Jacobs Oil bottle, when the first twinge of rheumatism gathered him up.

The Mason & Hamlin Co.—At Milan, Italy, they have recently had a Musical Industrial Exhibition and Competition, under royal patronage; at which were collected and compared, during a period of several months, the largest number and greatest variety of musical instruments, old and new, ever brought together. America was honored in the award to the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of the highest medal, and the only one in this department. Considering that 250 awards were given, altogether, this distinction was very marked. It is a continuation of the triumphs of these famous organ makers at every one of the World's Fairs for fourteen years; to which there has been no exception.—The Manhattan.

The first theater in America was built at Williamsburg, Va. 1752.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS, followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half-dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past. I write this hoping every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will take DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

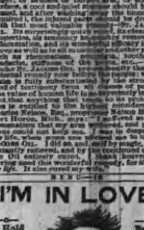
Boon for Travelers and Emigrants.

Whether for the tourist, bent on pleasure or business, or the emigrant seeking a far Western home, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best protector against the harmful influences of climatic changes or malaria; the most reliable medicine for general use he can possibly carry with him. It nullifies the effect of sudden changes of temperature, braces the system against the enfeebling influence of excessive heat, prevents injurious consequences from a change of diet or of using bad food or water, is a fine resuscitant of physical energy diminished by the fatigue of traveling, and tends to counteract the effects of exposure in rough weather. It is ample and serviceably used by mariners and others whose out-door life and arduous labor expose them unusually. It is moreover of great service as a preventive and curative of disorders of the stomach, liver, bowels, and as a general tonic.

There are two colonies of Mormons in Arizona that are free from territorial and county taxes. They are so isolated that the cost of collecting amounts to more than taxes.

HOUSEHOLD ACCIDENTS.



The following suggestions are not designed to induce the public to attempt the duties of the regular surgeon, but merely to place the readers of these pages in possession of a means of treatment of the minor accidents occurring daily in the household, and which, while not dangerous in themselves, are exceedingly annoying. Burns, bruises, scalds, sprains, etc., are principal among these troublesome and annoying occurrences, and demand immediate treatment with the best means at hand. In the kitchen, the dining-hall, the nursery and the sitting-room, they are liable to happen, and, instead of fear and alarm at the sight of the cut or mashed finger, or bruised or burned arm, or scalded surface, a cool and quiet manner should be assumed, and after washing away the blood, (if required), the injured parts should be dressed with that most valuable remedy—St. Jacobs Oil. Its surprisingly quick relief, its cleansing properties, its tendency to quickly remove all inflammation, and its wonderful efficacy in the above as well as in all muscular and other pains, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, headache, stiffness of the joints, etc.—these render St. Jacobs Oil, preeminently the best external remedy now before the people: which claim is fully substantiated by the strongest kind of testimony from all classes of people. The value of human life is so supremely important that anything that tends to its prolongation is entitled to the highest consideration. Charles Nelson, Esq., proprietor Nelson House, Port Huron, Mich., says: "I suffered so with rheumatism that my arm withered, and physicians could not help me. I was in despair of my life, when some one advised me to try St. Jacobs Oil. I did so, and, as if by magic, I was instantly relieved, and by the continued use of the Oil entirely cured. I thank heaven for having used this wonderful remedy, for it saved my life. It also cured my wife."

Vegetine
IS THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE
—AND—
HEALTH RESTORER.
Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

General Debility.

Debility is a term used to denote a deficiency of blood. The nutritive constituents of the blood are in less than their regular proportion, while the watery part is in excess. Debility is of frequent occurrence. It is incident to a variety of diseases. The lower limbs are apt to be swollen. The patient is feeble and cannot bear much exertion. The circulation is irregular, but almost always weak. Palpitation of the heart is a very common symptom. Violent emotion often throws the heart into the most tumultuous action. The vital functions are languidly performed. The muscular strength is diminished; fatigue follows moderate or slight exercise. The breathing, though quiet when at rest, becomes hurried and even painfully agitated under exertion, as in running, ascending heights, etc. The nervous system is often greatly disordered. Vertigo, dimness and a feeling of faintness are very common. Violent and obstinate neuralgic pains in the head, side and breast, or other parts of the body, are also frequent attendants upon the disease. The secretions are sometimes diminished. [illegible] The bile is scanty, and costiveness, with unhealthy evacuations from the bowels, and dyspeptic state of the stomach, are extremely common symptoms.

Disease of the Blood.

Baltimore, Md., April 28, 1879.
Dr. H. R. Stevens—Dear Sir: I have suffered for about two years with a disease of the Blood, and after using different remedies, but finding no relief, I was induced to try Vegetine. After taking two bottles I was entirely cured. I have recommended it to all my friends, and believe it to be the best medicine of the kind in use. Yours truly, LEANDER LUSBY.

Laws of New Jersey.

CHAPTER CXVIII.

An Act to protect the navigable waters of the Arthur Kill, Kill von Kull and Staten Island sounds, Newark bay and tributaries, Raritan bay and tributaries, and of New York bay and harbor, and Hudson river, over which the state of New Jersey may have jurisdiction.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to throw, place, deposit, in any way or manner, or cause to be thrown, placed or deposited, in any way or manner, into or upon the navigable waters of the Kill von Kull, Arthur Kill, or Staten Island sounds, Newark bay or tributaries, Raritan bay or tributaries, New York bay and harbor, or the Hudson river, within the jurisdiction of the state of New Jersey, or over which this state may have jurisdiction, any dredgings, mud, ashes, cinders, shells, refuse, or any other solid material of any kind or description whatever, unless duly authorized so to do under the laws of this state or of the United States; provided, that this section shall not apply to or affect the right any person has or may have to fish, by putting in poles or otherwise, to plant shell-fish, and fix and preserve the boundaries to any land he may be entitled to use for such purpose, or to interfere with the emptying of any sewage into the same by any city.

2. And be it enacted, That any person or persons violating any of the provisions of the first section of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction, in any county bordering on any of the said waters within which such violation may have occurred, shall, for the first offence, be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, and imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months; said fines to be in addition to the costs of prosecution.

3. And be it enacted, That if any boat or vessel shall be found within the jurisdiction of this state from which any person or persons are violating any of the provisions of section one of this act, it shall be lawful for the board of commissioners of pilotage appointed under the provisions of section one of the act entitled "An act to establish and regulate pilots for the port of Jersey City, Newark and Perth Amboy, by the way of Sandy Hook," approved April seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty six, or any one of said commissioners to seize, or cause to be seized, the said boat or vessel, and take the same, or cause the same to be taken, to the nearest of said ports, there to securely keep or be kept until the owner or owners shall deposit with the said commissioners the sum of two hundred dollars, or give security satisfactory to the said commissioners, for the payment of any fine and costs which may be adjudged against the person or persons committing such violations of section one.

4. And be it enacted, That the board of commissioners of pilotage named in the last preceding section are empowered and it shall be their duty, to prosecute all violations of this act.

5. And be it enacted, That all fines collected under this act shall constitute a fund in the hands of the said commissioners of pilotage to pay the necessary expenses of carrying the same into effect.

6. And be it enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to interfere with the powers, rights, duties and privileges of the board of riparian commissioners of this state.

7. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXIX.

An Act to enable any city board having control of hospitals to provide for paying certain expenses over and above the appropriations for taking care of small-pox patients and measures to prevent the spread of that disease.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That when any board having control of any city hospital shall have already incurred or shall during the present fiscal year incur expenses in excess of regular appropriations in taking care of small-pox patients or in taking measures to prevent the spread of that disease, the board having control of the finances of such city shall have power to borrow and give to said board over and above said appropriations [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXX.

A Supplement to the act entitled "An act to authorize the erection of engine houses in cities of this state," approved March second, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the buildings or building authorized to be erected by the act to which this is a supplement, may be erected on land given or dedicated for any such purpose, and the authorities of such cities are hereby authorized to accept any lands given, dedicated or sold to them for a nominal consideration under conditions for such purpose.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXI.

An Act concerning elections in villages.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, [illegible]

[illegible] their offences, as the chief of the bureau of the statistics of labor and industries may require.

3. And be it enacted, That on or before the fifth day of every month, a certified copy of such record kept during the previous month, or so much thereof as may be required, shall be transmitted by the keeper of such jail to the chief of the bureau of statistics of labor and industries; and that a statement showing the total expense incurred in keeping the prisoners shall accompany such report, which report shall be made in the form prescribed by the chief of the bureau of statistics of labor and industries.

3. And be it enacted, That for every neglect of such keeper to comply with the requirements of this act, he shall forfeit the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered by an action of debt in the name of the people of this state.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXIV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act requiring the refunding of moneys overpaid in certain cases," approved March third, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the first section of the act to which this is a supplement be amended to read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any overpayment has been made by any person in any city of this state, as interest on any assessment for sewers or other street improvements, through inadvertence or misunderstanding of the period from which the interest lawfully accrued or the rate of interest by law permitted, it shall be the duty of common council or other legislative body, by resolution to direct the treasurer of any such city to refund on demand the amount of such overpayment, with lawful interest thereon, said amount and interest to be ascertained and fixed by the officer, or incumbent successor in office of the officer to whom such overpayment was paid; provided, that where any amount is adjudged to be due to any person, by virtue of such overpayment, who has any assessments or taxes unpaid, the amount due such person shall be credited to the account of such unpaid taxes or assessments, and the balance, if any, paid over as herein provided.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXV.

An Act to authorize the construction and repairing of sidewalks in townships.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the township committee or committees of any township or townships within this State, may at any time or times, set off and divide their said township or townships into districts, to be designated by numbers, and may alter the same from time to time, and shall, by resolution, to be entered at length upon their minutes, define and declare the limits, boundaries and numbers of such districts, and the same being so defined and declared, shall be deemed and taken as sidewalk districts for the purposes of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That whenever requested in writing, by ten freeholders and legal voters of any of said districts to call a meeting for the purposes of this act, the said committee of any such township, may if they shall deem it advisable so to do, by resolution, direct or cause to be issued, a call for a meeting of the legal voters of such district signed by the township clerk, which shall be posted in five of the most public places in said district, for at least ten days, and not more than twenty days, before such meeting shall be held, stating the time and place and object of [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

An act in relation to past due taxes and assessments.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the board of finance and taxation, or other board having control of the financial affairs of any city in this state, or the common council or other legislative body of any city having no such board, may make such [illegible], abatements, adjustments and settlements of past due taxes and assessments, and any and all interest and penalties thereon, as such board, common council or legislative body may or shall deem to be for the best interest of such city; provided, that the provisions of this act shall not in any wise affect or impair the interest or lien of any purchaser other than such city, acquired under any sale made for past due taxes or assessments, or apply to taxes or assessments made, levied or assessed subsequent to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts, general or special, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 22, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXX.

An act relative to public printing.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the laws enacted at each session of the legislature shall hereafter be printed in the same general style in which the session of laws was printed in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy eight, excepting that the laws shall be classified and printed under the two heads of general public acts, special public and private acts; also the legislative documents shall be hereafter printed in the same style in which the said work was done in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, excepting the bound journals of the senate, and minutes of the joint meetings and executive sessions and the minutes of the house of assembly shall be printed in the same [illegible]

[illegible]

20. And be it enacted, That J. H. Mattison, of Somerville, be employed to print the report of the Trenton asylum.

21. And be it enacted, That Theodore S. Fraith, of the city of Newark, be employed to print the usual number of copies of the bureau of labor statistics and the state board of agriculture in the German language.

22. And be it enacted, That Charles Schmidt, of Elizabeth, be employed to print the report of the board of health in the German language.

23. And be it enacted, That Joseph Knorr, of Newark, be employed to print the adjutant general's report in the German language.

24. And be it enacted, That Charles A. Borger, of Paterson, be employed to print the report of the state geologist in the German language.

25. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the secretary of state to deliver or cause to be delivered to the person or persons who shall be employed to print the copies of the laws, a copy of every law passed at this session of the legislature, within thirty days after the passage of such law, and on failure thereof shall be compelled to pay to the person or persons employed to print the copies of the laws any sum which he or they may have forfeited by reason of such default.

26. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts conflicting with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

27. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 24, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXXI.

An Act to enable owners of real estate to redeem their property from tax and assessment sales with greater facility, when the lands are held by non-residents.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever the owner of any lands, tenements and hereditaments lying and being in this state, which have been heretofore, or which shall hereafter be sold for non-payment of taxes or assessments under the laws and ordinances of any city, borough, town or township of this state, is desirous of redeeming the same, but is prevented from doing so by the absence of the tax sale or assessment sale purchaser from this state, such owner shall mail a written notice of his resolution and desire to redeem said lands, tenements and hereditaments from the lien of said tax or assessment sale to said tax sale or assessment sale purchaser, prepaid, directed to him at the post office nearest his residence or the post office at which he usually receives his letters, unless such residence or post office be unknown and cannot be ascertained upon making diligent inquiry therefor, and at the expiration of two weeks from the mailing of said notice, in case said tax sale or assessment sale purchaser shall not have appeared and accepted the redemption money, the owner of the said lands, tenements and hereditaments shall make an affidavit that such tax sale or assessment sale purchaser is out of the state of [illegible], upon due inquiry, be found therein and that said owner has mailed the notice of redemption to said purchaser in the manner in this act prescribed, or that said owner, after diligent inquiry, cannot find out the residence and post office address of said purchaser, and that the said purchaser has failed to appear and receive the redemption money; and said owner shall file said affidavit with the treasurer of said city, borough, town or township, and thereupon it shall be lawful for the said treasurer to receive the said redemption money with interest and penalties then due, and to take further proceedings in reference to the redemption of said lands, tenements and hereditaments that the said purchaser himself might or could do if he were present.

2. And be it enacted, That immediately after the payment of said redemption money, interest and penalties then due to the treasurer of said city, borough, town or township all further interest and penalties on said taxes or assessments shall cease forthwith, and the said lands, tenements and hereditaments shall be entirely freed and discharged from the lien and incumbrance thereof.

3. And be it enacted, That the treasurer of any city, borough, town or township, into whose hands such redemption money shall be paid, at any time in the manner prescribed by this act, shall have the right to retain one per cent. of said money as compensation for his trouble in taking care of said money for the owner thereof.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

5. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 24, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXXII.

An Act concerning turnpikes.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any turnpike road, or any part thereof, in any county of this state, the title to and right of possession of which has been or shall be acquired by, or has or shall become vested in any board of chosen freeholders of any county in this state for public use, shall be graded, regulated, worked, repaired, maintained and kept up at the cost and expense of said county, and as the board of freeholders of said county shall order and direct, and the sum necessary therefor shall be fixed or appropriated by said board of chosen freeholders in the same manner as amounts to pay county expenses are now fixed or appropriated in said county, and it shall be lawful for said board of freeholders to raise said amount by taxation in the same manner as other county taxes are raised; provided, however, that in any county in this state where the custody, rule, keeping and charge of the jail of such county, and of the prisoners in such jail, has been or shall be assumed by the board of chosen freeholders of such county, it shall be lawful for such board to grade, regulate, work, repair, maintain and keep up such turnpike road and to put and keep at work thereon such prisoners detained in the county jail as may be lawfully required to work at hard labor, which prisoners may be taken from and returned to the custody of the warden or keeper of the county jail each day, under such rules and regulations as said board may prescribe; and an escape from the custody of the person in charge of such prisoners shall be deemed an escape from jail, and said board may employ such agents and provide such implements as may be needed for the purpose; provided, the wages of such agents be paid by the township or city where the work is done.

2. And be it enacted, That the supplements to an act entitled "An act concerning bridges and turnpikes," approved March twelfth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, which supplements were approved March fourteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, March fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty, and March twenty-fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 24, 1882.

CHAPTER CXXXIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act regulating proceedings in criminal cases" [Revision], approved March 27th, 1874.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That neither the entry of a nolle prosequi as to one or more defendants, who now are or hereafter may be jointly indicted with another or others for conspiracy, nor the discharge of such defendant or defendants, shall operate as a nolle prosequi, acquittal or discharge of such other defendant or defendants, but each indictment may be proceeded on as against him or them to trial and conviction; and this, whether the indictment charge his or their conspiracy as only with the defendant or defendants discharged, or as to whom a nolle prosequi may be entered as aforesaid, or otherwise.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 27, 1882.

DEMOCRACY.

The Democratic party differs from every other political organization that ever existed in this country because of its distinct and consistent avowal of principles.

It is not now and never was a party of mere expediency, trimming sails to catch the popular breeze, blowing hot and blowing cold to suit particular interests or to conciliate sectional prejudices, and freely entering into disreputable alliances for the attainment of success.

No such discredit attaches to the time honored name of Democracy.

Founded by the people for the protection and preservation of their dearly purchased and legally ordained rights, the Democratic party, throughout the entire history of the United States, has faithfully maintained its position, upholding the same banner of Constitutional loyalty at the North as at the South, in the East as in the West, during peace and during war.

For that noble devotion to principles and the truth our grand old party has been wantonly assailed and grossly misrepresented, but no political foe ever yet drove it and none will ever succeed in driving it from an uncompromising support of the Constitution and all the guarantees of that compact of freedom.

There shines the glory of Democracy and therein abides its permanent vitality.

For that reason the party of Democracy is to-day a mighty and increasing power in the land.

PUMP POLITICS.

Strange political issues now and then arise and give apparent cause for great local excitement, practically illustrating the adage of "a tempest in a teapot."

Many a country store and village bar-room have resounded with angry controversy regarding matters of infinitesimal account, and more than one election has hinged upon a question about as momentous as the valiant inquiry,—"Who struck Billy Patterson."

The recent municipal contest in Morristown is a case in point.

There sovereignty wrangled and divided over an old town pump.

A healthy thing to quarrel about.

The Democrats, notwithstanding the atrocious slander that they are exclusively the rum party, rallied to the defence of the old historic water dispensing pump, which many Republicans wanted removed and the well filled up.

The old pump gained the victory.

A citizens ticket, friendly to the pump, and composed largely of Democrats, was triumphantly elected.

Small affairs wield powerful influence in this world.

The Dey of Algiers once slightly tapped the French Consul on the cheek and thereby lost his throne and country!

The Republicans of Morristown by making war on a good old public pump were forced to abdicate in favor of Democracy.

Justice is herself.

Let thanks be given.

Order reigns in Warsaw—we mean Morristown.

Long live the pump!

IRELAND.

The Irish Repression bill, as introduced before the English House of Commons, appears to be the very embodiment of tyranny. Its character is justly portrayed by Mr. Cowen, member for Newcastle-on-Tyne, "as virtually amounting to one clause placing the lives, liberty and property of the Irish people in the hands of the Lord Lieutenant."

What has Ireland done to deserve the infamous treatment Poland received from Russia? Is England ambitious to wield the iron sceptre of Austria? Has she forgotten the teachings of history, and that this is the enlightened nineteenth century?

The recent assassination of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke in Dublin was the cowardly act of blood-thirsty desperadoes, who ought to be promptly arrested and made to forfeit their lives. There is no evidence that the people of Ireland are responsible for the murderous deed enacted in Phoenix Park, but abundant proof that they, in common with citizens of all other lands, deplore and condemn the outrage.

Like cruel assassinations have occurred outside of Ireland. The United States has had sad experience in that line. To subject the whole Irish nation to the merciless thumb-screws of autocratic oppression because of what has happened, is certainly vengeance without cause.

It is not the way to secure peace.

Granting to Ireland the right of local legislation, such Canada enjoys, and holding her responsible for the due enforcement of law, would be more in accordance with justice and the spirit of the age, to say nothing of mutual benefit.

PUBLIC DEBTS.

Statistics reveal the interesting fact, that of seven great national debts the proportion thereof to each inhabitant of the respective countries figures thus:

Spain	$142.
Great Britain	106.
France	103.
Italy	91.
Austria	49.
United States	42.
Russia	36.

That is a favorable showing for the United States, as her per capita of national indebtedness ranks next to the lowest and her resources for payment are certainly superior to all the other countries named.

There is another fact worthy of mention and that is this—Of the seven governments recited only two, Great Britain and the United States, are decreasing public obligations, the remaining five being largely on the increase. During the ten years ending with 1880 the decrease in the debt of Great Britain was one hundred and sixteen million dollars and in that of the United States three hundred and sixty million.

There is however a serious obstacle to general financial prosperity in this country caused by the enormous indebtedness of municipal governments, which, in New York for instance, amounts to $70 per capita of population. Put that fearful strain on the resources of the people in the way of liquidation, and forever prevent its enlargement, not only in New York, but in every other city, large or small, and the effect for good would be magical and permanent. To be clear of debt is to breathe the air of genuine freedom.

The temperance people of Hackettstown now run the local affairs of that town.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Another application was made to Chancellor Runyon on Saturday to order an election of Directors for the New Jersey Central Railroad. Messrs. Richey, Gowen and Bedle appeared on behalf of the applicants. Messrs. Williamson and McCarter represented the parties in opposition. Mr. Richey urged that the interests of the stockholders require an election. Mr. Gowen said that the interests of those outside the State, stockholders and others, required that there should be an election. Mr. Williamson said he was without instructions, but was willing to accept any order the Chancellor might make. Mr. McCarter argued that if the corporation was to be dealt with as solvent, the application for an order to hold an election should be made to the Supreme Court. Mr. Bedle insisted that the Chancellor has the power to make the order asked for. The Chancellor reserved decision, saying he would render one as soon as possible.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

The following are the appropriations for New Jersey in the River and Harbor bill just completed by the Committee of Commerce, and reported to Congress; Channel between Staten Island and New Jersey at Elizabethport, $40,000; Cheese Quakes Creeks, 15,000; Elizabeth river, 8,000; Matawan creek, 6,000; Manasquan river, 7,000; Passaic river improvement about Newark, 7,000; Rahway river, 7,000; Rancocas river, 10,000; Raritan river, 25,000; Raritan bay, 50,000; Cohansey creek, 5,000; Salem river, 1,500; Shrewsbury river, 30,000; South river, 10,000; Woodbridge creek, 5,000. In addition to the above amounts, the bill makes various appropriations for other States, the total footing up $10,500,000.

Richard H. Cornwell's Demurrer.

Richard H. Cornwell when called upon to plead in the United States Circuit Court Wednesday to the indictments charging him with embezzling the funds of the Fourth National Bank, and with altering the books, entered a demurrer asking that the case be dismissed, as the matters charged in the indictments are not sufficient in law and that he is not bound by the law of the land to answer.

Certain Republican newspapers in this State are attempting to get up a "boom" for Major Yard of Freehold, as a prospective candidate for Governor next Fall. While we have the highest regard for the Major and his fitness for so distinguished an honor, we respectfully suggest to the Republican press that they had better let the Democrats nominate their own candidate for Governor. They certainly will do that in Convention and the gentleman nominated then, whoever he may be, will certainly be elected.

The Directors of the Mechanics' National Bank of Newark began settling with the Depositors Tuesday on the basis of 75 per cent., according to the agreement. A large number of depositors were paid. Receiver Frelinghuysen paid a dividend of 10 per cent., making 55 per cent. that he has paid up to date, and the directors paid the other 20 per cent. Any future dividend the receiver may declare will be paid to the directors.

A marriage has been arranged between Princess Beatrice and the eldest son of the Landgrave of Hesse.

LOCAL ANNEX.

An Appeal to the Generous

The Plainfield Relief Association make an urgent appeal to its friends and patrons for funds to carry through the summer a few worthy beneficiaries who are entirely dependent for support from work received through the Association. The ladies are desirous of continuing the work of assisting the helpless and comforting the suffering, and feel confident that those who have so nobly contributed heretofore will come to their rescue in this time of need.

MRS. J. M. MYERS,
Treasurer.

An ex-Plainfielder's Enterprise.

From the South Florida Journal we clip the following in relation to a former resident of this city, which will be interesting reading to his many friends here:

"Mr. Henry Hand, of Longwood, Fla., has contracted with Messrs Thayer & Sauls, of Enterprise, for two years, to make brick for them at Lemon bluff, seven miles up the St. Johns. An excellent clay is found there, and brick that were made from it 10 years ago, and put into chimneys and foundations at Enterprise are as good as ever. Mr. Hand has gone north, and will bring back machinery with him with capacity for making 10,000 brick per day. He understands the business thoroughly, and says the clay will make a first-class brick."

Mr. Hand is now in this part of the country purchasing the necessary machinery with which to commence his new enterprise.

A Fortunate Escape.

A propos of the freaks of a recent thunder storm during which, as recorded in these columns at the time, lightning struck the residence of Mr. Jeremiah Bilyeu on Greenbrook road near Duer street, we re-publish the following from the Goshen, N. Y., Republican of the 3d inst:

"Mrs. Lydia L. Bilyeu has been for the past two weeks visiting her brother, D. K. Lynch, Esq., that well known surveyor and ex-Superintendent of the Orange County Poor. Her visit was timed very fortunately for her, as her dwelling was struck by lightning the night of the day she left home. The electric fluid passing down the wall back of her bed, tearing off plaster, etc. No doubt she would have been severely injured if not killed outright. Mrs. Bilyeu celebrated her 84th birthday anniversary at Mr. Lynch's on April 26th. She left for her home in Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday morning."

Baggage-Smashing Extraordinary.

Mr. Aaron V. Kline of this city, who is now connected as traveling salesman with the firm of VanDeventer & Horne, also well-known Plainfielders, had his baggage "smashed" recently in a most novel and entirely original manner. The Daily Democrat of Grand Rapids, Mich., thus narrates the circumstances:

"Last night about 10:30 a traveling man by the name of A. V. Kline, came into the city, arriving at the Union depot; leaving in charge of Ball's baggage wagon a valuable leather sample case to be taken to The Morton. The case not arriving with the other baggage it was sent for, but could not be found. Investigation disclosed the fact that the case had slid out of the end of the wagon, and had been dragged through the mud to the depot and back again by a chain attached to the wagon. The case and samples are ruined, and such carelessness on the part of the baggage man is hard to put up with."

Old Folk's Concert.

We are informed that the Park avenue Baptist Church propose to give, on June 1st next, an Old Folks' Concert, the same to take the place of the Annual Strawberry Festival of said Church, and that they have secured the services of Geo. W. Baldwin Esq., of Newark, well-known as "Father Baldwin," in connection with this kind of an entertainment, as Conductor, and the Home Musical Association Orchestra, (11 pieces) Prof. A. Barringer, Director, also of Newark, to give interest to the occasion. This Orchestra, we are assured, has gained a very favorable reputation in Newark, and the Aid Society of this church, who get up the Concert, are pleased that they will be the first to introduce this musical organization to a Plainfield audience. They will accompany the Chorus as well as perform separately and will remain after the Concert and render selections while the audience regale themselves with refreshments, which we are informed will be provided for all who desire them, at reasonable rates. For full particulars see advertisement next week.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department met in adjourned meeting at the house of Gazelle Engine Co., on Wednesday evening. Present—President Van Winkle and Messrs. Depew, Gillies, Jones and Flaig. The minutes of the previous meeting were dispensed with. The Secretary read the following resolutions presented by Mr. Morris, which were adopted:

Resolved, That the Assessor make his returns to this Board, Wednesday evening, June 7th, 1882.

Resolved, That the Treasurer give tax bills to every tax-payer, on or before June 27th, 1882, with notice of meeting of the Board of Appeals.

Resolved, That the Board of Appeals sit in the Council Chamber, between the hours of 4:30 and 6 o'clock p. m., of July 17th, 1882.

Resolved, That the Treasurer shall give public notices, dated July 19th, 1882, that fire taxes are then due and payable to himself, together with other information relating to said taxes as regards delinquents, as required by the Fire Department Charter.

The meeting then adjourned to one week from date at the same place, when the Board will visit the different houses of the Department on a tour of inspection as to what repairs &c., may be required.

A Committee from the Scotch Plains Fire Department, met the Plainfield Board on Wednesday evening at the close of the meeting of the latter, to decide upon the fire boundaries between the two districts.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Messrs. Gildersleeve and Kinney, judges in the pigeon-shooting match between Mr. Charles Macalester, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Edgar Murphy, of New York, have decided the shoot in favor of Mr. Macalester. The score at the end of the match stood Macalester 158 killed out of 200, to Murphy's 156. But as there was a question as to whether Mr. Macalester had a right to use the Ditmar powder under the Hurlingham rules, the judges reserved their decision until they could ascertain the fact by cable from the Hurlingham authorities. The answer received was that Ditmar powder could be used, and they promptly decided the match in favor of Mr. Macalester. It is understood that the friends of Mr. Murphy did, or will shortly, propose a series of matches in which they will back Mr. Murphy to shoot with Mr. Macalester for the best three out of five consecutive matches for $1,000 a side, at 100 birds each at thirty yards rise, for five consecutive days. As Mr. Murphy is confident that he can win in such a contest the match will no doubt be made to shoot either at Riverton or on the grounds of the New York Gun Club.

We notice that many of our State exchanges are re-producing an article published originally in the Trenton State Gazette, purporting to emanate from the pen of Mr. D. C. Allison, a Trenton lawyer, regarding the game laws of New Jersey, wherein it is stated that "ruffled" grouse cannot be shot or had in possession only between such and such a date. The "New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society," (whose headquarters are at Plainfield) undoubtedly are anxious to know what kind of a "bird" a "ruffled" grouse is, as in their correct published card of "open season" for game and fish in this State, no such "admile" is mentioned.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

I desire to ask through your columns why those parties contributing the articles referring to the proposed Water Works in this week's issue of the Central Times, did not sign their names in full beneath the articles, the same as the Water Company do in their article, so that the members of the Water Company may know and confer with them, giving information to them which they seem to stand in need of.

OBSERVER.

For "The Constitutionalist."

Our City's Great Need—Water Works.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

We are all well aware of the great importance of Pure Water, not only for household purposes, but for every purpose, and it is one of the signs that our city is improving and growing, when we see a body of enterprising citizens put their money into so good an object, of giving our city Pure Water and plenty of it.

It is an undertaking that few will venture to risk their money in; for, in nearly every other place the city has guaranteed to pay so much per year for use of the water, but in this case our city is so poor, that they do not propose and cannot guarantee one cent towards helping the company by taking the water, and, so far as the citizens (who have taken this matter up) are concerned, we are not so sanguine of success financially, however great the benefit may be to the city at large and her citizens.

We all know that the majority of citizens are in favor of the project, and are anxious for Pure Water to be introduced, still it is a by-word in this city that the people are very slow to take or make improvements, and many will not give up the old fashioned style of using pumps, no matter how disagreeable it is to hear, each evening, their pumps incessantly going, not taking the expense into consideration at all.

During the past year, one hundred or more families have put in Steam and Gas pumps, not taking in account the Windmills of which there are many now existing, and more to be put up, if we do not have some method soon for obtaining Pure Water. This all works against these enterprising citizens who propose to introduce the water.

Already we have heard the name of "Windmill Town," applied to our city. In the present style of wells, in cases where houses are built for renting purposes only, the plumbing is cheaply done, and the wells driven only to the first strata of water, say fourteen to eighteen feet below the surface; in this case there is great danger, for the surface water in almost all cases, is taken care of by this first strata and carried off, so any person whose well is only that distance, may be sure they are drinking surface water. Every well should be at least twenty-eight to thirty-five feet deep, and every cesspool, in a southerly direction from the well. Sixty feet distant from it would be safe. The council should pass an ordinance to that effect. By a system of Water Works there is no chance in this way of contaminating the water.

We understand that outside parties would not touch Plainfield to put in Water Works on account of its poor condition financially. The citizens at large are in favor of it, and we hope that our Council will take the matter in hand at once, and put the proposition that is now before them, into such shape as will be to the best interest of the city and allow this Company to proceed at once to do as they propose.

In this article we have not alluded to drouth or fires as it is not necessary, for we all understand how invaluable water, and a full supply of it, is, in such cases.

AN ORDINANCE

For the assessment of property and the collection of taxes within the City of Plainfield for the year 1882.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There shall be assessed, levied and collected by tax for the current expenses of the city for the year 1882 the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.)

Sec. 2. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the support of the city poor for the year 1882 the sum of Thirty-five Hundred Dollars ($3,500), at the same time and in the same manner as the said sum of Ten Thousand Dollars mentioned in section one of this ordinance is assessed, levied and collected.

Sec. 3. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the purposes of the Library Fund of the City of Plainfield for the year 1882 the sum of Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) at the same time and in like manner as the amount mentioned in section one of this ordinance is assessed, levied and collected, and the moneys when collected shall be held as provided in chapter 162, Laws of New Jersey for 1879.

Adopted May 8, 1882.
Approved May 9, 1882.
L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

The Premium Horse!

SPARTAN, JR.

SPARTAN, JR., is a bright bay, 16 hands, foaled May 2, 1877, of superb style and trotting action, perfectly gaited, with the finish and appearance of the highest type of the gentleman's roadster. He has won for himself a reputation which has no equal in the State. He has taken 3 first premiums in State and County; when four years old, in 1881, he took First State Special at Waverly Park of $100 over 19 competitors, of all ages, for best stallion standing in the State. Gentlemen wishing to raise stock, either for speed, road or coach will find the three combined in this promising young horse: also the best crosses that America or England can produce. Lovers of fine stock are invited to call and see this beautiful young horse.

PEDIGREE:

SPARTAN, JR., was sired by Spartan (record 2:24), grandsire Ethan Allen (record 2:15), never beaten in double harness.

Spartan, Jr.'s 1st dam was the noted mare Hattie, sired by Nelson, she took First State Special Prize at New Jersey State Agricultural Society in 1878 and 1879 of $100 each, best family of colts in the State. 2d dam by Fiddler, (record 20 miles in 59 min. 18 sec., never beaten), he by Monmouth Eclipse, son of American Eclipse. 3d dam by Bellfounder, son of Whalebone.

Spartan's dam was a thoroughbred running mare by Lexington; Ethan Allen's 1st dam by Vermont Hambletonian; 2d dam Parish Hambletonian; 3d dam by Long's Tornado, he by American Eclipse.

☞ Terms $30 to insure. Money to be paid when mare proves with foal. Will make the season of 1882 at the Stock Farm of R. & L. V. D. Shepherd, Bound Brook, N. J.

EDSALL & PRICE'S
WEEKLY BULLETIN.
GEO. L. VAN EMBURGH, Manager. Plainfield, N. J., May 19th. No. 2.

LADIES,
We offer you for One Week Only one of our BEST BLACK CASHMERES,
at the unheard of price of 69 cts, well worth 90 cts. Also something new in a
BLACK DAMASEE, At 69 Cts.
Equally as fine, cheap and beautiful, both intended to be sold as advertisement. Our loss will be the purchaser's gain. "A word to the wise, etc."
Our "Hobby" This Week,
Read "Chit Chat" below.

EDSALL'S CHIT CHAT.
Our hobby this week is laces.
As most of Chit Chat is written on the cars between Newark and Plainfield, don't wonder if it's a little joggy.
Laces have struck us hard. It's our hobby this week.
Van Amburgh and Van Emburgh are two quite different names, and quite as different persons, engaged in quite as different vocations.
"Mrs. B., 'do tell where you got that elegant cream spanish lace?'" "Why, Edsall & Price has lots of it, and it only costs thirty-five cents. It's worth a good deal more than that, I know."
Laces. Oh! those beautiful laces! It's our hobby this week.
Our esteemed friend, Van Arsdale, says the cherry trees have double blossoms this season, and there will be three cherries to each blossom. O! what a crop.
We can't refrain from mentioning those elegant laces. They are our hobby this week.
In our walk through the east part of town last week, we saw a black bird as big as your hat. At second thought it may not have been quite so large, say one quarter; but we are sure that our seventy-five cent three button kid is the biggest bargain offered anywhere.
We mention our hobby once more—those charming laces.
Don't forget to plant sun-flower seeds now, nor to buy one of our elegant brocade parasols, or stay in a few weeks you will be entirely behind the rainbow.
The reason why we can sell at such astonishing low prices is because we are jobbers as well as retailers. We buy our goods at very low figures and are willing to give our customers the benefit thereof.
Everybody must have a hobby. Ours is laces laces this week.
Undertakers are usually mournful subjects. This is not the case with A. M. Runyon, Esq. He takes a lot of fun agreeably. But don't let him get "his eye on you."
Talk of the town—our beautiful laces, black Spanish at 18 cts, worth 25 cts; another at 25 cts, worth 40 cts; another at 25 cts, the ladies say is worth 40; another at 47 cts, very cheap, &c.
Black Cashmere at 69 cts., is our leader.

EDSALL'S CHIT CHAT.
Yes, those laces, we don't want to forget them.
"Dear me, I never saw Miss B. look so pale." "Nor I, she's probably been out in the rain without an umbrella."—Exchange.
We congratulate our Mr. Van Emburgh on his lace purchases this week. The ladies are just wild over them. Our hobby you know.
Worth, the dressmaker, has a recipe for induced noses. It is a black and white striped silk dress, made plain, a great garnet bow under the chin and another in the hair.
The prices of those splendid laces are a surprise to the closest buyers.
Mrs. Van Emburgh, who has been on an extended western visit for the past [illegible], will return home in a few days, and so "Van" is happy.
The attack of "malaria" we had so bad last week has turned into the lace fever, and the symptoms are favorable for the greatest sensation in laces ever experienced in this city. Dr. Titsworth, our physician, thinks we will get through all right.
Hail, beautiful Killarney! bah! So say we of the ladies hemstitched linen H.D.K.F., we are selling at fifteen cents. It's an unheard of price for such a nice quality.
Laces are worn on everything. Our hobby this week.
Cooley's story of three remarkably smart little pigs, comically illustrated will interest the boys and girls. You can have the paper by calling at our store, free.
The ladies tell us that the black Spanish lace we sold last week for thirty-five cents, sold elsewhere for sixty. We have received a second lot.
Once more we want it distinctly understood that we have never shown such a splendid line of laces as now: Madras Point, Pall Mall, Point Gaze, Point D'Alencon, [illegible], Point De Colbert, Byzantine, etc., at prices that will stand comparison with the biggest houses in New York.
Mr. Van Amburg, our manager, is ransacking New York through to find bargains for our coming great bargain or summer opening sale. It will be announced soon.
The Black Damasee at 69 cts., is worth 90 cts.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

Warrants Redeemed.

Notice is hereby given that on and after June 24, 1882, the following Warrants on the City Treasurer will be redeemed at the First National Bank, in conformity with the provisions of the "Ordinance to provide that certain orders for the payment of money drawn upon the City Treasurer, shall bear interest," approved April 19, 1881, viz: all warrants beginning with and embraced between Number 2474 and Number 2553 inclusive. Interest on these Warrants will cease June 24, 1882, by order of the Common Council.

J. VAN WINKLE, City Treasurer.
Plainfield, N. J., May 1st, 1882.

PLAINFIELD needs an Opera House.

EVEN the Central Times says, "Hurrah for an Opera House!"

SPECIAL meeting of the Council on Monday evening, the 22d inst.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL Day will be celebrated by the scholars of the First Baptist church, on Sunday morning.

A MAN has invented a chair that can be adjusted to 800 different positions. It is designed for a boy to sit in when he goes to church.

PARASOLS are a bewilderment of lace, pinking, shirring and puffing. The girls are just content with all this even, but want flowers also.

THE late storm and Street Commissioner Mecker's workmen, have thoroughly cleaned and scraped Front street, during the past week.

THE average age of a hog is only fifteen years. This is consoling when we see a man spreading himself out over four seats in a railway car.

If a number of young men of Plainfield don't alter their ways, they will wake in the next world a well strung harp and a pair of golden slippers.

THERE are forty-two circuses travelling up and down the country this year, and it will keep church deacons who go just to see the animals in the menagerie, pretty busy keeping up with the procession.

THE Supreme Court has decided that a passenger who jumps from a moving train, and is injured, cannot recover damages, although the train had failed to stop at the station where he should be let off.

IF the proverb, "more rain more grass" means anything, farmers will have an immense crop this season. The first blue sky we have seen since Wednesday of last week showed itself Monday morning.

"WE are lonesome now and feel all broke up here in Flemington. Cause why: the four and forty school marms who were with us last week are gone from our mind like a beautiful dream."—Poor Rookie.

CIRCULARS enclosed in many of this week's issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST make known important facts emanating from D. Boehm & Bro., Dry Goods dealers. If you fail to see their circular, read their adv.

NEVER fold a gossamer water-proof inside out, it is the inside which should be kept free from soil of any kind. If you think this is superfluous advice, please observe the manner in which most of your acquaintances fold them.

ON Saturday the 27th inst. the scholars of the Industrial School will give an entertainment of their own, at which will be welcomed the community at large. In our next issue we will give fuller particulars of the affair and its nature.

A NEW and improved safety valve has been added to the locomotives on the Pennsylvania railroad which does away with the ear-splitting blow off when steam gets too high. The example is worthy of imitation by the Central R. R.

TO give additional dash to horse-radish, take two tablespoonsful each of made mustard and white sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, one gill of vinegar. Beat these together and pour over as much grated radish as it will moisten sufficiently.

THIS year's comet crop promises a better yield than that of 1881. The early variety has already sprouted in the northern heavens, and is expected to be in full bloom to the naked eye in the moonlight and the midnight of the middle of the present month.

DECORATION Day, which comes on Tuesday, May 30th, is a legal holiday. It is suggested that in addition to the usual floral tribute that a small flag placed on each soldier's grave would be a fitting testimonial and last much longer than the flowers.

AMONG our advertisements will be noticed that of Messrs Shepherd of Bound Brook, who announce that the celebrated premium stallion Spartan Jr., will make the season of 1882 at their stock farm. The horse's pedigree, speed record and valuable progeny, will recommend him to those desiring to raise fine stock.

OWING to the severe storm of Sunday last, the exercises that were arranged for the commemoration of Children's Day at the Crescent avenue church, were postponed until Sunday next. A rehearsal of the programme on Saturday evening, was a foretaste of the interest and entertainment the occasion will afford.

THE History of Union and Middlesex Counties, that is in course of publication by Messrs. Evarts & Peck of Philadelphia, will be issued about the early part of September. Prof. C. A. Leveredge of Dunellen, one of the historians engaged on the work, has finished in this vicinity and is now writing up New Brunswick.

NOTHING on earth possesses the charm for the average youngster like that of the circus procession, but for us—well, give us a Teachers' Institute in Flemington with four and forty ribbon fluttering "school marms" like those who graced our streets last week. That is the kind of a circus we like, by Jumbo.—Hunterdon Co. Democrat.

MESSRS. Ettall & Price announce in their "Weekly Bulletin," printed in this issue their "Hobby" for this week. As every body must have a hobby of some kind, we are willing that they shall enjoy theirs to their heart's content. Another installment of Interesting Chit-Chat is also published. Take it in; it don't cost you any more.

THAT firm of enterprising insurance agents, Messrs. J. C. Pope & Co., have added to their business ventures the furnishing of tickets for passage to Europe at reasonable rates by the Hamburg line of first-class steamers. Tickets may be obtained of Messrs. Pope & Co., for all points on the Continent, as well as drafts and bills of exchange.

REPORTS indicate that the peach crop in this State was not injured by the late frost to any extent. The peach trees in South Jersey are reported to be all right. Some orchards in Cumberland county are, to all appearances, in excellent bearing condition, the trees being full of blossoms. The same will hold good in Morris county so far as heard from.

CONGRESSMAN Harris has given notice that a competitive examination will be held in Belvidere on the 28th inst., to select a person for an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point. Candidates must be between seventeen and twenty-two years of age, and should send their name, address and name of parents to Mr. Harris at once.

ON Monday evening, upon answering our telephone call, we found ourselves in communication with Mr. C. A. Smith of Fanwood, who had just received a large shipment of field, garden and lawn fertilizers and desired to call the attention of our readers to the fact. A reference to his advertisement elsewhere, will show the variety he keeps in stock and which may be ordered by mail or telephone.

THE recent "unpleasantness" that had arisen between some of the members of St. Mary's R. C. church and the Rev. John P. Morris, will probably be settled satisfactorily to the former by the resignation of the latter. Father Morris is making arrangements preparatory to his departure from the field in which he has so long labored, and wherein he will leave behind many friends and admirers without as well as within his late parish.

THE New Jersey Branch—of which Miss Isabel Tweedy, of this city, is Secretary—of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, will meet at Elizabeth on Tuesday, the 30th inst. A morning service will be held at Christ's Church at 10 o'clock followed by lunch at St. John's Chapel at one o'clock. A business meeting will be held subsequently at the latter place; and at 7:30 p. m., in Christ's Church, a missionary meeting to which all are cordially invited.

AS a specimen of reportorial illiteracy, the following, emanating from the "Suburban Gossiper" of the N. Y. Star, is unparalleled:

The mystery attending the murder of a young Russian Jew near Plainfield is not yet solved. The District Attorney of Union County has instructed the Sheriff and police authorities [illegible] Messrs. [illegible] T. [illegible], Isaac W. [illegible], John W. [illegible], Thomas S. [illegible] and Frederick W. [illegible], all of whom are residents of Plainfield, and who have been drawn on the Grand Jury, have promised to do all in their power to assist the District Attorney in the matter.

ONE for an Opera House. That is if the cash cannot be raised, build one with a mortgage on it, rather than go any longer without. It will soon pay for itself.

SERVICES will be held in the Netherwood chapel next Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. A. B. Patton officiating. Preparations are making for the Second Anniversary of the Sunday School to be held on June 17th.

PECK is one of the oldest advertisers in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. He appreciates the benefit derived from printer's ink in informing the public each week of new novelties on sale at his handsome store. Look at his adv. this week.

ONE of the most attractive advertisements in our issue is that of Mr. M. M. Thorn, the popular insurance agent, whose rates of premiums are as attractive as his announcement. He also has the agency of some very fine residences for sale or to rent.

IN spite of rainy weather, VanAmburg, Frost & Stone's circus, menagerie, aquarium (?) and tribe of half-breed Indians, exhibited to a large attendance on Saturday afternoon and evening of last week. The show was of the usual kind and quite commendable, while the courtesy of its managers surpassed in good-nature any like experience we now recall.

THE Grand Jury has had, this term, a long sitting, extended by duties growing out of the defalcation in Rahway's Department of Water Works. Among other cases brought before it was that of a merchant of this city against a resident of Scotch Plains, the charge being an assault committed upon the occasion of a recent chicken auction in the latter town. The Jury found no ground for an indictment.

THE coroner's jury in the case of the pedler found murdered on Leland ave., recently, has rendered its verdict to the effect that the deceased was wilfully murdered by some person unknown. The inquest was held at Blatz's Hotel in North Plainfield during Thursday afternoon of last week, and an examination of a number of witnesses only served to substantiate the facts as already published by us.

A "PALE horse" with a pair of broken shafts attached, dashed through North and Park avenues on Friday last in such an enviable condition of freedom, as to impel like action on the part of another equine attached to a covered market-wagon in which was Mr. John Mair the gardener of Leland avenue. The instigator of the deed was captured on Somerset street by Mr. Wm. Freeze, while the other horse was gallantly stopped by Mr. James Farley as it was dashing up Park avenue, swaying the vehicle behind it from curb to curb and threatening any instant to throw Mr. Mair into the street with serious effect.

WE to-day publish for the benefit of our readers the usual Spring announcement of Messrs. Roberts & Co., the renowned clothiers of Newark. A perusal of their advertisement will show the generous offers they make and the advantages of style, fit and prices secured by those who purchase their clothing at the "Glass Front." This firm has recently fitted up the basement of its building as a sample show room, into which is brought a soft mellow light from the sidewalk above, that is the best we have ever known by which to select the goods desired. Don't fail to give the establishment a call.

THE Iron Steamboat Company will begin running its magnificent fleet of boats on Sunday, May 21st, and on the following Sunday. Decoration Day, May 30th, the regular daily time table of half-hour trips will go into effect for the Summer months. Pavilion Pier No. 1, and foot of Twenty third street, North River, will be the only piers at which the Iron steamboats will land in this city, and by a special contract these boats will be the only boats allowed to land at both the old and new Iron Piers at Coney Island. The fares for the round trip to Coney Island from New York will be 50 cents. The Company have had all their boats put in the most perfect order, refurnished and every convenience arranged for the comfort and safety of the passengers. The Iron Steamboat Company have entered into an arrangement with the Prospect Park and Coney Island Railroad Co., by which tickets will be good for a trip either on the boats or by rail.

Temperance.

A Gospel Temperance Meeting will be held in the room of Howell Division, 3d floor of White & Stelle's building, corner of Front street and Park avenue, on Sunday afternoon next, 21st inst., at 4:30 o'clock, and at the same hour and place on each following Sunday. All are invited to attend.

One Year Ago.

The offenses of R. W. Rarick, the principal of North Plainfield's Public School, became known to the community - - - - - Judge Hugh H. Bowne of this county, died at his residence in Clark Township - - - - - The Mayor issued his proclamation requiring the muzzling of all dogs - - - - - Mosquitoes.

Cheap Gas.

From rumors "in the air" the public may safely feel assured that at least one benefit is likely to accrue in the event of the establishment of a supply of water-gas from the proposed works of the new company. The directors of the source from which we at present are supplied with the luxury, are determined to submit to no competition, and will probably reduce the rate per thousand feet so low as to drive Astral, Home Light and all other oils from the Plainfield market. Like companies throughout the State, stand ready to support such a fight against the makers of water-gas wherever it may be necessary; and a cutting of rates must follow a policy of that sort, beneficial to the consumer, at least.

That New Truck.

On Thursday evening of last week, the new truck of the Zephyr H. & L. Co., was ordered out for trial under inspection of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department. Why darkness should have been chosen wherein to test apparatus—to the manipulation of which most of the truckmen were strangers—was not apparent; but the fact was evident that a most improper hour was chosen. By the pale glimmer of a few lanterns, and under the experienced direction of Foreman R. R. Davis, the 65 foot extension ladder was raised alongside of the north end of Messrs Scheplin, Baldwin & Tweedy's building at the corner of Front and Grove streets—that is, it was raised as high as defective attachments would allow. Much time was then spent in endeavoring to overcome the obstinancy of the apparatus, and the limbs and lives of the few members present were uselessly risked by a vain attempt in the dark to discover what was the matter. Upon at last lowering the ladder, an iron rod was found bent out of shape, and other metal work more or less broke up. The truck was then ordered "home," and the defective parts have been sent to their builder for restoration.

The Telephone.

The New Jersey Telephone Co., is steadily extending its lines through the city, and placing the very desirable and practicable advantage of instant communication by word of mouth with persons at a distance, within the service of subscribers thereto. So rapidly, in fact, is the scheme approaching completion, that Superintendent Charles Eberle has left the finishing touches in the hands of Manager Percy Ohl of this city and Constructor George Smith, who, with Inspector Leland Moore, are placing the 'phones in the offices and residences of the subscribers as speedily as possible. About 100 different places are now connected, and as the utility of the plan is being understood and appreciated, the list is growing each day. A short span in the City of Rahway remains uncompleted, as yet, but in a few days such will be crossed by the trunk line and direct intercourse with New York perfected. We may mention, just here, that a call to the General office for connection with No. 61, will place the subscriber in communication with THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office, and any business with us—except the payment of bills—may be transacted.

The Union Club.

The above is the title of a social organization, for gentlemen only, just formed in this city, with the following officers:

President—W. R. Potts.
Vice President—Mason W. Tyler.
Treasurer—Alexander Gilbert.
Secretary—W. E. Lowe.
Executive Committee—W. R. Potts, Henry P. Talmadge, John W. Murray, O. T. Waring, J. B. Dumont.
Committee on Admission—J. Evarts Tracy, W. D. Wadsworth, Alexander Gilbert, Charles Tweedy, Wm. Thompson.

The organization has leased the premises at the corner of Broadway and Ninth street, formerly the residence of J. W. Jones, Esq., and will proceed at once to furnish it with every appurtenance to insure comfort, elegance and social intercourse. No politics, restaurant or side-board will be permitted or allowed (at present) and the attractions of the Club will include merely pleasant association, billiards and other in-door games, lawn-tennis and other out-door games, and certain evening receptions each week set apart for the entertainment of the wives and lady friends of its members.

With the Heathen.

A large gathering assembled in the Chapel of the Crescent avenue church, on Tuesday evening last, ostensibly to spend a "half-hour with the heathen" as avowed, but really to sociably enjoy the remarkably interesting programme arranged and generously assist the cause of the Mission Band of the Presbyterian churches. The following was the order of entertainment set forth, and which separately and as a whole was unusually pleasing:

PIANO SOLO, - - - TANNHAUSER FANTASIE,
MISS FANNIE C. KETCHAM.
RECITATION, - - - JAMIE DOUGLASS,
MISS BERTIE THORNE.
VOCAL SOLO, - - - MIA PICCIRELLA!
MRS. J. E. MEYERS.
PIANO SOLO, - REVEIL DU LION (by request).
MISS GAVETT.
VOCAL SOLO, - - "THY SENTINEL AM I."
MR. D. E. TITSWORTH.
RECITATION, - - THE WITCH'S DAUGHTER,
MISS JULIA A. KETCHAM.
VOCAL DUETT, - - - COME WITH ME,
MRS. MYERS AND MR. TITSWORTH.

The first number, we need only state, was rendered by Miss Ketcham with her acknowledged ability and rare talent. The exceedingly difficult composition received at her hands (literally) a perfect interpretation, full of an appropriate expression that overcame all mechanical effects. Miss Thorne's recitation—as in the past—was very agreeably given, and remarkably satisfactory in one so young. She replied to an encore with "The Bachelor's Auction," also acceptably done. Mrs. Myers' vocal powers are too thoroughly appreciated to receive the praise that would be but a repetition of past criticism. A more gratifying selection might have been made but the music could not have been more effectively sung.

Mrs. Myers declining to respond to the enthusiastic recall that was accorded her, Dr. Bliss followed with introductory remarks preceding the entrance of "heathen" representatives from China and other abodes of the barbarous. The characters were ably impersonated and handsomely dressed—Miss Rachael Benton, Miss Gussie Murray and Miss Madge Sutphen looking especially attractive in their strange costumes. Miss Gavett succeeded this feature, by a repetition of her enjoyable piano performance of April 28th; and Mr. Titsworth followed with a solo that was decidedly praiseworthy.

Among even the many talented elocutionists that our city justly claims as its own, we doubt if Miss Julia Ketcham has an equal, and feel confident she has no superior. Although her selection on Tuesday evening called for no particular display of dramatic power or special form of speech, it was rendered—as is her invariable way—with appropriate effect. The programme closed with a pleasing duett in which the voices of Mrs. Myers and Mr. Titsworth blended harmoniously.

In the parlors below, refreshments were furnished which, following the advice of Dr. Bliss, the audience ate of like heathens and paid for like christians.

A Life Insurance Co., and its Agent.

According to a published prospectus, there was organized in this State, March 24th, 1870, The Readington Mutual Life Ins. Co., with the following officers: President—Wm. Hillard of Peapack; Treasurer—Peter G. Schomp of Readington; Secretary—Joseph Thompson, and Ass't Secretary—A. J. Thompson, both, also, of the latter place. The Directors are Messrs. Benj. F. Howey, Wm. A. McMurtry, A. J. Thompson, Joseph Thompson, Joseph H. Higgins, John V. Berkaw, Wm. Hilliard, Tunis V. M. Cox and Calvin Corle. Its General Agents are A. L. Scott of Metuchen and Curtis L. North of Jersey City. By the laudable efforts of the last named gentleman—a fine looking man of about 60 years of age, courteous in manner and showing by his conversation the possession of a fine education and clear intellect—to advance the interests of the Company in this city, it has received an unlimited amount of gratuitous advertising in printer's ink and by word of mouth.

Mr. North arrived in Plainfield on Tuesday with a professed introduction to the physicians here, from Dr. Henry Crater of Somerville. He called on City Physician H. H. Lowrie at about 2:30 o'clock p. m., and intimated his desire to appoint Mr. Lowrie the local medical examiner of the company. The Doctor was very agreeably impressed by the appearance and pleasant manner of the Agent and stated he would consider the proposition. Mr. North then, with a passing reference to the lateness of the hour, asked Dr. Lowrie if he would exchange checks with him for $25 that he might draw from the Plainfield bank the necessary cash for use before the next day. His request was granted and Dr. Lowrie was given a check on the First National Bank of Elizabeth. Thanking him for his courtesy, Mr. North proceeded to the First National Bank of Plainfield and drew the money on the Doctor's check. Meeting him later in the day, the Agent requested that his check should not be sent to Elizabeth for collection, as he would personally cash it the next day. Dr. Lowrie agreed to this also, but early Wednesday morning sought Mr. North and asked that the check be redeemed. He was promised the money in a few hours, but not feeling satisfied gave the check to Mr. D. J. Marshall, of the Grand Jury, who was on his way to Elizabeth, requesting him to present it at the bank on which it was drawn and telegraph whether it was good. About 10 o'clock a message was received from Elizabeth to the effect that it was a "fraud," whereupon Captain Dodd was notified and the accused subsequently arrested at the station as he was about leaving on the 10:37 train.

After being locked in the City Jail an examination was made of the contents of his pockets—a miscellaneous collection of returned drafts to the amount of many thousand dollars, was found, as well as check books of a number of banks throughout the State, and deposit books showing the credit of drafts left for collection in several National banks in Paterson, Elizabeth, Somerville, New Brunswick, Plainfield and elsewhere. A large number of cards of introduction, signed by prominent citizens of the above mentioned places, were also found—the printed form being as follows:

K........................
Allow me to introduce to you MR. C. L. NORTH, GENERAL AGENT OF THE READINGTON MUTUAL LIFE INS. CO. OF N. J. who desires this for business purposes. Commending the gentleman and his object to your courtesy, I am,
Yours Truly, ...

An application for insurance in the Company, signed by Dr. H. D. Burlingham of this city, was among the papers, and inquiry brought to light the fact that that gentleman had given his check for $20 to the agent to be forwarded with the application. This check had been cashed, and the money was found on Mr. North's person. There were also a number of letters dated Woodbury, N. J., and addressed "Dear Brother and Elder," acknowledging the receipt of a small sum of money as a gift, and reporting the progress of Christianity and certain specified prayer-meetings in that town. A telegraphic dispatch received by us from Mr. J. D. Carpenter, editor of the Gloucester Democrat of Woodbury, states that the prisoner was formerly of Verona and gained, therein, notoriety in the same way he was attaining it here.

Mr. North came to this city, once before, during last week, with a letter of introduction from the Secretary of the Home Insurance Co., of New York, to Cashier Joseph M. Myers of the City National Bank. He desired to open an account by the deposit of drafts for collection, but his offer was declined by Mr. Myers, who stated that the bank preferred to do very little business in the way of collection. Mr. North subsequently opened an account with the First National of Plainfield and deposited a draft for about $600. He has since drawn against it and the Bank will probably lose about $150 by the transaction.

The question arising, after the arrest, as to whether the accused was guilty of any offense for which he could be held to answer, Justice Wadsworth became convinced that no fraud, misrepresentation of facts, or false pretense had been committed. As to the check given Dr. Lowrie, the accused's deposit book of the First National Bank of Elizabeth showed a "cash" credit of $400, which, although probably meant as a record of a draft for collection, might validate the check. The money received from Dr. Burlingham was merely the advance premium on his application for a policy of insurance, and the agreement between himself and the Agent, which he held, was evidence of value received. As to the cash drawn from the First National Bank of this city, if the cashier chose to accept and pay checks against drafts not yet collected, no fraud is apparent on the part of the signer.

Mr. North was released Wednesday afternoon and his property returned to him. He then paid Dr. Lowrie $25 of his claim and promised the rest in a day or two. He announced his intention of devoting a few days to straightening out his financial affairs—which had become so complicated by unforseen events as to present an appearance directly contrary to the real facts of the case—after which he should return to Plainfield, settle any indebtedness that had arisen unexpectedly, and remain to advance the interests of the Company he represented. It really seems as though Mr. North is more unfortunate than guilty.

North Plainfield's New School House.

Pursuant to a resolution passed at a previous meeting, the inhabitants of North Plainfield met on Tuesday evening in the School House on Harmony street, to take action in relation to the appropriation of a sum of money for the purchase of ground and the erection of a more commodious, comfortable and convenient Public School Building. Mr. Charles Place occupied the chair and Mr. Isaac Brokaw acted as Secretary. After the reading of the call, a motion was carried to the effect that the amounts thought to be necessary for the different purposes of procuring a lot or lots, the erection of buildings and for the furniture, fences, &c., be taken up separately. It was then moved and seconded that the trustees be authorized to procure a suitable lot or lots for the erection thereon of the necessary buildings. Mr. Wm. E. Jones stated that the Thom's lot was centrally situated and very desirable, and that the Trustees had the refusal of it at $4,000 and the Wooden lot adjoining in the rear at $1,000. A motion that the Trustees be authorized to procure a lot or lots at a price not to exceed $5,000, was then carried—Mr. Stephen G. Horton voting in the negative. It was also resolved that the Trustees be empowered to erect thereon buildings, out-buildings, fences, &c., and expend for the purpose the sum of $17,000. Also to expend for furnishing the building or buildings the sum of $3,000. It was moved and seconded that the sum of $25,000 be assessed and collected to purchase a lot or lots, erect a building or buildings, fences, out-buildings, &c., and to furnish the same. Carried. Resolutions were offered by Mr. James McGee that the Trustees be authorized to issue bonds in denominations of $500 each, to run from one to twenty years at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. Amended by Mr. A. Berry, that the rate should not exceed five per cent. Remarks followed by Messrs. Munger, Berry, Cooley, Anthony, White, McGee and Gardner. The amendment was then lost and the original resolution carried.

Following are the resolutions as adopted at the meeting.

First. That the lots for school purposes recommended by the Trustees be purchased.

Second. That a school house, out-buildings and fences be erected thereon in accordance with the general plans reported by the Special Com. and approved on May 2d last, with such specifications and details as shall be approved by the Trustees.

Third. That for the purpose of securing the money needed to purchase the lot and to build and furnish the school-house, and build out-buildings and fences, the sum of $25,000 be raised by issuing bonds of the District, in the corporate name and under the corporate seal of the District, to be signed by the Trustees and attested by the Clerk thereof, in denominations of $500 each, to draw interest at a rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, and to be numbered from one to fifty inclusive, with coupons attached thereto, payable half yearly, and issued and made payable as follows, viz:

Fourth. That the Trustees of the school district be empowered to carry out the provisions of the foregoing resolutions.

We Wonder!

Whether the churches will hold the people that will flock to hear Rev. J. H. Vincent, on Sunday the 28th.

When there has been a larger private wedding in this city than that of Miss Gertrude McGee, on Wednesday of last week.

Whether there will ever be a more comfortable means of reaching Coney Island than by way of The Iron Steamboat Co's magnificent fleet.

Which Plainfield organization will arrange the first excursion to that paradise of picknickers—Glen Island.

Whether Plainfield's "stag" social club will attain a greater age than the like association that recently died for lack of support in Elizabeth.

Why it took the Coroner's jury so long to decide that the tin-pedler was murdered.

Whether the new truck is really built according to contract.

Who is still unconvinced of the fact that the telephonic service is a public benefit.

When Plainfield is to have an Opera House—if ever.

What is the reason so many attend the circuses, when they can see more for their money on the bill-boards and in the street "pageant."

Which will be the next Chess Club to experience defeat at the hands of the Plainfielders.

What has become of our quota of base-ball players.

Whether the Fire Board will appropriate the amount necessary to secure the striking of the Alarm Bell from the General Office of the Telephone Co.

What has been done with the money subscribed to fire a salute on the Fourth of July last.

Who will use oil when the competition between the old and new gas companies, cuts the rates of the "luxury" they manufacture.

Why the Council cannot pay to have the Town Clock put in striking order.

Whether it May is, or—more correctly—may be.

Why the majority of "workers" never fight the Devil at home in Summer, but always seek pastures by the sea-side.

Whether the establishment of a water service will help the cause of temperance in Plainfield.

Why we didn't wait a while before "hanging up" our ulster.

Which church society will inaugurate the ceremony of adorning its grave-yard with flowers on Decoration Day.

Why such a large percentage of taxes in past years remains unpaid, when the delinquents do not hesitate to avail themselves of the benefits others pay for. Is such action honorable?

Why other journals have to fill up with "dead advertisements", book notices and such, while our columns are over-crowded by the most liberal and cash-paying advertisers.

Whether the City will be any better off, financially, when the State and County quota becomes due in a few months, than it was a year ago.

Will the city not be, in fact, worse off; for there was a deficiency assessed in the last levy, but by paying what is not collected, all deficiency in this year wiped out and cannot be added to the State and County tax.

When that vacancy in the police "force" is to be filled by Lynch's successor.

Whether the Hotel Netherwood is really to be turned into a celluloid factory.

When that new comet is to be visible to the undressed eye.

What will be the result of the Central R. R. fight.

When we are to have the usual Spring change of time table.

Why unpaid city warrants will cease to draw interest after the ordinance providing they shall, is repealed.

Whether "Dear Brother and Elder," C. L. North, is a fraud or only the "victim" of circumstances.

What ice cream tastes like.

Who will be the next church member convicted of hypocrisy and fraud.

Who is to blame for the dumping of night-soil under the Richmond street bridge early Tuesday morning.

Whether the missionaries enjoy many such pleasant half-hours with the heathen, as we did on Tuesday evening.

When this city will increase its Public School accommodations after the praiseworthy example set by the North Plainfielders.

THE circus took considerable cash from the city and left behind the carcass of one of its horses that died on Sunday of pink-eye.

IT really seems ridiculous that we should have a "Town Clock" ready and willing to strike, yet merely needing the modus operandi—or words to that effect.

MR. John I. Holly, the well-known stock-grower of Middlesex County, and President of the Union and Middlesex Counties' Fair Association, has recently added some choice and expensive Jersey cattle to his already large herd of thoroughbreds.

THE Gloucester Reporter comes to us this week arrayed in a new dress, which is a decided improvement to its looks. We congratulate our contemporary upon its success.

Personalia.

Mr. H. P. Reynolds is so completely recovered from his late illness, as to again be out enjoying the bracing weather.

Mr. George Miller, a younger brother of the proprietor of Laing's Hotel, left this city on Wednesday of last week for Denver, Col., where he will spend the Summer.

Mr. A. Willis Anderson, son of Robert Anderson, Esq., of this city, was one of the members of the graduating class of the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons, at its annual commencement at Steinway Hall, on Monday evening.

The Rev J. H. Vincent, that great Sunday School worker and organizer of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, will visit this city—his old home—on Sunday 28th inst; preaching in the 1st Presbyterian church in the morning and the M. E. church in the evening, unless circumstances arise compelling a change of plan.

Mr. J. Newton Jenkins of this city, is extending his reputation as a capable mechanic, throughout the State. The Hunterdon County Democrat of last week, contains a most flattering notice of the successful performance of a piece of work by that gentleman, in the moving of the large brick stable and barn of the Union Hotel at Flemington.

Mr. N. Carman Dunn, of this city, for many years past in the employ of N. Goulds & Sons, dealers in stair rods, hardware and fancy brass goods, N. Y. city, has by the dissolution of the Philadelphia firm of N. Goulds Sons & Co., formed a co-partnership with Mr. Edward L. South, son of Dr. South, of this city, under the firm name of Dunn & South, and will continue the above named business at No. 5 North 6th street, Philadelphia.

The Rev. Thomas H. Stockton of the M. E. church, on Wednesday of last week, united in marriage Mr. Edward G. Ashbrook of Philadelphia and Miss Gertrude Annie McGee, daughter of James McGee, Esq., one of the most prominent and wealthy of North Plainfield's townsmen. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents on Willow avenue, followed by a reception whereat was assembled the best of the city's society as well as the select from other places.

The funeral of the late Joseph Staats was held at his late residence, corner of Emily and Duer streets, North Plainfield, on Monday afternoon last. The deceased's pastor, Rev. E. P. Ketcham, spoke at some length of the virtues and past life of him who had been called away, and the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes followed with an affecting prayer. The large attendance of representative citizens and their expressed sympathy upon the occasion, proved how enviable a place he had secured in the memory of the community.

Mr. John Shay, a well-known veteran fireman of this city and an exempt member of No. 2 Engine Co., died at his residence in North Plainfield, on Saturday last, of consumption, after a lingering illness. The funeral took place on Sunday from his house and St. Mary's Church, being attended by the deceased's fellow members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, No. 2 Engine Co., and firemen of other companies. During the passage of the funeral procession from the house to the church, the fire alarm bell tolled the age of the deceased.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The Young People's Lyceum, of the Methodist Church, held their semi-monthly meeting at the church parlors on Wednesday evening last. The exercises consisted of addresses, singing and speaking by the members of the Lyceum.

At the 71st Annual Commencement of the Medical Department of Columbia College, N. Y., held at Steinway Hall on Tuesday May 16th inst, the degree of Doctor of Medicine was conferred, among others, upon Frederick A. Kinch Jr., of our town. The father of F. A. Kinch Jr., is one of our oldest resident physicians.

The building of G. F. W. Witzke, corner of Broad and Elm streets, is slowly approaching completion the past week. The contractors, Messrs Sparkman and Seager, have been putting in the front show windows.

Horatio M. Clark has rented the dwelling of Robert French, corner of North Avenue and Elm street. Mr. Clark expects to occupy it the first of the month.

Mr. P. Traynor, one of our grocerymen, seeing the need in the near future for his fast increasing business, has purchased the property adjoining, consisting of two store buildings, which together with his present store will make as good a location for business purposes as there is in our town.

The Rev. Warren Hoagland, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, joined in the bonds of matrimony on Monday evening May 15th inst, Miss Ida Kilburn, of Jamaica, L. I., to Mr. M. E. Ogden, of No. 1000 Sixth avenue, New York. The parties arrived here early in the evening accompanied by some friends from the city. After the marriage ceremony the bride and groom returned to the city. The contracting parties had never met until last Sunday afternoon at a friend's in this city, the result was a carriage ride in Central park, and engaged to be married before night; a case of love at first sight. Both bride and groom are respectably connected and are both in good circumstances, the bride being an orphan and possessed of a goodly portion of this world's goods.

The outward appearance of the Westfield Hotel has been considerably improved the past week, it having been newly painted. Mr. Philmore, of Plainfield, had the contract.

Overseer of Road, Moffett, is still at work improving the side walks around our town. Hurry up Joe, and get at the roads, good roads and sidewalks is what we want to make our town attractive.

The death of Violet May Sanson, infant daughter of John W. and M. E. Sanson, residing at the corner of Broad street and Central avenue, occurred on Friday last. Her remains were taken to Greenwood cemetery on Sunday for interment in the family plot.

Annie O'Connor, wife of Henry O'Connor, died on Friday May 12th inst, after a lingering illness. Her burial occurred on Sunday. Interred at Plainfield, N. J.

A special meeting of Atlas Lodge No. —, of F. A. and A. M., of Westfield, was held in their Lodge rooms over Academy Hall, on Friday evening May 12th inst. There were a number of members of other Lodges present, among them D. D. G. M. Hamilton of Roselle and representatives from Lafayette Lodge of Rahway, Orient of Elizabeth, Bergen Point Lodge, Jersey City Lodge and Jerusalem Lodge of Plainfield. After the exercises in the Lodge room were over, they adjourned to the Westfield Hotel, at which place a bountiful collation had been provided for by Atlas Lodge; it was gotten up in fine style by our Hotel proprietors, Messrs Moore and Godshalk. All that were present went away satisfied that Messrs Moore and Godshalk know how to keep a Hotel.

Can you find any case of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Diabetes, or Liver Complaints that is curable that Hop Bitters has not or cannot cure? Ask your neighbors if they can.

CAN'T GET IT.

Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Kidney or Liver Complaints cannot be contracted by you or your family if Hop Bitters are used, and if you already have any of these diseases Hop Bitters is the only medicine that will positively cure you. Don't forget this, and don't get some puffed up stuff that will only harm you.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

HOW HE LOST HIS MEMORY.

He had asked the man in the seat behind him for a chew of fine-cut, and after stuffing half the contents of the box into his mouth, he had put the box itself into his pocket. When reminded of this he replied:

"Bless me—bless me! Why, so I did! Hope you won't take offense, sir, for I had entirely forgotten it. Dear me! I find fresh evidences every day that I am not what I used to be. I see that I am losing my memory."

"That's too bad," said the other. "How long have you been thus afflicted?"

"Exactly thirteen years ago to-day."

"Did some accident happen to you then?"

"Accident! Bless you, my dear sir, it was a terrible thing. I was hung by a mob."

"Is that so? I don't want to be impertinent, but I should really like to hear about it."

"Certainly—no impertinence about that. I was in Denver. My business there was to sell pianos and organs. One night I called at a house to see about the sale of a piano, and I found the lady murdered in the hall. While I was standing there, horror-struck and terrified, several parties came up, accused me of the deed, and in ten minutes a mob had a rope around my neck. I was dragged to a tree, given ten minutes to pray, and then pulled up."

"Hung by the neck?"

"Yes—a regular hangman's noose, and the end of the rope was made fast and I was left swinging."

"Great Scott! and—and—but you didn't die?"

"I dunno," softly answered the piano man. "I date my loss of memory from the minute they began pulling on the rope. Perhaps I was cut down and resuscitated—perhaps the corpse was taken out and buried. As I told you before, my memory has sadly failed me."

The other puzzled over, blew his nose, got red in the face and finally blurted out:

"Say mister, I believe you are a gigantic, consarned liar!"

"Like as not—like as not!" blandly replied the piano man. "When a man's memory begins to fail he may hit the truth or he may lie just as it happens. Have you any good chewing tobacco about you?"

A Dutchman, in giving an account of an attempt to find his boy, said: "I lose my boy, und ven I hunt for him I find him settin' on der curbstone. I tells him come home; he says he vont. He look at me, I look at him. I begin to cry. He feel very pad. I tole him to stand up. I put my arms aroun' his neck, and it vasn't him."

POSITIVELY CURED BY

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.

Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

Laws of New Jersey.

CHAPTER CCXXXIV.

An Act authorizing the township committees of any township in this state, [illegible]

[illegible]

Passed March 27, 1882.

CHAPTER CCXXXVI.

A Further Supplement to the act entitled "An act for the formation of borough governments," approved April fifth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight; and also an act to amend a supplement to said borough act, approved March fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That [illegible] entitled "A supplement to the act entitled 'An act for the formation of borough governments,'" approved April fifth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, which supplement was approved March fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, be and the same is hereby repealed.

2. And be it enacted, That section thirteen of the act to which this is a further supplement be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

13. And be it enacted, That the legal voters of the said borough, at each election for mayor and councilmen under this act, shall, by vote and upon the same ballot used in voting for the officers [illegible], designate an amount of money to be raised for borough purposes, not exceeding fifteen hundred dollars in any one year; and the sum of money designated upon the ballots having the greatest number of votes at any such election, shall be the sum to be raised by taxation for borough purposes, and the result shall be certified upon the minutes of said election, and the amount of money so voted shall be assessed and collected under the name of borough tax, by the same officers and at the same time and in the same manner as township taxes are or may hereafter be collected by law; provided, the same shall be assessed only upon the taxable property, real and personal, within the borough limits; and the moneys so raised shall be paid out by the township collector, upon the warrant of the council, signed by the mayor and attested by the borough clerk; and if any township collector, at the expiration of his term of office, shall have in his hands any balance of such moneys, he shall turn the same over to his successor in office; and township collectors shall be responsible, upon their official bonds as township collectors, for said moneys by them collected or received, and the assessors shall be entitled to receive three cents on each name upon their respective duplicates, for assessing such borough tax, and the township collector shall receive the sum of five cents on each name for collecting and accounting the same; and any person who shall think himself or herself aggrieved by any assessment or taxation made or levied under this act, he or she shall have the same remedy, by appeal or certiorari as in the case of township taxes.

3. And be it enacted, That the mayor and council of the several boroughs organized under said act shall, at least ten days previous to their annual election on the second Tuesday of March of each year, prepare for publication a report giving an itemized statement of all moneys by them received [illegible] and by taxation, during the preceding year, and the disbursements thereof; and they shall also name and recommend such sum or sums of money to be voted for and raised by tax, as in their judgment would be necessary to defray expenses of such borough for the ensuing year, which report shall be [illegible] by the [illegible], and shall [illegible] before, be accessible to the taxpayers of any such borough, and shall also be published in one or more newspapers within such borough limits.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 27, 1882.

CHAPTER CCXXXVII.

An Act relating to the compensation of members of the board of chosen freeholders.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That members of the board of chosen freeholders, in addition to the compensation now allowed by law, shall be entitled to receive the sum of three cents per mile for each and every mile they shall necessarily travel in going to and returning from, by the nearest route, the sessions of the board, provided, that this act shall not apply to counties having one hundred thousand population or over, or where they receive annual salaries.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 27, 1882.

CHAPTER CCXXXVIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning clerks of counties in this state" [Revision], approved April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and seventy-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all counties where the county clerks are now paid an annual salary, the deputy clerk shall receive the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, which shall be paid to said deputy clerk in quarterly payments by the collectors of said counties respectively.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 27, 1882.

CHAPTER CCXXXIX.

An act relative to the jurisdiction and practice of district courts in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act, the jurisdiction of each and every district court established by law in any city of this state, whether by general or special statute, shall be and the same is hereby extended to every suit of a civil nature at law, in which the debt, balance, damage, or other matter in dispute, does not exceed, exclusive of costs, the sum or value of three (3) hundred dollars; provided, that this act shall not be construed to extend to or embrace any suit or action where the title to lands and real estate shall come in question.

2. And be it enacted, That in all suits where the debt, balance, damages, or other matter in dispute, is claimed to be above or exceed the sum or value of two hundred dollars, exclusive of costs, that all writs of summons or attachment, warrant, execution, venire or other process, in any such suit or action, shall issue to the sheriff of the county wherein the city is located, in which any such district court is established, and shall be issued out of said courts and return thereto in like manner as writs out of the courts of common pleas in this state.

3. And be it enacted, That the pleadings to be filed in said districts courts, in any suit where the debt demanded, or damage claimed, actually exceeds the sum or value of two hundred dollars, shall be the same as those in the circuit courts of the several counties of this state, and the declaration in any such suit shall be filed within ten days after the return day named in the summons, and the plea or demurrer of the defendant shall be filed within ten days after the time limited for the filing of the plaintiff's declaration, and each succeeding pleading, until the cause is at issue, shall be filed within ten days after the time for pleading by the opposite party, and every cause when its issue shall be noticed for trial by the plaintiff at a day not more than ten nor less than five days from the last day of the time for filing the pleading that put the cause at issue, and the costs to be taxed in any such cause shall be the same to the attorney, court clerk and sheriff, as are taxable in the several inferior courts of common pleas in this state; provided, however, that in case the plaintiff shall upon the return day of the summons file his declaration and serve a copy thereof on the defendant or his attorney, that the defendant shall plead or demur thereto within ten days from the date of such service, and in default of the filing of a plea or demurrer by a defendant duly served with summons within the time limited, the plaintiff may appear at any day after such expiration and prove his cause ex parte in open court, and have judgment therein.

4. And be it enacted, That at any time hereafter in docketing any judgment from a district court, it shall only be necessary to file with the clerk of the court of common pleas, a statement signed by the clerk of the district court, under the seal of the court, which statement shall only be required to contain the name of the court, the names of the parties, the amount and date of judgment and date of issue and return of execution, if any, which, when filed with the clerk of the common pleas, shall have the same force and effect as a transcript of judgment from a district court now has by law; the fee to the clerk of the court of common pleas for filing said statement shall be two dollars, and to the clerk of the district court for certifying the same fifty cents.

5. And be it enacted, That it shall not be necessary before obtaining from the clerk of the district court the statement for docketing, that execution on the judgment shall issue out of and be returned unsatisfied into the district court, but that the same may be made and taken at any time after judgment in the district court, and be of the same force and effect as if execution had been issued and returned as now required by law; provided, that an affidavit of the plaintiff or his attorney shall be filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas with said statement, setting forth that said judgment about to be docketed is bona fide, and is still due and unpaid in whole or part.

6. And be it enacted, That each of the judges of the several district courts of this state shall have the same powers, jurisdiction and authority, upon petition for discovery in aid of execution, upon the return of any execution unsatisfied in whole or part into any of said district courts, to order the judgment debtor to appear before the court, or one of the supreme court commissioners of this state, and make discovery on oath concerning his property or things in action before said judge or commissioner; and upon the taking of the testimony by said judge, or the certification by the commissioner of the testimony taken by him under the order, to appoint a receiver of the property and things in action belonging or due to, or held in trust for such debtor, at the time of issuing the execution, or at any time afterward, as is now vested in or exercised by any of the judges of the inferior courts of common pleas of this state, and such receiver when appointed, shall have like power, authority and duties as receivers appointed under similar proceedings by any of said judges of the inferior courts of common pleas; provided, however, that no receiver appointed by any district court judge shall become vested with the title to or have the right to demand and receive any of the real property of any such judgment debtor.

7. And be it enacted, That upon any judgment for the plaintiff or defendant, or of non-suit in any district court in this state, where the real amount at issue between the parties exceeds in debt, demand or damage fifty dollars, the party in whose favor such judgment may be shall recover his witness fees for all witnesses actually subpœnaed or sworn, not exceeding five in any cause.

8. And be it enacted, That in any case where a jury shall be called by either of the parties to any cause in any district court in this state, in which the debt, damage, or other matter in dispute exceeds, exclusive of costs, the sum or value of two hundred dollars, the fee of each juror that serves in said cause shall be fifty cents per day, to be paid as now provided by law in other cases tried by jury in said courts.

9. And be it enacted, That the jurisdiction of said district courts in all suits or proceedings in said courts commenced by writs of attachment, shall be and the same is hereby extended to all debts or demands due from any non-resident or absconding debtor, where the amount of such debt or demand does not exceed, exclusive of costs, the sum of three hundred dollars.

10. And be it enacted, That in proceedings taken under this act for discovery in aid of execution, witnesses may be required to appear and testify concerning said matters by either party, by process of subpœna and testificandum issued out of said district court wherein the judgment shall be recorded, and the judge or commissioner may adjourn the examination from time to time at the instance of either party, as may be needful; and the refusal to obey any subpœna so issued shall be punished as in case of refusal to obey like subpœna in actions of debt tried in said court; the attorney, court, clerk, commissioner and witnesses shall be entitled to the same fees as for like services in the court of common pleas, which costs shall be recoverable as other costs in said district court, and when in favor of the plaintiff shall become a part of the judgment, and when in favor of the defendant execution may issue therefor.

11. And be it enacted, That when a warrant to take the body of any defendant shall issue out of any district court in this state, it shall be lawful for the defendant, upon the trial of said cause, to give testimony as to the truth of the affidavit or affidavits upon which the order for the warrant was made; and if it shall appear that the defendant was not in fact guilty of the fraud alleged, it shall be the duty of the court to so certify upon the record of the court, and to make order in said cause that no execution to take the body shall issue against the defendant if a judgment pass against him, and in case of such an order, only an execution against the goods and chattels of the defendant shall issue.

12. And be it enacted, That the jurisdiction of said district courts shall be extended to all suits by or against municipal corporations where the debt, balance, damage or other matter in dispute does not, exclusive of costs, exceed the sum or value of three hundred dollars; and that when any suit shall be instituted against any municipal corporation a copy of the summons, precept or such other legal process as may be issued against the said municipal corporation shall be left with the mayor or clerk thereof fifteen days at least before the time of appearance mentioned therein.

13. And be it enacted, That the final decision and determination of any district court in this state upon any suit where the debt, demand or damage in controversy exceeds the sum or value of two hundred dollars, may be removed to the supreme court of this state by certiorari, at the instance of either party thereto, for review by the supreme court, in the same manner as causes heard and determined in the inferior courts of common pleas of this state may be heard and reviewed; provided, however, that no reversal for error of law shall be made, or a new trial granted for the admission or rejection of evidence, or the refusal of the district judge to grant a new trial, unless exception to the ruling of the court below was taken at the trial and is presented to the court in a bill of exceptions, sealed by the judge; and provided further, that no certiorari shall be allowed until the plaintiff in certiorari shall, if he be the defendant below, enter into bond, to be approved by the justice of the supreme court, granting the writ, or a district court judge in double the amount of the judgment entered against him, to the plaintiff in the action, conditioned for the payment of the judgment and costs, and the costs of appeal in case the judgment of the district court be affirmed in the supreme court.

14. And be it enacted, That the judge of any district court in any city in this state may preside in and conduct the business of any other district court in any other city when requested so to do by the judge thereof, and the appointment of all district court judges now in office in any city is hereby validated and confirmed whether appointed under a general or special statute.

15. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 27, 1882.

Literary Notes.

In the North American Review for June, Senator W. B. Allison has a paper on "The Currency of the Future," in which he indicates the measures that will have to be taken by Congress for insuring a stable currency if the national debt has been extinguished. "A Memorandum at a venture," by Walt Whitman, is an explanation of his purpose and point of view in trenching upon topics not usually regarded as amenable to literary treatment. "Andover and Creed Subscription," by Rev. Dr. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, is a philosophical review of the present state of dogmatic belief in the churches. Hon. George F. Seward, late minister to China, in an article entitled "Mongolian Immigration," makes an argument against the proposed anti-Chinese legislation. Dr. John W. Dowling, Dean of the New York Homœopathic Medical College, comes to the defence of the Hahnemannic School of medicine, against a recent attack upon its principles and methods. O. B. Frothingham has a sympathetic article on Swedenborg. Not the least important paper is one entitled "Has Land a Value?" by Isaac L. Rice, it being a criticism of one of the fundamental postulates of Henry George's political economy. Finally, Charles F. Lepasser essays to prove that a "National Militia" is a constitutional impossibility.

ANTI MONOPOLY.

An observer of current events cannot fail to discover that capital in this country is earnestly seeking to create and uphold large and heartless monopolies.

That not only applies to incorporated companies of various kinds, but to monied individuals.

We hear the term "Money Kings" often boastingly used.

It is an expression anti-American.

Kings rule imperiously over subjects.

Freedom greets men as equals.

To crush out small and moderate business enterprises and efforts, so that the mercenary greed of financial power may have full sway, is clearly the intent of many at the present day, and nothing threatens more damage to the general welfare than that.

Crush out and destroy conveys infamy of purpose.

Build up and encourage bespeaks nobility of aim.

No country can permanently prosper under the crushing out process. It will make the very rich richer, but as surely augment the ranks of the poor and add severity to their misfortunes.

It is an undeniable truth, that wider the diffusion of honestly acquired property among the people, greater will be the aggregate of public wealth, safer private interests, and stronger the pillars of free government.

Freedom is a glorious heritage.

It means much, because it guarantees the unrestricted privilege and legal right of every person to acquire and enjoy the fruits of industry and labor, undeceived by favoritism and unawed by might.

It means that capital, however smally employed, shall be secure from the ravages of unprincipled combination.

To call a man free, and at the same time crush him to the earth by the wheels of avaricious tyranny, is heaping insult upon injury.

It is hypocrisy.

Equity of law and its faithful enforcement, together with unobstructed opportunities for each and every citizen to follow chosen vocation and realize just remuneration, is genuine American Freedom.

It needs guarding, and cost what it may, should be preserved intact.

Down with monopoly.

THE JERSEY CENTRAL ELECTION ORDERED.

Chancellor Runyon at Trenton on Monday last, delivered a long opinion on the petition for an election of directors for the Central New Jersey Railroad. He orders the books closed and an advertisement of twenty-one days to be made according to the by-laws. The present Board of Directors is allowed to appoint three inspectors and submit their names to him ten days before the election. He orders the receiver to make out the necessary list of stockholders after the close of the books, and to produce it with the stock and transfer books. He also orders the receiver to facilitate the action in any way he can. The time for the election has not been fixed. In the opinion the Chancellor reviews the history of the company, and says the amount of property now in the hands of the court will aggregate $50,000,000.

History has proven that Thomas Jefferson fully comprehended the rights of the people when he penned the Declaration of Independence. We cannot too often renew our allegiance to the fundamental doctrines so nobly advocated by him and a long line of party successors.

* * *

Nothing can drive back the increasing tide of political bribery and corruption, except the determined demand of a virtuous people for a return to the principles and methods of the earlier and better days of the Republic.

In the wide field of battle for the right, for the Constitution and honor of country, the Jeffersonian Democracy are standing bravely to their arms, and bearing aloft their time-honored banner of freedom and justice.

Fighting in defence of civil and religious liberty, the Democracy win great and substantial victories for the people when they hold in check the aggressions of their enemies.

The Game Laws.

As there seems to be a difference of opinion existing among the sportsmen of the State as to the exact wording of the Game laws in reference to the Woodcock, Ruffed Grouse, Quail and Rabbit, we republish the law regarding the same, trusting that our brethren of the press will copy it in their columns and every sportsman cut it out and paste in his "bonnet" for future reference:

CHAPTER CLXXIII.

An act to amend and to partially consolidate the several game laws of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act, no person shall kill, take, expose for sale, or have unlawfully in his or her possession, after the same has been killed, any woodcock, except only between the first day of July and the first day of August, and between the last day of September and the sixteenth day of December, in any year, under a penalty of fifteen dollars for each bird killed, taken, exposed for sale, or had in possession, contrary to the provisions of this section.

2. And be it enacted, That no person shall kill, take, expose for sale, or have unlawfully in his or her possession, after the same has been killed, any ruffed grouse (commonly called pheasant) or quail (sometimes called Virginia partridge), except only between the last day of October and the last day of December, in any year, or any rabbit between the last day of October and the first day of December, in any year, under a penalty of fifteen dollars for each rabbit, grouse or quail killed, taken, exposed for sale, or had in possession contrary to the provisions of this section.

3. And be it enacted, That the penalties imposed by this act may be sued for and recovered, with costs of suit, in an action of debt, by any person, before any judge of any city district court in, or justice of the peace of the county wherein such offence shall have been committed, or in any county wherein such offender may reside or be apprehended; two-thirds of such penalty money shall be for the benefit of the person prosecuting the same, and the remaining one-third shall be paid to the collector of the township wherein the offence shall have been committed, for the use of the township; and in case the defendant in any suit shall neglect or refuse to pay the amount recovered against him, or her, it shall be lawful for the judge or justice before whom judgment has been obtained, to issue his process against the body of the defendant, and he shall cause him to be committed to the jail of the county in which the offence was committed, until the judgment and costs are paid, the imprisonment, however, not to exceed sixty days from the date of such commitment.

4. And be it enacted, That all laws now existing, relative to the preservation of game treated of in this act, be and the same are, so far as the same are inconsistent with this act, but no further, hereby repealed.

5. And be it enacted, That this act shall be taken to be a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 24, 1881.

CURTIS L. NORTH.

Whereas, Curtis L. North, lately acting as an agent of the Hoddington Life Insurance Company, has been arrested for alleged fraudulent practices, the Directors deem it their duty to notify the public that said North is not authorized to do any business for the Company. No commission has ever issued from the Company to him. The Bond tendered by him was not considered sufficient to warrant it, and the Directors exercising their usual care refused to commission him. All policies issued to those who made application through his solicitation are valid and binding, and the Company will recognize applications that may have been forwarded, provided they in other respects comply with the rules of the Company.

THE LATEST SENSATION!

What next of Plainfield?—The True Facts Have Come to Light at Last—The Wedding Postponed—The Intended Bride Missing—Is She Dead or Alive?—Why the Authorities did not Interfere—Are They Guiltless?—What Sort of Policemen Have We?—Mayor Randolph should hold an Investigation at Once—Interesting Facts for the Public to Know—The Ladies Interested—Full Report Below.

For some time past there has been brewing in Plainfield a sensation which at last has been fully brought to light. People have been "Marrying and given in Marriage;" occasionally here and there weddings have been postponed, the intended bride reported missing, wild and sensational stories told of her death by suicide or otherwise. Conjectures dark and gloomy have been made; innocent parties have been implicated, and the peace of happy homes disturbed and brought into unfavorable repute. The authorities have tried in vain to ferret out the guilty parties—policemen have almost stumbled over the culprits without knowledge of their whereabouts, and the people have held them guilty in the matter. Mayor Randolph should hold an investigation at once, and show to the world the whole facts of the case. The public will not be satisfied with anything less. Let everything be made plain so that the community at large may have the full benefits of the results. Ladies of Plainfield are interested in this affair. Our wives, our daughters, our mothers, our grand mothers, our great-grand mothers, aye "and our sisters, our cousins and our aunts," must know it. Let there be nothing kept back—but to come direct to the matter itself. The fact is, Messrs Edsall & Price, the enterprising Dry and Fancy Goods dealers of this city, are the cause of all this sensation. They are actually selling goods so cheap, and attracting so much attention by the elegant displays of rich and beautiful goods, that people are drawn unconsciously to their establishment daily to secure the attractive bargains they offer in such great variety of style and designs, and the publication of like imaginary sensational reports as the above, does not stop the immense tide of trade that continues to flow in this direction. "And so mote it be."

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Charles McLaren, Sarah A. McLaren, James W. Raynor, Alice R. Raynor, Edgar F. Peck, John Tyler, executor of Leander Devoe, deceased, Alfred J. Cammeyer, George G. Nason and E. Elmore Callender.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Louis M. Noe and Sarah M. Noe, executors of Jonathan M. Noe, deceased, are complainants, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainants on or before the fourteenth day of July next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Melissa M. Bonnel to Nathaniel Bonnel, dated April twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and fifty-nine, and now held by the complainants on lands in the township of New Providence, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey; and you, Charles McLaren, are made a defendant because by the record it appears that you are owner of a portion of the mortgaged premises; and you, Sarah A. McLaren, are made defendant because as the wife of Charles McLaren you may claim some interest in the said premises; and you, James W. Raynor, are made defendant because by the record it appears that you are the owner of a part of the mortgaged premises; and you, Alice R. Raynor, are made defendant because as the wife of James W. Raynor you may claim some interest in the premises; and you, Edgar F. Peck, are made a defendant because it is alleged you claim to have or to have had some interest in the premises by purchase or otherwise; and you, John Tyler, executor of Leander Devoe, deceased, are made a defendant because you claim to hold a mortgage on part of the said premises; and you, Alfred J. Cammeyer and George G. Nason, are made defendants because you claim to hold a judgment against Mary J. Valentine; and you, E. Elmore Callender, are made a defendant because it is alleged you claim or have claimed some interest in said premises by purchase or otherwise.

Dated May 12th, 1882.

The Premium Horse!

SPARTAN, JR.
SPARTAN, JR., is a bright bay, 16 hands, foaled May 1, 1877, of superb style and trotting action, correctly gaited, with the finish and appearance of the highest type of the gentleman's roadster. He has won for himself a reputation which has no peer in the State. He has taken 8 first premiums in State and County; when four years old, in 1881, he took First Special at Waverly Park of $100, over 16 competitors, of all ages, for best stallion standing in the State. Gentlemen wishing to raise stock, either for speed, road or coach will find the three combined in this promising young horse. Also the best crossed that America or England can produce. Lovers of fine stock are invited to call and see this beautiful young horse.
PEDIGREE:
SPARTAN, JR., was sired by Spartan (record 2:24), grandsire Ethan Allen (record 2:15), never beaten in double harness.
Spartan, Jr.'s 1st dam was the noted mare Hattie, sired by Nelson, she took First State Special Prize at New Jersey State Agricultural Society in 1878 and 1879 of $100 each, best family of colts in the State, 2d dam by Flatbear, (record 27 miles in 59 min. 25 sec. under saddle), 3d by Mambrino Eclipse, son of American Eclipse, 4th dam by Belmont, son of Whalebone.
Spartan's dam was a thoroughbred running mare by Lexington; Ethan Allen's 1st dam by Vermont Hambletonian; 2d dam Patch Hambletonian; 3d dam by Long's Tornado, he by American Eclipse.
Terms $40 to insure. Money to be paid when mare proves with foal. Will make the season of 1882 at the Stock Farm of R. & L. V. D. Shepherd, Bound Brook, N. J.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

Warrants Redeemed.

Notice is hereby given that on and after June 3d, 1882, the following Warrants on the City Treasurer will be redeemed at the First National Bank, in conformity with the provisions of the "Ordinance to provide that certain orders for the payment of money drawn upon the City Treasurer, shall bear interest," approved April 19, 1881, viz: all warrants beginning with and embraced between Number 2474 and Number 2582 inclusive. Interest on these Warrants will cease June 24, 1882, by order of the Common Council.

J. VAN WINKLE, City Treasurer.
Plainfield, N. J., May 1st, 1882.

Ho! for an Opera House in Plainfield.

The country is clothed in its brightest robes just at present.

The fine weather brought out large congregations Sunday.

The latest sensation in Plainfield is published in our issue this week. It is a terrible affair.

The Telephone Co., announces that all subscribers will be connected by June 1st., and the service in working order throughout the city.

The N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., is putting up some of its naptha lamps, a new and improved burner that is really a very desirable attachment.

Chapter CXXV of the Laws of the late Legislature, published on the first page of our issue of to-day, will be interesting reading for our citizens.

The examination before the various County Superintendents for teachers' certificates, will be held in the usual places throughout the State on to-morrow, Saturday, May 27th.

Bachman, at No. 27 West Front street, announces this week a special sale of double-width cashmeres at an astonishingly low price. Also children's and ladies' dress plaids at 16 cents.

The Methodist Episcopal church is arranging for a sociable on Thursday evening of next week, which is to take the form of a "Pond Sociable." Much real enjoyment is justly anticipated.

There will be noticed in our advertising columns the announcement of a promised entertainment at the Park Avenue Baptist Church, that will be one of the most enjoyable affairs ever offered to the public.

Again we are pleased to present with this issue a supplement full of general reading of profit and interest. It shall be our universal practice to spare no expense that will be for the benefit of our subscribers.

Mr. David Leeson, undertaker, of No. 14 E. Front street, has had the front of his establishment handsomely painted in white and black. The contrast of color is very novel and presents a most striking appearance.

The "Merry 8" of this city, gave their Second Select Sociable at Cook's Opera House, Bound Brook, N. J., last (Thursday) evening. The Floor Manager was Mr. Wm. J. Douglass, and Prof. France conducted the music.

P. S. Berger, the great Patrick Henry of the day and Silver Tongue Orator of Somerset County, will lecture at Phillipsburg, N. J., Sunday next, at 4 p. m., on "The Terrible Handwriting that Belshazzer saw on the Wall."

The "Earnest Workers" of the Mount Olive Baptist Church, will hold a Fair in the church during the afternoons and evenings of Wednesday and Thursday next. The admission will be fifteen cents, and the proceeds will be devoted for the benefit of the church.

The few days of warmer weather that we experienced recently, were a foretaste of Summer, and started the merry soda-fountain on its usual mission of refreshing the parched throat of the community. H. P. Reynold's celebrated Root Beer was extensively consumed in consequence.

Ex-Corporation Counsel Kimball for the prosecution in the case of the City vs P. Day for selling liquor to minors, has given notice to the defendant's counsel, Geo. P. Suydam, Esq., that he shall move the case for trial this (Friday) morning, in the Council room, at 10 o'clock.

At the office of Mr. Alex. Titsworth, No. 41 West Front street, may be found a line of samples of the latest imported and domestic fabrics for Spring and Summer wear. Clothing made to order or ready made can thus be selected from a much larger stock than is shown by any other merchant in the trade.

We learn from Woodbury, N. J., that Curtis L. North has been conducting a church and colored congregation at that place for some time past, paying the entire expenses out of his (?) own pocket. In our advertising columns to-day will be noticed the opinion of the Readington Life Ins. Co., regarding its agent.

The two local nines, from our city's aristocracy, that are to compete in a game of base-ball on Tuesday, are practising daily and every prospect of an interesting contest is apparent. The game will be played on the old circus grounds; but, whether during the morning or afternoon is not yet decided.

Warren Hose Co's Picnic in course of preparation for next month, is to be conducted on the most extensive scale and with a complete disregard of expense.—The dancing platform will be the largest ever erected in this vicinity, and enormous calcium lights of varied colors have been engaged at an immense cost.

Mr. Eugene Laine, the Front street barber and hair-dresser, is to be commended for both his enterprise and his desire to accomodate the public. He has placed in his shop a telephone by means of which ladies desiring can summon him to their residences for any service in the line of hair-dressing or cutting.

The Homestead Fertilizers of Mr. S. Hudson, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, are the favorite chemical manures with gardeners who desire the very best dressing for their crops that can be procured. By addressing Mr. Hudson through the post office, you will receive a list of his various productions with directions as to how they should be used.

We publish among our new advertisements to-day, the announcement of the opening for the season of the famous Washington Rock House, under its new management. This summer resort is most desirably situated by reason of its dry air, beautiful scenery and other attractions; while its first-class accommodations and bountiful table are excelled nowhere in the State.

In the parlors of the Crescent avenue church, this evening, the Young People's Association will hold its closing sociable—concluding a series of enjoyable affairs, with a grand feast of mind and matter. The programme is to be an extensive one, ranging in variety from the field of chemistry to such physical pleasures as are imparted by a bountiful supply of coffee and ice-cream.

Justice of the Peace, Stephen O. Horton Esq., of North Plainfield, had his first case on Monday and committed the accused to Somerville. Captain Dodd made the arrest, finding his man on the farm of Mr. John Wilson, where he had been working for a few days. His name was Fred Kline and he was charged with stealing a small amount of money and some clothes from Mr. Nicholas Brower of Basking Ridge.

Ladies and housekeepers should not fail to attend the exhibition of Hecker's self-raising flour and baking powder at No. 53 West Front street, commencing Tuesday, June 6th, and continuing through the week. Bakers will be in attendance to mix and bake Cakes, Biscuits, Griddle Cakes, Muffins, etc., and to give instructions to all who are interested. Baked samples may be had free of charge, at all times during the exhibition, and samples of Perfect Baking Powder given away.

During Saturday afternoon of this week, there will be given at the Warren Mission Chapel in North Plainfield, an entertainment of interesting exercises by the pupils of the Industrial School connected with the Mission. The programme will include recitations and music by the scholars and the distribution of prizes for punctuality of attendance, diligence, etc; closing with the usual refreshments. The success of the School during the past season is highly creditable to Mrs. Frank H. Gardiner and her corps of persevering teachers.

We were so fortunate, on Monday evening of last week, as to attend a performance of the popular opera of "Patience" upon its rendition at Library Hall, Elizabeth, by the same company as will present it in Plainfield this evening. The solo parts and choruses were remarkably well done, while the dressing and acting were far above the average. Mr. Black as Grosvenor, and Miss Girard as Lady Jane equalled in ability any we have ever seen in their respective parts, while many of the other artists deserved great credit. The first—and may be only—opportunity of enjoying the opera in Plainfield, should be largely patronized this evening.

"Patience" at VanDeventer Hall, this (Friday) evening.

Among our advertisements this week, will be noticed the offer for sale of a full-blooded Guernsey bull calf, and a sound and kind road horse—both of which may be seen by applying to Mr. C. E. Austin, of Craig Place.

The very reasonable suggestions of Messrs. Depew and Thompson expressed at the Council meeting of Monday evening, concerning the compensation of the Deputy Tax Collector, were so pertinent that it is surprising that a plan of remuneration based upon their views was not adopted.

The contracts for the erection of the elegant residence to be built in this city for ex-Councilman O. T. Waring, have been awarded to Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown and Mr. Isaac Pangborn. The house is to be a model of comfort, convenience and good taste, after plans—we understand—drawn by Mr. Charles H. Smith, the talented architect of the Park Avenue Baptist Church.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department made a tour of the fire companies' houses on Wednesday evening, for the purpose of ascertaining what repairs were needed. At the regular meeting of the Board, June 7th, action will probably be taken towards strengthening the bell tower, putting a new front to No. 3 Engine Co's house and accomplishing other needed improvements.

Temperance.

The Sunday Gospel Temperance meetings will be continued in the room of Howell Division, promptly at 4:30 o'clock p. m. All are cordially invited to attend.

One Year Ago.

On the 24th inst, John Johnson the murderer of Samuel Williams, was sentenced at Elizabeth to 20 years imprisonment, the full extent of the law - - - - Dr. W. W. Coriell died suddenly of heart disease, at his residence in New Market, on the 25th inst - - - - Very wet weather for a week.

"Patience" in Plainfield.

The managers of that musical idyl "Patience" or "Bunthorne's Bride," like the managers of that dramatic idyl "Hazel Kirke," seem determined that all shall have the pleasure of hearing and seeing it. It will be good news to the lovers of good things to know that the opera will be splendidly rendered at Van Deventer Hall, this evening, by the Williams' Standard Patience Opera Company of New York, most of the artists of which are fresh from the great run of nearly 200 nights at the New York Standard Theatre.

A Summer Resort.

Mr. L. L. Compton, of No. 26 West Front street, has recently added to the conveniences of his establishment, an attractive comfort that has long been desired by our community in general and the fascinating young ladies of our city, in particular. Opening from the refreshment saloon in the rear, has recently been laid out a beautiful garden, the centre of which is bright green turf with beds of plants and large urns of blooming flowers. Surrounding this is a covered promenade along which are polished marble tables and comfortable chairs, where, after the heat of the day, the generous young man may invite his lady friends to partake of Compton's renowned ices and frozen cream, beneath the starry sky and within reach of the cooling breezes of evening. Everything is now ready to receive the patronage of the public and when the warmth of Summer reaches us, we feel assured that this attractive garden will be extensively favored.

Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association.

At a meeting of stockholders of this Association held on the day of the Annual Election of Directors, May 1st, 1882, it was decided to hold another meeting of Stockholders on Friday, June 2d, at 3 p. m., in the Exhibition Building, on the Grounds of the Association. The object of the meeting will be the discussion of the advisability of holding a Fair the coming Fall, and of the probable prospects of success in case one should be held. Owing to the large indebtedness of the Association, and the loss incurred at the Fair of last year, the Board of Directors feel desirous of having an expression of opinion on the subject from those interested in the matter; consequently it is hoped that there will be a large attendance at this meeting. A cordial invitation is also extended by the Board of Directors, on behalf of the Association, to all persons in Union and Middlesex Counties at all interested in the Fair, or in the welfare of the Association, whether as exhibitors, spectators or friends, to be present at the meeting and to join in the discussion.

The Resignation of Father Morris.

Since our last, announcing the retirement of the Rev. J. P. Morris from the charge of St. Mary's Parish, meetings have been held by the members of the church protesting against the resignation. On Monday a committee of between 50 and 60 of the congregation visited Bishop Wigger at Newark, and presented to him the resolutions passed at an indignation meeting held in St. Mary's Hall, Sunday night, requesting him to refuse to accept the resignation of the Rev. John P. Morris, who has been Pastor of the church for 13 years, on the ground that a change of Pastors would be disastrous to the welfare of the congregation. The resolutions were signed by about 700 members of the congregation. The Bishop expressed pleasure at the manifestation of the people's regard for their Pastor, but gave them very little ground for hope that their prayer would be granted, stating that the remonstrance came too late, as he had already selected a successor to Father Morris. According to the N. Y. World the Bishop said that Father Morris had been about six or seven years in Plainfield, and during that time had built a new church and house costing $50,000. He had paid $30,000 of the amount, besides paying the running expenses and furnishing the church and dwelling house. The Bishop remarked that the trouble arose from the action of a few dissatisfied persons who thought if they gave a dollar or two, everything must be paid for. He commended the action of Father Morris.

On Tuesday evening a meeting was held in St. Mary's Hall attended by a large number of parishioners, whereat a sum of money was contributed as a present to Father Morris. Much admiration and esteem was freely expressed for the retiring pastor, and the financial donations were many and liberally offered. On Sunday next, Rev. Father DeBerg of Avondale, who is reported as being assigned to take the vacant place, will occupy the pulpit of St. Mary's church and a statement of its affairs is then promised.

Meanwhile a publication of the sentiments of those who were instrumental in forcing Father Morris' resignation, is impatiently expected.

"Incog."

It has been with sincere pleasure that we have perused the score of a new operetta, of the prevailing style of musical comedy so fashionable at present, under the comprehensive title of "Incog"—an advance copy of which we have recently been favored with. And all the more has our appreciation of its great musical merit been a source of unusual satisfaction, by reason of the fact that its successful creation is due to the talent of an American composer. The libretto, we are compelled to say, is little worthy the honor of so close an association with a score so superior, but the latter by its excellence will completely resist any verdict of tameness that may be accorded the former and counteract the lack of original thought it may possess.

The composer of the music, Mr. Clark W. Evans, is a gentleman well known in our community as an accomplished performer and author of piano melodies. Although having but recently completed, in Germany, an extensive musical education, he in this new operetta, has boldly placed himself at the mercy of the World's critics and challenged the adverse judgment of that limitless band which cuts and slashes into the productions of all who may not enjoy the prestige of an established reputation. From such, Mr. Evans knows what to expect, while he may be assured of receiving indulgent praise at the hands of those who appreciate the fact that all the brains and talent apportioned by nature are not invested in any one, or twenty-one, professional composers. The author of the score to which we refer, has certainly created much in the way of enjoyable and perfect harmony. Not only is originality a notable feature of his work, but the consistent adaptation of the musical expression to the words of the libretto, is a rare and most commendable peculiarity. The variety of style, too, is unusual—ranging as it does from the pathos of the "Jubilee hymn" to the grandeur of a Wedding March. Many of the songs glide gracefully from common time into the delightful measure of the waltz, and the concerted pieces blend in a harmony most gratifying.

Had we the space, we would not confine ourselves to so general and limited a review of this charming operetta; but we sincerely trust that the public may soon be allowed an opportunity of enjoying its rendition by worthy artists, with the needed accessories of appropriate costumes, scenery and other stage effects.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, is required to hold a review and inspection of the Department, annually. Let it, this year, take the form of a public parade.

English doctors say that plants in sleeping rooms are unhealthy. French doctors say they produce sweet slumbers. American doctors don't say anything about it, but charge it in the bill.

CONSTANTINOPOLISCHERDUDELSACKPFEIFENMACHERGESELLENVEREIN can be had at Chas. Smith's saloon, Front street, between 10 and 12 o'clock a. m. and from 6 to 7 o'clock p. m., every day except Sunday.

We Wonder!

Where there is a better "Grosvenor" than Mr. J. W. Black who fills that part so ably with Williams' "Patience" Co.

Whether Plainfield is to have a Firemen's parade this Fall.

And a County Fair.

And a Money election.

And an Opera House.

Who wouldn't be a minister in charge of a generous flock, and be sent to Europe for "rest and recreation."

Why the Council postponed action on the petition of the Plainfield Water Co.

When the Fire Board will order another trial of the new Truck.

Whether the Committee that "waited upon the Bishop" really expected that Father Morris would be retained.

What will be the result of the chemical experiments at the Crescent avenue church sociable, this evening—apprehension merely, or worse?

Whether our merchants will all close their stores on Tuesday, and give their clerks the holiday they deserve.

Personalia.

The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond has been slightly ill, recently, from an attack of measles.

Miss Anna L. Borst and mother of North Plainfield, have left for a visit to their former home at Wellsboro, Pa.

Mr. R. J. Shaw, of this city, was recently elected a member of the Executive Committee of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Society.

We are glad to notice that our esteemed friend, Thomas Jennings, is once more able to ride out, after being confined to his bed for weeks from a broken leg.

Mrs. Samuel D. Frazee, of this city, started on Tuesday last for Montreal, Canada, in answer to a telegram announcing the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. F. Stillwell.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and Messrs Chas. Potter, Jr., and Geo. H. Babcock, will sail for Europe in a few weeks, intending to enjoy on the Old Continent a short Summer vacation.

Mrs. D. E. Davis, the talented organist of the M. E. church, is the author of one of the prettiest of the Anniversary hymns that are this year adopted by the Brooklyn Sunday School Union.

Freeholder Rowland M. Stover, upon taking his position as a member of the Union County Board, is honored by appointment as Chairman of two committees and a member of four.

We are indebted to State Comptroller E. J. Anderson, for a pamphlet copy of "Annual Statement of the Railroad and Canal Companies of the State of New Jersey," etc., just published.

The Rev. J. H. Vincent will preach next Sunday morning in the First Presbyterian church and in the evening in the Methodist. The Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church, during Sunday morning.

Miss Ella V. Thorn, the young artist of this city whose productions are so greatly admired, has started on a short trip intending to visit dear relations in Canada, Ohio and elsewhere. We unite with her many friends in wishing her a very pleasant journey.

Mr. Irving Daniel, Chairman of a Special Committee of the Deliber Society, is communicating with its members asking their co-operation in bringing to a successful accomplishment a Re-union Dinner, at the Park House, during the latter part of June.

Mr. F. A. Dunham, of this city, who is now connected with the Mexican C. R. R. Co., at Tampico, is visiting Plainfield in search of the good health that he had always enjoyed when here. The fevers of his new residence have somewhat effected his constitution, but a steady recovery in the pure air of his old home, is daily apparent.

A few personal friends of Mrs Van Arsdale met at the TenEyck House Monday evening to congratulate "Chris." and help him celebrate his fiftieth birthday. The party enjoyed themselves with wine, wit and song until a late hour, when, after wishing their host many happy returns of the day, departed for their homes satisfied that they left at the "brick" a congenial and happy couple.—Somerville Messenger.

A Worthy Project.

The following address and reply thereto, explains completely a project that will receive the public's entire endorsement:

To the Directors of the Plainfield Public Library:

GENTLEMEN:

The late Dr. Charles H. Stillman is without any proper memorial in our midst. He is the Father of our School system and was always foremost in promoting the educational interests of Plainfield. Would it not be a proper tribute of respect to his memory for his friends and the citizens of Plainfield, in connection of your new enterprise of a public Library, to erect a proper Library building and call it the "Stillman Memorial?" The expense would not be great. If located in the vicinity of the High School, it would make a fitting adjunct in education to the public schools of our city; and we believe that there are large numbers of our fellow citizens who would delight to contribute something to perpetuate Dr. Stillman's name and fame in this way. If your Board will call a public meeting to consider the suggestion, something may be done in advancement of your enterprise, which will also worthily commemorate a good man's work. (Signed) L. V. F. Randolph, John W. Murray, A. Gilbert, Fred H. Gibbens, W. Rockwill Potts, J. Kirkner, Nathan Harper, D. J. Yerkes, C. Potter, Jr., A. H. Lewis, K. P. Ketcham, John G. Bites, Joseph W. Yates, John H. Evans, L. W. Rushmore, J. Evarts Tracy.

In response to the above, and heartily according the suggestion, the Trustees of the Plainfield Library ask the friends of our honored and lamented late fellow citizen, Dr. Charles H. Stillman, to meet at Assembly Hall, Monday evening, May 29th, at 8 o'clock, to consider the best plan, as well as ways and means of providing a suitable memorial to one who has done so much for this city. Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent and others will be present to address the meeting.

Plainfield, May 22d, 1882.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The penalty for killing any insectivorous bird, or taking or destroying the eggs of such birds, is $5 for each offence. The penalty for trapping or snaring any game bird at any time or place, either on one's own property or on that of another, is $15 for each and every offence.

The work of stocking the upper waters of the Hudson river with salmon is being pushed by the United States Fish Commissioners. Already nearly 100,000 fry have been liberated in the streams which flow into the Hudson, and in a few years the streams in the Adirondack region will no doubt furnish glorious sport to the disciples of the rod and line.

The American Angler is the only paper published in the United States devoted entirely to fishing. Its pages are filled with interesting reading matter relating to fish, by experienced and well-known writers. The Angler fills a want long needed by the lovers and disciples of Isaak Walton. Wm. C. Harris is editor and manager. 12 and 15 Park Row, N. Y. city.

The entries for the Spring trotting meeting at Waverly, on the 30th inst., closed on the 15th with an array of horses unparalleled in the history of the track. There has appeared at no time upon any course in New Jersey horses with such a reputation for speed as are entered in the free-for-all for this meeting. They are as follows:

Free-for-all—Joseph H. Chandler's ch. m. Helene; G. M. McAllister's ch. g. Josephus; G. Smith's ch. g. Peralto; W. D. Lewis' blk. g. Bessex; Isaac Pauling's br. g. Ridgewood; J. Russell's Nelly Irwin; J. W. Driscoll's blk. g. Parole; Traxton Williams' br. m. Hattie; Chas. Williams' City Boy.

Double Team—F. Sanford Ross' Adeline R. and Augustus; G. Smith's Albright and Billy Button; J. Kloss's Max and Mate; Isaac Pauling's Flora Windsor and Glen Isle; M. Reed's Harvey and Windham; James Sampson's Brown Billy and Charley C.

Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EVENING, May 22d, 1882.

The Council met in Special meeting at 8 o'clock p. m., by call of the President.

Present—President Rushmore and Messrs. Depew, Gardner, Ginna, Kaufman, Lindsley, Newhall, J. Simpson R. Simpson and Thompson—10.

Absent—Mr. Livingston.

The clerk read the call, dated May 17th, and setting forth the business to be transacted, viz: to take action on the bond of Deputy Tax-Collector Wm. N. Pangborn and to fix the compensation of such officer. To direct the issuing of warrants by the City Judge against delinquent tax-payers. To receive the report of the Committee appointed to examine the books of the late Collector of taxes. To act upon the report of the Com., on Fire, Water & Lamps, on the petitions of the Plainfield Water Co., and the Water-Gas Co., and to act upon such petitions for licenses under the Hack Ordinance, as may be presented.

Mr. Ginna presented the bond of Deputy Collector Pangborn in the sum of $1,000, examined and approved by the Com., on Laws and Ordinances.

On motion of Mr. Ginna, seconded by Mr. Thompson, the bond was accepted; all present voting aye.

It was moved by Mr. Kaufman, seconded by Mr. Depew, that the question of compensation for the above officer, be referred to the Sal's Com. Carried, all aye.

The Ordinance repealing "An Ordinance to provide that certain orders for the payment of money drawn upon the City Treasurer, shall bear interest," was, on motion, given its third reading and placed on its final passage.

Ordinance approved, all aye.

Mr. Ginna moved to adopt a series of resolutions as follows: directing the City Judge to issue to Deputy-Collector Wm. N. Pangborn, pluries warrants for the collection of such City, Poor and School taxes of the year 1880, as now remain uncollected;

To issue alias warrants for such taxes of the same description, as remain uncollected of the year 1881;

To issue a warrant for the collection of State, State School and County taxes of 1880 and 1881 as soon as the same can be prepared; and Directing the City Clerk to furnish the City Judge with copies of all resolutions that have previously been adopted, in relation to the above.

Each resolution was take up separately, seconded by Mr. Depew, and adopted; all aye.

Mr. Ginna, from the Select Committee to examine the books of ex-Collector L. E. Clark, stated his readiness to report, but at the request of the Treasurer of the Board of Education—who was about making an examination in the same relation—desired to withold the report of the Committee until the next regular meeting of the Council.

Mr. Thompson, from Com., on Fire, Water and Lamps, reported its desire to delay action on the petition of the Plainfield Water Co., until the regular meeting of June 5th.

On the Water-Gas Co's petition, the Committee reported favorably and recommended that the Com., on Laws be directed to draw up the proper ordinance in relation to the privileges granted, in accordance with the laws of the State governing such. The report was signed by the entire Committee.

On motion of Mr. Depew, seconded by Mr. Newhall, the report was accepted and the recommendation adopted; all aye.

Mr. Newhall, from the License Com., reported favorably upon the application of Mr. D. Summers for a license as expressman.

Application granted; all aye.

The Clerk read the applications of the following for sundry licenses as pedlers, hackmen, expressmen, truckmen and cartmen: Isaac Oldman, J. E. Titsworth, E. B. Titsworth, George Belcher, John Coleman, Richard Coleman, Albert Hedden, P. T. Keely, P. Hoagland, T. J. Carey, E. Wurtman, P. Voorhis and L. Stewart.

Ref'd to License Com., which subsequently reported in favor of all and recommended that the applications be granted.

Each license was take separately, and granted by the affirmative votes of Messrs Depew, Gardner, R. Simpson and Thompson. Other members present, not voting.

Mr. Lindsley from the Sal's Com., moved for adoption a resolution fixing the compensation of Deputy-Collector Pangborn at 5 per cent., on the aggregate amount of taxes so collected.

Seconded by Mr. Ginna.

Mr. Depew asked on what amount, so collected, the Committee based the 5 per cent., compensation.

Mr. Lindsley replied that the total of back taxes was nearly $40,000, of which probably not one-half could be collected.

Mr. J Simpson thought the compensation large, and Mr. Newhall agreed with him; but the latter considered that for that very reason there would be an incentive to impel the collection of the delinquent taxes.

Mr. Thompson thought the compensation should be so much for each and every amount; otherwise the Collector would shirk the small and troublesome delinquencies and press only the larger ones.

Mr. Depew spoke in support of the latter theory, but the resolution was subsequently adopted; all voting in the affirmative.

The meeting then adjourned.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The proprietors of the Hotel have made a decided improvement in front of the building, in placing grass sods along the walk.

Horace Miller, son of Ann Miller, residing on Central avenue, is on a visit to his mother, he being in business in Baltimore.

Dr. Mary F. Newgeon delivered a lecture in Lyceum Hall, on Tuesday evening, May 23d inst., to ladies only, admission free. There was a fair attendance.

The new house in process of construction on North avenue, by John N. Wilcox, builder, for Theodore Hetfield, is rapidly approaching completion and will soon be ready for the mason.

There was quite an exciting time at West End on Saturday evening last, it being the occasion of a marriage. Plenty of lager having been provided for visitors, which ended in considerable of a row.

John Fogarty, hostler for Albert A. Drake Esq., residing on Westfield Ave., was kicked by one of Mr. Drake's horses on Sunday last. The injury was to his arm, the cork of the shoe striking one of the muscles of the arm, injuring it severely.

Matthias Clark, residing on Broad St., adjoining the M. E. Church, has made a fine improvement around his residence and along the walk, in grading and terracing the same. It was done under the supervision of one of our florist's, W. B. Woodruff.

James Boyden, a former resident of our town and now residing at Pamrapo, N. J., was at our place on Tuesday last, and returning home in the evening was taken suddenly ill. On Wednesday morning his parents, who reside at Westfield, received a telegram that he was lying very low.

Wm. Butterworth, who was arrested on the 2d of May in Newark, N. J., having in his possession a number of articles of ladies' clothing, which he had stolen from his employer, Mr. George S. Murfey, and who had plead guilty to an indictment for larceny, was sentenced by Judge McCormack on Saturday last, to three months confinement in the County Jail.

On Friday evening, Mr. Cumont, residing on North avenue, near the township line of Cranford, appeared before Justice Jaques and made complaint against Margaret Ratchford for assault and battery upon his two sons. Constable Marsh arrested Mrs. Ratchford and took her before Justice Mendell of Cranford, who committed her in default of bail, to the tender care of Warden Cahill at the County Jail, to await trial before the Court of Quarter Sessions.

The case of Edward Johnson, infant, vs Squire Radley, which was tried at the present term of Union County courts, before His Honor, Judge Vansyckle and a jury, and resulted in a verdict by the jury of $2,000 damages against Radley, after which Frank Bergen Esq., attorney for Radley, made a motion for a new trial on the ground of excessive damages, was settled by the attorneys and parties interested on Tuesday last. William G. Peckham Esq., attorney for Johnson, and Mr. Bergen, attorney for Radley, appearing before Judge Vansyckle, and he confirmed the settlement, which is that Radley pay Johnson $500 and costs of court.

On Saturday morning last, Morris K. White, residing on Broad street, appeared before Justice Jaques and made complaint against Wm. Jones, Lewis Peterson and Wallace Mulford, under the disorderly conduct act, for calling him (White) offensive names and annoying him while at his work. The warrants were issued and placed in the hands of Officer Marsh, who arrested the parties on Saturday evening and brought them before the Justice, who after the examination of a number of witnesses and the defendants themselves, decided to fine them instead of sending them to the County Jail, this being the first complaint that has been made against them.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

ANSWER THIS.

Can you find any case of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Diabetes, or Liver Complaints that is curable that Hop Bitters has not or cannot cure? Ask your neighbors if they can.

CAN'T GET IT.

Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Kidney or Liver Complaints cannot be contracted by you or your family if Hop Bitters are used, and if you already have any of these diseases Hop Bitters is the only medicine that will positively cure you. Don't forget this, and don't get some puffed up stuff that will only harm you.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

COMMUNICATIONS

From the County Physician presenting his supplementary report, showing the total number of deaths during the year requiring official notice to be 93; total amount expended for all purposes, $622.84.

On motion of Freeholder Hubbard received and placed on file.

The Warden of the Jail presented his annual report.

We herewith submit the annual report of the Warden, giving a detailed account of the expenditures and prisoners, which we commend to your perusal.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

PETER ELLER,
J. F. HUBBARD,
THOMAS FORSYTH,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 9, 1882.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Committee on Miscellaneous Accounts, Agreements, etc.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Miscellaneous Accounts beg leave to report that no agreements have been made having more than one year to run; the insurances on buildings have been renewed and will expire in October next.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

OWEN SULLIVAN,
SAMUEL C. SMITH,
PETER ELLER,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 9th, 1882.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Committee on Stationery.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Stationery would respectfully report that the amount expended on stationery account for the year is $1,866.86, which is for stationery and account books, and books of record for the Courts, Sheriff, Surrogate, Jail Warden, County Clerk and Board.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. M. OLIVER,
WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
GEORGE W. DOTY,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 9, 1882.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Committee on Public Buildings:

To the Union County Board of Freeholders County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Public Buildings beg leave to report that there has been expended on the building and in the offices of the county during the year, the sum of $3,957.09, which includes $1,339 for fuel, water and gas; also, three safes in the Freeholders rooms, $450; and repairs in the Grand Jury room, desk in Warden's office, &c. There is now much needed—a new floor to the jail. We would also recommend for consideration by the next Board, the matter of enlarging the Surrogate's office by the addition of room in the rear of same, making half of said room a fire-proof for the records of the office.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

On motion received and ordered on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

From Committee on Discharge of Prisoners.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your committee on discharge of prisoners would respectfully report that they have held meetings during the year for the purpose of releasing prisoners from the jail whenever the same were necessary.

Thirty-three (33) have been discharged by us, and we have allowed to each one of them the number of days the law allows for good behavior when the Warden has recommended the same.

Respectfully submitted,

PETER ELLER,
SAMUEL C. SMITH,
CORNELIUS A. RUNKLE,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 9th, 1882.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Committee on Jail Inspection.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—

Your Committee on Jail inspection would respectfully report that the amount expended for the past year is $4,260.20, which includes supplies of all kinds, salaries and medical attendance.

The general health of the jail has been good, and the discipline all that could be desired. The fixtures, furniture, &c., are in as good order as wear and use will permit.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. H. BRIANT,
GEORGE W. DOTY,
WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
Committee.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Publication Committee.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Publication beg leave to report that there has been expended by your committee the past year for publication and printing the sum of $1,773.15, which includes the printing of the County Collector's report in the last Board in eight newspapers of the county.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CORNELIUS A. RUNKLE,
OWEN SULLIVAN,
E. S. E. NEWBURY,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 9, 1882.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Lunacy Committee.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee on Lunacy would respectfully report that for maintaining the indigent and pauper insane of the county of Union for the year ending May 15, 1882, has been expended $17,204.55, less amounts paid the county by friends of three inmates, aggregating $84, which leaves the net cost for the year $17,120.55.

The number of inmates now in the institution chargeable to the county is 30; eight have died during the year, one has been discharged, and two have leave of absence to visit friends. Nine have been admitted during the year.

Your Committee have visited the Asylum and have been shown each patient chargeable to the county. The general health and condition of the patients was as good as could have been expected.

Respectfully submitted.

WM. M. OLIVER,
C. W. L. MARTINE,
Committee.

On motion received and ordered on file.

From Committee to settle with the Sheriff;

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—

Your Committee to settle with the Sheriff would respectfully report that in passing upon the Sheriff's bills, we have compared the bills with books and vouchers, finding his bills in each instance correct; (our report includes the bills of both Sheriffs Ryder and Forsyth for the past year). The total amount audited and paid was $12,968.35.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

STEPHEN S. MAPES,
C. W. L. MARTINE,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 9, 1882.

On motion received and ordered on file.

The committee to settle with the County Collector presented their final report, together with the supplementary report of the County Collector.

On motion received and ordered on file.

RESOLUTIONS.

By the Director:

Resolved, That $283 be transferred to Coupon Account, $19.33 to Coroners' Account, and $50 to Incidental Account; all from Members' Pay Account.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Board be extended to our Director, C. W. L. Martine, for the faithful manner in which he has performed the duties of his office, and the uniform courtesy extended by him to the members of the Board.

On motion adopted.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Board and the citizens of the county of Union are eminently due to P. Sheridan, Esq., County Collector, for his uniform courtesy and for the faithful and efficient manner in which he has performed the duties of his office.

On motion adopted.

By Freeholder Thompson:

Resolved, That to our County Attorney, P. H. Gilhooly, there is due the united vote of thanks of this Board for the faithful and efficient manner in which he has performed the duties of his office.

On motion adopted.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Board are due to J. L. Crowell for the able, courteous and satisfactory manner in which he has performed the duties of Clerk of this Board the past year.

On motion adopted.

By Freeholder Thompson:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Board be extended to County Physician Thos. Terrill, Jr. for his uniform courtesy and strict attention to the responsible duties of his office.

On motion adopted.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the County Attorney be instructed to discontinue all suits against the city of Plainfield, as the claims of the county for taxes are all settled in full.

On motion adopted.

By Director Martine:

Whereas, This Board is now about to adjourn sine die, its labors being concluded; and

Whereas, We, the remaining members, who will constitute a large part of the new Board, desire to express our respect and confidence in those about to part from us; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend to those about to leave us, our sincere regards, and record that we have profited by their experience, shared in their counsels and been honored by their confidence, and in saying the sad word farewell, we would also extend to each our best wishes for their future prosperity and happiness.

After appropriate remarks by the different members, the resolution was on motion adopted.

The business of the Board for the year being completed, Freeholder Hubbard moved that the Board do now adjourn sine die.

Which was carried.

The Director declared the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union adjourned, without day.

JOHN L. CROWELL,
Clerk.

They sent him round the circle fair,
To bow before the prettiest there.
I'm bound to say the choice he made
A creditable taste displayed;
Although—I can't say what it meant—
The little maid looked ill-content.

His task was then anew begun—
To kneel before the wittiest one.
Once more that little maid sought he,
And went him down upon his knee.
She bent her eyes upon the floor—
I think she thought the game a bore.

He circled then—his sweet behest
To kiss the one he loved the best.
For all she frowned, for all she chid,
He kissed that little maid, he did.
And then—though why I can't decide—
The little maid looked satisfied.

Saidee's Expedient.

"Saidee! Saidee! where are you? Why don't you answer me when I call?"

"Yes, Aunt Leah—I am coming in a minute."

"In a minute!" sarcastically repeated the old lady. "It's always 'in a minute' with you, Saidee. But I suppose because I'm old and helpless my comfort is a matter of no consequence whatever."

"Dear Aunt Leah, you must never think of that!" answered a bright, cheery voice; and Saidee Lynn came into the room with a little tray, where was arranged on a snowy napkin some tea-biscuits, half a dozen pink radishes, a few thin-cut shavings of smoked beef and a little pot of tea, with a cup and saucer of old blue china which would have been invaluable to a collector. "You see I had you in my mind all the time, Aunt Leah," she said, merrily. "I gathered the radishes from our own garden. Don't they look nice."

Aunt Leah, a withered little old lady in a dress of worn black silk, and sharp, gray eyes, peering through gold-bound spectacles, tasted of the tea and shook her head.

"It's too weak," said she. "It isn't fit to drink!"

"I put in all the tea there was in the canister, Aunt Leah," said Saidee, with a distressed countenance.

Aunt Leah pushed away the cup with an expression of distaste.

"It is as I might have expected," said she. "My nieces have too little thought for my comfort to study my poor and few necessities. Never mind the tea; I can drink cold water, I dare say."

Saidee wrung her hands in despair. How could she tell this weak, feeble old lady, above whose declining years hung the threatening Damocles sword of heart disease, of their narrowing circumstances, of the empty exchequer, the clamoring creditors, the pitiful straits to which they were reduced?

"What shall I do?" she asked herself, as she went slowly back to the little kitchen of the ruinous gothic cottage, which they had obtained for a ridiculously low rent because it was ruinous. "I've borrowed of the rector's wife twice, and I'm ashamed to go there again, and I've sold everything I can lay my hands on. But," glancing up at a picture which hung in a hall beyond, "there's the Velasquez still. A Velasquez is always worth money. Belle will scold about parting with it, and Aunt Leah will mourn; but we can't live on air and dew, like the fairies. I'll take it down to Mr. Bruner, the artist, this afternoon, and ask him to get us a purchaser. Poor people, such as we are, can't afford to retain old family relics."

And so, when Aunt Leah was indulging in her afternoon nap, and Belle, the beauty of the family, was ironing out the flounces of her white muslin dress for the morrow's picnic, valiant Saidee climbed on a chair, took the unframed picture down (it was the head of some old Spanish grandee, with a stiff pointed ruff and an evil leer in the eyes), wrapped it up in a newspaper, and crept across the meadows with it to the village.

Mr. Bruner was in his studio—a grizzle-headed, blunt old gentleman, in a belted linen blouse and a faded velvet cap. He nodded kindly at Saidee, who had once taken a few lessons from him, but when she displayed the canvas he shook his head.

"How much do you think it is worth?" asked Saidee, wistfully.

"Nothing!" said Mr. Bruner.

"But," cried the girl, "it is a Velasquez!"

"That a Velasquez?" said Mr. Bruner, contemptuously. "My dear, there isn't a picture-dealer in the country who would give fifty cents for it. It's a mendacious imitation, and a wretched one at that!"

So Saidee tied up the poor picture and went home again, shedding a few tears as she walked under the whispering trees.

"My last hope gone!" she thought. "But I'll not tell Aunt Leah or Belle that it is an imposture. They have always taken such innocent pride in the Velasquez."

As she came past the old brick house at the foot of the locust lane a load of furniture was being carried in, for it was the second week in May. Wicker chairs, twined with blue ribbon, a cottage piano, cases of books, engravings, bird cages, plants—all sorts of pretty things.

Saidee paused and looked at them, not without interest.

"I wonder who our new neighbors are to be?" she thought.

Just then out trotted a stout, cherry-cheeked old lady, with her cap all on one side and a worsted shawl tied over her shoulders.

"Oh!" said she; "are you the young woman who disappointed us yesterday about cleaning?"

"No," said Saidee, crimsoning to her temples.

"Oh, dear! oh, dear!" said the old lady; "what is to become of us! All the furniture coming in and my daughter lame from falling off a step-ladder, and the girl gone, and— But," with an eager look, "perhaps you can recommend some one to help us settle?"

"I am sorry to say that I cannot," answered Saidee, and she vanished beyond the lilac-hedge, rather amused at the mistake which the old lady had made.

Belle was full of news that evening.

"Oh, Saidee," she cried, "such a nice family is moving into the Locust house!"

"Yes," said Saidee; "I saw the furniture carts at the door as I came back from the village this afternoon."

"Oh, the village!" cried Belle, tossing her blonde head. "It's strange, Saidee, how much time you get to run about and enjoy yourself, while I am drudging at home. But there's a young gentleman there—the handsomest man, Alice Aikin says, that she ever saw—and Mr. Fyre knows him, and he is to be at the picnic to-morrow to get acquainted with the young people of the neighborhood. Won't it be delightful!"

"Very," said Saidee, indifferently.

But while Belle was talking she had made up her mind what to do on the day of the May picnic.

Early in the morning, while the flush of sunrise was still crimsoning the sky, and blonde Belle lay asleep with her yellow hair in crimping-pins, Saidee arose, dressed herself quietly, and slipped out of the back door like a little gray shadow.

At 8 o'clock Aunt Leah rapped with her cane on the ceiling of her room, which was directly beneath the one occupied by her nieces. Belle made her appearance presently in a faded calico wrapper, rubbing her eyes after a drowsy fashion.

"Where's breakfast?" said Aunt Leah.

"Where's Saidee?" counter-questioned Belle. "Oh, I know the selfish thing! She has got up early and gone down to the woods to get some pink azalias for her hair before the other girls think of it. She wants to astonish us all at the picnic. But I think she might have told me."

"I'm afraid Saidee thinks more of herself than she does of us," said Aunt Leah, sourly.

And Belle, in a very ill humor, began to prepare the breakfast—a task generally assumed by her elder sister.

While Saidee, hurrying down the path by the swamp, took the short-cut across the clover meadow, and was presently knocking at the door of the brick house where the load of furniture had stood the day before.

The old lady with the crooked cap and the cherry cheeks came to the door.

"Have you yet engaged any one to help you get settled?" said Saidee, blushing very prettily.

"We can't hear of a soul," said the old lady. "Every one is engaged just now, and—"

"If you thought I could be of use," faintly began Saidee.

"Bless me, child!" said the old lady, "you are too slight and small. Besides," looking closer at her, "you are a lady."

"But I know how to clean house," said Saidee, valiantly. "I've done it every year at home. We are ladies, but we are not people of means. And I think you will be suited with my work. It is necessary that I should earn a little money, and—"

"Come in, my dear," said the old lady—"come in and have a cup of coffee with us. I am Mrs. Hartwick—and this is my daughter Kate."

"Saidee Lynn!" exclaimed the soft voice of a pretty young girl, lying with a sprained ankle on the sofa.

To her amazement our heroine recognized one of her schoolmates, Katherine Hartwick, who had graduated in the same class with her at boarding-school two years ago.

"But you surely have never come here to work?" said Kate, in amazement.

"Yes, I have," said brave Saidee. "Why, is it any less creditable to clean paint and wash windows than to play croquet or do Kensington stitches? And my Aunt Leah has lost all her little property and we are very, very poor! So now you know all about it. And when I have eaten my breakfast if Mrs. Hartwick will give me a cleaning cloth and plenty of soft soap I'll show her what I can do."

So that Miss Lynn was mounted on a step-ladder, polishing off an antique mirror, when Katie's soft voice was heard saying:

"Oh, Harry! is that you? We supposed of course you were at the picnic. Miss Lynn, this is my brother Harry. Harry, let me present you to Saidee Lynn, my dear old schoolmate, who has come here to help us clean house."

Miss Lynn made as graceful a bow as she could under the circumstances. Mr. Harry Hartwick inclined his head.

"At the picnic, indeed!" he retorted, merrily. "Not at all. I've been hunting high and low for some one to help you, and for lack of any success I have returned to do a little light white-washing myself."

"Oh, have you?" said Saidee. "I know such a nice recipe for calcimining as white as alabaster, and it won't rub off at all."

"Let's make it," said Mr. Hartwick, promptly.

No picnic could ever have been more delightful than this day among dust, whitewash, scouring-sand and brooms. Kate, on her sofa, hemmed curtains; Mr. Hartwick bustled to and fro; Saidee, with her curly hair tied up in a handkerchief, scoured paint, and Harry whitened ceilings; and at twilight they had three rooms in perfect order.

"We have achieved wonders," said Kate, looking around at the neatly-tacked carpets, the soft, garnet plush hangings, the pictures on the walls, the crystal brightness of the windows, while Mrs. Hartwick took Saidee mysteriously on one side.

"My dear," said she, "I do not know how to thank you sufficiently. But I am ashamed to offer you a dollar and a half, although—"

"But I shall not be ashamed to take it," said Saidee, smiling. "Why should I? That is, if you really think I have earned it."

"My dear, you have more than earned it," said the old lady, "and if you could possibly come to-morrow—"

"Of course I will come," said Saidee.

Weary as she was Saidee went around by the village to buy some Young Hyson tea for the old lady before she returned to the gothic cottage.

"Well," she cried, brightly, to her sister, "what sort of a day did you have at the picnic?"

"Awfully stupid!" yawned Belle. "And the handsome young gentleman from Locust lane didn't come at all."

"Didn't he?" said Saidee.

"And where have you been?" demanded Belle, in an injured tone.

"Oh, spending the day with a neighbor!" said Saidee, with a laugh.

They finished the house-cleaning that week. Mr. Harry Hartwick found it necessary, we may add, to walk home with Saidee the next evening, and he developed a remarkable talent in the amateur painting and calcimining line before they got through.

"Isn't she pretty, Harry?" said Kate, when at last they were settled comfortably and Saidee had gone home for good.

"She is pretty," said Harry, enthusiastically; "and she is brave, and she isn't afraid of honest work; and altogether she is my beau ideal of a girl."

"Mamma," whispered Kate, laughing, after her brother had gone out, "I believe our Harry is in love with Saidee Lynn."

"I'm sure I don't blame him," said Mrs. Hartwick. "She is a little jewel."

Aunt Leah never knew where the Young Hyson tea came from, nor the sponge-cake, nor the white grapes, nor all the little luxuries which had cheered her of late; nor did she expect anything until one day Harry Hartwick came to her and formally asked her for her niece's hand in marriage.

"Well, I never!" said Aunt Leah.

"But how did you ever become so well acquainted with him, Saidee?" questioned Belle, half-pleased, half-jealous.

"Because I cleaned house for his mother," said Saidee, laughing.

And then under solemn seal of secrecy she told Belle all; and Belle declared that it was too romantic for anything, never pausing to think that real life is as full of romance as a summer meadow with buttercups, and that fortune comes to those only who go bravely out to seek fortune.

It is customary in some localities to teach children to think of a text as they drop their pieces of money into the contribution box. A certain little girl at Sunday-school recently saw the box approaching and began to search in her memory for a text. She hesitated for a few moments, dropped the dime into the box, and exclaimed triumphantly: "A fool and his money are soon parted."

A man wrote to the paragraph writer on a Western paper thus introducing himself: "I am the man who laughs at your witticisms." "Thank heaven!" said the paragrapher, with a weary sigh, "I have found him at last."

Oldest City in the United States.

Nearly seven thousand feet above the level of the sea, stands Santa Fe, the oldest city in the United States. Its history is the history of New Mexico. Three hundred years ago the Spaniards found it an old Indian village, large and populous, for history tells us that in 1580 Espejo, traveling through Mexico to rescue, if possible, some Franciscan friars who had been deserted by their escort somewhere in the valley on the Rio Grande, attempted to visit Santa Fe, but was driven back by 40,000 Indians. In 1598, however, the Spaniards succeeded in making a permanent settlement there. They built churches, convents, the governor's palace, homes and fortifications. Many of these same buildings are still standing, and are used for the purposes for which they were built. For over one hundred years they held the place, undergoing changing fortunes, as the Indians were friendly or hostile, their crops a failure or a success. But during these hundred years the Spaniards had, throughout the Territory, taken possession of the mines, forced the Indians to hard labor, taken them from their homes and reduced them to slavery. In 1680 the Indians revolted, and drove the Spaniards out of Santa Fe and New Mexico, and retained master of the country for twelve years. They had become so embittered toward the Spaniards that they destroyed everything that could be destroyed in Santa Fe, particularly whatever reminded them in any way of their hated masters. In 1692 the Spaniards returned to New Mexico, and a company under De Vargas Ponce De Leon, after a desperate battle, took up a position on the heights near Santa Fe, remained there some months, and then moved into the city, although strongly opposed by the Indians. During the Mexican war the city was taken by the United States troops, and in our civil war it was occupied by the Confederates. Notwithstanding these varying fortunes we are told that Santa Fe has changed but little.—Boston Traveller.

The Sunflower Rage.

"Have you, ahem, any, ah, any sunflower seeds?" asked a young lady, timidly, of a New York dealer in garden seeds the other day.

"Yes, madame, plenty," answered the young man in such a business-like way as to relieve the young lady's mind of any idea that it was a matter for ridicule. "Which do you want, the small or the large?" he asked with a pleasant smile, as he placed before her several small square envelopes filled with the seed. The lady took two packages, for which she paid thirty cents and departed.

"Do you sell much of that seed?" asked a reporter.

"Do we sell much of it? Well, now I guess. I never saw such a demand for one particular kind of flower seed since I've been in the business as there is this spring for sunflowers. There won't be a back yard in New York from Mott street to Harlem that won't have its clump of growing sunflowers this summer, judging from the demand there is for seed."

"And this is due to the æsthetic movement?"
